The Kentucky Legislature Again Reaches the Point of Excitement.

Which is Allayed Somewhat By the Death of Senator Weissinger.

An Awful Jam of People Crowded Into the State Capitol.

Frankfort, Ky., March 9.—Everything concerning the situation this morning seemed chaotic. All day yesterday and last night, until a late hour, the friends of Blackburn and of Boyle held conferences, in an endeavor to perfect plans to be pursued in today's joint assembly. A delegation of ten prominent Republicans from Mr. Poor's district are here to urge Mr. Poor to vote against Senator Blackburn. They were met at the train by Governor Bradley, who escorted them to Boyle's headquarters at the Capital hotel. They did not register and sought to keep their presence a secret. Dr. Barbour was one of those at the head of the delegation. Mr. Poor was sent for. The missionaries will keep at the object of their solicitations whenever an opportunity offers.

Republican activity seems directed solely to the prevention of the election of Blackburn, and it was given out in this connection that if it came to a contest between Blackburn and Carlisle, the Republicans would vote for Carlisle. At least a great majority of the sixty-eight members talked this way. Among those most positive in such assertions were Speaker Blanford, Senators James and Deboe, and Representatives Howard, Burnham, Adams, Chambers and others. A few Republicans, headed by Lyons, the free silver member from Campbell county, declared that if any attempt was made by the Republicans to stampede to Carlisle, they would vote for Blackburn. It is a significant fact, however, that the free silver vote that could be swung from the Republicans to Blackburn is less than the Democratic force that is likely to follow Carlisle. The secretary's friends say he will have twenty-five votes, some placing it as high as twenty-eight. In order to prevent a stampede of any kind, the Republicans early decided to have a number of recognized leaders on the floor of the house who should be obeyed implicitly by the rank and file. At a signal from those leaders it was understood that a quorum would be broken whenever it was thought necessary that any other step be taken. The Republicans, while giving it out that they were ready to go to Carlisle at any time, were really working to elect the nominee of the Republicans. Blackburn still professes to believe that at the crucial moment the Democratic vote will be united on him.

Everybody had heard of the exciting events of Saturday's session and the rush to get in the lobbies and galleries began early. The crush was simply frightful. The ladies did not seem at all frightened and were equally as anxious to get in as were the men. Not only was standing room in the lobbies and galleries at a premium, but as many as had influence with members crowded in on the floor of the house. Besides these a long line of the disappointed who came too late to get in at all, stood out in the corridors and waited to catch the latest news from those fortunate enough to be on the inside. The messenger boys were only able to get out to the telegraph office with press dispatches at the risk of losing their clothes, and the old timers who had been present when many former senatorial fights were decided, declared this to be by far the most exciting of all. The only wonder is that there was not more trouble of a personal nature. Considering the high tension to which the friends of Blackburn and those opposed to that candidate were wrought, this is worthy of mention.

The senate met at 11 o'clock, and on motion of Senator Bronston, adjourned until one minute of 12 o'clock, on account of the serious illness of Senator Weissinger. When the house met a great crowd was on hand. The speaker had given an order to the sergeant-at-arms to admit nobody except those entitled to the floor of the house, and the crowd, which had been expected to fill the galleries and lobbies, was kept out. This precaution was taken by the speaker on account of the intense interest and excitement over the vote on the Dunlap-Kauffman contest. The excitement over political questions had been abated to an extent, however, by the news that Senator Weissinger was dying at his room in the Capital hotel.

Business was checked shortly after the opening by the speaker, who insisted that the sergeant-at-arms was admitting men not entitled to the floor. He said that complaint had been made that men had been intimidated on the floor when the joint ballots were being taken. Mr. Violette said the speaker was mistaken. Intimidations had been attempted, but the attempts were not successful. Mr. Carroll moved that the house adjourn till 12 o'clock on account of the expected death of Senator Weissinger. Mr. Burnham objected, holding that it would be time enough to adjourn when the news of the death of Mr. Weissinger was received. He asked for time until a conference of Republicans could be held. A vote was taken after much heated argument by Carroll, Spaulding, Flippen and others.

The Democrats insisted that out of respect to the dying man, such a recess should be taken. A call of the roll on the motion to take a recess should be carried unanimously, and he asked that it should be so ordered. He was overruled, however, and the roll was ordered called. The significance of this was that the Republicans were determined to take up the contested case of Dunlap vs. Kauffman and bring it to a vote. They voted solidly against a recess, while the Democrats voted for it. Mr. Violette, when his name was called, said with tears in his eyes, that he hoped the house would rise above a partisan spirit and take a recess in honor of that noble and pure spirit now in the struggles of death. "I vote aye, Mr. Speaker," said he.

Mr. Hoard, Republican, arose before the vote was announced and said that in politics he was partisan, but in this he had to rise above politics. It is now twenty minutes to 12 o'clock, he said, and nothing could be done any way in regard to the contested election case. He voted for a recess. Carroll, Democrat, his voice trembling with emotion, said: "I will assure the gentlemen of the opposition that I will vote for the Republican nominee if there is the slightest prospect of the election of a Democrat, and I ask that the recess be granted. Lyons, Republican, on this assertion, voted with the Democrats. This closed the remarkable debate, the apparent unfeelingness of which only shows the great strain brought about by the crisis in the senatorial contest. The incident, with its attendant display of partisanship, was ended and soon forgotten, when at 11:40 the death of Senator Weissinger was announced. The motion to take a recess was then put and carried by a unanimous vote.

Just before the noon hour, the senators filed into the house chamber. The jam outside and in the corridors was terrific. The presiding officer said that for hoped there would be no disorder. Mr. Carroll said that it had been mutually agreed by Democrats and Republicans to make no attempt to elect a United States senator. He moved that the reading of the roll call be dispensed with, and that only two names, the first Democrat and the first Republican on the roll be called.

This was acceded to, and on the name of Senator Burnett, Republican, being called he voted for Boyle. When Senator Bronston's name was called he voted for Blackburn. An objection to this was made by Senator James, who said he thought that in order to be sure that the law was strictly complied with, enough names should be called to break a quorum. All those except those already named, of course, refused to vote. This was acceded to and a call of the roll was made. The chair announced that the ballot had resulted: Blackburn, 1; Boyle, 1; Pettit, 1. A quorum not having voted, there was no election.

Before the assembly adjourned, which was almost immediately, an announcement was made that the senate would meet at once to take suitable steps in regard to the death of Senator Weissinger.

THE DEAD SENATOR.

Senator Weissinger Died Just Before Noon.

Frankfort, Ky., March 9.—Senator Weissinger died at 11:30. Last night Mr. Weissinger rested fairly well, and his friends hoped he was some beter. This morning, however, it was plain that he was worse. When the doctor entered the room of the sick man, about 7 o'clock, he found him gasping for breath and black in the face. A timely application of restoratives staved off the end for a few hours. All morning the corridor of the Capital hotel, leading to Room 84, in which the dying man lay moaning and muttering in his delirium was filled with friends anxious to hear of his condition. There were many eyes full of tears to be seen when it was given out that there was no hope. The many ways in which Mr. Weissinger had always defended and fought for what he thought to be right had begotten for him admiration from every one.

The scene in the sick room of the dying man was very pathetic. Mrs. Weissinger, who has watched almost constantly for several days at the bedside of her dying son, leaned tenderly over him and held his hand in both of hers, while attempting vainly to soothe the fevered brain. She was calm and tearless, vainly imploring some sign of recognition. On the other side of the bed, George Weissinger, a brother, stood watching. They knew that everything possible had been done and yet the struggle was hard.

To see strong men like Senators Fulton, Stephens, Deboe, Carroll, Foft and many others, walk out of the sick room with tears streaming from their eyes, and to hear the expression of sorrow, is enough to show the feeling over this second and terrible death in a struggle to elect a successor to Senator Blackburn in the United States senate.

By means of an electric battery and powerful stimulants, the end was delayed until 11:30, when the stricken senator passed away. The remains of the dead senator will not be taken to Louisville today. No arrangements for the funeral will be made until after the arrival of Harry Weissinger, a brother, who is now on his way to Frankfort on a special train.

DULUTH PETITIONS.

Two Were Presented to the Senate Today.

Washington, March 9.—Special to The Herald.)—Senator Nelson today presented a resolution adopted at a combined meeting of the board of trade, business mens' union, chamber of commerce and jobbers' union, of Duluth, that no recognition of the Union Pacific railroad be made that does not contemplate the carrying out of the original project of the government for the northwest and southwest connection for the Union Pacific to Duluth.

He also presented a petition of the Loyal legion, of Duluth, for the establishment of a military park at Vicksburg to commemorate that campaign.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Duluth Will Figure Very Well in it.

Washington, March 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is learned today that the house committee on rivers and harbors will have a regular apropriation bill completed within three weeks. Very little information can as yet be secured about the provisions of the measure.

Representative Towne, Minnesota's member of this committee, was seen today and requested to say something about the appropriations for Minnesota and the Northwest. All he would say, however, was that this section would fare very well when the measure was reported from the committee to the house.

VICTIMS ARE UNIDENTIFIED.

Chicago, March 9.—The identity of a man and infant which were found at Forty-ninth street and Prairie street yesterday is as yet undiscovered. It turned out that it was a grocery clerk that telephoned regarding a missing man. He wished information about a James Maun, who has been missing from his home since Saturday. Maun's appearance, however, does not tally with that of the murdered man.

MANIAC

Fearfully Fatal Work of a Madman in Canada Today.

Kills One Man, Fatally Wounds Two and Slightly Wounds Six Others.

Only Yields When Exhausted From a Wound---Lodged in Jail.

Brockville, Ont., March 9.—A maniac, who alighted from the 11:45 train today, has shot nine men. One man, Peter Moore, is dead, and Chief of Police Rose is fatally wounded. The maniac himself was shot through the body, and is now in jail. He made a terrible fight. His name is said to be Lapointe.

It was just about noon when Lapointe came on the street carrying a shot gun. The first person he met was an old man, named Peter Moore. Raising his gun, Lapointe deliberately shot Moore dead. Chief of Police Rose, who was just coming from his office, ran in the direction of the report, and as soon as Lapointe saw him he took steady aim and fired at him, the shot taking effect in his breast and head. An old man named Dickson, who was standing near, received a charge of shot in the neck from the other barrel.

Policeman Tinsley then appeared. Lapointe had his pocket full of cartridges and was shooting right and left at random. Tinsley got behind cover and tried to shoot Lapointe, but failed. He then got behind a door in a grocery store and, partly opening it, had just taken aim when Lapointe fired, the bullet taking effect in Tinsleys' head and neck.

A young man who was in the store ran up stairs and from the window fired at Lapointe, wounding him. Lapointe fired into the window, after which he fell exhausted to the ground. He was then captured and lodged in jail. Peter Moore is dead. Chief Rose is terribly injured and will probably die. Constable Tinsley is badly wounded, but may recover. Others wounded, but not seriously, are: Robert Boyle, Fred Stagg, George Stagg, Robert McCormick and Thomas Deveraux.

ORDERED HIM OUT.

A Row in Oklahoma Territory With Officials.

Kansas City, Mo., March 9.—A special to the Star from Perry, O. T., says: Col. John R. Skinner, of the firm of Skinner, Gentry, Simcox & Co., who own several general stores in the territory, and G. W. Simcox are here with their attorneys to ask that a receiver be appointed for the firm to keep Indian Agent Col. H. B. Freeman, of the Osage's, from confiscating their stock. The matter has grown out of the refusal of Col. Freeman to pay the halfbreeds their regular annuity, which he withholds because the Indians have disobeyed certain rules laid down by him.

Col. Skinner has sided with the halfbreeds, and Col. Freeman, it is stated, has now served him with a notice to leave the territory in fifteen days with his family, or suffer confiscation of his goods. Col. Skinner is formerly of Sedalia, Mo. He is well known and wealthy. His partners are John R. Gentry, the Missouri horseman, and Dick L. Gentry, both well known in the West.

NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS.

Mr. Watson, of Ohio, Named By Republicans.

Columbus, Ohio, March 9.—Hon. David K. Watson today was renominated by the Republicans for congress in the Twelfth district, which is usually Democratic, Mr. Watson breaking the record by defeating Mr. Outhwaite during the political landslide two years ago.

Mr. Watson is 47 years of age, attorney at law, has been attorney-general of Ohio for two terms, and assistant United States district attorney. As attorney-general of Ohio, he compelled the reorganization of the Standard Oil company.

MANY APPOINTMENTS.

Grover Nominates a Number to Various Offices.

Washington, March 9.—The president today sent to the senate the following nominations: Treasury—Loper Baird, appraiser of merchandise in the district of Philadelphia.

State—Ethelbert Watts, of Pennsylvania, consul to Borgen, Switzerland.

Postmasters—James B. Lucas, Romeo, Mich.; John R. Manahan, Chatfield, Minn.; Daniel H. Brooks, Bozeman, Mont.; Mary F. Ballantine, Syracuse, N. Y.; Martin Gerard, Deadwood, S. D.; John H. Pryer, Whitewater, Wis.; Thomas Fox, Sacramento.

STOLE HIS BODY.

Bellefont, Pa., March 9.—The body of William Ettinger, the Center county desperado, who murdered Constable John Barner on last Thursday, rather than submit to arrest, and then blew his brains out, while his house had been fired by order of the sheriff in order to drive Ettinger out, was stolen from the grave last night. It is supposed it was removed by students.

BILBOA

Spaniards Start a Big Anti-American Riot There Today.

Stores Dealing in American Goods Badly Treated By the Mob.

Windows in the American Consul's House Smashed By Stones.

Bilboa, Spain, March 9.—There was another Anti-American riot here today and it was of greater importance than the previous so-called patriotic disturbances caused by the action of the congress of the United States, in regard to Cuba. About 12,000 people took part this afternoon in the popular demonstration. The excitment was started by a group of young men at a street corner, who began cheering every soldier who passed by. Their conduct was soon imitated by other groups of people, until every soldier seen was cheered by the crowds and some musicians who refused to repeat the national anthem were hustled, beaten and otherwise maltreated.

The excitement increased as the riotous groups formed in the main streets, cheering for Spain and denouncing the United States. The authorities did everything possible to maintain order. Almost the entire police force was turned out as soon as the populace assumed a threatening aspect and the rioters were dispersed angain and again; eventually, however, the mob became so numerous and excited that the police were almost helpless. After the first demonstration of sympathy with the army, the crowds armed themselves with sticks and cudgels and their numbers were so great that the police were swept aside and an immense crowd gathered on the leading thoroughfare and marched toward the residence of the United States consul, shouting: "Long live Spain," "Down with the Yankees!"

On their way to the consul's residence the mob hurled stones through the windows of stores and private residences, overturned a number of vehicles, pulled several mounted police off their horses and generally behaved in the most threatening manner. Stores dealing in American goods received the most attention from the mob and the windows of the consul's house were badly shattered, although the police defended the building. The mob then proceeded in the direction of the United States consulate, evidently intending to stone that building as well, but the authorities had taken the precaution to send a strong force of police to guard that building, and another detachment of police was stationed across the streets leading to the consulate.

Therefore, when the mob neared the consulate, it was confronted by the police with drawn swords. The mob halted, and then began pelting the police most vigorously with stones and pieces of brick. The police, however, held their ground. The rioters were charged, and then they began firing pistols at the police, two of whom were wounded. This caused the police to charge in a body and using their swords with good effect, the rioters were dispersed, yelling and hooting and shouting: "Down with the Yankees," and "Long live Spain."

The police, who made a number of arrests, experienced considerable difficulty in escorting their prisoners to the depot. During the whole of the afternoon, there was more or less disturbance. It was decided to keep both police proper and the gen'l armes confined to the barracks until further orders, as there seemed to be danger of another outbreak. The United States consulate is now guarded by a strong detachment of gend' armes armed with carbines, revolvers and swords, and they have instructions to protect the consulate at any cost.

STAND BY CRISPI.

Chicago Italians Who Want to Fight Africans.

Chicago, March 9.—Forty members of the Italia club last night offered themselves to the service of the country of their birth. While the room rang with cries of "Vivat Rex," and "Vivat Crispi," the red, white and green colors of Italy were tossed in the air and the members of the club pledged their services to the king. They signed a memorial addressed to the Italian minister of war, declaring their willingness to leave their adopted country at the pleasure of the king and proceed to Rome where they will join the Italian army and take part in the Abyssinian campaign.

The action was not an impulse of the moment, but has been in contemplation since the first news of the Italian crisis arrived. Count Rasse-dassy, the Italian consul has cabled the following message to his government: "J. Zangrando has enlisted a company of forty members of the Italia club, who offer their services to the government for military duty in Abyssinia or at the disposal of the minister of war. They will pay their transportation to Rome. All they ask is to be allowed to preserve their company organization."

The club adopted resolutions upholding the Italian government's colonial policy and eulogizing the services of Minister Crispi. The resolutions were ordered cabled immediately to the government.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

President Van Horne Outlines a Few Plans.

New York, March 9.—Sir William C. Van Horne, president of the Canadian Pacific railway, is at the Waldorf. In conversation with a reporter last night he said: "There is no truth in the report that we are seeking an independent entrance into New York. Our relations with the New York Central are harmonious and materially advantageous. As an instance I can state that among other business which will be transacted at our annual meeting next month, the shareholders will be asked to approve an arrangement between the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway company, the Canada Southern and the Michigan Central and the New York Central for the interchange of traffic and for the division and adjustment of tolls, rates and charges. The Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo railway is a new road. The other roads mentioned will welcome the lesser. It traverses the Niagara peninsula, on the Canadian side, and will facilitate the interchange of business between the different interests."

ARMENIAN RELIEF.

Lack of Funds, Not the Sultan, the Obstacle.

New York, March 9.—Today the national Armenian relief committee will send $10,000 to Constantinople. It is stated by the committee that the distribution of money is now being made among the Armenians and that at present the greatest obstacle of the work of relief is lack of funds rather than opposition on the part of the sultan.

Stephen E. Barton, of Waterbury, R. I., received a cable from Miss Clara Barton, at Constantinople, saying that the Red Cross society shipped on Saturday a large quantity of relief supplies to the interior of Armenia to go by caravan by way of Alexanderetta, on the Mediterranean. Miss Barton has forwarded funds to Harpoot, Sivas and Marash and he reports from the interior indicate that the needs of the suffering Armenians are increasing.

ATTORNEY HARPER'S TRIP.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 9.—T. H. W. Harper, attorney for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, left for Washington last night to appear before a congressional committee on behalf of the bills he prepared and which were introduced in congress. One provides for an appeal in contempt cases in federal courts and also for trial by jury in cases where the contempt was not committed in the presence of the court. The measure is to meet such cases as that of Debs in Judge Woods' court. The other bill provides for compulsory settlement of wages disputes on interstate railroads and "the grounds we take," said Mr. Harper, "is that if congress has the right to regulate the rates for hauling freight it has an equal right to regulate the prices paid for labor."

J. W. Pierce, Republic, Iowa, says: "I have used One Minute Cough Cure in my family and for myself, with results so entirely satisfactory that I can hardly find words to express myself as to its merit. I will never fail to recommend it to others, on every occasion that presents itself." S. F. Boyce.

ACTORS FIGHT A DUEL.

Marion, Ind., March 9.—Actors Will Lange and John West fought a duel on the stage of White's opera house after the close of the performance Saturday. Lange received wounds which may prove fatal. The men were members of "O'Hoollgan's Masquerade" company, and after a rough and tumble fight in West's dressing room, secured revolvers and met on the stage. Lange received two bullet wounds, West escaped unhurt. The whole company was arrested.

PUGILISM

Will Form a Sporting League Similar to the English One.

And Will Try to Defeat Unfavorable Candidates For Public Office.

San Francisco, March 9.—John L. Sullivan and Parson Davies are preparing to head a movement to place pugilism on a paying basis again. Sullivan believes sporting men should organize and refuse to cast their ballots for legislators or congressmen who would not agree to let prize-fighters go unmolested.

"Over in England the Sporting league last year beat 113 candidates for parliament because their views on sporting did not satisfy the league," said Sullivan. "We want to ask candidates for the legislature or for congress or for the senate what they think of boxing, horseracing or any kind of sports, and if their views coincide with ours, we will vote for them.

"But if they don't, we'll beat them. If a horse gets killed or a jockey, the race goes on the same, but if two box and one gets killed, a lot of ministers get up and call it an outrage. That ain't fair; boxing ain't brutal, and we are going to try and show that it is just as legitimate as any other sporting proclivity. If a man wants to go to church, let him; if he wants to go to a fight, he's got a right to.

"We want to educate and tone up the people to understand boxing. Of course, if a man don't want to see boxing, he don't have to, but he's got no business to interfere with those who do. Take a minister. His graft is to tell how to go to heaven. Let him stick to that. What business has he got to interfere with legitimate sport."

FAVORS THE CUBANS.

New York Clergyman Touches the Popular Theme.

New York, March 9.—Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., in the prelude to his sermon last night, spoke of the duty of this country to Cuba. He said: "I want to congratulate the house of representatives at Washington and the United States senate on the noble stand taken on behalf of the oppressed of the island of Cuba. America has risen to its duty as the representative of the people, but it has not gone far enough. I believe that the time has come to recognize the independence of the island of Cuba. This nation owes such an act to its history. Its cardinal principle has been liberty and upon liberty this nation is founded."

"I believe that the mass of the American people agree that the independence of Cuba should be recognized by this nation." Mr. Dixon closed by saying to his audience that he would like to hear Patrick Henry speak on the seizure of fillbusterers by the order of the state department and to hear Daniel Webster on the constitutional question raised.

BIG LOUISVILLE BLAZE.

Quarter of a Million Goes Up in Smoke.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—Warehouse No. 3 of the Union Warehouse company, on Magnolia avenue between Seventh and Ninth streets, was destroyed by fire early this morning together with its contents. The building was filled with merchandise, consisting mainly of cotton, tobacco, lumber, farming implements, hay, etc. The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from a passing freight engine.

J. L. Gardiner, secretary and treasurer of the company, estimates the loss at about $250,000, if not more. He states that the building was worth $20,000, and insured for about $20,000. Warehouses 1, 2 and 4, adjoining which were filled with goods valued at several millions of dollars, were protected by fire walls.

BOUGHT BY ENGLISHMEN.

Oakland, Cal., March 9.—Information has been received here that Henry Butters, of Berkeley, has closed a deal by which the entire street railway systems of the City of Mexico have passed into the hand of an English syndicate. It is understood that not less than $3,500,000 has been paid by the London capitalists for the roads, and that much more will be expended in permanent improvements. The systems affected are extensive and the exclusive franchises which will be controlled by the Butters syndicate is considered of great value.

X-RAY EXPERIMENTS.

Success in Denver With Lead Glass Tubes.

Denver, March 9.—Preliminary experiments in X-rays, conducted jointly by the Rocky Mountain News and the Homeopathic college, have disproved the theory advanced that the Crookes tubes made of lead glass would not permit the rays to pass through the walls of the tube. The experiments were conducted by C. E. Tennant, Jr., on behalf of the college, and H. H. Buckwalter, reporter for the News, also a practical photographer. It being impossible to procure a genuine Crookes tube, a substitute was made of common lead glass used in incandescent globes made by the company. Several negatives were made in remarkably short time after some unknown changes had taken place in the glass structure directly above the cathode and X-rays impinged on the glass opposite the aluminum disc.

The change took about an hour, after which the rays came forth in such quantity that a perfect negative of the bones of a man's hand was obtained in five minutes. The current was from an induction coil, giving a three-inch spark. Other negatives were made to determine the absorbing powers of various substances and none of those negatives were given an hour's exposure. Development lasted less than fifteen minutes. The results thus far obtained are merely preliminary to extended research which will be made both with the lead glass tubes and also the genuine Crookes tubes as soon as they can be obtained.

DURRANT'S CASE.

San Francisco Murderer is Studying Law.

San Francisco, March 9.—On April 6, a year will have passed since the murder of Blanche Lamont, and yet Theodore Durrant, who was convicted of her murder last November, is still in the county jail awaiting the final action of the supreme court in the case. Immediately after Durrant's conviction an appeal was taken, but the case has not been presented to the supreme court owing to requests for additional time made by both sides. The last postponement took place a week ago, when the prosecution was granted twenty days in which to file a bill of exceptions. At the end of this time, it is believed that the case will be presented to the supreme court, but a decision is not expected for several months.

Durrant was sentenced to be hanged on Feb. 1, but the slow manner in which justice is meted out to murderers in this state makes it plain he will not meet death much before the close of this year. Meanwhile the prisoner is spending his time at the county jail much the same as the rest of the inmates. He has few visitors and devotes much of his time to reading and writing. He has written a history of his life and lately he is said to have begun the study of law.

She was also musical director at the state university at Boulder and at Wolf hall in this city. She received her musical education in New York, from her earliest childhood displaying a marked talent for the art, in which she afterward became proficient.

He admits the paternity of the youngest child, a girl, he denied a month ago in a published letter insinuating that Harrison Allen, of Fargo, was its father. West Duluth Republicans Organize For the Coming Political Campaign.

Frank Tims' Valuable Horse Drowned in the St. Louis River.

A number of Republicans met in the store building on Central avenue formerly occupied by the district board for school purposes Saturday evening and organized a Republican club. L. A. Barnes was elected president; J. H. Meork, vice president; J. Wollan, secretary, and J. E. Fossett, treasurer.

Another meeting of the club will be held next Wednesday evening in the Stewart building for the purpose of adopting a constitution and by-laws and transacting such other business as may be necessary to complete organization. The purpose is to organize for the coming campaign and all Republicans in good standing in the party are invited to become members and attend the meetings.

HORSE DROWNED.

Mr. Tims Loses His Valuable Driving Mare.

Frank Tims met with an unfortunate accident on Saturday afternoon by which he lost his valuable driving horse. He was coming over from West Superior in his cutter when the horse broke through the ice.

Mr. Tims quickly got out of the cutter and attempted to save the animal. He placed the lines about the neck of the horse and nearly had him pulled out when the straps broke and the horse fell back and was drowned.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition.

It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

Washington, March 9.—In the United States supreme court today, Justice Shiras has handed down the decision in the case of the United States vs. Daniel K. Swearingen. This case was brought to the supreme court on a writ of error from Kansas circuit court. Swearingen was indicted and on trial convicted of sending obscene matter through the mails. The article in question was a newspaper attack upon a rival editor. The supreme court found that the court below was in error in its instructions pronouncing the article obscene, and therefore reversed the decision.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Wheat at Liverpool Started Higher Today, Which Started Buying Here.

Visible Supply Decreased Only a Million and a Half Bushels.

Notwithstanding the decline in wheat in American markets on Saturday, Liverpool opened this morning with ¼d advance and that started some buying at the start which caused May to recover from 62c, its closing price on Saturday, to 63¾c, within ten minutes of the opening. About the time that the price had risen that far the board of trade's London correspondent cabled the figures of the Russian and Danubian shipments at 5,832,000 bus for the week, and that added to what was previously known of the shipments from this country and from Argentine would bring the total up to about 9,400,000 bus. As this is much more than the estimated weekly requirements, the effect was to wipe out all the bull feeling that had been engendered by the firmness of the Liverpool market. The strength there was, however, such an anomaly in view of Saturday's weakness here and the official figures of the world's shipments as given above, that suspicion began to be aroused regarding the correctness of the latter as cabled from London. Private dispatches from Liverpool ascribed the firmness there to moderate shipments from the exporting countries, some of the cablegrams naming the total as 7,400,000 bus and others at 7,200,000 bus. As the larger of these amounts was below the figures posted here, the suspicion as to the correctness of the latter increased.

The visible supply decreased only 1,493,000 bus, inclusive of the 1,000,000 deducted on account of the elevator fire at Minneapolis last week. The expectation was for a heavier decrease than that and it helped in keeping the prices down, after the world's shipments as first received were under suspicion. The receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth were 92 cars smaller than on the Monday previous, and even rather less than those on the corresponding day of the previous week. The figures were: For today, 465 cars, and for last week 464. The Atlantic seaboard clearances were given at 324,000 bus in wheat and flour. The prediction by the signal service bureau of rain tonight and tomorrow over large areas of the winter wheat region was also one of the factors in the early decline. The trading was fairly active for a couple of hours and very light for an hour or more. About 100,000 bus of cash stuff was sold at Chicago, May after the early advance declined to 62¾c but rebected and held steady around 63c until near the close, when it sold up to 63¼c. About 20,000 bus of No. 1 northern to arrive was sold to the elevators at 2c under May. The close was 3c higher than Saturday for cash and 1¢ higher for futures. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62¾c; March, 62¾c; May, 64¾c; No. 1 northern, cash, 61¼c; March, 61¼c; May, 63¼c; June, 63¼c; July, 64½c. No. 2 northern, cash, 58@59c; May, 60¾c. No. 3, 57c. Rejected, 55c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, March 9.—The wheat market today was extremely dull and very unsatisfactory, finally closing just where it opened. Fluctuations were very small, the early weakness over the large world's shipments being offset by the small advance in cables and decreases in the English visible and amount afloat. Our visible decrease was disappointing as, after deducting the burned wheat at Minneapolis, the decrease was small. The outside traders appear disinclined to do much at present prices although the bullish features which sent wheat to 68c still exist in the main, there is a change of sentiment which appears to favor waiting to get in at lower prices.

Corn and oats dull but firm.

Provisions were stronger on light offerings. There was good buying by the shorts led by a prominent local operator.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty and 61-100 ($30.61) dollars which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon that certain mortgage executed and delivered by John A. Gobeen, mortgagor, to Nathaniel J. Upham, mortgagee, bearing date the 9th day of June, 1891, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 11th day of June, 1891, at 4 o'clock p. m. in Book 61 of mortgages on page 149, which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by said Nathaniel J. Upham to Charles Meyer, Jr., by written instrument dated July ——, 1891, with an acknowledgement attached dated July 15th, 1891, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 18th day of July, 1891, at 4 o'clock p. m. in Book 74 of mortgages, at page 490, which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby was duly assigned by said Charles Meyer, Jr., to Melville H. Mixsell, by written instrument dated the 10th day of September, 1891, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 29th day of September, 1891, at 8:20 o'clock a. m. in Book 73 of mortgages on page 539. By an instrument in writing dated the first day of June, 1894, made between said Melville H. Mixsell, assignee of said mortgage, and John A. Gobeen, the mortgagor, the time for the payment of the principal of the debt secured by said mortgage was extended for a term of three years from the first day of June, 1894, to the first day of June, 1897, with interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from June 1st, 1894, payable semi-annually on the first days of June and December of each year.

Said agreement was on August 30th, 1894, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. recorded in the office of said register of deeds in Book 121 of mortgages on page 53; and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein conveyed which are situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered five (5), in block number one hundred eighty-nine (189), West Duluth, Seventh Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house of said county, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Wednesday, the 22nd day of April, 1896, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest together with seventy-five dollars attorneys' fee, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as by law provided.

Grandin, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of September, 1893, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the ninth day of September, 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m. in Book 92 of mortgages on page 363.

REVALUATION OF REALTY.

The county commissioners of Ramsey county have voted $10,000 to make a revaluation of real estate in St. Paul for the purposes of taxation. The plan is to appoint an office force of fifty men and a field force of fifty deputy assessors to view all assessed property in detail and report what valuations should in their judgment be put upon it. The Pioneer Press objects to this plan. It says: "It ought to be plain that no reliable or even desirable results can be obtained in this way. The men chosen for this duty will be quite apt to be friends of the county commissioners and other influential persons, who are in want of employment, rather than intelligent and judicious experts on the valuation of real estate. And even if they were men qualified by experience and training for the work in hand, not much reliance could be placed upon their individual valuations. The wide disparity in the views of real estate experts as to the value of real estate under existing conditions will be startling to any one who will take the trouble to look over the testimony offered before the board of public works as to the value of property to be condemned for any public purposes. The differences will often range from 50 to 75 per cent."

The lack of demand for realty is general in all the rapidly growing cities in the West, and therefore the St. Paul people have no reason to be discouraged because the bottom has apparently fallen out of real estate values there. But there is no doubt that the valuation of property is too high, as is also the case in Duluth. The new city assessor of Duluth will have a difficult task to perform, but a reduction in the valuation of real estate is a necessity. It is demanded by every consideration of justice. The valuation here is excessive when compared with the valuations in other parts of the state. The result is that Duluth and St. Louis county are compelled to pay an undue share of the state taxes.

The work of reducing the valuation will not be easy. Perhaps the suggestion made by the Pioneer Press as to what is necessary in St. Paul will apply equally to Duluth. It says: "The first and most important thing to be done is to reduce the relative aggregate valuation of real estate in this city. It is at least 30 per cent higher than it should be as compared with the existing aggregate valuation of Minneapolis. If this were stricken horizontally and indiscriminately off the existing valuations of lots in this city, irrespective of improvements, it would go far to remedy the complaints of an excessive valuation. There are, of course, many disparities of valuation in the same neighborhood which need to be corrected. The services of a body of intelligent deputy assessors are undoubtedly needed to make notes of these disparities and of the local conditions on which they were based—if any—and to correct mistakes of over or undervaluation which have been carried in the assessor's books for years. A tentative revaluation by these assessors might be useful. * * * What should be done is to constitute a body of real estate experts, composed of four or five conscientious and disinterested men, with the county assessor as chairman, to perform the duties of a provisional board of equalization—that is, to readjust the relative valuations of property throughout the city. They should have charge of the whole business, direct and supervise the work of the deputy assessors, and reduce to some sort of harmony the mass of conflicting details which will probably be reported by the deputy assessors.'"

A CRITICAL SITUATION.

The story comes from Washington that again diplomatic circles are intensely interested in what is regarded as a critical condition of affairs between the United States, Spain and Great Britain. The impression is prevalent that England will make the most of the present incident relative to Cuba, and her assertion to disputed Venezuelan territory will be vigorously advocated. It is stated that Senator Davis was in consultation on Saturday with Senator Sherman, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, in reference to Great Britain's declaration as promulgated by the so-called blue book. It will be recalled that in Mr. Davis' recent speech on the Monroe doctrine, he doubted the truth of current reports that Lord Salisbury had agreed to make any concessions, and the blue book endorses this view.

To those who have made our foreign relations, and especially the Venezuelan boundary question, a matter of considerable study, the situation at this time is fully as promising of sensational results as at any time since the controversy started. A high commission on the part of the United States is sitting in Washington for the purpose of insisting that the disputes should be finally adjusted by arbitration. After Great Brikain had misled the world into believing that she was willing to determine the truth of the question at issue on peaceful lines, and after London has been surcharged with the feeling of a peaceful settlement of the Venezuelan affair, there comes suddenly a detailed statement of the claims of England denying the very principles on which this government asserts the Monroe doctrine should prevail and setting aside with one emphatic utterance Venezuela's right to any territory within the Essequibo river boundary. It is not strange that there should be suppressed excitement over the situation, which is certainly critical. It is evident that the United States government must take a bold and determined stand, even if by so doing war shall result. War is not a thing to be talked of lightly, but The Herald believes that the people of this country are patriotic enough to face the terrible results of war rather than recede from the position which the government has assumed in regard to Venezuela and in accordance with the Monroe doctrine.

THE SPECIAL ELECTION.

Tomorrow the people of St. Louis county will vote upon the question of issuing 4 per cent bonds to the amount of $150,000 for building new roads and bettering the roads now in existence in various parts of the county. The Herald has already expressed the belief that the opening up of new roads from Duluth to the Mesaba and other portions of the county would result in the settlement of the rich agricultural lands of the county and the raising of farm products to supply the people of Duluth and neighboring towns with products of the farm and garden for which they now send away hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. It seems hardly necessary to repeat self-evident arguments in favor of pursuing such a policy.

In a recent communication, County Commissioner Miller put the case very clearly, when he said: "For my own part I cannot see how the county cannot afford to issue the proposed bonds at the present time. The interest on the batch of $150,000 will amount to $6000 a year. But look what the county will have to offset that. Lands that are now assessed at $1.25 can be raised in valuation to at least $5 an acre and the county will get from these lands in increased taxation nearly $25,000. You would need to increase only the lands situated right along the road to do this. These lands are owned for the most part by Minneapolis and Stillwater lumbermen. But there is another consideration in favor of bonding now. In 1889 Duluth paid 47-50ths of the taxes of the county. By the building of several new towns on the Mesaba range Duluth's proportion of the taxes has in the meanwhile decreased to 41-50ths. Build this road and you cause new towns to spring up and increase the taxable list, thus decreasing Duluth's taxes. Suppose you increase the population on the range. Every new store up there is taxed for $100 or more and pays its share to the county treasurer. Duluth gets her 41-50ths of the money paid in."

There is no doubt that upon the Mesaba range there will be a large vote in favor of issuing the bonds, and on the Vermilion range a majority in favor of the bonds is probable, although the iron companies and the railroads and their henchmen are endeavoring to create opposition and defeat the issue. Upon this point the Hibbing News says: "The building of this road will tend to settle up the large tract of land unoccupied and unsettled between Duluth and the Mesaba range and thereby increase the assessable valuation in the county and within a short space of time it will return a rich harvest to its people. One of the most forcible illustrations of its benefits to the common people is the fact that the great railroad corporations are vigorously opposing it. It frequently transpires that a poor man owning a team and out of employment, with little or no means, can find employment on the ranges, but is seriously handicapped because of the expense of shipping his outfit by rail, while if there was a good road to the objective points he could drive there with little or no expense."

But a comparatively small number of the Duluth voters are registered for this election and therefore the vote here will be small. But it is a pretty safe prediction that a majority of the votes cast here will be in favor of the bond issue.

THE STATE OF MANHATTAN.

The New York Mercury has put forth a new idea—the creation of a new state out of part of New York state, to be called the state of Manhattan and including New York city and suburbs. The Mercury makes strong arguments in favor of its scheme, the chief one being that the people of New York city should be free to govern themselves without interference from the farmer legislators from other parts of the state who make the laws at Albany. The Mercury says: "It is the only way in which we can secure the precious boon of self-government and save ourselves from the schemes of taxation robbery being pushed by piratical political ringsters, who are not only determined to rob us of our revenues, but to strip us of our political prestige and power. If we would be free we must raise the banner of statehood and carry it on to victory. There is nothing wild or chimerical in this demand for the right of local self-government. The proposed state of Manhattan contains about half the population of the state of New York. It contains as large a population as the states of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming combined. It contains twice the population of either Alabama, Arkansas, California, Louisiana or New Jersey. It contains more than twice the population of the two states of Maryland and Nebraska. It contains more than twice that of South Carolina. Here in this limited stretch of territory are more than three millions of people possessed of vastly more wealth than that of the thirteen colonies at the time of the revolution."

In the latest number of the Medical and Surgical Journal there is told the story of an effort to make the Rontgen rays subserve immediately clinical needs, which proves that they are by no means to "revolutionize medical science," as current enthusiasms have proclaimed. As a matter of fact, to keep an enfeebled patient in one position for an hour or more to obtain a photograph which will enable surgeons to proceed with more knowledge in a case of amputation is risking more than is gained. Perhaps in some later development of the use of the ray, when the exposure need not be prolonged as at present, when a patient need not be kept dangerously restricted to one position, the rays may be of much more service. But surgeons do not find it necessary to make many immediate trials with the rays. Where injuries are in the lower leg or are otherwise well removed from vital centers, it is of course a different matter.

Commenting upon Congressman McCleary's statement that the only form of bimetallism possible in this country except by the concert of nations, which he declares to be impracticable, is in the free coinage of gold and the limited coinage of silver, the Montevideo Leader says: "He is certainly unfortunate in the selection of terms, for every school boy should know that such bimetallism is no bimetallism at all. We had a printer once, over in Michigan, who was addicted to drink. After numerous attempts to brace up in which he invariably failed, he informed us one day that the only possible way for him to keep sober was to get drunk every Saturday night."

The completion of the Duluth, Mississippi & Northern railway into Hibbing is an event of some importance to the state, says the Mississippi Valley Lumberman. The line runs westward on the Mesaba range and is to be extended still further west toward Grand Rapids if the proprietors can secure encouragement or aid from the owners of lands along the west end, but not otherwise. It is claimed that recent discoveries have been made in Itasca county of great value, but no developments can be made there until some one builds a rail outlet.

A recent decision of the New York court of appeals has stimulated the civil service reformers of that state to renewed efforts to enforce the law. Suits will be commenced against 148 officeholders in New York city who hold their positions without passing a competitive examination. The court of appeals has decided that under the new constitution all civil positions where it is practicable must be filled by men who have successfully undergone a competitive examination.

Even the Minneapolis Times now admits that the sentiment throughout the state in favor of sending a strong Davis delegation to St. Louis is very general, and that his candidacy is serious and is supported by many prominent Republicans all over the country.

The more the county is developed the less county taxes will Duluth be compelled to pay. New roads will develop the county.

There were several good Saturday and Sunday papers published in this section, but none that equalled The Saturday Herald.

Vote tomorrow for the issue of bonds to construct new county roads and thus aid in developing the county.

SCHEME AGAINST DAVIS.

Said to Have Been Hatched in South Dakota.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: A scheme to defeat Senator Davis in the national Republican convention at St. Louis in his candidacy for the nomination as president of the United States has just been unearthed. Like many another scheme it has its origin in South Dakota, that hot-bed and breeding place of political tricksters. It is a proposition to trade Davis for Allison, who is known to be a strong candidate in South Dakota.

Information of the deal comes from Washington in the form of a personal letter written by an official in the national capitol who has the interests of William McKinley at heart, and who, believing that Mr. McKinley is the second choice of the Republican voters of the North Star state, furnished him with an expose of the scheme in order that he might take some action to prevent its consummation. The letter was forwarded to a friend of Mr. McKinley in St. Paul, and was secured from that gentleman by a Pioneer Press representative. It is herewith published in full, the name of the writer being withheld by request, although in the possession of the paper:

Washington, Feb. 18, 1896.—Hon. William McKinley, Jr., Canton, Ohio.—Dear Sir: I have some information which may be of some value to you in your canvass for delegates in Minnesota, and possibly in South Dakota. It came to me from a direct source and I betray no confidence in giving it to you. Senator Pettigrew's right hand man in his state, in company with some other prominent men of that state, were here very recently by prearrangement, for the purpose of agreeing upon a plan by which the state of Minnesota could be kept from going to you. The plan agreed upon was that the delegates from South Dakota should be selected for Senator Davis, and in that way compel Minnesota to select delegates for Davis also. The delegates of both states are to be selected with strict reference to transferring them when the time comes to Allison. In other words, Davis is to be used as a cat's paw for Allison.

I know what I am talking about when I tell you that this is the plan agreed upon by the parties. It will be better that my name be not used in connection with this information. I am in sympathy with Senator Thurston in this matter, with Senator Manderson out of the way. I am for Manderson first. He is my friend in a peculiar sense, and so is Thurston, for that matter. Save Manderson, I would rather see you president than any other, and my efforts will be in that direction. Naturally the delegates for Manderson would be for you, as they will have a strong soldier leaning. The soldier sentiment in Nebraska is stronger than it ever was, if that were possible; and all this is favorable to you even should Manderson get the delegation, in the event he should not forge ahead in the convention and thus become a stayer. Sincerely your comrade,

WILL BE RENOMINATED.

Wadena Journal: Elmer Adams, of the Fergus Falls Journal, says that Congressman Towne will be renominated.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

Chicago Chronicle: Representative Heatwole probably has the honor of being mistaken for more distinguished men than any other member of the house. He has been told a thousand times that he looks like the late Representative Shaw, of Wisconsin, almost every day someone addresses him by mistake for Internal Revenue Collector Joe Miller, and Saturday as he stepped out of the state, navy and war department one of the senators seized him by the hand in the most cordial manner and said: "How do you do, Mr. Uhl?" "This thing of being mistaken for so many great men," said Heatwole, "keeps a man busy trying to maintain some little individuality and standing of his own."

PATHOS IN CONGRESS.

Philadelphia Telegraph: This session has produced things conspicuously bad, as well as given birth to eloquence, and the office cat has had strange things to feed upon. A very conspicuous and absurdly sentimental member of the house from New England, who loves to weep over the wickedness of the world, and was pathetic over pensions, gave utterance to this burst of eloquence when the pensions bill was under consideration by the house:

"Why did he weep? Why did he weep? I say, Mr. Speaker, why did he weep? I repeat, Mr. Speaker, why did he weep? His heart was broken. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I knew this man. He died of a broken heart! He died of a broken heart! I repeat, Mr. Speaker, he died of a broken heart! He never smiled again. They refused him the pitiful increase of $2 a month on his pension. I say, Mr. Speaker, he never smiled again. I repeat, he never smiled again!" and there were tears in the member's eyes as he closed this outburst of pathos.

HIS BOOM GROWS.

New York Mercury: Cush Davis' presidential boom rolls merrily on despite the opposition of the Minneapolis Journal.

A DESERVED TRIBUTE.

Two Harbors Iron News: Ex-Mayor Lewis retires with the distinction of having given Duluth one of the best administrations in its history. If his successor improves on it, he will be doubly entitled to the recognition denied Mr. Lewis.

AN INCITEMENT TO RIOT.

Minneapolis Tribune: The participants in the recent prize fight near Duluth should get an extra dose of justice when tried for giving the paragraphers of the country opportunity to get off the "Billy Patterson" gag. Up to this writing every man in the country whose daily schtiffs fall under the Tribune's eye has improved the opportunity.

THEY LACK ENTERPRISE.

Albert Lea Standard: One point in favor of the big department stores their smaller competitors overlook. The former certainly couldn't attain the prominence they command except by clert and constant advertising. If the smaller stores would keep themselves as well before the public they would command proportionately as good a business. The trouble with many of the latter is they are behind the times; they are too slow; they lack enterprise; they are too close-fisted; they refuse to use printers' ink liberally. The public understand all this and give the wide-awake tradesmen their patronage.

A POPULAR CANDIDATE.

Roseau County Times: Should Mr. Lee be the choice of his party, he would be a popular candidate and if elected the executive office would be filled by a man of the people in whom the public could place implicit confidence.

ACTIVE AND USEFUL.

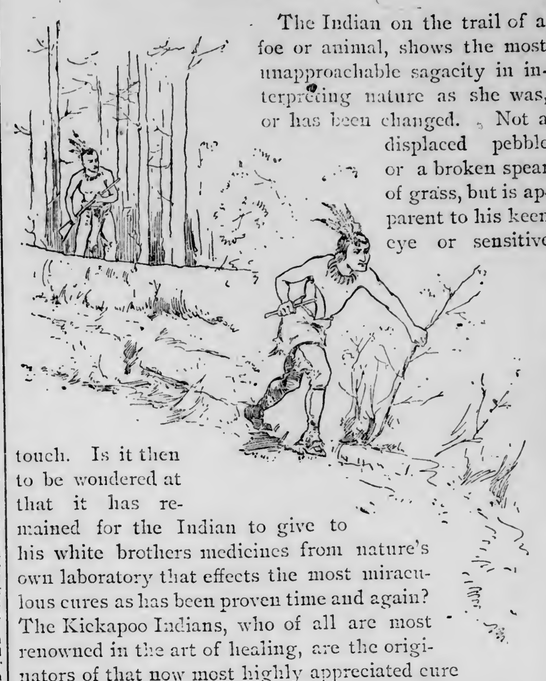
Washington correspondence of the St. Paul Dispatch: Mr. Towne is one of the most active members, as he is one of the most useful of the delegation. He has established himself so well in the house heart that he can get almost any recognition at any time. That is the kind of a man Minnesota wants here, no matter if he is on the side of free coinage. Towne has many friends, and the district will certainly make a mistake if he is not returned.

NAVAL ORANGES.

It has been shown that the tangerine orange, and possibly some other varieties are formed through the effort of the orange to make a secondary growth at the apex of the original one, only that it failed to make any original at all. In other words, the tangerine orange is a well-developed secondary fruit, says the Jacksonville News. How this can be brought about may be readily understood by carefully examining the oranges known in the market as the naval variety. In these cases a small orange can often be found at the apex, sometimes of considerable size. When the small one is largely developed and the larger one wholly suppressed, then we have the tangerine.

ON THE TRAIL.

Wonderful Instinct, Marvelous Endurance, Inimitable Skill.



The Indian on the trail of a foe or animal, shows the most unapproachable sagacity in interpreting nature as she was, or has been changed. Not a displaced pebble or a broken spear of grass, but is apparent to his keen eye or sensitive touch. Is it then to be wondered at that it has remained for the Indian to give to his white brothers medicines from nature's own laboratory that effects the most miraculous cures as has been proven time and again? The Kickapoo Indians, who of all are most renowned in the art of healing, are the originators of that now most highly appreciated cure

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Adrian Westberg and Charlotte Westberg, his wife, and Gunnar A. Westberg, mortgagors, to William H. Williams, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the first day of September, 1894, with power of sale therein contained. Said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds, in and for the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, on the 10th day of September, A. D. 1894, at 4:40 o'clock p. m., in book 104 of Mortgages, page 235, of which mortgage said William H. Williams is now the owner and holder, and whereas said mortgage contained a provision that if default be made in any of its provisions that the whole sum secured by said mortgage may be declared to be immediately due and payable. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the instalment of interest due and payable on the 1st day of January, 1896. And whereas said mortgagee has elected, and does duly elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage to be due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms of said mortgage, and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of five hundred and eighty and 12-100 ($580.12) dollars, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale by the sheriff of said St. Louis County of the premises described therein, said premises being described in said mortgage as follows: All those tracts or parcels of land situated in the county of St. Louis, and state of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit:

Lot three hundred and thirty-three (333), in block one hundred and forty-four (144), Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the recorded plot thereof, on file in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county and state, and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter (nw¼ of ne¼) of section twenty-nine (29), in township fifty (50), north of range fifteen (15) west, containing forty (40) acres of land, according to the United States government survey thereof, be the same more or less, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances, to the highest bidder thereof for cash, at public auction at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said St. Louis County, on Saturday, the 28th day of March, 1896, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest, costs, and expenses of sale, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the taxes, if any, on said premises.

Rev. Dr. Humason's Sermon Last Evening.

"Use This World as Not Abusing It," I Cor. vii. 31, was the subject of Rev. Dr. Humason's discourse at the First Methodist church last evening. It was listened to by an audience that filled every available seat.

"Paul," said Dr. Humason, "was a type of a logical, national Christian. A mistaken idea of what constitutes service to God once existed. To isolate one's self from the world was considered laudable. The story is that a zealous man once lived thirty years at the bottom of a well that he might not be disturbed from thinking on God. That man would have served God better had he spent his time thinking how to get out. Use the gifts that you have. If your talent is to preach, keep on preaching; if to sing, then sing; if to make money, keep on making money. The man who kept silence for thirty years in order that he might not be tempted to sing, thus scorning the gift of a fine voice that heaven had given him, sinned in so doing. We demand amusement. Do not try to be too wise. Many people have overtaxed their strength in so doing, and are now a burden to their friends and perfectly useless for good to the world.

"Children do not take naturally to psalm singing and prayer, they should have healthy amusements. There is no harm in good, clean fun. Cards and dancing are not wrong in themselves, but in determining whether it is proper to indulge in these amusements, certain tests should be applied; first, does indulgence lessen the interest in true religion; and, second, is it counter to the general sense of the church. If the contemplated act does not stand these tests, it is wise and best to eschew it. Cards are not mentioned in the Bible, many things are not specially forbidden therein, and the general principle found in that rule of faith and practice must be extended to them by construction. The associations connected with cards are bad; they call up the saloon, the midnight brawl, murder and despair. Thousands of girls who dance today are pure in heart, no one can deny that; but, on the other hand, many an abandoned woman has learned the first step to death in her mother's parlor. The world is full of good, healthful amusements provided for the Christian, and which he should use, being careful not to abuse."

ALEXANDER SALVINI.

An audience of considerable size saw Alexander Salvini play "Don Caesar de Bazan." It is a part which fits him perfectly. Salvini is forceful and only the careless, wayward Don Caesar is seen. When Mr. Salvini can throw himself into the part of Hamlet as thoroughly as he does into Don Caesar he will be magnificent. He does us as yet lose his own personality in that of the melancholy Dane as effectually as he should, but in Don Caesar none of it remains.

"TRILBY."

Tonight "Trilby" will be given its last production in Duluth. The company will be the same that presented it here last fall except that Harry Carleton now plays the part of Svengali. For those who have not seen it it may be said that Mr. Potter's dramatization is remarkable. He has shown astounding skill in retaining well nigh everything in the way of incident that made the novel interesting. As a piece of dramatic workmanship it is truly admirable and everyone's attention is held fast from beginning to end.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT.

The appearance of Miss Wainwright and her competent company at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday should arouse considerable interest among the theatre going public, as Miss Wainwright's noteworthy productions of the past are still fresh in their memory. On this visit Miss Wainwright will present Taylor's brilliant comedy "An Unequal Match" on Friday evening; Dumas' "Camille" on Saturday afternoon and "Daughters of Eria," by Julian Magnus and A. E. Lancaster, on Saturday evening.

BEATS ANDRUS' RECORD.

Sam Fullerton Has Turned in Over $10,000.

Since he came into office, in April, 1895, S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the game and fish commission has turned into the treasury of the commission more than $10,000. Of this sum more than $5000 was for game and fish seized and sold—clear revenue. But for these seizures—and in such large numbers they were a new experience for the commission—the commission treasury would now be empty, and it would be necessary to suspend work all over the state. The legislative appropriations for this sort of work were never large, and last winter they were smaller than usual. Luckily, the new executive agent was a very active man, and was able to make up the shortage in part.

Delegates from all over the state will be present; the reports of out-going officers will be read; some action taken looking toward securing state and national legislation, and the election of officers will take place. Charles Farrier, of St. Paul, is the state president and will preside at the meeting and all other state officers will be present. The visiting delegates will be quartered at the Merchants hotel and all the local shops meet today to make arrangements about closing during the convention, and for the proper entertainment of the visitors.

COUNCIL

Mayor Truelsen Will Send in Several Appointments This Evening.

Daniel Horgan For Captain of Police is on the List.

J. B. Richards is Developing Considerable Strength for the Attorneyship.

Mayor Truelsen will present to the council this evening for approval the following appointments: Chief of police, Iwan Hanson; captain of police, Daniel Horgan; assessor, T. B. Hawkes; member of board of public works, C. W. Wilson. Messrs. Hanson, Hawkes and Wilson will probably have smooth sailing, but Mr. Horgan will undoubtedly hear a loud noise in his vicinity. The appointment, it is stated by those who pretend to know, will, however, go through.

For the position of city attorney, Ellsworth Benham and J. B. Richards are in the field, with the faint possibility of a dark horse coming under the wire. The supporters of Benham concede Richards seven votes, but they will not acknowledge that it is possible for him to get more. Mr. Richards has been in the race but a comparatively short time, but has gathered strength amazingly, and his election is not unlooked for by those who are watching around the edges.

Plenty of fun ahead is prophesied by those who enjoy a good mill. The mayor's recommendation looking to a possible change in the location of the pumping station from Lakewood to Brighton has stirred up a tempest already and it will trouble the waters at the council meeting tonight. The report of the retrenchment committee will be thrown into the ring and the dust will be pawed up in clouds when this is flaunted. The expressions on the subject in the mayor's message have been as rubbings of a sore spot to the constituencies of many of the aldermen, and the latter will feel called on to lift up their voices. On the whole, a stubborn feeling on these questions is manifest just beneath the surface, and when the flint strikes the rock there will be fire.

J. C. JUDGE DEAD.

Minneapolis Attorney Expired Here Suddenly Yesterday.

John C. Judge, the attorney, of Minneapolis, died yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis hotel, about 3:30 o'clock. He had been in Duluth several days on business connected with land matters, and had not been feeling very well. He had been confined to this room for a day or two, but was out on Saturday. Yesterday he was taken sick again, and it was supposed that he was in a stupor of some kind, but when the doctor arrived he found him to be dead. Mrs. Judge and child were with him. The remains were taken to Minneapolis today, accompanied by the wife and child. Mr. Judge was assisting State Auditor Dunn in pushing the section 30 cases, and recently appeared in Washington, before the general land office, in that connection.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins filling the stomach with gas and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and, being an everyday occurrence, is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

It is now well known among able physicians that the whole constitution is gradually undermined and weakened, that the nerves and vital organs are seriously affected by any form of dyspepsia. This is plain, as every organ, every nerve in the body is nourished by the blood and the blood is replenished from the food digested. If the food is properly digested the blood is pure, the nerves steady, but if supplied from a sour, fermenting, decaying mass, the blood is vitiated, poisoned and the result is shown in sleeplessness, lack of energy, poor appetite, nervousness. Every trifle is magnified and the dyspeptic sees nothing but the dark side of everything.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

It is not claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia and stomach weakness in its various forms, but for this it has been shown to be unequalled. The eminent specialists, Reed and OLeary, have recently stated that they considered Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets an unfailing specific for disorders of the digestive organs, and the remarkable cures made in cases of long standing dyspepsia proves that this remedy has extraordinary merit.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical company, Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually releases a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary, by giving perfect digestion, strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

STONECUTTERS' DISPUTE.

An Explanation Made By the Boycotted Firm.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have read a notice of boycott in your paper concerning our firm. Will you be kind enough to allow me space in your paper to defend us, as this is our only chance to do so. Our firm has been put on the scab and boycott list without even giving us a chance to explain, as the Stonecutters' union are the accusers, prosecutors and judges at the same time. Here are the plain facts. After we had secured the contract for the cut stone work of the new brewery building, I explained to our men that we had had an unfair competition on this particular job, and that we would not be able to pay the union prices, and they were willing to work. Some other stonecutters, who had never worked for us before, came and offered to work for any price, as they knew this was done to a certain extent, more or less. So there was not a man working for us on that job who did not know that he was working contrary to the rules of the union. Consequently, if there were any guilty parties, it seems to me they were the members of the union who had broken the rules.

Our firm, as well as the firm of F. Omeis & Co., have been working under great disadvantages with the union for the last two years, as every one who follows the building trade knows very well that there is not enough work in this city to hold one firm, so we have to look outside for work. We also have to compete with firms that are not under the rules of any union, and pay their stonecutters from 15 to 25 cents per hour, so last summer we sent a communication to the Stonecutters, union, signed by the firm of F. Omeis & Co. and our firm, explaining all the facts and offering to pay them 5 cents per hour more than our outside competitors, but they refused to grant our request. At the same time, members of the same union prefer to pay their fare and board and go outside the city to work for less wages than we have offered them, which prevents us from taking outside work.

During the last two years, between the firm of F. Omeis & Co. and our firm, we have lost at least $100,000 of cut stone work that we could bring here if the stonecutters had been willing to work for us at better terms than they could get outside. Their reasons for refusing were that they had to follow the rules of the union, and outside there was no union, so they had a right to accept less wages. Now that they have freed us from the union and their dictations, we will try to secure outside work to keep our plants working, and if we find that under the boycott it is impossible for us to do business in this city, we will remove our plant to some other point at the head of the lakes, where we will be able to run our business, as our firm will never consent to such outrageous dictations. Yous respectfully.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 9.—President Hickey, of the Western Baseball association, and Messrs. It is designed to maintain an even temperature the year round. M. Carson is the designer. He first put up a framework of steel water tubing, allowing continuous circulation to a stream of water through the pipes between the floors and ceilings up and down all the partitions. In the summer, spring water, cold as it comes from the glaciers, is run through the tubes at such a rate of speed as is necessary to insure the required degree of temperature, while in winter the water is first run through a boiler and heated to such a temperature as may be required. The idea is certainly ingenious, and where an even temperature is required it should obtain the desired result.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Cost of Conducting Schools Discussed Saturday Evening.

A discussion on the matter of the relative cost of conducting Duluth and St. Paul schools made an opportunity for the report of the retrenchment committee to bob in at the meeting of the board of education Saturday evening and it bobbed.

Director Milne remarked that the difference of cost in favor of St. Paul is due to the fact that Duluth furnishes free text books and supplies.

At this President Pryor said that the retrenchment report had not given Duluth schools the benefit of a fair comparison a sentiment which Mr. Hugo endorsed. Discussion of the report seemed now fairly started, when the point was raised that it had not yet come before the board, and the matter was dropped.

It was decided to continue the night school at West Duluth, and also the one at the High School, as originally planned. The terms of the class in stenography will be extended one month, owing to the fact that it was that period late in starting. One hundred dollars were appropriated to purchase geological specimens from Dr. Faulkner.

It was ordered that plans and specifications and estimates of cost for improving the ventilation of the Endion and Franklin schools, as recommended by the committee, be prepared. The committee on teachers and schools asked for further time to report, which was given. Chairman Crosby, of that committee, and Superintendent Denfeld, will visit the normal schools of the state before the report is made.

Superintendent Denfeld reported as to his recent trip to Jacksonville to attend the meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Educational association.

OREGON REORGANIZATION.

Official Plan to Be Promulgated Tomorrow.

New York, March 9.—The plan for reorganization of the Oregon short line and Utah & Northern Railway company, which plan has been agreed to by all the contending interests, will be officially issued tomorrow. It calls for foreclosure and a new company, to be known as the Oregon Short Line railroad, to preserve the entire system, and also control of the block of the Oregon railway and navigation stock, which secured the $13,000,000 collateral trust bonds, the new company paying the assessment on the Oregon Navigation stock.

The present $26,800,000 common stock pays $12 per share, in four installments and receipts therefor the new consolidated 5 per cent gold bonds and 5 per cent stock in the new company, the other half of the stock going to the holders of $14,370,000 consols and Utah Southern bonds in the ratio of 100 per cent of their holdings, making the total stock of the new company $27,460,100.

It not only is so, it must be so, One Minute Cough Cure acts quickly, and that's what makes it go. S. F. Boyce.

HUMBERT WILL NOT ABDICATE.

Rome, March 9.—The Tribuna today denies that King Humbert has expressed his intention to abdicate. The report grew out of the fact that the king said: "My son may negotiate with the negus; but I will never do so." The Tribuna also publishes an anti-French article, headed, "Indecency and Insolence," during which it protests against French interference in Italian affairs, and declares that France is actuated by an implacable hatred of Italy.

WANTED TO SEE THE BOSS.

They have been printing recently some of Henry Labouchere's experiences as a diplomat in the United States, says the Washington Post. He was, as you will remember, an attache of the British legation in Washington once upon a time. One day, they tell us, Labouchere was sitting in his office, when a rather noisy individual came in and asked to see the minister.

"You can't see him. He's gone out. You must see me."

"I don't want to see you. I want to see the boss of the ranch," said the noisy individual.

"All right," replied Labouchere, going on with his writing. "Take a chair."

The visitor sat and waited for an hour. Then, with several picturesque extracts from profane history, he inquired how long the boss would be out.

"I should think about six weeks," replied Labouchere, carelessly. "You see, he has just sailed for England."

VICTORIA'S OUTING.

London, March 9.—Queen Victoria and her suite started for Nice today.

SHE COULDN'T REACH HIM.

Since the death of ex-Congressman Frank Lawler, of Chicago, a number of anecdotes concerning him have been told, especially in Washington, where he is well remembered, says the Troy Times. It is related of Lawler that on one occasion he gave the doorkeepers of the house strict instructions not to present any more cards to him, as he was greatly annoyed by callers who were taking up half of his time in the lobbies. Mrs. Lawler one day approached a doorkeeper, who had held his position but a short time and who did not know her. She asked to see Congressman Lawler.

"Sorry, madam," he said politely, "Mr. Lawler will see no one."

"Oh, yes," said Mrs. Lawler, "he will see me. You just tell him his wife is here."

"That won't do," said the doorkeeper, "that racket is worked on members every day."

DUPONT

Senator Hale Speaks Against the Adoption of Cuban Resolutions.

Dupont's Case Was Introduced and Taken Up By the Senate.

Washington, March 9.—The prospect that the Cuban question would reach its final legislative stage packed the senate galleries today. The bill was passed fixing stringent penalties for mutiny and other offenses on American vessels on the high seas, whether participated in by passengers or the crew. Before the main branch of the Cuban question (the adoption of the conference report) came up, Mr. Hoar offered resolutions bearing on the subject, one which went over under the rules, postponed further consideration of the Cuban resolutions until April 6, and directed the committee on foreign relations in the meantime to secure and report on all the available facts. Mr. Hoar did not press this to consideration, and it went over.

The other resolution from Mr. Hoar, which was agreed to, calls on the president for all available information as to affairs in Cuba, particularly so far as they concern the interests of the United States.

At 1:15 Mr. Sherman moved the adoption of the conference report accepting the house resolutions on Cuba. By this time the public galleries were packed. In the diplomatic gallery sat Mr. Ho and Mr. Chung, of the Chinese legation; Baron Von Kettlar, of the German embassy; Minister Mendonca, of Brazil, and other members of the diplomatic corps.

Mr. Hale spoke energetically against the resolutions. He did not think the inflammatory statements made by senators, in justifying the resolutions, were backed up by facts. In 1870 this condition of affairs existed, and an effort was made to involve the United States in the controversy. At that time the house comittee on foreign affairs, presided over by Gen. Banks, reported a resolution similar to this one, but fortunately for the cause of peace and progress, there was then, said Mr. Hale, a man in the presidential chair, whose love of liberty and patriotism was equal to any of the members of the committee of foreign relations, a man who would know the real meaning of war—Gen. Grant. The message Gen. Grant sent to congress was as pertinent today as it was at that time and it was an unanswerable plea against the resolutions.

Mr. Grey asked what result had come from Gen. Grant's message.

"It had," continued Mr. Hale, "brought the congressional resolutions to nothing. That message was so distinct, so unanswerable, that in the presence of that great calm man, all excitement disappeared and the resolutions came to naught."

Senator Hale sent to the clerk's desk to have read the statement of Minister Dupuy De Lome, sent out by the Associated Press. Senator Davis, from the foreign relations committee, arose and said he objected to any statement by any foreigner minister concerning senators being read in the senate.

Mr. Hale said he was willing to take the sense of the body on the subject.

Senator Teller said that it was a question whether the communication should come up through the department or being made in the newspapers. Mr. Hale charged the senators with being sensitive to matter which cannot be questioned as to its authenticity. After some further debate, Senator Davis, on appeal of Senator Frye, withdrew his objection and the clerk read the statement of the Spanish minister.

At 1:30 p. m. Mr. Mitchell presented his resolution seating Mr. Dupont as senator from Delaware and it was held to be a question of higher privilege than the conference report on the Cuban resolution, so that Cuba went over.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, March 9.—The house committee on banking and currency voted to report favorably to the house the bill introduced by Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, to permit national banks to issue notes to the amount of the par value of the bonds deposited by them in the treasury as security for their issue of notes.

A CANADIAN PROTEST.

London, March 9.—Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies in the house of commons, today replying to Sir John Leng, Liberal member for Dundee, said the government had just received a strong protest from Canada in regard to the proposed permanent exclusion from the United Kingdom of store cattle. The protest, he said, would receive careful consideration. The civil lord of the admiralty, Austin Chamberlain, replying to John Dillon, member for East Mayo, and Parnellite, said there was no foundation for the report that a squadron of British warships was on its way to Curacoa.

KANSAS BANK FAILS.

Goodland, Kan., March 9.—The Sherman County bank closed its doors this morning. Bank Commissioner Briedenthal having taken charge. Assets, $60,000; liabilities, $35,000. The bank officials claim that they will be able to pay dollar for dollar. The city had a deposit of $35,000 in the bank.

CALIFORNIA BANK CLOSES.

San Jose, Cal., March 9.—The Commercial and Savings bank of this city closed its doors this morning. A notice stated that the directors deemed it advisable to liquidate. The depositors, it is said, will be paid in full. No details are yet known. The capital stock of the bank is $1,000,000, with paid up capital of $300,000, and surplus of $256,000.

WARRANT FOR RHODES.

London, March 9.—It is admitted by the police authorities that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Mr. Cecil Rhodes. He is charged with complicity in the importation of arms into the Transvaal territory for use against the authorities of that republic.

FLOODS IN SWITZERLAND.

Berne, Switzerland, March 9.—Melting and heavy rains have caused great damage in the Bernse Oberland. The Rhine has overflowed at Locle and Marteaux, inundating those places. Railroad communication with both towns has been stopped.

OLEOMARGARINE SUIT.

Armour & Co. Made Defendants in a Big Action.

Watertown, N. Y., March 9.—Attorney General Hancock, through Mullin, Griffin & Walker, of this city, has instituted an action against Armour & Co., of Chicago, the penalties amounting to $5000, for violating the law in selling oleomargarine throughout the state during the past six or seven years. The venue is laid in Jefferson county. This suit is the outcome of attempts made by Commissioner of Agriculture F. C. Schraub to suppress the sale of oleomargarine since he assumed office.

His endeavors in this respect were met by the defendants by injunction, restraining him from prosecuting any suits until the determination by the supreme court of the United States of the question of the constitutionality of the law. About a year ago that court held the law was constitutional, whereupon the commissioner of agriculture sought to begin the suit, but was unable to obtain service of the summons.

M'BRIDE RETALIATES.

Mitchell Editor Claims $25,000 Damages in Court.

St. Paul, March 9.—A Mitchell, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Sheriff Miller, of Plankington, Aurora county, arrived today and served summons on forty-nine Mitchell citizens who participated in the sacking of the Mail office, February 24. Editor McBride brings suit for $25,000 damages for destroying the property and for other injuries.

Thirty days are given the defendants to file answers. As Aurora county officials and citizens are believed to be in sympathy with McBride, by defendants, a change of venue from that county will be taken and it will take some time to get the case into court.

MINING CASE DECISION.

Washington, March 9.—The supreme court today dismissed an appeal in the case of the Reven Gold Mining company versus the Miners' union of the town of Altman, in Colorado, appealed from the decision of the circuit court for the District of Colorado. In this case the mining company sought to have the federal court take cognizance of a strike connected with the Cripple Creek mines in 1894, on the ground that the company, which was organized in West Virginia, was in another state. This the local circuit court declined to do, on the ground of want of jurisdiction. The supreme court sustains this position.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

A Dull Opening With Slight Change in Values.

New York, March 9.—The stock market opened dull and irregular with the variations in values unimportant. The railways as a rule were higher, while concessions were noted in some of the industrial shares. Tobacco was the feature of the dealing and fell away 1¾ to 71⅞ on free selling. Subsequently the price stiffened to 73¼. Baltimore & Ohio also received effective support in the early trading and advanced 1⅝ per cent to 16½.

General Electric exhibited marked strength after 10:15 a. m., advanced 1½ per cent to 35⅝. There was no new developments in the property and the improvement was ascribed solely to manipulation. Tobacco was also fancied and touched 73¾. The general list was without especial change until near 11 o'clock when a general selling movement ensued in which sugar, Baltimore & Ohio, Manhattan and Tobacco yielded a point or thereabouts.

THE LONDON STOCKS.

London, March 9.—On the stock exchange today South African securities were flat owing to a rumor that Cecil Rhodes, the ex-premier of Cape Colony and co-administrator with Earl Grey, of the territory of the British South Africa company, has been arrested.

VENEZUELAN RUMOR.

London, March 9.—It is stated here today, that, in view of the discussion of the Venezuelan question going on in Washington between the British ambassador and the Venezuelan minister to the United States, and possible Secretary Olney, the Uruan incident, (the arrest of a British police inspector and the hauling down of the British flag in the disputed territory), may first be disposed of.

ATTACKED THE DUTCHMEN.

The Hague, March 9.—It is announced here that a Dutch military patrol has been attacked by the Alchinese, near Anagloeny, island of Sumatra. Eight Dutch soldiers were killed and five officers and twenty-one men wounded. The Alchinese lost six leaders and thirty-seven killed and wounded.

DR. LITTLE DEAD.

Cleveland, March 9.—Dr. W. H. Little, a prominent and wealthy physician of this city, died early this morning at his residence on Euclid avenue, aged 66 years.

IT PUZZLED HER.

It was her first visit to the city, and she was naturally much interested in everything she saw, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Still, I wouldn't live here for the world," she said.

"Wouldn't live here?" exclaimed her city friend.

"No, indeed, I wouldn't."

"But think of the theaters and the opera!"

"Very nice, of course," admitted the country girl, "and I would like to come to the city and see and hear them, but I wouldn't live here, just the same."

"Think of the big stores and the facilities for shopping!" persisted the city girl.

"I have."

"And the social gayety!"

"It's all very enjoyable, but I'd rather live in the country."

"But we have more of the comforts and luxuries of life, more of everything that makes life worth living."

The country girl shook her head.

"You lack the best thing of all," she said decidedly. "I don't see how you ever get married."

"Married! I don't understand you," returned the city girl.

"Where do you do your courting?" asked the country girl. "I don't believe I have seen a front gate to swing on during the whole time I have been here."

BOERS AND THE CYCLIST.

About three years ago a wandering cyclist threw a whole district of the Transvaal into a paroxysm of superstitious terror, says London Answers. Traveling by night, his advent would have been unnoticed if two young Boers, early abroad in search of strayed bullocks, had not seen the "spook," or track, of the wheelman. With the curiosity of their race, they followed it for some miles, being anxious to see "the man who could trundle a wheelbarrow so far without a rest."

After an hour's tracking one remarked: "This fellow must be a thief; let us go and tell the landdrost (magistrate)."

Accordingly, the worthy Dutch "heair" was brought on the scene, and he was accompanied by a score of armed Boers.

The whole party followed the path taken by our cyclist. Halting at noon, while the horses grazed, the mysterious trail was the object of much scrutiny.

Suddenly one farmer exclaimed: "Look here, landdrost, if it was a barrow, where is the 'spook' of the man who wheeled it?"

"My goodness!" exclaimed the official. "I never thought of that. Let's see—yes, here is the wheel right enough; but where is the footprint? Is it, it may be—yes, yes; ride, boys, ride, it's a spook (ghost)!"

To this day that portion of the road is not traversed by any of the Dutch farmers.

FOR YOUNG MARRIED WOMEN.

The following advice, given to a young married woman, who was visited by an older and more experienced one, may be helpful to some of our readers, says the Boston Globe:

When the visitor arose to go the hostess came with her to the door and out upon the pleasant piazza, which, however, looked a little dusty in the corners.

"Oh, dear," said the young wife, "how provoking the servants are. I told Mary to sweep the piazza thoroughly, and now look how dusty it is."

"Grace," said the older woman, looking into the disturbed young face with kindly humorous eyes, "I am an old housekeeper. Let me give you a bit of advice. Never direct people's attention to defects. Unless you do so, they will rarely see them.

"Now, if I had been in your place and noticed the dirt, I should have said, 'How blue the sky is,' or 'How bracing the air is.' Then I should have looked up at that as I spoke and should have gotten you safely down the steps and out of sight without seeing the dust."

TICKET FOR THE DOG.

A Staten Islander appeared at the box office of Koster & Bial's theater Saturday night and asked for a seat in a box, says the New York Sun. He got the ticket for the seat, paid for it, and started to enter the theater, but was stopped by the doorkeeper because he had with him a big, handsome St. Bernard dog.

The doorkeeper said they didn't admit dogs. The controversy which arose brought Ernst Bial out of the box office and he sent for Business Manager Will McConnell to settle the matter. McConnell was inclined to rule against dogs as guests also.

"He's just as good as you are," cried the Staten Islander, "and will be as well behaved; and besides, I am willing to pay 50 cents for a ticket for him."

McConnell finally decided to sell a ticket for the dog, and he was then admitted. He didn't seem interested in the show when he got in, but spent the time exploring the corridors and being petted by the people.

A POINTER CAT.

The vast majority of men who go hunting trained dogs to accompany them, to point wherever the game lies, and when the bird is shot to retrieve. There is one hunter in the world, however, who has no use for a dog of this kind, because he has the ground possessed of a cat that does the work quite as satisfactorily as any dog could do it.

The cat has its headquarters in Doylestown, Pa., according to a writer in Pearson's Weekly, and she is a hunter of the most accomplished sort. Unlike most cats, which prefer to do their hunting in doors, to prey upon rats and mice, and occasional canary bird when the cage has been carelessly left open, this tabby is a thorough lover of outdoor sports. She accompanies her master whenever he goes abroad with his gun, and is said to show in all cases the most remarkable intelligence.

Nothing disturbs the cat once she has forgotten out the whereabouts of a bird. Noises of all sorts fail to distract her attention in such a moment. Rigid and crouching, she awaits the crack of the gun before pouncing upon her prey, and but for the slight nervous twitching of her tail no one would guess that she was a living animal.

The singular part of it all is that she has never been trained for this occupation. It seems to have been born in her, just as poetry is born in poets. She can tell in an instant whether or not her master's shot has been true, and has never been known to chase after a bird that was not wounded and brought to the ground.

LUCK.

Luck dreams of a home, but work builds one.

The man who relies on luck is lucky if he keeps out of the poorhouse.

Luck takes a nap while brains and hard work are winning the prizes.

DECEIVED

Answer of the Merritts in the Kentucky Coal Land Case.

They Claim That the Value of the Land Was Misrepresented.

For This Reason They Want Judgment Against Stratton and Others.

The March term of district court opened in full swing this morning with all three courts running and the grand jury pegging away in its own little room. Judge Ensign took the most interesting case on call this morning, the case of F. A. Stratton against R. H. Palmer, E. T. and A. R. Merritt. The complaint makes it an ordinary case to recover $4157.40 on a promissory note, but the answer of E. T. and A. R. Merritt develops an interesting story.

It is claimed in the answer that some time ago the plaintiff and one T. F. Singiser came to Duluth with a glowing tale of possible riches in coal lands. They represented that they owned 9-10ths of the issued stock of the Empire Coal and Coke company, and that the company owned the mineral rights and fee to 50,000 acres of valuable coal lands in Pike county, Ky. Upon these representations they offered defendants to sell them three-fourths of the stock for $450,000, of which $30,000 was to be paid in cash and the balance in notes.

After this the defendants were taken down to Kentucky, according to the answer, and shown some very valuable lands which the plaintiff represented to be the land owned by the Empire company. The outlook was good enough, so the deal was closed, the $30,000 in cash was paid over and the notes made. When the true state of the deal came out, part of the notes were cancelled and the deal was declared off.

The defendant's counter claim says that the stock was not worth more than $5000, and asks judgment for $375,000, the difference between the represented value of the land and its actual value. James Spencer is plaintiff's attorney, and A. A. Harris & Son, and A. E. McManus are for the defendants.

A DAMAGE SUIT.

Judge Morris, in Room 2, took up the second trial of the case of Andrew Hedean against the Duluth Manufacturing company, to recover $15,500 for personal injuries. Hedean was painting a roof when a ladder unhooked itself and let him fall to the ground. In the former trial a verdict for $2500 was rendered and a new trial was ordered. John Jenswold is plaintiff's attorney and McCodric & Cresby are tor the company.

Judge Moer took up the case of S. F. White, as administrator of the estate of Jacob Wasser, against W. H. Singer, to recover $5000 for Wasser's death on the tug Pathfinder, which was sunk last summer in collision with the Singer tug Medina. The complaint alleges that the accident was the result of the negligence of the crew of the Medina and that Wasser had a father and mother dependent upon him for support. The answer alleges that the captain of the steamer Joliet and the crew of the Pathfinder were responsible for the accident. White & McKeon are attorneys for the plaintiff and Draper, Davis & Hollister for the defendant.

There were plenty of jurymen about the court this morning. In addition to the grand and petit juries there were a special venire of fifteen petit juries and three struck juries of sixteen men each.

The criminal cases will be taken up Thursday, and the murder cases of Soular and Verill will be tried first. They will receive separate trials.

The county attorney is considering the advisability of calling in the attorney general to aid him in the case against Stuckey.

NOT ALTOGETHER LAWLESS.

He enjoyed teasing the office stenographer and typewriter, and was always getting up some new scheme to annoy her, says the Bookkeeper.

"Have you read about the movement on foot in New York to license stenographers?" he asked, as he passed her machine.

"License them!" she exclaimed indignantly.

"Do you mean to make them go to the city hall and take out a regular license?"

"Yes."

"Just the same as for a poodle dog?"

"Same w.y.

Then she got on her dignity and her eyes flashed.

"I'd like to see them make me do that!" she exclaimed.

"Would you refuse?" he asked.

"I should think so."

"But suppose it was the law?"

"That for the law!" she cried, with a snap of her fingers. "No law that ever existed can license me."

"Sure?"

"Sure."

He was thoughtful for a moment and then he suggested:

"But if one wants to get married—"

"What's that?" she interrupted sharply.

"You know you have to get a license to marry," he explained, "but, of course, you wouldn't—"

"Who said so?"

"Why, you said you wouldn't be licensed—"

"Well," she replied, rather hotly, I've changed my mind."

YAWNING IS SALUTARY.

The New York Herald's European edition says that Dr. Naegeli, a Belgian physician, has discovered that yawning has a very salutary effect in complaints of the pharynx and eustachian tubes.

According to his view, yawning is the most natural form of respiratory exercise, bringing into action all the respiratory muscles of the chest and neck. He recommends, therefore, that every person should have a good yawn with stretching of the limbs morning and evening, for the purpose of ventilating the lungs and tonifying the muscles of respiration.

He claims that this sort of gymnastics has a remarkable effect in relieving throat and ear troubles, and says that patients suffering from disorders of the throat have derived great benefit from it. He makes his patients yawn either by suggestion, imitation or by a series of full breaths with the lips partly closed. The yawning is repeated six or eight times, and should be followed by swallowing. By this means the air and mucus in the eustachian tubes are aspirated.

The treatment may not be very effective in some cases of throat and ear trouble, but yawning is certainly a great luxury, and, as it is at least harmless, Dr. Naegeli's treatment is worth trying.

LUNATIC

Before Being Overcome He Fought Several Men Desperately.

Police Are Holding Him on a Charge of Assault.

With the words: "You are the person I am looking for. I am going to kill you," a man, whose appearance plainly indicated insanity, sprang at Miss May Schneider, in front of the residence of C. E. Van Bergen, 4203 Lombard street, Lakeside, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The madman grabbed Miss Schneider by the neck and attempted to choke her, but the latter, with a scream that brought the people in the neighborhood to their windows, broke from him and ran, pursued by the now raging lunatic, who soon caught the freightened woman and threw her to the ground. Leaping to her feet, Miss Schneider made for the residence of C. F. Hartman, 4211 Lombard street, with her pursuer close after her. Not having time to get up the steps, Miss Schneider ran once around the house, when a door was opened and she was dragged in to safety.

Simon Peree, a fisherman, living in a shack at the foot of Forty-second avenue east, now hove in sight. The lunatic made at Peree and cuffed him once, and Peree lit around the Hartman residence and dodged in through a door that was opened for him. It began to look as if the stranger was going to start the whole neighborhood running heats around the Hartman premises. When Peree escaped his pursuer produced some keys from his pocket and busted himself trying to unlock the front door.

At this juncture, Van Bergen's hired man appeared, and the lunatic started for him and knocked him down. The two rolled around in the snow and pounded each other until J. S. Merrill and H. Brown came to the rescue, the three soon subduing the obstreperous stranger, who was deposited in Merrill's woodshed to await the coming of the patrol wagon.

Pending the arrival of the police, the prisoner partially freed himself from the rope by which he was tied and stirred up a lively rumpus in the shed before he was again overcome. At police headquarters he gave his name as Andrew Johnson. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault, and his trial was set for Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Aside from her fright, Miss Schneider is none the worse for her adventure.

THE NORMAL BOARD.

Members Are Coming Here Next Friday.

City Clerk Richardson arrived home from St. Paul this morning, where he went to deliver to President Patten and Secretary Pendergast, of the state normal school board, the tender of sites for the new normal school required by the last legislature. Mr. Richardson delivered the officers named duplicate copies of a description of the sites and brief memoranda of their location and received from them assurance of hearty co-operation in bringing the matter to a conclusion by April 1.

Secretary Pendergast immediately issued a call for a meeting of the board to be held in this city on Friday next, at the Spalding hotel, when the sites will be looked over and a selection probably made. Mr. Richardson says that he was accorded every courtesy and that no criticisms were expressed on either side in reference to the site.

The common council will meet President Patten and Secretary Pendergast, either by a committee or in a body, as may be decided, probably this afternoon.

August Nolte Dead.

August Nolte died yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock of typhoid fever after an illness of several weeks. He was 29 years and 6 months of age. He was born in Elmira, N. Y., and nine years ago came to Duluth and entered the employ of the St. Paul & Duluth road. Afterward he became connected with the Northwestern Fuel company and has acted as city sales agent of that company for five years. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Unitarian church, of which he was a member. The body will be temporarily interred in the vault at Forest Hill cemetery.

THE BOND ELECTION.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In last Saturday's Herald you say, in regard to the $150,000 road bonds to be voted on tomorrow, that the lands to be benefited by the roads are owned by Minneapolis and Stillwater lumbermen, and that they should bear their fair share of county taxation. I would like to know how we are going to make them pay their fair share of taxation, by selling bonds of which 49-50 must be paid by the already overtaxed city of Duluth, let alone the fact, that nearly all of these outside lands are valuable only for the pine on them, and when that is cut off the land will have no value. So that when these bonds are due the city may be called upon to pay 49-50 of the debt.

ARRESTING SPECTATORS.

Witnesses of the Fight Will Be Prosecuted.

Sheriff William McKinnon, of Carlton county, arrived in the city today armed with warrants for the arrest of a number of Duluth people for attending the Murphy-Patterson prize fight. Warrants were served on a number of men, among them a Herald reporter. Referee Thomas Madden went out with Sheriff McKinnon today and several others will go out tomorrow. George Esh is among those for whom warrants are out. One or two attorneys and several business men are on the list, besides a lot of dead game sports.

Needless to say there is great alarm especially as it is given out cold that nothing but imprisonment will go. The sheriff has a "list" and it is not a small one, either.

THE TEMPLE QUARTET.

The next entertainment in the Star lecture course at the First M. E. church will take place next Saturday evening. It will be a concert by the Temple male quartet of Boston, assisted by Miss Katherine Ridgeway, a reader of fine reputation. The Temple quartet is unquestionably at the head of American male quartets, the best in the world. Of all similar organizations it is the best known and most popular throughout the entire country, and this statement in no wise disparages the fine work of several well-known and justly popular quartets. The Temples are a veteran organization, probably the oldest in the country, and were known from Maine to Texas in the early days of the lyceum, soon after the close of the rebellion. The high standard they set for themselves then has never been lowered, and the club is today doing the best work of its career, and holds the highest position in popular favor.

MRS. BOLLWIEN'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Paul Bollwien, who was burned to death at the fire in the O'Brien portion of the O'Brien and Knowlton block, occurred yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the remains being taken to Forest Hill cemetery. The services were held in Turner hall. It was intended to have the Rev. Dr. Salter present, but he was not notified in time.

THE TROLLEY VICTIMS.

St. Louis, March 9.—The following are among the more seriously injured by the trolley car collision near the suburb of Kirkwood last evening: Motorman Robert Aiken and Samuel Smith, died this morning; Peter Ryan, hip crushed and knee bruised; Peter Marshall, leg broken; J. H. Trump and wife, both bruised about the body; Richard Williams, Webster Grove, both feet crushed; John Bangert, left arm broken in two places and neck wounded; Ed Farmer, right leg fratured above the knee.

MR. SPENCER IN BALTIMORE.

RAILROAD MAN DEAD.

The Average Duluth Man Pays $1.12½ For His Shirt.

Mr. Charles Goodrich, of the furnishing goods department of M. S. Burrows & Co., in a conversation with a Herald reporter this morning, said that the average Duluth man paid $1.12½ for his shirt. This figure he ascertained from records kept during the last two years, in the shirt department, the prices ranging from 50 cents up to $5, few of the latter being sold, and comparatively few of the former, the $1 shirt being in general demand, although the average is slightly higher. "Since putting in the Manhattan shirts," said Mr. Goodrich, "we have sold on an average five dozen of these celebrated shirts a day, many of our customers purchasing as many as three and four at a time. A man passing the store Saturday was attracted to that shirt display in the furnishing window, and seeing one that struck his fancy, came in to buy. He was accompanied by his wife. After being shown through the new spring styles the man bought half a dozen on the advice of his wife, who suggested that he had better stock up in shirts when such exquisite patterns and perfect shirts were so cheap."

DECIDED IN THE NEGATIVE.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Houghan, of Lester Park, entertained a large company of friends at their home Saturday evening. A pleasing feature of the evening was a discussion of the question as to "Whether Marriage Was a Failure or Not," which was taken part in by Miss Louise Hollister and Miss Elizabeth Taylor, of Winona, and Rev. Dr. Hurd, of the M. E. church. The discussion was decided in the negative.

RUMORED SPANISH VICTORY.

Havana, March 10.—Col. Samera, in command of a Spanish column operating against the insurgents in the province of Pinar Del Rio, has won a victory and captured a fortified position occupied by the enemy. The insurgents were found occupying a strong position in the neighborhood of the Guacamayo plantation and it was strengthened with artillery, which protected the insurgent infantry. But the troops dislodged the insurgents, who retreated to the plantation of De Hamonos. After an hour's fighting the insurgents were dispersed with a loss of ten killed and twenty wounded. The insurgents have burned the buildings on the estate of De Hamonos in the province of Pinar Del Rio.

Judge Jamison this morning signed the order requiring the assignee of the city bank to pay over the state's account, but the assignee objects and the case will probably be appealed to the supreme court.

DE LOME

Senator Lodge Objects to an Interview With Spain's Representative.

And Wanted the Gentleman Sent Home in Disgrace For It.

Senator Gray Thought the Incident Was Not Worth Noticing.

Washington, March 10.—The Cuban question continues to be a drawing card in the senate, attracting large crowds. In the opening prayer Rev. Wallace Radcliffe made passing reference to the blessings of peace, and invoked divine guidance and blessings on all nations. As soon as the journal had been read, Mr. Lodge rose to a question of personal privilege. He said he had read on Sunday an interview attributed to Senor Depuy De Lome, of Spain. There was nothing singular in this fact, as the Spanish minister communicated largely through the newspapers. But in this case the minister called in question the accuracy of a statement made by Lodge. The senator sent to the desk and had read the minister's reference to Mr. Lodge's utterances calling in question the translation of a statement attributed to Gen. Weyler, in which the latter declared that he would "exterminate" the insurgents. Mr. Lodge commented on the accuracy of the translation, and said that a literal rendering of Gen. Weyler's language would be that he "would clean out" the large insurgent bands, and "exterminate" the smaller ones. Senator Lodge said he did not wonder at the extreme sensitiveness of the Spanish people, but he did not think this offered any excuse for the Spanish minister in adopting the course he had. He (De Lome) had been referred to as a historian, but in truth he was the ex parte representative of Spain, and what he had disclosed from time to time subtract from the general sum of information on the Cuban subject.

It was pretty well established that the debates in the senate and house were purely domestic matters, and it was not proper for a representative of a foreign country to communicate except through the state department. If an American minister in Europe discussed the political affairs there, he would be sent home. Mr. Lodge read from the letter of Daniel Webster, when secretary of state, protesting against the statements by the Austrian minister as to domestic matters. The senator added a most emphatic protest against public comment by any diplomatic representative on the debates in congress. The constitution protected senators for language used in debate. It was one of the safeguards of free speech. Mr. Lodge said he knew what any foreign government would do with a minister taking such a course. He knew what had been done under like circumstances. He knew what Daniel Webster would have done in such a case.

Mr. Gray said the course of the United States should proceed according to the judgment of a self-protecting nation, unmoved by the emeutes at Valencia or Madrid, and without being turned aside to discuss a question of translation between a senator and a minister. Mr. Gray said he would be quick to resent an attack on the privileges of a senator, but in all fairness, he thought it hardly worth while to stretch senate privileges in order to question a gentleman who had no power to reply in behalf of Spain. Our feeling will be better expressed if we do not take advantage of every criticism which differs from our own views. There should be some concession to the stress of the situation. This was a most vital time for Spain and for a Spanish minister. With the stress of circumstances we should not be over nice in insisting on diplomatic proprieties, and in finding fault with the minister in view of what had been said in the senate.

Mr. Teller said the rule was unvarying against a communication by a foreign minister, except through the state department. There should be no comment by a foreign minister. He should not be heard at all, except in regular channels. Twice had foreign ministers been sent home for statements of less importance than this. "But considering the circumstances," added Mr. Teller, "had I been in authority I would not have sent him home for this offense, but I would have had the secretary of state, in a most kindly way, suggest that a repetition of the offense would lead to his going home."

Mr. Teller then turned to the conditions in Spain. He did not think the outbreak of students should give offense. The Spanish authorities were doing all in their power to stop the trouble. There was no probability that Spain would dissent, in an offensive way, to the passing of the pending resolutions. Spain knew we had a right to recognize the belligerency of Cuba. Spain would naturally show some feeling, but she would not go to war. There was a ripple of applause when the vice president checked, when Mr. Teller referred to his sympathy with the Cubans. "I would be delighted," he said, "to hear that Havana had passed into the hands of the insurgents. I would be delighted to hear that the insurgents had run the Spanish soldiers into the sea." But the senator added while he had the sympathy yet he felt no inclination over the student ebullitions in Spain. In conclusion Mr. Teller vigorously repeated that if the Spanish minister repeated this public utterance the senator would favor giving him his walking papers. The American people were not disposed to tolerate any dictation or criticism from public officers accredited here.

OKLAHOMA DIVORCES.

House Enacts a Law Which Will Lessen Them.

Washington, March 10.—On motion of Mr. Gillett a bill was passed in the house making one year's "continuous residence" in a territory a prerequisite to obtaining divorce in such territory. The bill was aimed at Oklahoma territory, where but ninety days is required. "As a result," said the report on the bill, "cases are not investigated as their importance demands. Scandal and immorality result. The bill will abolish these temporary divorce colonies, and establish in the territories a safeguard found necessary in nearly all the states.

NEW MEXICO.

Favorable Report Will Be Made on Its Admission.

Washington, March 10.—The sub-committee of the senate committee, appointed to consider the bill for the admission of New Mexico, decided unanimously today to report to the full committee in favor of the passage of the bill. The house committee will report the bill as introduced by Delegate Catron, with a few verbal changes. While it is understood that the bill will encounter some opposition in the full committee, its friends express confidence that the sub-committee's recommendation will be accepted by a majority of the entire committee, and that they will soon get the bill into the senate with a favorable commendation.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.

A Clash of Mottoes Noticed in the Hall.

Pittsburg, March 10.—The conference to form a new national temperance party was an hour late in assembling in old city hall this morning, and when called to order there were but twenty delegates present. The promoters, however, say there will be a large number present before the conference closes. The conference was opened with devotional exercises. Chairman Stewart then delivered an address, after which the conference was formally organized.

The hall is tastefully decorated in honor of the occasion. On the stage are displayed signs reading: "Legal tender, paper money, no bonds," "Free silver, 16 to 1, independent of other governments," "Single standard gold and bonds," "In union there is strength" is another suggestive sign which graced the stage. How the multitudes of these varying ideas are to be united will appear during the conference.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Firm Opening With Fairly Large Dealings.

New York, March 10.—The stock market opened firm on fairly large dealings. The London quotations for Americans were slightly higher, although business in the exchange was very light. Cotton oil exchange was very light. Cotton oil rose 1% and the preferred 1 per cent. In silver certificates $10,000 was dealt in. Support seemed lacking in Baltimore & Ohio and Tobacco directly after 10:15 and on light offerings recessions of ¾ per cent ensued.

Near 11 a. m., however, purchases of the shares were made by houses prominent in the movement yesterday and the losses were more than regained. The grangers were also in demand, and ruled slightly higher with Burlington. Cotton oil scored a further gain of a point. The volume of business was considerably diminished, but the tone continued good at 11 o'clock despite an advance to $4.88 in posted rates for sixty days.

Aside from the movement in general electric, the operations in the second hour were devoid of significance. Realizing sales in the specialty caused a concession of ¾. The general list was almost lifeless and the quotations current at midday showing but trivial changes as compared with yesterday's final sales. The sales to noon were 70,700 shares.

A BIG GLARE.

People at Lorain Think a Steamer is Lost.

Lorain, Ohio, March 10.—About noon yesterday a steamer was seen struggling in the floating ice about four miles out. It was noticed until about 4 o'clock when it appeared to have freed itself and headed toward the north. At 7 o'clock last evening a big glare was noticed in that direction and a large crowd gathered on the beach to witness the scene.

No assistance could be rendered from here as it is impossible for a tug to get through the floating ice. Vesselmen here are excited over the affair and are of the opinion that the vessel was burned and the crew probably lost.

KENTUCKY GLOOMY.

Weissinger's Death Drowns Out Senatorial Strife.

Frankfort, Ky., March 10.—A subdued air prevailed in the house chambers at noon today when the joint assembly convened in order to go through the formality of a ballot for United States senator.

Mr. Weissinger's death was the principal topic of conversation. Mr. Lyons moved that the reading of the journal be dispensed with. He said that it had been agreed that the ballot today should be a mere formality. There was no objection to his motion. Representative Adams voted for Boyle; Representative Baird, for Blackburn, and Populist Poor, for Pettit, while the rest of the members refrained from voting. No quorum having voted, there was no election. The joint assembly then adjourned.

WEISSINGER'S FUNERAL.

Louisville, March 10.—A special from Frankfort says: "All that remained of Senator Weissinger, whose sudden death yesterday morning came as a shock to the people of Kentucky, was taken this morning at 9:40 o'clock to Louisville. This afternoon the funeral service will be held in the Second Presbyterian church in that city, after which the remains will be taken to the family home in Spencer county for interment.

EX-CONSUL WALLER.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 10.—In a letter received here, written by ex-Consul Waller to his sister, Mrs. H. J. Martin, the ex-consul announces his intention of sailing for America in about a month. He will come direct to Cedar Rapids, and may make his future home in this vicinity.

REWARD MAY BE OFFERED.

OHIO

Buckeye Republicans Enthusiastic For McKinley in State Convention Today.

They Want to Let the Country Know How They Feel.

Conventions Being Held in Rhode Island and in Kansas.

Columbus, Ohio, March 10.—There is a large attendance here for the Republican state convention which meets here this afternoon. The preliminary meetings are more in the nature of McKinley rallies than the usual contests for places. There is no opposition whatever to Governor Bushnell, Senator Foraker, Congressman Grosvenor and Mark Hanna for delegates-at-large, as they are known to be the men wanted by McKinley.

The committee on resolutions is being made up for McKinley's benefit and all the organizations is being perfected with a view of having such demonstrations tonight and tomorrow as will show to other states how McKinley stands in his own state. The leaders say there has been so much talk, since the publication of Senator Sherman's book, about Ohio Republicans being sincere or solid for any favorite, that they want to prove their attitude this year in their endorsement of McKinley.

Chairman Ickes, in calling the convention to order, and Senator Foraker, on assuming the chair, will sound the key notes and they say their speeches will be devoted to McKinley. There is a close fight between Doty and Kinney for secretary of state, and there are contests for other places on the state ticket, but the feature of the purpose is to let other states know the sentiment for McKinley.

RHODE ISLAND.

Republicans Re-nominate the Old Set of Officers.

Providence, R. I., March 10.—The Republican state convention was held here today with a good attendance of delegates. The proceedings were marked by no excitement, the renomination of the present state officers having been decided upon previously. There was no opposition to the plan. Gen. Elisha Dyer, of Providence, was elected chairman.

The platform adopted is emphatic in its declaration for sound money. The present incumbents of the general offices of the state were renominated by acclamation. They are: Governor, Charles Warren Lippitt; lieutenant governor, Edwin R. Allen; secretary of state, Charles P. Kennett; state auditor, Edward C. Dubois; treasurer, Samuel Clark. The delegates to the national convention will not be selected until after the state election on April 1.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS.

Send Greeting to Their Friends in Ohio.

Wichita, Kan., March 10.—The Republican state convention was called to order at 11 a. m. by Cyrus Ireland, chairman of the state central committee, and ex-Chief Justice Albert H. Horton was elected temporary chairman by acclamation. He made a brief speech in accepting the honor. The usual committees were appointed and an adjournment taken till afternoon.

Before adjournment Cyrus Ireland offered a telegram of greeting to the Ohio Republican convention at Columbus and it was adopted.

The only big fight anticipated in the convention will be over the proposition to give the Seventh district two of the delegates at large and turn down John Carpenter. There will be a contention in the committee on resolutions over the free coinage of silver which may be carried to the floor of the convention.

SWEDISH REPUBLICANS.

Rockford, Ill., March 10.—At today's session of the Swedish-American Republican league, new officers were elected as follows: President, Edward C. Westman, Chicago; vice president, Charles Dahlgren, Bureau county; secretary, Will Shaussander, Chicago; treasurer, A. L. Anderson, Cambridge. Resolutions were passed reaffirming allegiance to the principles of the Republican party and sympathy with the Cubans in their struggle for liberty. No candidates, either national or state, were endorsed, although seven members of the committee on resolutions are pronounced McKinley men. They deem it unwise to endorse before a nomination for president is made. The convention adjourns with a banquet this evening.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

Philadelphia, March 10.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Pennsylvania Railway company was held today. The annual report of President Roberts was adopted with but one dissenting vote, that of William E. Lockwood. When Mr. Roberts had concluded the reading of his report he spoke briefly of the benefits which will be derived by the public from the new traffic association. A resolution was adopted recommending that a committee of seven shareholders be appointed to select the new directors to be voted for. The meeting then adjourned.

BOILERMAKERS' STRIKE.

Cleveland, March 10.—The boiler makers employed at the Cleveland and Globe shipyards, numbering about 250 men, went on strike today for an increase of 10 per cent in wages. It is stated that unless the boilermakers' strike is settled by tonight all the other workmen employed at the yards will quit. This would increase the number of strikers to nearly 1500 men. The yards are crowded with workmen.

THE RED LAKE LANDS.

All Disputes Are to Be Speedily Settled.

Washington, March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Land Commissioner Lamoreux had an interview with Secretary Smith today and urged speedy action on all disputes now pending over the Red Lake lands. The Secretary said he would take the matter up early today.

REMOVING TO DUBUQUE.

Office of Supervising Inspector of Steam Vessels.

Washington, March 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Davis received notice today that the office of the supervising inspector of steam vessels for the Fifth district was to be removed from St. Paul to Dubuque, Iowa. He has requested Secretary Carlisle to suspend action until he and Representative Kiefer can make a formal protest against this change. Duluth will be affected, as it is within this inspection district.

WALKER IN ST. PAUL.

G. A. R. Commander Visits the State Capital.

St. Paul, March 10.—Gen Walker, commander-in-chief of the National G. A. R., accompanied by Adjt. Gen. Robbins, Quartermaster Gen. Burbank, ex-Quartermaster Gen. Burch and Senior Aide Camp Deitrick arrived in the city this morning. During their visit Mrs. Walker will be entertained by the board of managers of the ladies' committee, while Gen. Walker and his staff will discuss business matters with the local comrades.

Tomorrow the general will visit the state encampment at Minneapolis. Arrangements are already under way for a monster reception and camp fire to be held in honor of the commander-in-chief at the exposition building at Minneapolis on Thursday night.

MINNESOTA MOONSHINE.

An Illicit Still Found in Dakota County.

St. Paul, March 10.—A 10-gallon keg of moonshine, reposing in the office of United States Commissioner Spencer this forenoon, reminded callers that moonshine exhilaration is by no means confined to the country south of Mason and Dixon's line. The keg came from a farm in Dakota county, Minn., and with it a couple of plain men, Nick Werner and Frank Phillips, supposed to be the manufacturers. Werner was held in $1000 bail, while Phillips was allowed to go, and after the hearing, he applied to the United States government for funds which would allow him to make the return as far as Hastings.

M. M. Shields, of Faribault, a collector of internal revenue, was the sleuth who unearthed the very modest still down in Dakota county on the farm of Werner. Michael Miller and John Brockman, a couple of farmer friends, came up and went on the bond of Werner who is held to the grand jury.

THE CROP REPORT.

The Amount of Wheat in Farmers' Hands.

Washington, March 10.—The government crop report, issued this afternoon, says the amount of wheat in farmers' hands is 26.3 per cent of the crop, or 123,000,000 bus. The amount of wheat sold beyond county lines is 58.6 per cent. The corn held by farmers is 49.8 per cent, the total amount of corn being 1,072,000,000 bus.

The proportion and the total farm reserves are unprecedented. A year ago the stocks so held were but 476,000,000 bus. The amount to be sold outside the county is estimated at 21.9 per cent, the largest percentage having been 13.4. The merchantable proportion is 88.16 per cent against 82.4 per cent last year. The average of the merchantable crop is 25.6 cents, and of merchantable 15.4 cents.

A SPANISH PAMPHLET.

It Charges the Americans With Self Esteem.

Madrid, March 10.—A pamphlet has been published here entitled "The United States vs. Spain," which is believed to have been written by ex-Minister Valera. It points out the alleged injustice of congress, and the writer says he believes there will be a revulsion of public opinion in the United States as soon as the truth is known. He regards the situation from an optimist standpoint, eulogizes American women, and says that the men are amiable and hospitable to strangers, when not blinded by self esteem.

A dispatch from Barcelona says that the merchants of that city have agreed not to sell American products in the event of President Cleveland approving of the Cuban belligerency resolutions of congress. They have also a subscription toward a fund, which is to be devoted to the purchase of warships. The Carlist fete has passed off without any incident worthy of note.

CAUSED BY POLITICS.

New York, March 10.—A dispatch to the Herald from Barcelona says: Careful investigation shows conclusively that Spanish politics have had a big hand in the Barcelona disturbances. Nearly all the inhabitants here are Catallenes, and they are, almost to a man, Republicans. They are heartily opposed to the present government, and are making demonstrations with the direct purpose of putting the government in a hole and possibly causing its overthrow.

MASSOWAH IN DANGER.

New York, March 10.—A dispatch from Rome says the situation in Brythea is very grave. Signor Franzoi, the explorer, fears that King Menelik will force his way into the triangle formed by Keren, Asmara and Massowah. If he does so, the post of Massowah will be threatened.

H. T. GALLUP DEAD.

Portland, Me., March 10.—H. T. Gallup, formerly superintendent of the Boston & Albany railway, died at his residence today, aged 60 years.

INDICTED

Two Well Known Lawyers and an Explorer Indicted For Larceny.

Charged With Representing a Mortgaged Property as Free From Incumbrance.

Six Other Indictments Were Returned, Two Being Kept Private Yet.

Alexander D. Cummings, an explorer, and Herbert R. and Emory A. Tinkham, members of a well-known law firm, were indicted by the grand jury this morning for grand larceny in the second degree, in connection with a land deal. A bench warrant was issued and bailiffs were sent out to bring in the defendants.

The complaining witness is one John McAlpine, and the indictment charges the larceny of $400 from him in the following manner: It is alleged that the defendants conspired with the intention of cheating and defrauding McAlpine, to sell him certain lands in sections 7 and 8, 60-22, representing them as free from all incumbrances and giving him a warranty deed thereto. It is alleged, however, that instead of the land being free from all incumbrances, a third interest in it was subject to a mortgage for $400 given by Cummings.

E. A. Tinkham was arrested by Deputy Magle just before noon and was immediately arraigned before Judge Moser and listened to the reading of the indictment. He was given until tomorrow morning to plead and bonds were fixed at $500, to be furnished during the day. In the meantime he was released on his own recognizance.

About 1:30 o'clock H. R. Tinkham and Alexander D. Cummings were arrested and they were arraigned upon the opening of court this afternoon when the same disposition was made of their cases, bail in each case being fixed at $500. They expect to be able to furnish it without difficulty.

Grand jury also brought in two indictments for assault in the third degree against parties who are still at large and bench warrants were issued for them. Louis Bennetts was indicted for assault in the second degree for striking Thomas Gratzky at Virginia with a stove poker. Gratzky died and Bennetts was bound over to the grand jury for manslaughter.

Eleas Palata, of Ely, was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree for stealing a watch and some money from Matt Pascanen. Peter Delshin and Frank Muncia were indicted for keeping a house of illfame at Virginia.

The three branches of the court were still occupied this morning with the cases which they took up yesterday. The case of P. A. Stratton against R. B. Palmer and E. T. and A. R. Merritt, involving a counterclaim of $375,000 on the part of the Merritts, is not expected to end before tomorrow afternoon. The damage case of Hedeen against the Duluth Manufacturing company was expected to take up the rest of the day at least, and the case of the administrator of Jacob Wasser against W. H. Singer was not expected to go to the jury before morning.

HORSESHOERS' CONVENTION.

Third Semi-Annual Gathering Begun in Duluth.

The third semi-annual convention of the State Master Horseshoers' Protective association is in session in Odd Fellows' hall, in this city, today, thirty-five delegates being present. The object of the organization is to elevate the personnel of the craft and educate the members in the line of their calling, and to this end schools have been established in many of the large cities of the country by the state associations, which are affiliated in a national organization. It is designed ultimately to subject all horseshoers to an examination before providing them with certificates of fitness to follow the trade. The passage of lien laws, under which horseshoers may hold the animals shod by them as security for their pay, is sought. It is not designed to raise prices, but suitable regulations will be adopted to prevent ruinous cutting of rates.

The state association now has sixty locals established, and regular courses of lectures by veterinarians are being given. The fourth annual convention of the national association was held in Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10 to 18 last, at which sixty cities were represented.

The meeting here was called to order by President Farrier, at 10 o'clock this morning. The reports of the officers showed a flattering condition of affairs. The business to be transacted this afternoon will be amendment of the state by-laws and appointment of a committee on legislation.

A CARGO OF ARMS.

Vessel Which May Be Going to Cuba.

Charleston, S. C., March 10.—The steamer Commodore, which has been in port here for several weeks, suspected of being a filibuster bound for Cuba, cleared today for Tampa. She has aboard a cargo of arms, ammunition and machettes. Since her arrival from Wilmington, extensive repairs have been made and yesterday a new crew arrived and promptly took their places. She is in command of Paul T. Rojo, a Cuban, who accompanied her from Wilmington.

During her stay here the greatest reticence has been maintained. No objection was made concerning the clearance papers by the customs department. It is believed that the Commodore will discharge her cargo upon the Cuban coast before reaching Tampa.

FOR GREATER NEW YORK.

Albany, March 10.—The greater New York bill, as amended by the senate, was advanced to a third reading in the assembly today.

RONTGEN

His X-Rays Being Used For Many Purposes in Europe.

Crookes Tubes and Long Time Exposures Are Deemed Unnecessary.

Wonderful Adaptation of the Rays in the Study of Anatomy.

Washington, March 10.—United States Consul General De Kay has submitted to the state department interesting reports on later developments of the X-rays, accompanied by a pamphlet, in which Professor Rontgen, the discoverer, explains his research. The consul general's report gives many facts that have been discovered by European experimenters in regard to the rays, which are unknown in this country. For instance, he reports that they have been used to detect false parts, after an exposure of forty-five minutes, and an Austrian professor has discovered that they can also be used to detect false diamonds.

A Berliner has made a special photographic paper for the direct reception of the rays. In consequence, it is now unnecessary to make a negative, and so the perceived impression incident to the negative is obviated. Moreover, it has been found that many pictures may be taken at once in this manner by using a packet of the sensitive paper, since the rays penetrate all the paper. One experimenter has succeeded in passing the rays through a brass counter, the photograph showing the inscription on one side, and a bird in relief on the other.

New methods of work have been brough to light. The length of exposure can be reduced from one hour to a few minutes. The heavy charges of electricity which destroyed so many crookes tubes have been found to be unnecessary. Moreover, the tube itself is not required, and an ordinary incandescent electric lamp suffices, if a metal plate is placed at a certain distance from it to serve as a center for the cathode or X-rays.

But one of the most important applications of the rays has been made surgically. By placing a subject to be examined before a screen faced with a mixture of barium platinum and cyanium, and allowing the rays from a tube, enclosed in a dark cloth, to traverse the body, the impression can be seen by the eye, on the surface of the screen, which is rendered flourescent where the rays fall unterrupted upon it, and the surgeon is consequently enabled to move the subject freely before the screen and examine the interior of the body for foreign substances or hurtful growths and distorted bones.

A HORRIBLE STORY.

Revealed By a Roman Catholic Priest to Officers.

Mexico, Mo., March 10.—One of the most horrible tales of death and neglect that has ever happened in this part of the state has just came to light at Martinsburg, Mo. Coroner Rhodes, of this city, received a telegram from Father Dill, of the Catholic church at Martinsburg, telling him to come immediately. On his arrival he was taken to the farm of Pat Cronan, an old Irish farmer. Here an awful sight was disclosed. On a bed in the room was the body of Mr. Cronan in a most advanced stage of decomposition and the stench which filled the house was almost unbearable.

Mrs. Cronan, who had been subject to insane spells, was going about her household duties as usual, cooking a meal in the room where the corpse lay and taking no special notice of it. Nothing could be learned from her as to when her husband died, or what caused his death. It seems that Mrs. Cronan thought her husband very ill and sat up with him each night until his face became black. She then became frightened and told the priest. Mrs. Cronan was taken sick and since died, cause unknown. She was to have been taken to the asylum today.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

STRANGLED IN FSISCO.

Another Murder Which Excites the Demi Monde.

San Francisco, March 10.—Another of the women of the town was strangled early this morning, under circumstances identical with the two other murders that have taken place in the same locality. Early this morning, a woman named Bertha Paradis, No. 257 St. Mary's street, was found dead in bed. When found she was half reclining on the bed, her feet resting on the floor. She had been strangled, a handkerchief having been thrust down her throat. The room was in perfect order. The girl lay full dressed in bed. There were no marks of violence on her neck.

She had apparently been seized and a napkin as well as a handkerchief had been crowded down her throat. The money on her person was not touched, nor had there been any apparent efforts to go through the bureau drawers or other places where money might be kept. The police believe they have gained a slight clew to the criminal. J. P. Myler, who is a waiter in the saloon on the corner, was summoned about 12 o'clock to take drinks to the woman's room. When he delivered the drinks, he found two men in the room. About twenty minutes later the went back and one of the men came into the saloon.

WHEELS AT FRISCO.

Fast Time and Big Crowds Are Noted.

San Francisco, March 10.—Interest in the great indoor cycling tournament is unabated, the building being crowded every night and standing room is at a premium. The first event on the program last night was an exhibition quarter mile by J. E. Edwards, who rode to beat Oscar Owen's record made last week. Edwards succeeded in lowering the record to 29 1-5. The first eighth was ridden in 14 4-5.

Charles E. Wells, the Bay City wheelman, lowered the indoor record for one mile in the first heat of the mile handicap to 2:12 2-5. His fractional time was: Quarter, 45; half, 1:14 1-5; three quarters, 1:39 3-5, and 2:12 2-5 for the mile. The big record-breaker was enthusiastically applauded by the spectators with whom the champion California rider is a great favorite. Louis Jaegling and John Egan, on a tandem rode a quarter in 29 seconds. The mile handicap had four starters. Tantau, Ackelman, Languelin and Metcalf. On the seventh lap Metcalf fouled Langelin, both falling, and Tantau, who was riding behind them, also came down. The race was a walkover for Ackerman, who escaped the collision and won from the 65-yard mark in 2:17. Metcalf remounted his wheel and rode the race out.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Altoona, Pa., March 10.—Fidel Tritchler, aged 34 years, a prominent baker and a member of the select council of this city, murdered his wife this morning and then fired two bullets into his own brain. He cannot recover. Tritchler had evidently fired upon his wife while she slept, as her body was found lying in bed. The murderer, after firing the fatal shot, placed the revolver against his head and sent two shots into his brain. For more than a week he has been suffering from insomnia, and without doubt he committed the murder while temporarily insane. The couple had been married less than six months, and were, to all appearances, perfectly happy.

ORDERED TO SEA.

Victoria, B. C., March 10.—Quite a little stir was caused in naval circles today when it was learned that her majesty's ships Pheasant and Comus received word to put to sea as soon as possible, but not later than Saturday, under sealed orders. At first it was rumored that the whole fleet was ordered to sea, but this was denied later. The officers, of course, do not know what the orders are, but they seem to be under the impression that there is something in the vicinity of Honolulu to demand their attention. Both vessels have orders to carry all the ammunition, provisions and coal that can be stored away.

MONADNOCK AT SEA.

San Francisco, March 10.—The coast defense vessel Monadnock, the keel of which was laid at Mare Island navy yard twenty-one years ago, made her first appearance in San Francisco harbor today. She was on her trial run, having been made ready for sea at the navy yard a few days ago. As a fighter she is rated well up with the Monterey, and the two could easily dispatch anything now in the Pacific.

OFFICIALS ARE HOPEFUL.

San Francisco, March 10.—Another day has passed without bringing news of the overdue steamer Rio De Janeiro, which is now over thirty-two days from San Francisco to Yokohama. This is the longest passage across the Pacific in many years. The officials of the Pacific Mail company were besieged by relatives of the officers and crew of the steamer seeking information. The officials say she is sure to arrive all right.

OVERDUE VESSELS.

Port Townsend, Wash., March 10.—General alarm is felt for the safety of two vessels, one bound to and one from Puget sound, whose masters are well and favorably known along the Pacific coast. The Hawaiian bark Maunala, Capt. William Smith, which sailed from this port Nov. 9, laden with a cargo of lumber, valued at $6000, is long over due at Port Adelaide, Australia.

There is nothing so good for burns and frost bites as Salvation Oil. It effects a speedy and permanent cure. 25 cents.

JAMESON

Raider of the Transvaal Has His Hearing in London Today.

Large Number of His Officers Were at Bar With Him.

Great Crowd Assembled in Famous Old Bow Street Court.

London, March 10.—There was a large and pronounced English crowd in and about the Bow street court today, the occasion being the hearing of Dr. Jameson, Sir John Willoughby, Royal Horse guards; Col. White, Col. Regy, Capt. Welsh, Maj. J. B. Stracey, Scots guards; Maj. Villars, Capt. K. J. Kincaid Smith, Royal artillery; Hon. Charles Coventry, captain Third battalion Worcester guards, son of the earl of Coventry; Capt. C. L. Monroe, Capt. C. P. Foley, of Third battalion Royal Scots; Capt. E. C. S. Holden, captain Derbyshire Yeomanry; Capt. C. F. Lindsell, Fourth battalion Durham Light Infantry, and Lieut. H. M. Greenfel, Lieutenant First Life guards, charged with violating the foreign enlistment act passed in 1870, "to regulate the conduct of her majesty's subjects during the existence of hostilities between foreign states with which her majesty is at peace."

Mr. Chamberlain and Dr. Jameson are, somehow, very much associated by the jingo minded in the "great raid," and, therefore, not only were the Transvaal filibusters loudly cheered whenever recognized by the crowds in the streets leading up to Bow street, but there was hearty applause for "Joe" Chamberlain, whose "vigorous colonial policy" has won the approval of the masses. Newspaper representatives were present by the score, and came from many parts of the world.

Included among the audience were the duke of Abercorn, chairman of the British Chartered South African company; earl and Lady Coventry (they had several relatives among the raiders); Lady Finlay, the Hon. Reginald Coverley; Admiral of the Fleet Sir John E. Commerell, G.C.B., V.C.; Lady Annally, who had a brother-in law among the raiders wounded, and a number of other people of equal importance. There was a buzzz of excited admiration, almost awe, when Dr. Jameson and Sir John Willoughby, the military commander of the expedition, and their fellow raiders, mustered together at the opening of the court, and had it not been for the stern demeanor of the chief justice a popular demonstration would have occurred.

The array of counsel on both sides is formidable. For the defense there are Sir Edward Clarke, Q. C.; Sir F. Lockwood, Q. C.; Edward M. Carson, Q. C.; and C. F. Gill, in behalf of the treasury, and for the prosecution there are Sir Richard Webster, Q. C.; R. B. Finlay, Q. C.; Sir Charles Matthew, Q. C., and others. Sir Richard Webster opened for the crown. He dwelt in forcible language upon the gravity of the charge against the prisoners, contending that the South African republic was a friendly state, within the meaning of the foreign enlistment act, and held that Bechuanaland, from whence most of Dr. Jameson's troops came, was undoubtedly part of the British dominions. Continuing, Sir Richard reviewed the circumstances of the notorious raid, and mentioned the speech which Col. R. Grey made to the Bechuanaland police, in which he said: "I cannot tell you we are fighting by the queen's orders, but you are going to fight for the supremacy of the British flag in South Africa."

The address was listened to with great interest. The most complete silence prevailed in court and not a movement aside from the counsel's lips seemed to change the attitude of the prisoners. Their nonchalent demeanor gradually left them, and in time they began to look nervous and worried. There was no mistaking the earnestness of leading counsel for the prosecution, and if any of the defendants had the idea that legal adion against them was to be a mere formality, that notion was soon dissipated by Sir Richard Webster's remarks.

When counsel sat down there was a murmuring, quickly suppressed, of surprise among the friends of the raiders. Evidently they had not realized the gravity of their situation.

The first witness called was Sergt. Hay, of the Bechuanaland, a typical trooper of the British South African mounted forces, bronzed and wiry, well built and smart looking. He testified to the mustering of the troopers at Mafeking and the endeavors of Dr. Jameson and Col. Grey to induce him and a few of his comrades to join the body of men being equipped for the march toward Johannesburg.

The questions put to Sergt. Hay drew forth from that witness the statement that Dr. Jameson and Col. Grey were much annoyed, and so expressed themselves, at the fact that some of the troopers hesitated and others refused to join in the expedition.

Sir Richard Webster occupied most of the morning session with his address. There was no startling developments during the examination of the witnesses. After the formal evidence had been submitted, the examination was adjourned for a week.

POOL ROOM MEN'S VICTORY.

St. Louis, March 10.—"Texas Tom" Walsh, the pool room man, gained a point in Judge Murphy's court Monday in securing the dismissal of the cases against him and his ten assistants on charges of keeping a common gambling house. Walsh's lawyer argued a motion to quash in the cases, raising the point that horse racing does not constitute common gambling and Judge Murphy sustained the motion to quash. Motions for a change of venue in two other cases against Walsh on charges of bookmaking and pool selling were argued yesterday.

CHAMPION HAMMER THROWER.

Berkley, Cal., March 10.—Robert Edgran, the well-known university hammer thrower, has broken the world's record for throwing the 16-pound hammer. Out on the Berkley campus today he threw the missile that has made him famous 147 feet and 7 inches. The world's record was 145 feet.

CHIEF RABBI DEAD.

Chicago, March 10.—Isaac Elchonon Kovnorov Specter, chief rabbi of the Jewish church in all the Russias, is dead. A dispatch received by the Daily Jewish Courier says that the rabbi died at his home in the city of Kovno after a lingering illness.

ANCIENTS HAD SENSE.

Dated Beginning of Year From Opening of Spring.

When All Things in Nature Start Afresh.

Some Other Things in Which the Ancients Have Given Us Points.

The ancients began their year with the advent of spring. How much more appropriate thus to begin the New Year with the new life of nature in the awakening spring. At this season all processes throughout the natural world start afresh.

The ancients also showed their sagacity and appreciation of the great changes and active processes of the spring-time, by realizing that this is also the time for renewed life and energy in the human system. They well knew that the blood should be cleansed from impurities and the nerves reinvigorated at this season. Hence the establishment of the custom of taking a good spring medicine.

The unanimity on this subject is a settled fact; the only question heretofore has been in regard to what is the best thing to take. The people are now fast becoming unanimous in their decision that as a spring tonic and restorative, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is pre-eminently the best.

Year after year Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has proved itself the surest, most positive and reliable remedy. Made from pure vegetable medicines, it invariably cleanses, purifies and enriches the blood, making the blood rich and red, and at the same time, by its invigorating effects, giving strength, power, vitality and energy to the nerves.

In fact, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has proved itself the most perfect of medicines and just what everybody needs for a spring remedy. Try it this spring.

Mr. Stoughton L. Farnhaam, of Manchester, N. H., says:

"Some time ago I was troubled with lassitude and a feeling of fatigue. I did not have the ambition to do anything that demanded unusual physical exertion.

"I was recommended by a friend to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I took two or three bottles and am prepared to say that it did me good. I can recommend it as a tonic, as I know it helped me."

Remember Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is recommended by physicians, is, in fact, a physician's prescription, the discovery of the well-known specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York city, who can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.

SUTRO'S SARCASM.

Postal Authorities Are After His Scalp.

San Francisco, March 10.—The local authorities are waiting instructions from Washington before entering proceedings against Mayor Sutro for sending defamatory matter through the mails. The envelopes addressed to congressmen and bearing the inscription: "C. P. Huntington would not steal a red hot stove," are to be made a basis for complaint. United States District Attorney Foote and the postoffice inspector had a long consultation about the matter today. Mr. Foote is of the opinion that the case against the mayor is a clear one. Mayor Sutro, on the other hand, is not at all alarmed.

"The whole matter is a high-handed proceeding," he said today. "I think it was primarily instigated by the octopus. If I am arrested, I suppose I will have to submit the same as any other citizen, but until I am arrested I do not propose to move in the matter. I do not think my statement about Mr. Huntington is wrong or should be retracted, for it is true, he would not steal a red hot stove, for he could not move it."

SAW FACTORY BURNED.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—Nearly one half of the large plant of the E. C. Atkins company, saw manufacturers at 202 to 216 South Illinois street, was burned early this morning. The fire started in the paint shop. The loss will be between $75,000 and $100,000 with insurance of $56,750 on the portion burned. The company has branches at Memphis, Chattanooga and Minnsapolis. The fire will in no way cripple the concern and new buildings will replace the ones destroyed.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 10.—A school house, twelve miles from here, in which several score of colored people were holding a concert, has been blown up with dynamite, and several of the occupants slightly hurt. The building was rented from the whites, and white boys who intended it are believed to have set off the explosives.

SALAMANCA STUDENTS.

Indulge the Spanish Fad of Burning American Flags.

Madrid, March 10.—There was a serious anti-American riot at Salamanca yesterday evening. The students, as usual, were the leaders of the disturbance. They carried Spanish and American flags and burned the latter amid the acclamations of the crowd. Eventually the gendarmes charged the rioters and dispersed them temporarily. Later the students reassembled and gathered another mob about them. The prefect hurried to the scene and exhorted the students to disperse; but they hoted his utterances, cheering for Spain and denouncing the United States.

Finally the prefect was compelled to call upon the police for protection, and the gend'armes charged the riotous students who met the onslaught with showers of stones. Order, however, was finally restored and the university was closed. The authorities fear there will be an additional outbreak today and elaborate precautions have been taken to promptly suppress it.

CONDEMN OUR POLICY.

Madrid, March 10.—Thoe Herald today publishes telegrams saying that the newspapers of Chili and Mexico support Spain and condemn the "absorbing and domineering policy of the United States."

FUTURE OF GREYTOWN.

Washington, March 10.—Many Americans have been making inquiries of United States Consul O'Hara at Greytown as to the future of that town in the event of the pushing of the Nicaraguan canal project, showing a widespread belief that a great field would be opened to American labor and capital. The consul, therefore, makes a special report on the subject, taking the ground that the many improvements, such as railways, bridges, wagon roads, etc., that would follow the opening of the canal would tend to build up many small towns, instead of creating one great Buenos Ayres or Rio at one entry, and at present American labor would hardly be contented in Nicaragua.

A SENSATIONAL WASHINGTON TRIAL.

Washington, March 10.—Benjamin H. Milliken, a well known young Tennessean, will be placed on trial here Thursday on the charge of housebreaking with intent to commit a criminal assault on a daughter of ex-Solicitor General Phillips. Widespread interest has been taken in the case. The trial originally was set for yesterday, but was deferred at the request of the counsel for the defense. The defendant's brother, Judge Milliken, law clerk of the postoffice department, is among the counsel. The trial may develop some sensational testimony. The offense involves an extreme penalty of fifteen years' imprisonment.

WEST END

Not Much Enthusiasm Shown Over the Election In West Duluth.

Most Apathetic Election Ever Known to Residents of the Suburb.

Loggers Made Happy By the Recent Heavy Fall of Snow.

The election booths in West Duluth were pretty lonely places today in comparison to the usual activity about them on election days. Up to noon a very light vote was cast, and although the registration was small, only about a quarter of the registered votes were in the box.

For instance, in the first precinct of the Eighth at 11:30, but 24 had voted, while about 100 were registered.

From outside indications one would judge that the no crosses were strongly in the majority. There does not appear to be any organized effort for or against the issuance of the bonds, and a more seemingly apathetic election was never carried on in West Duluth.

SEASON'S LOGGING.

McDonnell and Green Have Done Very Well.

N. Sickles, clerk for P. R. McDonnell, left for Virginia yesterday for the logging camp. Mr. McDonnell has a contract for getting out 12,000,000 feet of logs in that vicinity, and expects to succeed in getting out about a third of the number this winter.

John Green has finished his logging contract for the season, and the crew has broken camp and returned to West Duluth.

There are a number of West Duluth contractors who would have had their logs hung up but for this last storm, and very likely would have lost large amounts on their contracts. Now there is a good prospect that all will be enabled to bring their logs down from the hill and finish up in good shape.

WEST DULUTH PERSONALS.

Mrs. George Fredericks left yesterday for a two weeks' visit in Chicago.

R. W. Mars, Capt. Randall and others will leave tonight for Minneapolis to attend the state encampment which meets at that place tomorrow.

HE DIED SUDDENLY.

William Johnson's Death Attributed to Heart Failure.

William Johnson, aged about 30 years, employed as a laborer by Nels Elsberg, a railroad contractor, died at Milepost 62, on the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, yesterday. Johnson had complained of not feeling well about an hour before he died, but it was supposed to be merely temporary indisposition.

The body was brought to Duluth and taken to Bayha & Tibbetts' undertaking rooms, where it now lies. Death is attributed to heart failure. Johnson is said to have friends here, living in the neighborhood of Twentieth avenue west and Michigan street.

The man who stands idly by and sees the life fading out of his wife's face, sees her health going, sees her becoming old and faded and wrinkled when she should still be in the perfect enjoyment of vigorous, useful health, is either less than a man or else does not know of the one remedy which will bring her back to health and strength. Perhaps her husband cannot persuade her to go to her doctor, because she naturally dreads the inevitable examinations and "local treatments." He can persuade her, if she needs persuasion, to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This truly wonderful medicine has cured hundreds of women after the best physicians have failed. It has been in constant use and tested every day for thirty years. It isn't an experiment, there are no chances about it. It is a certain cure for all derangements, weaknesses, irregularities and displacements of internal organs peculiar to women.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DECLINED

Wheat Opened Lower Today and Ruled Very Steady All Day.

The Small Exports Last Week Were Ignored By the Trade.

Decrease in the World's Visible of Over Two Million Bushels.

Wheat, which looked at the close yesterday as if it needed only a confirmation of the private cablegrams regarding the small exports last week to start it on a fresh advance, opened ⅜c lower here this morning, although the confirmation was made before the session commenced. The Liverpool market came ½d declined. That, accompanied by liberal receipts in the Northwest and the most favorable weather possible for the wheat plant, caused the opening break and the weak feeling which characterized the trading during the first hour of the session. The strange ignoring of the fact that exporting countries did not put afloat the quantity needed by the importing nations can only be explained on the supposition that the trade has turned to the conviction that the world holds enough wheat and to spare, and that if the exporting countries do not ship it now, they will be all the more anxious to do so when they approach the ingathering of another crop.

The Northwest receipts were 467 cars compared with 399 on the corresponding day of the week ago. The Chicago receipts were 98 cars and the shipments by rail 10,680 bus. The Liverpool market, which opened ½d declined, closed at a reduction in price for spot and ¾d for futures. The Atlantic port exports were disappointingly light at only 188,000 bus in wheat and flour together, of which 59,000 bus was in the shape of wheat. The Russian shipments for last week, as finally confirmed this morning, were 2,629,000 bus and those from Danubian ports only 320,000 bus, instead of that many barrels, as erroneously given out yesterday. Those corrections made the total from all exporting countries 6,570,000 bus against estimated weekly requirements of about 7,500,000 bus and actual indicated consumption of over 8,000,000 bus per week so far this season. Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 1,685,000 bus in the visible east of the Rockies and a decrease in afloat for Europe of 268,000 bus, or a total decrease of 2,053,000 bus.

The market here ruled remarkably steady, never fluctuating more than ¼c. May, which opened at 62¾c, declined to 62⅝c and ruled steady until the last few minutes when it sold up again to the opening price. The mills bought 25,000 bus No. 1 northern to arrive at 1½c under May, and the elevators took 50,000 bus at 1½c and 2c under May. The close was ⅜@⅝c lower than yesterday for cash stuff in store, ½c for wheat to arrive and ⅝c lower for futures. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62c; March, 62c; May, 60¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 59¾c; March, 60¾c; May, 62¾c; June, 63⅝c; July, 64⅛c. No. 2 northern, cash, 57⅝@58⅝c; May, 60¼c. No. 3, 56½c. Rejected, 54½c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 62¼c; No. 1 northern, 61c. Rye, 35c. No. 2 oats, 19c; No. 3 oats, 18½c. Flax, 86c.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, March 10.—As anticipated, we had a waiting wheat market today, traders keeping close to shore in anticipation of the government report showing reserves in farmers' hands which will be issued this afternoon and which is expected to show a total of about 120,000,000 bus. The opening was weak on lower cables and reported large loadings of Russian wheat for prompt shipment. Bradstreet's report of the world's visible, though showing a decrease of fully 1,000,000 bus less than expected, had no effect on the market. Tomorrow's market will be considerably influenced by the government report. If bearish its effect has been partly discounted, and should it happen to show only about 100,000,000 reserves a strong upturn would be the result.

Corn and oats firmer with a fair trade.

Provisions experienced a continuation of the firm feeling of the last few days, and the shorts were again conspicuous buyers.

AMONG THE CURLERS.

Recent Games For the D. R. Black Medal.

The play for the D. R. Black medal is well along, one rink being in the finals. In the first draw W. B. Dunlop lost to J. A. Dewey by a score of 14 to 18; A. H. Smith won from Dr. Forin by a score of 16 to 13; Charles McMillan won from D. R. Black by a score of 14 to 11. In the second draw McMillan lost to R. J. Macleod by a score of 11 to 14, Frank Esson won from Donald Morrison by a score of 22 to 5, and E. S. Palmer forfeited to Harry Hurdon. In the third draw Hurdon defeated Esson 18 to 6, placing his rink in the finals.

Tonight Dewey and Smith are to play in the second draw and Macleod will play the winner Wednesday or Thursday. The winner of this game will play Hurdon later in the week for the trophy.

Macleod's rink has the curlers' buttons now, and the whole club is scrambling for them. In order to keep them Macleod had to play and defeat Black, McMillan and Smith, and last night Black's rink came in for another defeat, the game being given up on the twelfth head as a bad job. The score was 10 to 19 in favor of Macleod, though Black had an advantage of eight points. Tonight W. B. Dunlop plays Macleod for the buttons.

Aldrich and Thomas C. Aldrich, her husband, mortgagors, to Catherine M. Gleason, mortgagee, bearing date the 19th day of December, 1892, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 28th day of December, 1892, at 4 o'clock p. m. in Book 103 of mortgages on page 291; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots No. ten (10) and eleven (11), in block No. twenty-nine (29), London Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the register of deeds in St. Louis County and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 22nd day of April, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of twenty-seven hundred and thirty-three and 78-100 dollars and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MR. TOWNE'S POPULARITY.

It is safe to say that no public man in our history ever attained such prominence and popularity in the first session of his first term as Mr. Towne has. When we look back over the past and call up such great men as John Quincy Adams, Clay, Calhoun, Webster, Seward, Blaine, Conkling, Garfield, Oliver P. Morton and many others, the full extent of this praise may be better understood. It was after considerable service in the house and senate that these men made their great abilities known and felt. A Washington correspondent of The Herald, in Saturday's issue, gave some idea of Mr. Towne's great speech on the finance question. He has received more than 2000 letters of congratulation and the demand for his speech is simply enormous. In all probability several million copies will be published and distributed, and it is significant that there is a great demand for it in New England, New York and the older states as well as from the West and South. Letters requesting the speech come from every state and territory in the Union, which shows that the demand for the remonetization of silver is not dying out, but is growing and pervading the people of this whole country.

But to return to the speech. Senator Vest, who is regarded as one of the very finest orators in congress, pronounced it "the strongest speech which had been delivered in congress on the silver question." Ex-Speaker Crisp said that it was the ablest speech of its kind ever delivered in the house. Speaker Reed was not in the chair when it was delivered, but was present and heard it and warmly congratulated Mr. Towne, and said "it was a very fine speech." Many congressmen who followed him in the debate referred to it in terms of unstinted praise, and the following is a sample from Congressman S. M. Clark, of Iowa, who said of it: "He (Mr. Towne) has signalized his entrance as a member of this body by one of the most masterly pieces of argumentation, by one of the most fascinating feats of oratory ever heard in this body or in any forum. The merits of his intellectual treatment of the case have been heightened by the spirit of devotion to the interest of the people which pervaded his speech. * * * When he appealed to it in strong and majestic eloquence to give consideration to the interests of what Mr. Lincoln called the common people, this Republican house was warmly responsive, for the heart of the party of Abraham Lincoln still thrills to any appeal made to it in the spirit of Mr. Lincoln's love for the people."

But the greatest compliment was from Senator Teller. In a red hot running debate with Senator Sherman on what constitutes bimetallism, Senator Teller said: "Bimetallism means, as I have stated, the use of two metals as legal-tender money on equal terms. Since I made that statement a gentlemen handed me a copy of the Record, and I quote from a speech made in the house the other day by a gentleman from Minnesota. By the way, I think that if the senator from Ohio (Mr. Sherman) would read that speech he might get some views that would do him good, and some information he does not appear to have. I read now from what Charles A. Towne, a member from that state, said." He then proceeded to read to Mr. Sherman and the senate passage after passage from Mr. Towne's speech, to refute Senator Sherman's new-fangled sophistries about bimetallism.

Such a man can do more for his constituents than a dozen ordinary men. To show how Mr. Towne can arouse enthusiasm the Washington correspondent tells of his oration before the Lincoln club at Jersey City. The toastmaster referred to Duluth, and Mr. Towne took it up and prefaced his oration with a little speech on Duluth, and when he concluded the toastmaster called for three cheers for the Zenith City, which were given with a will.

If Mr. Towne lived in any of the New England states or in the South, there would be no question about his being returned to congress as long as he lived and would consent to serve. The people of the Sixth district should do the same, and no doubt will.

THE BRIDGE BILL.

At the last meting of the chamber of commerce the bill now before congress amending the law authorizing the construction of a bridge between Rice's and Connors' Points was considered, and after some discussion the matter was referred to a committee. The report of the committee will be made at the meeting of the chamber tomorrow, and as the matter is of the utmost importance to the city The Herald trusts that the members of the chamber will turn out in force so that there may be a fair expression of public sentiment on the subject.

It is understood that the committee will recommend that the bill be amended by providing for the free passage of pedestrians over the bridge. It is contended that this provision was in the original bill agreed to by the joint committee representing Duluth and Superior, but was stricken out after it reached Washington, and that it is a good time to secure its insertion again, when the company is seeking an extension of time for completing the bridge. On the other hand, the question arises whether the company would be able to secure capital to build the bridge, should this provision be added.

There is no doubt about the strong sentiment in both Duluth and Superior in favor of the early building of a bridge connecting the two cities, and the advisability of inserting a clause that would retard the securing of the necessary capital and the early construction of the bridge should receive careful consideration. The masses of the people would be greatly benefited by the abolition of tolls for pedestrians. For these reasons The Herald hopes to see a large attendance at tomorrow's meeting, so that all phases of the subject may be carefully considered and the wisest conclusion reached.

ELECTRIC PARLOR CARS.

A new and popular idea is the introduction of parlor cars on electric street railways. It now seems probable that in some cities where business men ride regularly for half an hour or so, morning and evening, on the street railways, commuters' parlor cars will be put on for their benefit. The matter is being discussed in several cities, and some of the parlor cars now in use are certainly luxurious enough to satisfy the most finicky passenger. One of the Brooklyn companies has a number of such cars. The platforms are inclosed by railing and all the outside trimmings are of bronze. The inside finish of the car is of mahogany, and the metal work is all bronze. There are no fixed seats, but in their place are wicker chairs having upholstered seats and arms, all parts liable to injure the woodwork of the car being upholstered.

The floor is covered with a Wilton carpet and the windows are furnished with silk velour draperies in addition to tapestry curtains. At each corner there is a buffet, the doors of the upper lockets being furnished with beveled plate-glass mirrors. Over each of these buffets is a gooseneck bracket for an incandescent lamp and there are three incandescent electric chandeliers on the ceiling. Each car is supplied with two tables, which can be attached to the sides of the car at different places, and in case an unusually large party has to be carried, twelve camp stools are provided in boxes on the platform. The exterior of the car is painted deep blue, with goldleaf ornamentation.

Perhaps in the not distant future we will see luxurious cars of this description carrying the residents of Lakeside, Woodland Park, etc., to and from their places of business. With such means of travel, life in the suburbs would have additional attractions.

THE MINING LAWS.

The Rainy Lake Jurnal draws attention to a subject which should receive attention, as it concerns the development of the gold region in the northern part of the state. The Journal says: "No real prosperity will be possible on the American side until the country is placed under the operation of the United States mining law. There is plenty of good property on this side, but prospectors can get no title, and are not especially interested in finding gold mines for the lumber jacks of Duluth or the Twin Cities. If Mr. Towne wants to do something that will benefit this state, as no other factor can, he should see that Northeastern Minnesota is at once placed under the operation of the United States mining laws."

Maj. Baldwin introduced in the last congress a bill dealing with this subject which was prepared by some people in Duluth, but it was very unsatisfactory to practical miners and was never pressed. It died in the committee room. The mistake then made was in trying to frame a special law upon the subject which applied to this region solely. What the gold miners want, and what is needed to develop the Rainy Lake gold region—the richness of which can no longer be doubted—is the application to Minnesota of the federal mining laws now in operation in Colorado, California, Montana and other mining states. Mr Towne can do much to benefit this section by introducing a bill placing this state under the operation of these laws.

Spain is hardly in a position to go to war with the United States or any other strong power. The credit of the country is so bad that its 4 per cent bonds are worth only 60 cents on the dollar. An attempt to float a loan, with a serious war and the loss of Cuba in prospect, would precipitate the bankruptcy that is now threatened. It is not likely that Spain could borrow from any of the European powers now expressing sympathy for her any part of the amount necessary to wage war against the United States, even though extravagant rates of interest were offered. The funded debt of the country amounts to $1,250,000,000, and the floating debt is considerably over $100,000,000. The interest on this debt amounts to nearly $60,000,000 annually, and the revenues from all sources, Cuba included, amounted to less than $150,000,000 last year, and they will be less this year.

The Helena Independent says: "It is a sorry reflection on the culture and civilization of young America that certain students at the University of Princeton have been guilty of so far lowering themselves to the Spanish level as to burn the king of Spain in effigy. Poor little princeling! What has that tender child to do with national misunderstandings? The Princeton yahoos should be spanked and put to bed." The Independent is right in its reflections upon the disgraceful actions of the Princeton yahoos, but it gives them altogether too much credit for intelligence. The Herald does not believe that they knew the king of Spain is a child.

During the past eighty-five years Spain has lost control of the entire South American continent, of Central America, of Mexico, of a substantial part of the United States, and now her last remaining possession in the Western hemisphere is about to be wrested from her. Can any of the opponents of Cuban freedom, asks the Cleveland Press, say that the countries which have succeeded in ridding themselves of the Spanish yoke are not infinitely better off now than they were at the beginning of the century?

Since the agitation of the boundary question by Mr. Towne, the Ontario government has been looking more carefully into its surveys. The result is that it has relinquished all claim to Coleman island in Lake La Croix, to which it has been asserting title, although Frank Gardner, who is in possession, has been paying taxes to St. Louis county for years. A new survey demonstrates that the island is in United States waters.

The extension of time asked by the new bridge bill does not mean four years more, but four years from the date of the original bill. In other words it provides that the bridge must be completed by March, 1898.

Public clamor in Italy has forced Crispi's resignation, but his retirement must be only temporary. He is the greatest Italian statesman and the country will soon demand his services again.

West Virginia's peach crop has been damaged the usual 50 per cent. Now that this customary announcement has been made, look out for a big crop of peaches this year.

If you have not voted on the bond question today, you should do so before 7 p. m., as the polls close at that hour.

New roads and good roads will develop St. Louis county more than will any other agency.

The senatorial fight in Kentucky waxes warmer, but Blackburn is still in the ring.

AN ODE TO MARCH.

Poor March!
Poor blustering, frigid, temp'rate, torrid March!
Abused by all mankind,
Also by women.
Perchance you blow the snow your predecessor left
Into the eyes of men, who straightway curse—
"Hang such a month!"
Or, failing with your might to bring the spring,
You turn your beaming eye upon the snow—
And straightway it is mud.
Then, woman, viewing her bedraggled skirts—
Dented the comfort of profanity—
Resignedly plods on her way, and sighs—
"Oh, well! It's March!"

Poor March!
But do not let their slander trouble you.
And, March, for heaven's sake
Don't stay away.
Not all mankind will curse your bluster and your mud;
True friends you have who would your absence mourn.
I'm one of them.
We view with grateful hearts your earnest trials
To do the Spring house cleaning for the Earth,
And clear up Winter's muss.
So do not let your anger at abuse,
Cause you to take a year off. You have friends—
And, March, a note of mine's due April first.
And there are others.
—H. L. Dunlop in March Ev'ry Month.

TWO TWINKLING STARS.

Madison, Minn., Independent-Press: David Clough is said to be practicing that beautiful song: "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By," which he sings to a banjo accompaniment by Tams, David M. is a star, but Tams, the maker of governors, senators and other little things, is a greater one.

HE RANKS FIRST.

Big Stone County Journal: Hon. Charles A. Towne, of Duluth, comes nearer voicing the sentiment of the masses of the people of this state than any other representative we have in congress. He ranks first in point of ability, oratory, honesty of purpose and loyalty to the debt-burdened people. If we had a few more such men in congress in place of the cowardly "pap suckers" we would have better times.

STONECUTTERS' DISPUTE.

The Other Side of the Controversy Presented.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The contractors for the cut stone on the brewery reply to our paid notice by a plaintive letter of misstatements. It is a matter for regret if the hard labor of a skilled stonecutter, who works but a few months in a year, can be procured anywhere for 15c and 25c per hour. But I hardly think that anyone will believe that residents of this city prefer to pay railroad fares and board at outside places except for real necessity, and if it be true that men have offered to work for this firm at any price, I rejoice in a unionhood that seeks to prevent such a sad condition of things. I have not worked on the new brewery, but I hope our men that have will be heard in reply.

My dealings with this firm, by order of our union, have not been discourteous. They have received due and proper notice according to rule. They have been interviewed. There has been no outrageous dictation. But finding no possibility of a settlement, we are compelled to seek justice elsewhere. F. Omets & Co., of Lake avenue, are paying union wages, and are in no way to be compared with this firm. There are other misstatements which I will leave to the men themselves. Respectfully yours,

G. H. Thompson,
Corresponding Secretary.

The Gordon hat should not be above your head, but upon it. Pay $3.50 at your hatter's and take it!

OF COURSE HE WILL WIN.

Long Prairie Leader: Since Mr. Lee has announced himself as a candidate for the governorship, there are ever so many "told you so's." Mr. Lee says he can win, and his unsullied reputation and business sagacity will surely land him in first place.

A RAILROAD NEEDED.

Rainy Lake Journal: A Duluth newspaper advocates building a wagon road—better build a railroad—to this city, so that in case of war troops can be rushed in here in order to capture "the big and important Canadian fortress, Fort Frances." That's real funny! There is no fortress there, nothing but some wooden buildings belonging to the Hudson Bay company, and not a red coat about, called Fort Frances, and the village of Alberton, of about 200 white people, and probably as many more Indians. But, as for capturing the town, why the thing is already done. "The King of Fort Frances," is Col. Stinson, an American, and the boys are in there, thicker than picaninnies in a cotton patch, marrying the girls, doing the business of the town, and making themselves solid all around. No, we do not need a wagon road to capture Fort Frances, but we do need a railroad to help us and our Canadian cousins to rapidly develop the rich Rainy Lake gold fields.

SUPPOSED TO BE FUNNY.

Minneapolis Journal: If Duluth gets that normal school, the city ought to furnish brackets screwed into the hillside to set it on.

A STRONG COMBINATION.

Minneapolis Tribune: Editor Lounsberry ought to get together enough newspapers before long to give him an invincible combination. He has consolidated a Populist paper with his Republican-Democratic plant at Fargo, and will gradually amalgamate the whole into an independent Republican journal.

SHOULD SUPPORT DAVIS.

St. Cloud Times (Dem.): The Republicans of Minnesota should support Davis. He is an abler man than any of those yet named for the nomination. He has been true to the state, and has ably represented its interests. To say that he should not be supported for president, because other candidates now have a better prospect of nomination, is to assume an unworthy and untenable position. It is none of our fight, but we believe that Minnesota Republicans owe it to themselves and to the state to loyally, earnestly and vigorously support Senator Davis for president.

A BOOKKEEPER'S THEFT.

Rutland, Vt., March 10.—Joseph A. McIntyre, bookkeeper at the Howe scale works, has confessed that he has stolen $15,000 in cancelled coupons and $100 in cash from the company. The money and coupons were missed but no due to the guilty party had been discovered.

BOOTH SENDS A MANIFESTO.

London, March 10.—Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army, has cabled a manifesto to the headquarters of the Salvation Army in New York. Bramwell Booth also has a manifesto in today's War Cry, in which he says that "the fidelity of the American troops is unshaken," and warns the army against the "misrepresentations of the anti-English American press." He also says that the general's heart is torn and sorely wounded, but he is determined to carry on the government "without respect to persons."

HIS PLEASURE WAS MODIFIED.

New York World: "I shan't wear bloomers any longer," said Mrs. Bickers, decidedly.

"I'm glad of that," replied Mr. Bickers, who detested the garment.

"No; the next pair I get will be three inches shorter."

TWO LIVES SAVED.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thomas Eggers, 120 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a terrible cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Duluth Drug company's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The report of State Examiner Langlee on the insane hospital investigation at Bismarck was laid before the governor. It completely exonerates Dr. Archibald and the old management of the hospital of the charges preferred against them, and contains some hot shot for the ones who were instrumental in raising the row. Alex. Montague, the trustee, who, Mr. Langlee says, participated in the profits of the coal contract, has already been indicted. From a disinterested standpoint the report seems to be a fair one, judging from the testimony that was brought out at the investigation, and contains considerable that will serve as balm for Archibald and his friends.

Early in April the attorneys who represent a large number of the Eastern creditors of the North Dakota Milling association will arrive from Boston and make a tour through North Dakota and Northern Minnesota for the purpose of making a final settlement in all the milling association cases. At that time the property of the milling association will be responsible to the syndicate of creditors and the transfer completed. A new organization will then be perfected upon a larger and more extensive basis, with a view of continuing the business of the old association, and the business headquarters will be transferred from Mandan, the present headquarters of Receiver Lyon, to some other and more convenient point, perhaps a return to Grand Forks, its former location.

John Peterson was arrested at Wild Rice on the charge of grand larceny. He is said to have entered John Retan's residence and taken a pocketbook containing $25. The same person is suspected of breaking into the postoffice in Saunders.

Architect Huncock closed a contract today for a 3-story and basement brick block to be built by a Chicago capitalist at Fargo, for the occupancy of Hunter, Reineke & Quirk, wholesale grocers. The building will be 50 by 120 feet.

The United States grand jury, in session at Bismarck, found a bill against Jacob Dodmeier, the East Grand Forks brewer, charged with putting more beer in barrels than the stamps attached called for. This is the second or third time Dodmeier has been before the courts charged with crookedness in his Weiner brewery.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

C. H. Parmelee, of St. Paul, Minn., whose bid of $6000 was accepted for the heating and ventilating of the new army hospital at Fort Mead, is at Sturgis with his workmen, and will have the work completed within the next ten days. The time for the completion of the building by Rickel & Noble, of Deadwood, has been extended by the government officials to May 20, after Purdie & Johnson failed to carry out the contract to complete it by last December.

Al E. Swan, who is sinking an artesian well at the Cheyenne Indian agency, near Huron, struck a strong vein of gas, which gives intense heat and brilliant light. The vein is located about 700 feet below the surface, but drilling will continue till water is reached.

A peculiar case is just now attracting the attention of the medical practitioners at Mellette. A farmer at Canova, 70 years of age, is cutting his third set of teeth. As fast as he loses one of his second set a new one appears in its place.

Guilty is the verdict against James Smith, who is one of the parties charged with the crime of robbing Andrew Erickson on the night of Jan. 20, at Flandreau. The penalty is not less than ten years' imprisonment. The other parties, Gus Kroengen and Joe Smith, for the same offense, have been bound over to stand trial at the September term of the circuit court.

By agreement of the attorneys in the case of Frank Battwitz, for the murder of his wife, the prisoner pleads guilty to manslaughter in the first degree. The maximum penalty is twenty years. Sentence will be pronounced Wednesday morning at Milbank. Battwitz and his wife came from Minnesota and were lovers, when she married another man. Shortly after the wedding the latter died, and was supposed at the time to have committed suicide. It is now thought that his wife or Battwitz killed him. The couple then married, and Battwitz fatally kicked his wife to death, she being in a delicate condition at the time. He will probably get the maximum penalty for his crime. The Herman Booth case, for rape, is now on trial.

Chamberlain will have a creamery. The movement has just been started there.

MAIDS, AHOY!

Don't you think the blue-eyed maiden,
With her wealth of golden hair,
Might cease looking in the mirror
With an everlasting stare;
Make herself a little dearer
And endow a descent fellow
With her eyes and locks of yellow?

Don't you think the dark-haired maiden,
With Madonna in her face,
Might make less of rouge and powder,
That delays her in the race;
That fellow in despair
With her black of eyes and hair?

'Tis in jesting I am asking,
With the carnestness of doubt,
For, between the rouge and mirror,
Maids are prone my claims to flout
To their time and inclinations
And their undivided money—
Except when in want of money.
—William H. Ballou in New Orleans Picayune.

AN IDENTIFICATION.

New York Sun: "How are you, sir? How are you?"

The man addressed responded: "Who are you?" and then turning to his friend said:

"Who in blazes is that fellow, anyway? I don't know him."

"Yes, you do," said the friend. "He's either a bartender or policeman."

"How do you know? By thunder that's who he is; he's the bartender in Casey's place."

"Knew it," returned the friend. "I never knew it to fail yet, and it's happened a thousand times with me. When you meet a man who speaks to you and you don't recognize him, though his face may be familiar, put him down as a barkeep friend or a policeman, and you'll be right nine times out of ten. I don't know why it is, but it's so. One reason why you don't place them right away is, I suppose, that they have on different clothes than those you are accustomed to see them in, and the surroundings are different. A man gets accustomed to seeing certain individuals in certain places, and when he sees them out of those places their faces seem familiar, but he can't place them for the life of him. Follow my advice, and when a man meets you on the street and appears to know you well, don't be afraid you are losing your memory or your mind. Just think up your barkeep and policemen friends and you'll locate him quick."

SORE ABOUT PHILADELPHIA.

Detroit Free Press: That traveling man: "Say, I've just asked the house to strike Philadelphia off my route. That city is the biggest municipal hypocrite on the map of the world. People always associate it with William Penn, Quakers' meetings and pretty, soft-eyed girls with their hair laundered as smooth as a shirt front. It's all rot. I want to tell you that Philadelphia is a deadfall. It has the worst political ring that ever picked the pockets of the bleeding taxpayer. It turns out more prize fighters than Bossman does. All its confidence men look like preachers, and if you can show me a block there where I can't get up a flirtation I'll present it to any charitable institution you name.

"There's a place I give the cold shake. On my last trip I met some Philadelphia 'boys.' They looked too smooth and innocent to be out late. One of them gave a little supper, and I'll bet it stood him $20 a plate. When things got pretty gay the host ordered his plug hat, sat a champaign bottle in it, filled it with chopped ice, called a messenger boy and sent the lad out as a friend. The boy had no overcoat and the generous host said to give the lad his. When we came to break away, what do you think? It was my plug hat and my overcoat that were gone. The best kick I could make only brought a laugh, and at 4 a. m. I sprinted to my hotel in a low-cut vest and a little dinkey Scotch cap. It would take requisition papers and a whole squad of police to get me into Philadelphia again."

ILLUSTRATING A SERMON.

Pearson's Weekly: A north-country clergyman once made clear, even to the dullest of his flock, the difficulty of treading the straight and narrow path, as contrasted with descent on the spacious highway leading in the other direction. Before he was well started in his discourse, he ran down the pulpit stairs and proceeded to suit the action to the word.

"My brethren," he cried, "the road to heaven is like this," and laying flat on the banister, he began to pull himself up, hand over hand, as laboriously as a boy climbs a greased pole.

At last he reached the top, and got on his feet again, happy in his Christian victory. Then, having taken breath, he exhorted his hearers to look at the road to the other place, doubled one leg under him, and slid down the rail, in a half-sitting posture, with a rapidity and grace that betrayed a juvenile familiarity with the route.

THE MUSIC HE WANTED.

Yonkers Statesman: "My husband asked me to get him a piece of sacred music," said the lady, entering the music store; "it's something about hands, but I can't for the life of me think what it is."

"'The Folded Hands,' perhaps," said the clerk.

"No, that's not it."

"No, that doesn't sound like it."

"It can't be 'The Palms,'" was the third suggestion made by the clerk.

"That's it, 'The Palms,'" said the little woman triumphantly. "I knew it had something to do with the hands!"

D. 1891, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota on the 17th day of November, A. WINNERS

Ellsworth Benham For City Attorney and Dr. Routh Health Officer.

Iwan Hansen Was Appointed Chief of Police and Confirmed.

Other Appointments Were Referred to a Committee--- Other Business.

The council elected Ellsworth Benham city attorney, Dr. W. W. Routh health officer and confirmed the appointment of Iwan Hanson as chief of police, last evening. The space alloted to spectators in the council chamber was crowded to the utmost when the council convened, the rumors that "razors would be flying" having proven a drawing card. But to those who had expected a rumpus, the meeting was a disappointment. The scene was as calm and peaceful as a country churchyard.

The first business of the evening was the reading of the list of appointments sent in by the mayor, which is as follows: Chief of police, Iwan Hanson; Daniel Horgan, captain of police; T. B. Hawkes, assessor; C. W. Wilson, member of board of public works. The appointments were referred to the committee on public offices, officers and election. The committee reported a resolution recommending that the appointment of Iwan Hanson as chief of police be confirmed, the resolution being carried. The other appointments will remain in the hands of the committee one week, as is customary.

The balloting for city attorney and health officer was tame, although the proceedings at the caucus had indicated that there might be some interesting developments when the city attorney was voted for. In the afternoon, Benham had received 9 votes, Richards 6 and Hanks 1. An attempt was made to have a second informal ballot taken but it was voted down.

ONLY ONE BALLOT.

In the evening, but one ballot was necessary, however, Benham receiving 10 votes and Richards 6, on the informal ballot, which was made formal on motion of Alderman Christensen.

Alderman Nelson having moved that an informal ballot for health officer be taken, Alderman Sang proposed an amendment that the election be postponed for one week in view of the fact that a petition signed by fifty doctors urging the election of Dr. J. M. Robinson had been received.

The amendment was defeated and an informal ballot was taken, the result being, Routh 8, Robinson 4, Murray 4. On the second ballot, Routh received 10, Robinson 2, Murray 4. On motion of Alderman Coventry, the ballot was declared formal.

A communication was received from the city attorney, advising that the assessments for improvements made in the village of West Duluth before its incorporation with the city of Duluth, should be made in the manner in which assessments were made in that village and not as in the old city proper. He also reported that S. T. and William Harrison and Phelps, Towne & Harris had been engaged as associate counsel in the cases of Ferry and others against the city and the city against the gas and water company, respectively.

The city attorney reported that the time for proceeding against the Bell & Eyster bondsmen would expire April 9 next, that he had the papers ready for filing and asking further instructions. Alderman Sang wanted to have the original resolution instructing the city attorney in regard to this suit read. It seemed strange to him, he said, that the original resolution had not directed the city attorney to proceed with the suit.

Alderman Harwood said the suit had not been pushed because it had been claimed that if action were commenced, many parties would go to the wall.

Alderman Krumseig said that was no reason why the time for bringing suit should be allowed to expire. The original resolution was sent for, and, on motion of Alderman Christensen, the regular order of business was proceeded with.

On motion of Alderman Nelson, as amended by Alderman Olafson, it was resolved that a committee of four, of which the mayor be the chairman, be appointed to meet the state normal school board.

Alderman Richardson said he thought a West Ender should be a member of the committee. The chair named Aldermen Richardson, Crandall and Coventry.

ALDERMEN WILL INSPECT.

On motion of Alderman Harker, it was resolved that the council accompany the mayor to inspect the pumping station site at Lakewood and the Brighton location on Wednesday morning.

An offer was received from R. M. Hunter of a normal school site consisting of six acres on Woodland avenue, in section 11-50-14, at $700 an acre. It was ordered that the clerk transmit a tender of the site to the state normal school board.

A communication was received from the Immigration Restriction league, of Boston, asking that the Minnesota senators be requested to support a bill adding to the classes of immigrants restricted all persons over 14 years of age who cannot read and write their native language, with an exception in favor of the parents or grandparents of an admissible person. Referred to committee on ordinance and judiciary.

A copy of a resolution passed by the board of county commissioners was received declaring against granting a franchise for a bridge between Rice's and Connor's Points unless the same be made free to foot passengers, teams and vehicles. Referred to committee on bridges and viaducts.

The commissioners appointed to condemn a site for a low surface reservoir reported that it awarded as damages, to the William Howell estate, $1620, and to Charles J. Holmes, J. A. Gray and Julia J. Chisholm, $2292. Referred to committee.

A petition was received and read, signed by fifty of the leading physicians of the city, asking that Dr. J. M. Robinson be elected health officer. The petition was referred to the committee on public offices, officers and elections. Alderman Sang attempted to secure consideration of it but failed.

WANT A TRICYCLE.

The board of public works asked that a railroad tricycle to cost $55 be purchased to be used between the city hall and the pumping station, which would save livery hire. Referred to committee on purchases and supplies.

It was ordered that 76,000 sewer brick for lining the new intake well be purchased of the Menominee Pressed Brick company at $10.20 per thousand.

A. J. Wieland, George Laybourn and H. P. Wieland were ordered paid $20 each for services as appraisers for storm sewer in the alley between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth avenues west.

Alderman Coventry moved that an informal ballot for assistant city attorney be taken, which received no second, and Alderman Sang moved to adjourn, which was lost by a vote of 8 to 8.

The report of the retrenchment committee was now taken up and the top of Clerk Richardson's head was soon alone visible as he waded into it. The clerk read the first section only, the council having decided to consider the report section by section.

Alderman Krumseig took exception to the statement in the report that the banks had refused to loan the city money. He said the city treasurer had informed him that the city had not asked the banks for a dollar. Nobody seemed to care to dispute this, and Alderman Krumseig moved an adjournment, which was carried. The council will meet Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

THE COMMITTEES.

President Hale announced the following standing committees:

Auditing and finance—Ira J. Richardson, C. T. Crandall, Theodore M. Krumseig.

Streets, alleys and sidewalks—David Sang, Sr., Louis Christensen, John Coventry.

Waterworks—A. J. Harker, J. W. Rowley, Ira J. Richardson.

The mayor appeared before the caucus in the afternoon and addressed the council on the subject of the change in the location of the pump house site. He did not urge that the plant be moved, he said, unless it should appear that as pure water could be obtained at Brighton as farther up the shore. He urged that an expert be secured to determine this question as well as to advise as to the problems that confronted the city in the work. The expense of such advice, he thought, would not be far from $1000.

Alderman Richardson coincided with the mayor and said that it had been suggested that pure water might be secured from Minnesota Point.

The mayor informed him that the water from Minnesota Point had been tested and found unsatisfactory by E. H. Keating, then city engineer.

Some discussion followed, Alderman Rowley expressing himself as against hiring an expert to decide a question that any man with common sense could settle.

I have no scheme to extort money from anyone whomsoever. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong, and anxious to make this certain means of cure known to all.

Carpenters Meet.

The meeting of the carpenters in the Union club rooms last night with a view to the reorganization of the Carpenters' union was attended by about forty. A larger attendance was expected, but the small number was attributed to the fact that the notices which had been sent out called the meeting for the Parsons block, and that the notice of the new meeting hall was not sufficient. As there are 300 carpenters in the city it was thought best to postpone the meeting until next Monday night, when it is hoped that a larger attendance will be secured. Those who attended last night were very enthusiastic, however, and speeches of encouragement were made by J. W. Nichols, Mrs. T. C. Akin, Morris Griffin, Frank Schulte, Fred Schoening, Henry Gissette and S. L. Richeux.

THE ENDION CLUB.

The Endion club held its first organized meeting last night in the Chamber of Commerce, Vice President Silberstein presiding. Action was taken upon 240 names for membership, and probably the next meeting will make it 300. It is proposed to limit the club membership. Definite arrangements for club rooms will be made at the next meeting, which will be held Monday night. Last night the constitution and by-laws were adopted.

SAVED BY HIS WIFE

A Canadian Tells the Story of His Rescue.

45 Years of Nerve Destroying Bondage —His Declining Years Can Now Be Passed in Happiness and Comfort.

Winnipeg, Man., March 9.—(Special.)—A lifetime's slavery is almost beyond belief in this twentieth century civilization, and yet it is true. While standing in Poyntz & Co.'s drug store on Williams street, yesterday, and discussing the remarkable deliverance of George Gaffield, a prominent farmer, and one of the oldest settlers of St. Charles district, he entered the store. His step was firm and elastic, his eye bright, his bearing that of a man in the full pride and vigor of manhood, in fact, his whole being seemd to fairly bristle with life and energy. The reporter hesitated to ask if he had just been released from a terrible bondage, but upon being questioned, Mr. Gaffield was only too pleased to tell the following story, as he expressed it, for the good of humanity: "Yes, I am the man they are all talking about, and I'm glad of it, because this talk may lead some of those who are tobacco spitting and smoking their lives away to find a cure in No-To-Bac. I was a heavy user of tobacco for over forty-five years, an inveterate smoker and chewer, using a frightful amount of tobacco every week; in fact, I was spending so much money for tobacco that it was really a great inconvenience to me financially. Not only this, but the habit was disagreeable and disgusting to my family and all I came in contact with. Did I try to stop? Well, I should say so; not once, but dozens of times, but it was no go. I had become such a slave to the weed that I couldn't live without it. About a year ago Poyntz recommended No-To-Bac to me and my wife urged me to try it and so I bought a box of No-To-Bac. It made a perfect revolution in my life. From the day I took a No-To-Bac tablet I have not tasted tobacco. I used three boxes of No-To-Bac and was not only cured of the tobacco habit, but I regained my health and strength and was benefited in more ways than one. The truth of the matter is that No-To-Bac made a new man of me." Druggist Poyntz, who had listened to this wonderful story, said: "Of course I recommend No-To-Bac, why shouldn't I? It is one of the best remedies I ever sold, and the manufacturers, the Sterling Remedy company, of Chicago, New York and Montreal, are so fair and square that it's a pleasure to do business with them. Their guarantee is no fake. They authorize every druggist to sell No-To-Bac under the absolute guarantee that if three boxes fail to cure any case of the tobacco habit, the money will be refunded, and they refund it, too."

The public should be warned against the purchase of any of the many imitations on the market, as the success of No-To-Bac has brought forth a host of counterfeiters and imitators. The genuine No-To-Bac is sold under a guarantee to cure, by all druggists, and every tablet has the word No-To-Bac plainly stamped thereon.

AMUSEMENTS.

"TRILBY."

"Trilby" was produced at the Lyceum last evening by the same company, barring a few changes, which played it here last fall. The audience was small. The performance was inferior to that given here before. The changes in the cast have been for the worse. H. Carleton is no such Svengali as was Theodore Roberts and the Taffy of the cast, Richard Ganthony, although presenting the part fairly well, was not nearly so good as Herbert Carr. Frank Rolleston as the Laird, Frederick Conger as Little Billee and W. P. Sheldon as Rev. Mr. Bagot were very good. W. J. Romain made an excellent Gecko. Mathew C. Woodward as Zou Zou was entertained, at least he did not play the part with anything like the spirit that he did before. Miss Mabel Amber is still the Trilby of the cast. She is a little weak in the strongest passages but on the whole is very good. Miss Lizzie Annandale as Madame Vinard was excellent. She sang the "Ben Bolt" song with fine sympathy and feeling.

The second act was almost a failure. When seen here before the company had a half dozen dancers who took part in the revelry of the grisettes and the scene was splendidly presented, but last night it was very tame.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT.

Marie Wainwright will appear in Duluth on Friday and Saturday evenings, after an absence of two or three years, and will present two comedies, "An Unequal Match," by Taylor and "Daughters of Erin," by Lancaster and Magnus. On Saturday afternoon she will present Dumas' "Camille." The Chicago Herald says of her Camille:

"Miss Wainwright is one of the best Camilles of the present day. In her acting she was not only artistic, but she put a grasp the character with commendable intelligence. In the emotional scenes she was the strongest, and the display and use of handkerchiefs that wiped away many a furtive tear among the large audience was no small compliment to her abilities."

THE TEMPLE QUARTET.

The Temple quartet, of Boston, the finest in the land, will give a concert in the Star feature course at the First Methodist church on Friday evening. Miss Katherine Ridgeway will accompany the quartet as reader. She possesses all the qualifications for success—a pleasing stage presence, a rich and sympathetic voice, a charming naturalness and an earnestness of purpose which carries her steadily forward in her place among the greatest elocutionists of the day. Many fine readers have been with the quartet in past seasons; none, however, of better quality or brighter promise than this exceptionally gifted young lady.

AT A LOSS

Expenses of Register of Deeds' Office Are More Than Receipts.

During Last Year It Ran a Thousand Dollars Behind.

In Spite of This Mr. Borgstrom Recently Increased Salaries.

The register of deeds seems to have forgotten it, but last July The Herald made a few casual remarks about the manner in which his office was conducted. At that time The Herald said that the office was being run extravagantly, that many more clerks were employed than were necessary, and that it was not right that an office which had always paid for itself, and which men used to be glad to take as a fee office, should be running behind. The Herald insinuated also that it was odd that no other register before the previous incumbent allowed it to run behind. As a rule, when a man gets an office, public or private, he likes to run it himself and have outsiders watch their own occupations. But when that official does as this official has done, suffer the office to change from a paying office to a charge upon the county, it gives sufficient ground for someone to interpose an objection.

Therefore it may not be out of place to remark to Mr. Borgstrom that he is running behind again, and badly. And it may not be out of place to inform the public that although the register must be aware of this he has within the past two months increased his salary list, even though the work has fallen off at the same time.

RAISED THEM AGAIN.

Shortly after The Herald remonstrated with the register he cut his salary list $115 a month. Later he dropped out an employe and cut it $60 more. After waiting a short time he took this employe back and then raised two of his clerks $5 each per month. He was gradually creeping up to where he was when The Herald advertised him.

But there is an election drawing near and the present incumbents of the county offices will seek re-election. So there is a sort of an excuse for doing this after all. It may not appear to the citizens, but it will be readily understood by the taxpayers.

In the thirteen months, beginning with February, 1895, and ending with the same month in 1896, the register has given his clerks $7727.50, has received $3250 himself and his office expenses at $25 per month have been about $325, making a total of $11,302.50. During the same time he has received $10,184.87, making a deficit of $1117.63.

That is not so large as it would have been had The Herald not caused a reduction in the register's expenses—for when he discharged some of his employes and cut the salaries of the rest he apologetically explained to them that it was because of the article in The Herald. But it is larger than it ever has been before, and indeed it is the first time in the history of the office that it has been conducted over a year at a loss. And it is getting larger every month, this deficit is. Last month it was $309.25, in January it was $214.47, in December the official gained $152.35 with the aid of some work from Lake county and St. Louis county. The Lake county bill was first over $1200, but the county commissioners cut it to $112.60.

In December the expenses of the office were but $780, and it made money. In January a new clerk was employed and W. F. Markus and Gust Wedan were raised $5 each per month. Then the office lost money.

DID NOT KNOW IT.

The increase in salaries went through January and February without notice by the commissioners. These gentlemen have supervision of changes in salaries. When the March bills for clerk hire came up they were incensed that the register had raised salaries without consulting them and they very promptly chopped off the increases, so for March the original salaries will go. The new clerk remains, however, and the deficit also will continue to add unto itself figures.

The salaries in the register's office are not large with the exception of the three top names, register, deputy and second deputy. The others are small, almost pitiful for good clerks. But one who has had experience in such things remarks that with four or five men or women who know their business and are paid for knowing and doing it, the register's office could be run so that it would not only not lose money for the county, but would turn over a good balance each year, if not each month.

The business of the register's office is very small just now, while the salary list is large and the number of clerks is greater.

For verification of the above figures the reader is referred to the reports of the register to each monthly meeting of the county board. To the amount appropriated for clerk hire add $250 for the register's salary and $25 for office expenses each month.

STEALING THE PINE.

Squatters on government land in township 70, range 24, are cutting pine and other good timber, putting it in Rainy river and selling it to Canadians, says the Rainy Lake Journal. In one case a Frenchman from Fort Frances moved on a quarter section last fall, and is cutting all the pine, banking the same just above Koochiching, and in all probability will move back in the spring.

NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people never learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be properly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling symptoms. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected. When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

DEFENSELESS CITIES.

Government Officer Talks About Lake Fortifications.

Chicago, March 10.—Lieut. J. F. Thompson, chief ordnance officer of the department of the Missouri, told Chicago people last night how utterly defenseless their city would remain if the $2,500,000—the part of the big appropriation for coast defenses intended for lake fortifications—should, as a matter of economy, be cut out of the bill now before congress. Lieut. Thompson made public, for the first time, in a paper read in the New England Congregational church, just what it is that the ordnance corps, acting with the other departments, hopes to accomplish in the way of making seaports impregnable to attack, when the appropriation of nearly $100,000,000 reported favorably in committee should become available.

Touching on the question of coast defense, the officer said: "There seems to be a prevailing impression that in case war broke out between America and Great Britain all the United States would have to do, to keep English vessels out of the great lakes, would be to throw troops over the border to destroy the Welland canal. Declarations of war do not come like thunder bolts from clear skies. As soon as it was known trouble was brewing, the Welland canal would be fortified, Canadian troops would man the works and Great Britain would have her gun boats on the spot. That nation has 100 men-of-war which can pass through the canal. Once in Lake Erie, two or three of these vessels could, as things are at the present, destroy the great lake cities. No city is so well situated for destruction as Chicago. A gunboat or two could, off the city, send a few shells into the waterworks and paralyze the water system, and could then, with their explosive projectiles, set the city on fire."

Touching arbitration, he said: "Are we willing to submit the fate of republican institutions and liberty to monarchical arbitration?"

MRS. MAYBRICK MUST STAY.

London, March 10.—Inquiries made today at the United States embassy confirm the report that the secretary of state for the home department, Sir Matthew White Ridley, has refused to re-open the case of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, the American sentenced to imprisonment for life, after having been convicted of poisoning her husband.

WARRING WESTERN ROADS.

Denver, March 10.—A passenger rate war which may extend to Eastern business was inaugurated today when the Union Pacific and the Denver & Gulf railroad made a cut of about 20 per cent in fares to Colorado points. The Rio Grande and Santa Fe promptly met the rates. The object of this move is to bring about a settlement of the coal rate war between the Santa Fe and the Gulf.

GUILTY OF BRIBE TAKING.

Cincinnati, March 10.—The Times-Star special from Columbus, Ohio, says that ex-Senator James Q. Abbott, on trial for accepting a bribe while senator, two years ago, in connection with the pharmacy bill before the senate, was found guilty by the jury today. A motion was made for a new trial.

CONVICT KILLS HIMSELF.

Danville, March 10.—George Evans, the negro convict, who killed Deputy Sergt. W. A. Cooke, Saturday night, and then made his escape, put a revolver in his mouth today and killed himself. Evans, at the time, was surrounded and knew escape was impossible. Ida Skeen, Evans, accomplice, will be tried this week.

ONE OF THE BEST FEATURES

Of the Pyramid Pile Cure

Is the fact that it cures every form of Piles without one particle of pain. This desirable point is not obtained by the use of injurious opiates, which deaden and paralyze the nerves of the parts and make matters worse in the long run. But it is done solely by its remarkable healing and soothing effects.

And while it thus gives immediate relief, at the same time the disease is not merely checked, but a radical cure is rapidly accomplished.

And the point we want to make clear is that all this is done without a particle of pain.

This fact is one reason for the great popularity of the Pyramid Pile Cure and constitutes one very great difference between it and almost any other kind of tenatment for piles.

Every kind of surgical operation for piles is excruciatingly painful, besides endangering the life of the patient, and in most cases is not to be compared with the Pyramid Cure, neither in making successful cures without pain nor in cheapness and safety.

The Pyramid Pile Cure has been before the public too long, and its merits recognized by too many people to allow it to be classed with the many salves, suppositories, pills, etc., etc. You run no risk in trying it, as is often the case with new and untried preparations.

If you are ever troubled with any form of piles or rectal disease, do not forget the Pyramid Pile Cure. Prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Albion, Mich., and sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

ON THE MESABA.

Capt. E. Florada was in the city on Wednesday, says the Virginia Enterprise, and in response to an inquiry relative to the Oliver for the coming season stated that the mine would ship as much or more ore this season as was forwarded from the property in 1895. This means that the property will be put in readiness for active work at the opening of the shipping season and that a good force will be employed throughout that period. Capt. E. J. Gilbert, who is conducting operations in 8-58-16, on Petit & Robinson lands, for a Pittsburg furnace company, was in the city on Saturday. Capt. Gilbert states that a good property is being developed, a part of the land included in the option being a portion of the old McKinley mine.

After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by all druggists.

NOTICE THE OWL-LIKE GRAVITY

With Which the Retail Groceryman That is Dishonest Answers a Customer When He is Asked if Some Inferior Brand, Made By an Unscrupulous Maker, is as Good as That Made By a Well-known Manufacturer, Whose Goods Have Had a Reputation Par Excellence For, Say, Fifty Years?

The Following Conversation Took Place in the Presence of the Writer of This Article.

(From the Chicago Evening Post.)

Customer—Is this washing powder you are making such a display of in your window as good as Kirk's Eos?

Groceryman, looking as wise as an owl, replied—Indeed it is, madam, first-class goods, and I advise your trying it.

The customer hesitated a few moments and finally said, "I will take a package."

What imposition and how contemptible was the groceryman to palm off on his customer a dangerous and inferior brand, simply because he made a bigger profit than on a standard brand.

Kirk's Eos stads today as the peer of laundry preparations.

It is an absolutely pure piece of goods, full weight, reliable and honest in every respect.

The name James S. Kirk & Co. stands for standard of merit, and when going to your groceryman to buy a washing powder, look and see that the words James S. Kirk & Co. are stamped upon the wrapper.

Do not simply look and see that it says Kirk, as there may be a dozen Kirks, for all we know, making soap and powders; be careful that it reads

JAS. S. KIRK & CO.

AND YOU HAVE GOT YOUR VALUE EVERY TIME.

LIQUORS BURNED.

Bad Fire in Cincinnati This Morning.

Cincinnati, March 10.—Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the sub-cellars of the 5-story warehouse and distillery of Mihalovitch Fletcher & Co., at 145 East Pearl street. The entire fire department was called out including the new Hale water tower, which had its first use at a fire. The entire front part of the structure was totally destroyed with its contents, but the fire was limited to that building, except the Pearl Methodist church adjoining, which was damaged considerably.

The loss is estimated at $100,000 in liquors, $30,000 on building and $25,000 on machinery. A rear building, containing a large quantity of liquor was badly damaged, making the total loss $200,000, fully insured. The fire spread so rapidly that the employes, numbering about seventy-five, had great difficulty in escaping, but so far as known at present, no one was injured or lost.

His Sanity Questioned.

Andrew Johnson, the man who made an attack on Miss May Schneider, at Lakeside on Sunday morning, will be examined as to his sanity today. When he appeared in the municipal court yesterday, the trial was set for this morning, and Johnson was released on $10 bail. This was to enable an investigation of his mental condition. The idea, however, got abroad that Johnson was wandering at liberty unlooked after, in consequence of which, it is rumored that several Lakeside young ladies slept on the roof last night.

Iwan Hansen Donned the Star and Began Duty Today.

Detectives Benson and Hayden and Officer Miller Laid Off.

Capt. Thompson Will Be Made a Sergeant---Other Changes.

Chief Hansen donned his star this morning as head of the police department, ex-Chief Armstrong casting aside the mantle of office and retiring to private life. The change was attended with no ceremony. Mr. Hansen walked into the office, the outgoing official shook hands with his successor, and, taking off his star, pinned it on the latter's breast, and the thing was done.

Detectives Hayden and Benson and Officer Henry Miller each received a billet-doux from the mayor's office, to which they responded with letters expressive of their ardent desire to be rid of the carking cares of office, and they will no more follow the trail of the crook and detect stolen stoves in pawn shops.

Patrolman J. E. Donovan has been appointed detective, and Joseph Ryan has been placed on detective service for thirty days on trial. This course has been taken with regard to Ryan, because, the mayor says, there seems to be a prejudice existing against him in certain quarters. The mayor is confident that Mr. Ryan has the ability to justify his choice, and that he will fulfill the expectations of his friends, of whom he has many.

"It is my desire," said the mayor, "to allow nothing to stand in the way of the efficiency of the force, and any who prove obstacles to securing that harmony that is essential to this, and those who show themselves incompetent to discharge the duties required of them will be summarily disposed of under the power vested in me by the charter."

The lieutenants will stay, and in the districts at present assigned to them. The present sergeants will also stay, with one exception, and the vacancy caused by his removal will, it is understood, be filled by Capt. Thompson. Those who are on the inside do not know who is the sergeant who will go, but the hole may appear in the vicinity of the Central station after the lightning has struck.

OFF FOR EUROPE.

M. S. Burrows Starts Europeward This Afternoon.

M. S. Burrows, of the Great Eastern, left this afternoon on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway for New York. He will stop over in Montreal for a few days, where he will be joined by Charles Goodrich and Louis Goldmeier, buyers for the gents' furnishing department and the boys' department respectively, of the big store. They will then proceed direct to New York.

While there the three gentlemen will thoroughly ransack every place where any new, novel or nice thing in the clothing and gents' furnishing trade is to be found, and Duluth people will reap the benefit of their experiences in a few days. Mr. Burrows believes in the system of taking his department heads with him on a big buying trip, and while it is purely a business journey, the genial proprietor makes it so pleasant that it seems like a pleasure trip.

Mr. Burrows believes the coming summer and fall will see a great revival in business in Duluth, and before his return he will extend his personal trip across the Atlantic in search of the newest fads of the male fashion centers of the old world. The Great Eastern expects to enter very largely into the list of importing houses for fine goods this year.

The Winnipeg Earnings.

The receiver of the Duluth & Winnipeg railway today filed his statement of receipts and disbursements for January, 1896. The receipts were $17,247.87, and disbursements, $15,091.70. The balance on Feb. 1, 1896 was $74,757.34.

Eldridge M. Fowler, George O. Robinson, E. H. Flynn, S. J. Murphy and T. E. Dare have begun suit in the United States court against W. F. Vandervoost, Elizabeth Vandervoost, J. H. Myers, Florence A. Draper, to clear the title to the e½ of nw¼ and w½ of ne¼ of section 21-58-17.

Condition is Critical.

The condition of David Vaugh is more critical today than at any time since he was injured. Dr. Magie says that unless a decided change for the better sets in during the present week the case will be hopeless. Although not very violent, he has to be watched to prevent him from tearing up his bed clothes. He is very restless, and it is almost impossible to keep the ice application on his head. His present mental condition may be described as childish.

Mark of Respect.

Chief Armstrong was decoyed out of his office last evening and taken prisoner and dragged up stairs, where he found assembled all the officers off duty. Chauncey Troyer, in behalf of the force, delivered an address expressive of the high regard in which the retiring chief is held. Chief Armstrong responded appropriately, and a general hand-shaking followed.

JOHN PANTON BACK.

Part of New York Came With Him.

Col. John Panton, of the Glass Block, arrived home today from a six weeks' trip to New York, and the Panton quartet of buyers, who accompanied him, are also back in their respective departments, getting ready for the avalanche of new goods which are on their way to the big store.

The big store has only one opponent in Duluth—itself—but it continually keeps on the qui vive to secure the best and newest things for its crowds of patrons, and this trip of the "Pantonites" to New York and the East has been a record breaker in the number of good things which have been found to please and benefit customers. The Glass Block has to be watched all the time—as no one can tell just when a great bargain or a new and dalaty offering is to be placed before the people.

Fire and Smoke Sale of Clothing.

The army of clerks of the Cut Price Clothing company at 112 West Superior street, are working twenty hours a day in preparing the immense stock of clothing for men and boys, gent's furnishing goods, etc., preparatory to opening day of the sale which has been set for Thursday. This sale comes at an opportune time as many are now considering the buying of spring clothing and to many the saving of six or ten dollars on the price of a suit will be no hardship. The Cut Price Clothing company intend to dispose of the stock in as short a time as possible and intending buyers will do well to call early while the sizes and assortment are complete. Keep in mind the opening day, Thursday, as on that day clothing will be sold at 112 West Superior street at prices lower than one ever expected to see.

THE SPALDING TO BE SOLD.

Judge Moer Orders a Sale of Lease and Fixtures.

Judge Moer yesterday afternoon ordered the receivership of the Spalding hotel extended until May 1, on an application made last December and he has also ordered a sale of the leasehold interest, the goodwill and all the furnishings, including all furniture and bar, billiard and cigar fixtures. Sealed bids are to be received by Receiver W. B. Silvey at his office on or before April 10 for the outfit in gross subject to a chattel mortgage of $13,000. The bids will be referred to the court in special term Saturday, April 25, for confirmation, and they must be accompanied by 2 per cent of the bids in the form of certified checks.

J. C. Helm, assignee of the Duluth Dry Goods and Provision company, has applied to the court for the allowance of his final account, stating that he has converted all the assets of the company into cash, receiving therefor $4926.76 and disbursing $669.13 in doing so. He presents an application for $300 fees as assignee and for $460.19 for attorney's fees, of which $50 has been paid.

The city has filed an answer to the suit of Dr. A. Forin to recover salary as health officer of the village of West Duluth. The answer alleges that the salary is unpaid because after April 1 he failed to perform any duties of his office, and before then he had performed them in a negligent and unskillful manner. Consequently the village dropped him out May 16, 1892, and the resolution which deposed him says that the action was taken because he had refused to recognize the appointment of Dr. A. F. Huntoon as his successor and because it appeared from the unsanitary condition of the village that he had been guilty of gross negligence.

Why Are the Services of an Expert Needed?

To the Editor of The Herald:

We have a mayor who has shown in the past how fond he is of experts. The city of Duluth has sunk many thousand dollars on plans for tunnels and bridges across the canal. The mayor would now call in an expert engineer in the waterworks question.

For what? Delay, or simply to spend money? Let the public judge. It looks like delay. If the council can be divided into factions—favoring severally, the Lakewood, the Brighton and Minnesota Point sites—I venture to say we will be about as near the attainment of a pure water supply next fall as we are now.

What is this expert to determine? The topography of the ground? Does it take an expert engineer for that? The relative purity of the water at Brighton and the Lakewood sites? Is it not conceded that at this time the water at Brighton is as pure as it is at Lakewood? We don't need an engineer, even if it was his province to do so, to tell us that. Might it not also be said of the water a mile this side of Avenue A? The water was pure at the site of the present pump house when it was built, but many precious lives have been sacrificed because the city so quickly grew beyond it. We may have 100,000 people here before the new water supply is available to any great extent and when the city reaches even that size, it is not improbable that the residence district will have extended to and even beyond Avenue A at Brighton. All it needs is an extension of the street car line for a mile to accomplish that.

Then what about all the surface drainage? Do sewers precede the necessity for their use? Must the city build an extensive system of sewers to protect the water supply and provide therein for the care of all surface water even while that section is comparatively thinly populated?

This would cost somebody many times the extra cost of extending the water mains. Sewers are very expensive luxuries and follow slowly on the demand even in thickly populated sections. Has not the mayor lost sight of some facts in looking too intently upon others.

With 40,000 people added to our population, the growth down the lake shore will be rapid—much more rapid than in the past for the most obvious reasons unnecessary here to state. If any mistake is made by the council in the location of the pump house, it will be in locating it too near the city rather than too far. Knife Island would be one extreme, Lester river or Minnesota Point the other. In locating it at Lakewood, the old council adopted middle ground, that commended their action to all—and now the new council is asked by the mayor to undo what met with universal approval—to shut eyes to the future and blindly follow a most short-sighted recommendation.

A Believer in Duluth's Future.
Duluth March 10.

ANOTHER CRITICISM.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There are ways and ways, and that reminds me that the best way to delay and perhaps finally block the construction of waterworks is to tear to pieces established plans. That opens up the subject for further consideration, and perhaps the people may decide that they don't need any expensive supply pipe several miles down the lake shore. The intake pipe of the Duluth Gas and Water company is now in sixty feet of water, and no one can longer say that they are not furnishing pure water to the city. If the mayor's plan is to call a halt till calm consideration can be given to a subject on which the people acted perhaps too hastily, then let us give due respect to his sagacity expressed in the interests of the business community. Taxation seems the order of the day. It is time a halt was called both on county roads and waterworks construction. The people are too much given to act on impulse instead of calm judgment. Many business men of the city were opposed to Henry Truelsen, fearing from his utterances that an era of extravagance would be inaugurated to supply the workingmen with employment. It may be they were mistaken. Let the future decide.

Buckeye Republicans Bubble Over With Great Enthusiasm For McKinley.

Delegates Instructed to Work Unceasingly For His St. Louis Nomination.

Columbus, March 11.—The Grand opera house was unable again today to give admission to many thousands of those holding tickets and wearing badges with McKinley's picture thereon. Some of the delegates to the Republican state convention, which was to have assembled at 10 a. m., were crowded out. With a heavy snow falling, standing room on the outside was not desirable. It was 10:15 when Senator-elect Foraker called the convention to order. At that time the stage was crowded with Ohio congressmen and other party leaders. Ex-Secretary Charles Foster had a seat near the presiding officer. After prayer by Rev. Mr. Lawrence, the committee on credentials reported in favor of seating the committee delegations as against the mass convention delegation. The report was adopted with a resolution against county committees assuming the power in the future of appointing delegates. No other contests were reported. The temporary organization was unanimously made permanent, when Chairman Foraker briefly acknowledged the double honor and proceeded with business.

The report of the committee on rules and orders of business changed some precedents in the order of nominations and a discussion was participated in on an amendment to have the nomination for food and dairy commissioner come last on the list. The amendment was lost and the report accepted. Congressman J. M. Taylor, chairman of the committee on resolutions, reported the following platform, which was greeted with frequent applause and adopted:

THE PLATFORM.

"The Republicans of Ohio congratulate the people of the country on the growth of Republican sentiment as evidenced by the signal victories of the last three years, which assure a glorious national triumph in the coming election.

"We denounce the Democratic administration as the most destructive and disastrous theory our country has ever known. It not only disappointed the expectations of the country, but has justly forfeited the confidence and support of its own party.

"We affirm our adherence to the principles of the Republican party as defined by the national convention in 1892.

"We are faithfully wedded to the great principle of protection by every tie of party fealty and affection, and it is dearer to us now than ever before. It has more devoted supporters among the great masses of the American people, irrespective of party, than at any previous period in our national history. It is everywhere recognized and endorsed as the great, masterful, triumphant American principle, and necessary to our prosperity in business. It is the safest prop to the treasury of the United States and the bulwarks of our national independence and financial honor.

"We denounce the present tariff law as the sublimated product of Democratic ignorance and incompetency, bringing, as it has, to a prosperous and happy people a period of unprecedented adversity and distress, from which nothing but a return to the policy of protection can relieve it.

"We denounce the free wool provision of the present tariff law as an unjust discrimination against an important industry and against a large part of our people, and demand such protection for sheep husbandry as will secure fair prices for American wool.

"The Republican party stands for a reciprocity that reciprocates and which does not yield up to another country a single day's labor that belongs to the American working man. It stands for international agreements, which get as much as they give, upon terms of mutual advantage. It stands for a foreign policy dictated by and imbued with a spirit that is genuinely American; for a policy that will revive the national traditions and restore the national spirit which carried us proudly through the earlier years of the century. It stands for such a policy with all foreign nations as will insure both to us and to them justice, good faith, dignity and honor. It stands for the Monroe doctrine, as Monroe himself proclaimed it. It stands for a commercial policy that will whiten every sea with the sails of American vessels, flying the American flag. It stands for a fiscal policy, opposed to debts and deficits in time of peace, and favors the return of the government to a debt paying policy, and opposes the continuance of the debt-making policy.

"It is too plain for argument that the public credits and commercial interests of the country require the revenues of the government to be amply sufficient for the public expenditures at all times without danger of deficit, and to that end congress should without delay make due provision.

"We contend for honest money; for a currency of gold, silver and paper with which to measure our money, which shall be as sound as the government, untarnished as its honor, and to that end we favor bimetallism and demand the use of both gold and silver as standard money, either in accordance with a ratio to be fixed by an international agreement, if that can be obtained, or under such restrictions and such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parities of the values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt power of a dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal.

"We denounce the present administration of the pension bureau for its betrayal of the interests of the Union soldiers, and we pledge anew to the veterans of the republic a watchful care and recognition of their just claims upon a grateful people. The people have triumphantly elected Gen. Bushnell to the governorship, the general assembly have emphatically endorsed the people's choice for United States senator, Governor Foraker, and we congratulate the Republicans of Ohio that today completed the fulfillment of all the pledges made by their last convention.

"We honor the eminent sons of other states, whose splendid services and high character have justified their presentation to the American people as candidates for the presidency, and we assure Republicans everywhere that whoever may lead the Republican hosts, Ohio will contribute her share to the swelling tide in November.

"The people of Ohio take satisfaction in the expressions coming from every section of our common country of popular approval of their distinguished fellow-citizen, William McKinley. The great advocate of protection, who has all his life stood for America, its factories, its farms, its firesides, finds his reward in the confidence and affection of the people whose interests have been his constant care. The Republicans of Ohio pledge him anew the absolute, loyal and unswerving support of his state at the national convention, and instruct the delegates chosen to represent Ohio to redeem this pledge."

THE NOMINATIONS.

Col. W. C. Cooper, of Mount Vernon, ex-member of congress, was then introduced and presented in an eloquent and stirring speech the names of Gov. Asa S. Bushnell, Senator-elect J. B. Foraker, Congressman C. H. Grosvenor, and Hon. Mark A. Hana, for delegates at large from Ohio to the St. Louis convention. He offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That Asa S. Bushnell, J. B. Foraker, Charles H. Crosvenor and Marcus A. Hanna be and they are hereby elected delegates at large from the state of Ohio to the Republican national convention at St. Louis and they are instructed by the Republicans to vote and work for the nomination of William McKinley, Jr., or president of the United States.

Hon. Robert M. Nevin, of Dayton, in a rousing McKinley speech, presented the names of Dr. J. E. Lowes, of Dayton, Senator Charles Fleischman, of Cincinnati, ex-Senator J. P. Green, of Cleveland and Congressman John N. Taylor, of New Lisbon for alternates at large. The rules were suspended, and the four were selected by acclamation.

Congressman Charles H. Grosvenor presented the names of I. F. Mack, editor of the Sandusky Register, and Hon. Albert C. Douglas, Jr., of Chillicothe, as candidates for electors at large. The rules were suspended and they were nominated by acclamation.

The roll of eighty-eight counties was then called for nominations for state officers. The names of Charles Kinney, of Scioto, Gen. A. T. Wickoff, of Franklin, and E. W. Doty, of Cuyahoga, were presented for the nomination for secretary of state. The ballot resulted: Doty, 206; Kinney, 427; Wickoff, 217. Necessary to a choice 426. Kinney's nomination was made unanimous.

Marshall J. Williams, of Fayette, the incumbent, was nominated for supreme judge by acclamation under a suspension of the rules.

The hottest contest of the convention was for the nomination for food and dairy commissioner, for which the following names were presented: Joseph E. Blackburn, of Belmont; Samuel C. Wheeler, of Erie; Henry Becker, of Franklin; Frederick McNeal, of Miami; Frank A. Dertherick, of Portage; E. B. Beverstock, of Wood. The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 253; Wheeler, 33; Becker, 53; McNeal, 331; Dertherick, 128; Beverstock, 19. Necessary to a choice 426.

The second ballot resulted: Blackburn, 503 1-3 McNeal, 321½; Derthick, 23. Necessary to choice, 426. After the announcement of the vote, the nomination of Blackburn was made unanimous. The wholesale grocers and food manufacturers made the fight against McNeal, the incumbent, and defeated him after a hard fight with the granger element.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Tim Byrnes Says it Will Be a Bouncer.

Minneapolis, March 11.—Timothy E. Byrnes, sergeant-at-arms of the national Republican convention, will go to St. Louis next week to look over the building plans and get preliminary ideas as to the arrangement of his force of assistants. He is flooded with applications from all over the country from men who want to be assistants and keeps a stenographer busy answering them. Mr. Byrnes says that the press arrangements at St. Louis will be especially elaborate. In Minneapolis there were 260 press seats, but there will be 500 at St. Louis, to say nothing of the special writers for weeklies and monthlies, who will be accommodated in the general admissions.

The indications, according to Mr. Byrnes, are for a larger general attendance than at any Republican convention ever held and he hails this as a sure sign of awakened public interest and of Republican victory at the polls. He anticipates a long convention, lasting probably over Sunday. This will be largely owing to the probability of numerous contests. The convention will be most hospitably entertained and the local committe is basing its arrangements largely upon the Minneapolis plans in 1892.

FILIBUSTERERS INDICTED.

New York, March 11.—Gen. Calixto Garcia, Capt. Samuel Hughes, John D. Hart, Capt. John B. Rabuzon, Bernardo J. Bueno and Benjamin J. Guerrera, of the Bermuda expedition, were today indicted by the federal grand jury for taking part in an armed expedition contrary to the neutrality laws. All were in the federal building, except Guerrera, who was sick when the indictments were reported.

ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY.

Dayton, Ohio, March 11.—News has just been received here of an attempt to rob the First National bank at Germantown, this county, early this morning. The robbers were evidently new at the business and used so much giant powder that the bank was wrecked. The town was aroused and the robbers fled. The door of the vault weighing 800 pounds was thrown thirty feet. The vault contained $70,000 in cash and many valuable bonds and other securities. The greatest mystery is how the robbers escaped death.

A FATAL ELEVATOR FALL.

Memphis, March 11.—A freight elevator in the carriage house of W. S. Bruce & Sons fell sixty feet this morning, caused by the cables breaking. Four men on it were injured, one fatally. They are: Frank Beale, both legs broken, may die; Andy Bowen, ankle broken; Gus Chism, hip broken; Sam Bell, internal injuries.

Dolliver's Speech--Proceedings of the Convention Today.

Des Moines, Ia., March 11.—The Republican state convention was called to order by the chairman of the state central committee, and Congressman Dolliver was elected temporary chairman. The convention was called to order at 11, and the call read. Then came the singing of the "Allison March," for the first time. It made a great hit. Hon. J. P. Dolliver, temporary chairman, was introduced. He said:

"The demand of the hour is for somebody who understands the everyday business of the government of the United States; who can read the account books on both sides, what we take in and what we pay out. We offer to the national service a statesman trained in the public business, who has left the impress of his practical wisdom on every revenue measure enacted since the thirty-eighth congress, and under whose care every item for every appropriation bill for nearly a generation has passed. A training like that, seldom approached in American life, would of itself bring hope and deliverance to the uneasy treasury of the United States.

"We have just now a business management which has neither the energy to save the internal revenue from the distillers, nor the custom house from the ingenuity of the importers. Within a year every shady scheme of undervaluation has come forth to enjoy the picnic season of ad valorem duties, until reputable merchants are already asking the house committee on ways and means to exact a peddlers' license from the agents of foreign factories, in order that legitimate merchants may not be driven from the trade. Inadequate and unjust as the present law is, I do not hesitate to say that an effectual collection of the revenues authorized by its terms would go far toward covering the current deficits in the receipts. We need somebody in charge who can tell the difference between a dollar collected and a dollar borrowed.

"For one, I want the exact equality of paper with coin and of all existing coins of the same denomination with each other inviolable preserved. That man is a poor student of the national welfare who would invite the gold gamblers to bring their tables to the centers of American business, that thieves may again fatten on the fluctuations of the money of the American people. Without disparaging any Republican leader, we are justified in the conviction that the troubled interests of trade and commerce would find a welcome security in the nomination of a man who was generously commended to Garfield, in the letter of Mr. Blaine, which is at once a tribute to Senator Allison's profound mastery of the problem of national finance, and a memorial of the friendship which began on the day they entered the house of representatives together, and ended only in the valley of the shadow of death.

"For months the maintenance of specie payments has been difficult, not by any fear of our own people that our paper money is not good, that is to say, will not be paid on demand, but by the long-standing shortage in the treasury, coupled with industrial conditions that have induced a steady drainage of gold out of the country, in addition to its usual movement, to pay for goods and merchandise bought abroad and no longer fully paid for by the sum total current of our exports.

"The way out of our misfortunes lies in giving back to our workingmen of the United States the opportunity to do the work of the American people. The Democratic remedy entirely ignores the sources of the trouble. It proposes to keep borrowing money, exposing the treasury on the one hand to the approach of those who ask the profits of taking gold out, and leaving it helpless on the other hand against the thrift of those who seek the profits of putting gold in. It protests that there is money enough, or soon will be, and has kept publishing estimates of receipts that have never come, with an enthusiasm that indicates in the bosom of the secretary a serene triumph of hope over experience. The Populist remedy, a remedy in which an influential group of other parties unite, is to close matters up by abandoning the present basis of American business, on which all existing contracts stand, and take refuge, from public and private creditors alike, in the unlimited issue of silver dollars, gratuitously manufactured for the owner, out of material worth in the neighborhood of 50 cents.

"The Republican party, without concealing its desire to continue the largest practical use of silver, short of introducing dangerous elements of disturbance and fluctuation into the coinage, refuses to follow the counsel of either. The true remedy lies, not in perilous experiments in banking, currency and coinage, but in the prompt revision of inadequate national revenue. That is the first step, and it cannot be taken too soon. But the increase of revenue, in order to be useful, must be brought into the treasury in such a way as will protect the occupations of our own people.

"If we never knew it before, we know now that the best customer of the farms is an American artisan, with steady employment and good wages; sitting at the head of his table, surrounded by his family, with a fixed prejudice against oleomargarine and filled cheese, and an established taste for fresh meat and white bread. That is the customer for whose prosperity the state of Iowa, following faithfully the counsel of W. D. Allison, casts its full vote in both houses of congress. We are in favor of that customer. We do and want his job transferred to the other side, nor his wages reduced to the foreign level, nor his weekly earnings paid in coins and currency about the value of which good men are likely to differ. We intend to defend that customer, and we believe that all his interests will be safe in the hands of the great senator whose constructive statesmanship has been influential in framing every protective tariff law that has found a place in the statute book for a quarter of a century.

"He is a protectionist, not for the sake of particular industries, but because the wage level of the United States cannot be degraded without injustice to the American workingman, and without infinite perils to our institutions. The need of those times is not so much for a leader to rally the people to the Republican banner, as for a master of the art of administration, conservative and strong, able to hold the victory, after it is won.

"Nothing can keep the American people from voting against the Democratic party this year. No man has been proposed for the nomination whose election would not bring honor to the chief office of the people, but among all the illustrious men who are presented for the favor of the party, in this year of hope and victory, not one outranks in ripened preparation for its duties the unassuming leader of Republicanism of Iowa, whose name is on the lips and in the hearts of all our people today."

The address was frequently interrupted by applause, which became tremendous at every reference to Allison. Four thousand people were present. The convention was the most enthusiastic in the history of the state. Following is a complete list of the delegates elected to the national convention: First district: J. C. Davis, of Keokuk; C. M. Junkin, of Fairfield. Second district: Seth Baker, of Jackson county; George F. French, Scott county. Third district—Hon. Edward Knott, Waverly; Capt. J. F. Merry, of Manchester. Fourth district—S. MILLE LACS RESERVATION.

Settlers Will Be Able to Hold Their Lands.

Washington, March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Nelson today introduced a joint resolution declaring all the lands formerly in the Mille Lacs reservation subject to settlement under the preemption and homestead laws. The adoption of this resolution will enable settlers already on the reservation to hold their lands.

ARCHBISHOP KENRICK.

Buried in St. Louis With Imposing Ceremonies.

St. Louis, March 11.—With the imposing ceremonies befitting his rank as a priest in the Roman Catholic church, Archbishop Peter Richard Kenrick was laid to rest in the priests' lot in Calvary cemetery. It is estimated that since the remains have been lying in state during the past two and a half days at least 125,000 people have passed through the cathedral to view them. An immense crowd of people besieged the cathedral doors from an early hour today eager to gain admittance. Great numbers were disappointed, for the edifice only contains a seating capacity barely sufficient to accommodate the prelates and priests who were assembled in large numbers. The cathedral was appropriately draped in mourning.

A silver plate on the casket bore the following inscription in Latin: "The Most Illustrious and Reverend Peter Richard Kenrick, who having been born Aug. 17, 1806, ordained priest March 6, 1832; consecrated Nov. 30, 1841, and archbishop also for St. Louis in 1847; died March 4, 1896. May he rest in peace."

VIEWING THE DEAD.

School Children Visit the Kenrick Catafalque.

St. Louis, March 11.—All of the children who are inmates of the orphans' homes in St. Louis, under Catholic auspices, about 10,000 in number, visited the cathedral last evening and took a last look at the remains of Archbishop Kenrick. As during the preceding day, so large a crowd of people besieged the sacred structure and struggled to get into the line that from early morning until late at night a continuous stream of people passed before the bier of the dead prelate.

Bishop Foley, of Detroit, accompanied by Fathers Baumgartner and Raney, of the same city, have arrived and registered at the Southern hotel. Bishop Richard Scannell, of Omaha, and Bishop Hennessey, of Baltimore, also have arrived and registered at the Southern hotel. Last night Cardinal Gibbons arrived. Chief Harrigan has detailed forty policemen to preserve order in and about the cathedral during the funeral services this morning.

INCREASED THEIR SALARY.

Dubuque, Iowa, March 11.—Several weeks ago, under instructions of Judge Husted, the grand jury indicted the mayor and eight aldermen for illegally voting and taking an increase of salary. They demurred and claimed the indictments charged no crime under statutes. Neither of the resident judges would hear the cases, and Judge Waterman, of Davenport, was called. The hearing commenced yesterday in a crowded court room and with a big array of counsel. The judge's rulings all through plainly indicated the sustaining of the demurrers and it will not be surprising if the indictments are dismissed. The case has attracted widespread attention.

CALIFORNIA BICYCLE RACES.

San Francisco, March 11.—Five thousand people witnessed the bicycle races at the pavillion last night. J. E. Edwards made a new world's record for the indoor mile. He rode the distance paced by Egan and Jaegling on a tandem in 2:06 1-5. In the ten-mile club cup race, Howard Squires, of the Acme club, lowered the ten-mile indoor record to 24:59. Theon Delmas was the star rider of the evening, winning all of his heats and taking one first and one second place in the finals. Half mile handicap—Gooch, 75 yards, won; Delmas, 30 yards, second; time, 1:03. One mile, invitation—Delmas won; Williamson, second; time, 2:33.

NOT HELD

Grand Jury Found No Indictment Against John N. Currie.

Charged With Being Accessory After the Fact to Stuckey's Crime.

County Attorney Arbury Will Have Assistance in Prosecuting Stuckey.

The grand jury this morning reported its inability to find an indictment against John N. Currie, who was charged with being an accessory after the fact in the robbery of the State bank. The charge arose from the allegation that Currie went to Stuckey's hiding place and got a part of the money which Stuckey is accused of carrying away from the bank.

The grand jury also reported its inability to find an indictment against James B. Stewart, engineer of the gas and water company's pump house. He was indicted for perjury in connection with testimony on the water question by the last grand jury, and the indictment was quashed Saturday by Judge Moer, and referred back to the jury.

Joseph Bembanack was indicted this morning for manslaughter in the first degree, for killing one Mikoloj Reszoh, at Virginia, February 10 some men attempted to put Bembanack out of a saloon at Virginia, Reszoh among them. Bembanack retaliated by striking Reszoh with an iron poker a blow from which he died Feb. 28.

Charles O'Rourke, indicted for grand larceny in the second degree, this morning withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to larceny in the second degree. G. W. Larson, indicted for offering a forged instrument, withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. He is a young man, who gave his age as 20, and who sauntered up to plead guilty with a very careless and amused smile.

Albert Mitchell was indicted for altering a forged time check for $48.60, on the Itasca Lumber company.

ENTERED DEMURRERS.

A. D. Cummings, H. R. Tinkham and E. A. Tinkham this morning entered separate demurrers to their indictments on the ground of defect in the indictment. Louis Brunetto pleaded not guilty to assault in the second degree.

D. Brown, who was out on bail under an indictment for selling liquor without a license failed to appear when his case was called. His bail was declared forfeited and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

The criminal cases will be taken up tomorrow morning by Judge Moer, beginning with the assault case against Rudolph App, better know as Tony App, who is accused of assaulting Lieut. Walter McLean with a rifle. The next case will be a forgery case against one Charles Erickson.

Saturday and Sunday the county attorney will take a breathing spell and Monday he will take up the large cases, of which this term is full, beginning with the case against Charles S. Stuckey for grand larceny in the first degree.

Attorney General Childs will assist County Attorney Arbury in the prosecution of Stuckey, also J. D. Anderson, who will represent Assignee A. D. Davidson, of the State bank.

The Soular and Verill murder cases will follow the Stuckey case.

The grand jury met again this afternoon and it was expected that this would be the last day of its existence.

The civil cases which filled the three court rooms were still on in their third day this morning. The case of Stratton against R. H. Palmer et al. will probably go to the jury in the morning, and the cases of Hedeen against the Duluth Manufacturing company, and Wasser against Singer were expected to reach that stage this afternoon.

The three struck juries were discharged yesterday because they had not been properly called, and as the defendants of these personal injury cases state that they believe a struck jury is necessary they made application for continuance over the term that they might have another chance.

SOLVED THE INSCRIPTION.

A Greek Student Reads a Parthenon Mystery.

Ithaca, N. Y., March 11.—A letter has been received from Miss Nellie M. Reed, who holds the Cornell traveling scholarship at the American classical school in Athens, Greece, in which she states that E. P. Andrews, also an American student there, has succeeded in interpreting the inscription on the architrave of the east front of the Parthenon, which has hitherto has been an unsolved problem. The task was done by making paper impressions of the holes to get their relative positions and individual shapes of the characters were molded by means of paper pulp.

This result will be given at an open meeting of the American school. The discovery is an important one to archaeology inasmuch, as in addition to the interpretation of the inscription, it has revealed a series of ornamentations of the architrave of the temple at various periods.

CLOTHING HOUSE FAILS.

Rochester, N. Y., March 11.—A general assignment was filed this morning by Rotschild, Bauman & Stern, one of the largest clothing manufacturing firms of this city. Liabilities are estimated at $400,000, largely in New York and this city. The investment in a large retail store caused the loss.

SHOCKED THE CHICAGOANS.

Chicago, March 11.—As a result of a refusal by the art institute to allow the exhibition of the "Morning Toilet," a painting by Zorn, among the collection of Swedish pictures, Charles W. Deering, one of the governing members, has resigned. The painting is a study of the nude. No objection was raised until after the painting had been hung and the galleries were about to be opened to the public. Then the committee decided the canvass was not a suitable one for general exhibition purposes and ordered its removal. This action incensed Mr. Deering, who is a personal friend of Zorn, and the committee persisting in its order of removal, his resignation followed.

BOOTH

Commanding General of the Salvation Army Sends a Message.

He Alludes Tenderly to His Recreant Son, Ballington Booth.

But Will Preserve the Discipline of the Army Anyhow.

New York, March 11.—A cable dispatch from Gen. Booth has been received at Salvation Army headquarters. It is the first public utterances of the paternal head of the army since the dissensions began. Two days ago the general arrived in London from the East and immediately had a conference with his eldest son, Bramwell, after which the dispatch was written. It was read from the platform at the holiness meting at headquarters last night. Commissioner Eva Booth began to read the document to the audience, from which all save Salvationists had been excluded, but became so overcome by emotion when she read about the family love which has existed among the Booths until now, that she called upon one of her officers to finish it for her.

This is the dispatch which is dated International Headquarters, London, England:

"Comrades—I find it impossible to describe the sense of sorrow with which I am overwhelmed today. On receiving details of the great loss which has fallen upon us in the action of my son, your late commander, every high anticipation of my heart and aim for nearly forty years seems to have been swept away and every tender association of his life and my life, and with his beloved mother's, seems likely to be trampled under foot in this hour of his sore temptation.

"The melancholy course of action on which he has embarked has been taken in the face of expostulations of the chief of the staff; in spite of affectionate entreaties of his brother and one sister, and one of my most trusted officers, sent expressly to New York to reason with him, without any communication with me of any kind, and in utter disregard of three telegraphic messages from myself urging him to meet me in London on my return from India, to which cables I have not even received a reply. But, though sorely wounded by this calamity, I am more than ever resolved, in the strength of God, to direct the government of this army upon the principles of equal justice between man and man. I have never permitted the close relations of my family which have subsisted between me and my children to secure any privileges in preference to their comrades, who were not blood relations. I will not do so.

"Your welcome to my daughter, Commissioner Eva, in her temporary command, has much gratified me. How every sensible man must recognize that if I had been willing to retain the loyalty of my son by sacrificing the principles of the army, I should at the same moment have lost, and deservedly so, the confidence and esteem of all honest-hearted men, as well as the approval of my own conscience. The suggestion that I had sought to Anglicise the army in the United States is at once a falsehood and a calumny. You, who have heard me plead the claims of the long lost world, know it is. You have stood with me near the cross and you know that under the shadow of that tree, I have pledged to devote your lives to no less a purpose than that for which the bleeding victim died—the salvation of every nation.

"The Salvation Army is as much American as it is English; it is of the kindred of the poor and belongs to every land. Comrades, I rely upon you. I have done so since the first mutterings of this storm reached me in India. You have acted just as I should have expected you to act. By your toil and self-sacrifice and devotion you made the army what it is in America and you have not been willing to stand by and see it destroyed. You will show no want of patience with those who have fallen beneath an almost unparalleled temptation and flattery. You will pray for them without ceasing. You will, by daily faithfulness, compel even your most bitter critics to see that we are seeking only the good of all men.

"You will allow no difficulty to check your advance. You will not fail your general. You will not fail your Lord. Let us remember the millions without God and devote ourselves anew to their salvation and he will grant us our hearts' desire and fulfill all our counsel. Your general, full of love for all,

William Booth."

CURED AT 73 YEARS.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure Victorious.

No other medicine can show such a record. Here is a veritable patriarch, 73 years of age, with strong prejudice to overcome, who had Heart Disease 15 years. He took the New Heart Cure and is now sound and well.

SAMUEL O. STONE.

Grass Lake, Mich., Dec. 28, 1894.

I have been troubled with heart disease 15 years or more. Most of the time I was so bad it was not safe for me to go out alone, as dizzy spells would cause falling. I had severe palpitation, shortness of breath and sudden pains that rendered me helpless. All physicians did for me was to advise keeping quiet. In August last I commenced taking and before I had finished the first bottle I found the medicine was a God-send. I have now used four bottles in all and am feeling entirely well. I am 73 years of age and have held a grudge against patent medicines all my life, but I will not allow this to prevent giving my testimony to the great cure your valuable remedy has wrought in me. I do this to show my appreciation of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. SAMUEL O. STONE.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

It Will Draw Duties From Other Branches.

Washington, March 11.—Senator Frye's bill, providing for the creation of the department of commerce and manufactures, contemplates the transfer to this department from the treasury of the life saving service, the lighthouse board, the marine hospital service, the bureau of steamboat inspection, the bureau of navigation, the coast and geological survey and the bureau of statistics, also the bureau of statistics of the state department, the two bureaus of statistics to be consolidated into one. The consular service is also transferred from the jurisdiction of the state department to the proposed new department.

It is provided that the department shall have general jurisdiction over the foreign and internal commerce of the United States except in so far as relates to collection of revenue and the administration of the customs and internal revenue laws. It is also to have jurisdiction over all matters relating to the manufacturing interests of the United States, including the extension of the foreign markets and the increase of trade and trade facilities with foreign countries. The bill is in the line of the recommendation of the national board of trade, and it is supposed that it will receive the general support of the trade and manufacturing interests.

POSTAL CLERKS.

Another Move to Increase Their Compensation.

Washington, March 11.—Strong efforts will be made by the house committee on postoffices and post roads to secure the passage of a bill to increase the compensation of railway mail clerks. The first bill introduced in this congress was by Mr. Linton, of Michigan, to reorganize this branch of the service, and the committee has directed Mr. Linton to report the bill favorably. By its provisions, the number of classes in the service on a salary basis is increased from five to ten, and salaries of clerks range from $800 to $1500.

The proposition to have 2 per cent of the salaries withheld to establish a pension fund was withdrawn, as it was feared that the opposition to civil pensions in the house might endanger the whole bill. Reliable statistics showed that the mortality among railway mail clerks through railroad accidents is greater than that among the troops in the civil war. These clerks are required to pass an examination at a rating of more than 90 per cent, and are not given vacations, although the departmental employes in Washington have thirty days.

MISSING STEAMER.

Rio De Janeiro Has Not Yet Been Reported.

San Francisco, March 11.—As time passes and no news is received from the missing steamer Rio De Janeiro, alarm for the safety of the big Pacific Mail liner increases. The agents of the company continue to give out assurances that the vessel is safe, but the friends of those on board are not so confident. The offices of the company are daily besieged by crowds.

Increased anxiety is also manifested in marine insurance circles, and it is said that the agents of many companies which took risks on the ship have been instructed to unload a large portion of the insurance if possible.

PILGRIMS IN MEXICO.

Earthquakes Continue to Shake Up the Country.

City of Mexico, March 11.—Fifteen hundred pilgrims arrived here today from Penjamo, on the Mexican Central railway on their way to the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe. Guadajara has been experiencing many slight earthquake shocks at various points in the state. At Michous some damage has been done to churches and houses. Manufacturing industries were never so prosperous as at the present time. Engineers have completed the survey of a new railroad in the state of Oaxaca.

Coffee lands on the west coast are rapidly rising in price, some of the best lands commanding $160 per acre in silver, against from $4 to $12 on the coast. Large investments are being made in country lands by Americans.

LI HUNG CHANG'S TRIP.

Victoria, B. C., March 11.—It is generally believed in Japan that China has some deep scheme in sending Li Hung Chang to Russia. A telegram from Pekin, of Feb. 18, states that in official circles there it was believed that the empress dowager was opposed to sending Li to Russia, because of his physical condition. Another dispatch has it that the emperor nominated for the mission Shao Yu Lin, who refused to go on the ground that it was advisable to send an official of high rank.

GOT A PAIR OF GLASSES.

Washington, March 11.—By direction of the president a pair of binocular glasses have been presented to Capt. Norton Alexander, of the British steamship Mexican, in recognition of his humane services in rescuing the captain and crew of the American schooner Driskow, October, 1893.

LOWER OCEAN FREIGHTS.

San Francisco, March 11.—The Pacific Mail Steamship company has announced a rate of $6 for the shipment of certain classes of grain and fruit from this city to New York by the way of Panama. The rate on wine has also been reduced.

There is nothing so good for burns and frost bites as Salvation Oil. It effects a speedy and permanent cure. 25 cents.

ARMY SURGEON DEAD.

Sedalia, Mo., March 11.—Dr. A. V. Small, a noted surgeon, died in his home in this city last night. Dr. Small was born in Germany. He served under Napoleon, and was also a surgeon in the army during the Crimean war. During the civil war he was the medical director of the Confederacy, his headquarters being in the Alamo, San Antonio, Tex. He had been a resident of Missouri for about forty years.

SAVED

Three Men Have a Successful Struggle on Lake Michigan.

A Crowd Watched Them But Could Give Them No Aid.

Chicago, March 11.—With the odds all against them, three men in a cockleshell of a cat boat fought death in the waves off Twenty-second street this morning. The heavy seas stirred by the heavy northeast gales broke over the boat and swept on to the shore sending clouds of spray over the breakwater and the railroad tracks beyond where hundreds of people watched the gallant struggle, and while helpless, were ready to render aid. The boat was a small affair, about thirty feet long, and was cat rigged, its one sail closely reefed being kept up in order to prevent the boat from drifting into the trough of the sea.

It was a boat such as fishermen use and the three occupants, barely discernable through the snow and spray, seemed to be master sailors by the way they worked their boat and endeavored to tack up to the very teeth of the gale and prevent the boat drifting to certain destruction against the piers. The boat with the three occupants was first sighted from shore by passengers on the Illinois Central express train which arrived at Randolph street at 10 o'clock and word was sent to the Cottage Grove avenue police station by the conductor. Lieut. Thomas and a squad of officers hurried to the shore, but were unable to do anything to aid the unfortunates.

At a point south of Twenty-second street the boatmen determined on a desperate move. Skipping a broadside sea, which would have swamped the boat, they put about and throwing its head up as close as possible darted north parallel with the shore. At times the boat went almost on its beam ends, but each time righted and showed surprising seagoing qualities.

It mounted each wave and failed to ship any great quantities of water. Under the heavy wind on its starboard quarter, the boat scudded rapidly along and finally the occupants achieved their object and reached the lee of the Illinois Central pier at Sixteenth street. Here they found comparatively smooth water and made a landing.

Before reaching smooth water, the boat had several narrow escapes from destruction by being dashed against the piling, but the stout timbers of the little craft resisted the shocks and the occupants finally reached the harbor. The boat proved to be the fishing boat Pilot. Capt. Lewis Lebdert, with his crew, Julius Windler and Otto Wilson. They started out about 8 o'clock this morning on a fishing trip and after getting out about two and a half miles, the gales became so fierce that they drifted before it, and were gradually driven shoreward. Beyond great exhaustion from their long struggle with the wind and waves, none of the men are any the worse for their adventure.

BLAME THE MANAGER.

Damage Suits Started By the Injured.

St. Louis, March 11.—General Manager James Houseman is coming in for a great deal of blame for the accident on the St. Louis & Kirkwood Electric line, in which three men lost their lives and many more were seriously injured Sunday evening. He is still inclined, however, to lay the fault on Motorman Aiken, who was killed at his post, and who, Mr. Houseman says, was running his car at the time of the accident in violation of the rules of the company.

One fact has leaked out which will show the company was primarily to blame for the whole trouble. A defective trolley wire, that had worked badly from the start, caused the delay which resulted in the catastrophe. It is also known that the company had no printed rules for the guidance of employes. Each man was given verbal instructions by Mr. Houseman, it is now claimed, and they were expected to remember and obey them.

The first suit for damages, as the result of the accident, has been filed by Dr. M. C. Marshall, of this city, who asks for $25,000, his leg being broken and receiving other injuries.

BARATIERI'S STATEMENT.

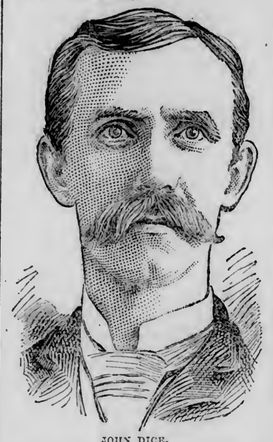
JUST IN TIME.

A Terrible Catastrophe Averted. How Mr. Dice almost passed the portals of death. Restored to health in a manner that seems miraculous.

There are thousands of people in the world that are dying daily, who even a few hours before the end were in no worse condition than was Mr. John Dice of 2629 W. 3rd Street, Duluth, Minn. His sufferings from his own account must have been terrible, afflicted as he was with severe kidney and stomach trouble, but perhaps it would be best to let him describe his sickness and how he was restored to health by the use of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa in his own words:

"I have suffered greatly from trouble with my kidney and stomach. In rising after bending down I would become very dizzy; everything would look black to me. I knew that I was threatened with Bright's disease. I tried many physicians and different remedies, but all failed to help me. I gave up ever being well again. I tried Kickapoo Indian Sagwa a few weeks ago, and am now on my third bottle, and I can thankfully say all traces of the disease has left me, and I know I am a well man today."



JOHN DICE.

Most people do not realize that these sudden dizzy spells, pains in the small of the back, and inability to retain refreshing sleep, a loss of appetite, a face that has an unnatural pallor and a puffy appearance are the unmistakable evidences of Bright's disease, or some other terrible kidney complication.

Sufferers so afflicted drag out a miserable existence, growing weaker from day to day until they hail the sudden death that eventually overtakes them as a blessing for releasing them from pain. But, why get in this condition? Follow Mr. Dice's example; with the first symptoms take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, that most wonderful and effectual of all remedies for the cure of all derangements of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and the greatest blood purifier known to medical science.

Thousands of testimonials similiar to the above are continually reaching us. Add yours to the list; you surely will when you find that this great remedy has saved your life. Remember though always effectual it is absolutely harmless containing no poisonous ingredients whatever. It has been used by Indians for centuries and their long life and freeness from such troubles as described above make them living examples of its wonderful power.

NOBODY HURT.

Fortunate Outcome of a Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, March 11.—During the fire in a 6-story brick building at 45 and 49 Randolph street yesterday afternoon a serious panic among 500 women employed there was narrowly averted. Lizzie Smith and Martin Marr fainted from fright; Maggie Burns fell down a flight of stairs, and two boys, John J. Heis and Bernard Rhinehardt were nearly overcome with smoke. This was all the injuries suffered, but it was almost a miracle that many lives were not lost. The following firms occupied space in the building: Basement, first and second floors, Lartz Wall Paper company; third floor, Lord & Thomas, newspaper advertising agents; fourth floor, Chicago Business college; fifth and sixth floors, E. L. Mansur Fringe company. The fire started among the wall paper on the second floor. It was not discovered until it had gained a good start and the building was soon filled with smoke.

A wild panic ensued among the 175 girls who were employed by the Mansur Fringe company and the girls were making a stampede for the stairs when Miss Dena Bayrel the forewoman, managed to check them. She formed them in line and marched them down the smoking stairways and through the hall of the second floor, which was partly on fire. All of them reached the street without injury except Maggie Burns, who was badly battered up by rolling down the last flight of stairs.

In the Chicago Business college 500 students, girls and boys were kept in line by the principals, and all of them reached the street in safety. The danger was too much for some of the girls and several were carried from the second story to the street. Heis and Rhinehardt reached the street safely, but went back for the wraps of some girls who were shivering in the cold. They were nearly strangled by smoke, but were revived in a short time. The fire damaged the Lartz Paper company to the extent of $35,000. The other losses are trifling.

GRADE CROSSING FATALITY.

Hinsdale, Ill., March 11.—While the young st children of Willis L. Black, of Blackman Bros., commission merchants, were being driven home from a concert last night, their carriage was struck by a train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway. Carlos, the youngest son, was killed instantly as was the coachman, Samuel Russell. Willis, the eldest son was terribly injured and will probably die. Margery, the youngest daughter, has a broken leg and is badly bruised. She will probably recover.

WANTED IN CANADA.

London, March 11.—Joseph and Emma Rhinsterm, who say they live in New York city, were remanded at Bow street police court this morning. They were arrested on an extradition warrant charging them with larceny in Canada. The prisoners deny ever having been to Canada.

JAIL DELIVERY PREVENTED.

Guthrie, Okla., March 11.—A jail delivery has been prevented here by the discovery of an underground tunnel in the United States jail, where 112 prisoners are incarcerated. The leaders were Bill Doolin, Bill Reidler and Bob Montgomer, three members of the famous Dalton gang. The outlaws had revolvers and knives in their possession to protect themselves. Doolin says he will never wait for his trial, but will escape or die in the attempt.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The city council of Fargo has ordered eight more blocks paved on North Broadway and will pave First avenue north and Eighth street south this spring.

Col. E. M. Tuller, North Dakota militia, has been in Devil's Lake for several days, consulting Inspector General Creel, who is president of the board in charge of the state militia grounds, in regard to the location for the encampment to be held this summer. It is probably settled that the militia will go to camp on their grounds at Devil's Lake, July 9, 1896, as usual, not deterred by the Great Northern road's actions. Col. Creel will have in his hands at that time about $2000. This money will be used to defray in part the expenses of the encampment. The program for the coming session of the Devil's Lake Chautauqua promises to be a most interesting one, and the attendance will probably be larger than ever before. Efforts will be made to induce the editorial association to meet here.

The recent address at Lisbon of Editor W. H. Campbell, of the Western Soil Culture, of Sioux City, Iowa, on the advantages of soil culture by deep plowing—eight inches—and then thoroughly packing the lower part by means of a new mechanical invention, leaving about two inches of loose earth on the surface, has created considerable interest among the farmers of Ransom county, and many experiments will doubtless be made during the coming season.

From reliable information just received, it is learned that it is the intention of the Northern Pacific Railway company to establish near Lisbon this spring a small experimental station to thoroughly test the practicability of this new system of tillage. Four other smaller stations will, it is said, be located in other parts of the state by the same company. The Soo and Great Northern will also, it is reported, establish like stations on the line of their roads in North Dakota. By the new system of soil culture, from twenty-five to forty bushels of wheat per acre can, it is claimed, be raised during the dryest season.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The county Republican convention to elect delegates to Huron has been called to meet at Clark on Saturday next. At the meeting of the Republican central committee, a straw vote was taken on choice for president, and out of fifty-eight votes cast for first choice, McKinley received 41; Allison, 16; Harrison, 1. Second choice, Allison 27, Reed, 13; McKinley, 10; Davis, 4; scattering, 4. It is safe to say that in this part of the state (barring the politicians) 80 per cent of the Republicans favor McKinley, with Allison their second choice.

Farmers at Miller are predicting large crops this year, the quantity of snow on the ground making it certain that the soil will be filled deep with moisture to start with.

W. L. Bruce, of Yankton, has on exhibition two white quail, which he shot last fall. The remainder of the flock were of regulation color. The white birds were larger than the ordinary bird, of a cream color, speckled with brown, but so dimly as to appear pure white at a short distance. Some years ago an old quail with thirteen young, all albinos, was reported from California by a correspondent.

Alexander Smith Fell Dead While Carrying Water This Morning.

Peter Hogan and Henry Stendahl Suffer Painful Injuries.

St. Patrick's Celebration on Saturday Evening---Other News.

Accidents and deaths come along in pretty quick succession in West Duluth notwithstanding an abatement of typhoid fever, and it is an unusual day when some one does not pass away. This morning James Smith, the father of Alexander Smith, the lamp lighter, died very suddenly. He was carrying a pail of water from the creek to the house near by when he fell over and expired, from what is supposed to be heart failure. The deceased was 73 years of age and has been living with his son for several years. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Peter Hogan had his leg badly crushed at the car works last night while working about some machinery and will be laid up for some time on account of the accident.

Henry Stendahl was brought in from Merrill & Ring's camp this morning with his right shoulder blade broken. His injury was received from the overturning of a load of logs, and although it is not very serious will lay him up for some time.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

WILL GO TO WORK.

Officer Miller, who lost his official head last evening owing to a change of administration, came up smiling as usual this morning as though nothing had happened. Harry is well known as a railroad man and he expects to be at work again in a few days at his old business. There are several other public officers in West Duluth who are a little uneasy in their chairs and are expecting the knife to fall upon them most any day.

It is pretty generally felt that Arthur Briggs will be retained at his old position, but that the force will be cut down somewhat and that there will be an opportunity for one or two single men on the force to look up another job.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

James Quayle and family have returned to West Duluth after the winter spent in Wisconsin.

D. G. Parsons and wife have returned from a short visit to Grand Rapids.

The funeral of Miss Ellen Cashin will take place tomorrow morning with a high mass at 8:30 o'clock, at St. James' church, West Duluth. The League of the Sacred Heart will attend in a body.

The Eastern Star ball takes place tomorrow evening at Great Eastern hall and will be the society event of the week. The ladies have sold enough tickets to insure the success, and a jolly time is anticipated. Excellent music has been provided and the ladies will serve refreshments in their own dainty style.

The man with a weight on his leg can't hope to win in the race. A man with a weight on his health can't expect to compete in life and business with those who are not handicapped. If his brain is heavy, and his blood sluggish, because of constipation, he will not succeed in doing anything very well. Constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of all sickness. Symptoms of it are sallowness, listlessness, poor appetite, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness, biliousness, and lassitude. Constipation can be cured easily and certainly by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are not at all violent in their action, and yet they are more certain than many medicines which are so strong that they put the system all out of order. The great advantage of the "Pleasant Pellets" is that they cure permanently.

RULER OF BALMORAL.

The ruler of Balmoral castle is not the queen, but the housekeeper, a Mrs. Mussens, a typical personage of her class, gowned always in rustling black silk, lace trimmed apron and white cap. She and the queen are said to be excellent friends, and many a gossip have they had together when affairs of state have been laid aside, says the Strand Magazine.

Mrs. Mussens also stands high in the favor of the little Battenbergs, who are sure to seek her out as soon as they have landed at the castle, for she fairly idolizes the little ones and keeps many a treasure in her apartments with which to regale them.

To the world at large Mrs. Mussens is a holy terror. Her word is law, and she enforces it at the point of the bayonet or the broomstick. It is said that once the queen wanted a certain maid, to whom she had taken a fancy, detailed to the care of her own room, but the housekeeper remonstrated, telling her majesty it was quite out of order and she really must not spoil the servants by undue notice. The queen was wise enough not to insist, and "dear Mrs. Mussens" won the day.

WHY HE GAVE IT AWAY.

"Will you have a cigar?" asked one man of another, carefully selecting one of three which he drew from his waistcoat pocket, says the New York Tribune. He handed this one to his friend. The other man smiled and said:

"I suppose this is the kind you buy to give away."

"You might think so, but it isn't," rejoined the one who had given the cigar. "As a matter of fact, the one I gave you is much the best of the lot. I always give away the cigars of that brand which I receive. It's not because they are bad, but because they are good. This is how it is: For several years I have been buying my cigars of a dealer in Nassau street. I always get a kind which costs $10 a hundred. I am not overfond of the brand, but it is the best that I can get for the money and I feel that I cannot afford to pay more for my cigars.

"For some time the dealer has been very anxious to get me to smoke a cigar that costs $16 a hundred. He assures me that the difference between it and the one I get is far greater than the price would indicate. Some of my friends also smoke this expensive cigar and they assure me it is really exceptionally good. From time to time the dealer gives me one of the 16-cent kind to smoke, assuring me that if I will only try it I will buy no other. The truth is I fear he is right, so I have resolutely resisted the temptation to smoke the gift cigars. Instead I hand them to some friend. That is one of them. Do you believe now that I gave you the worst."

The friend saw no further reason for doubting that the cigar which he had received was the best one of the lot.

Wheat Made a Slight Advance Today But Generally Ruled Dull.

Liberal Taking Reported of Wheat at New York for Export.

Cables Were Easier Early But Recovered Some of the Decline.

Wheat started ⅛c lower at 62⅝c here this morning and sold down ⅛c but reacted ⅛c and ruled steady and slow up to noon. Shortly after 12 o'clock on a report from Prime, issued from Dwight, Ill., which indicated a possibility of change from the colder weather predicted for tomorrow and some talk about, the same time of the decline in price, resulted in a liberal taking of wheat at New York for export, and some firmness came into the market for a time. The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts were 321 car loads against 434 a week ago and 228 on the corresponding day of the year before. Chicago received 73 cars and 1,000 bus were shipped by rail. The exports of wheat and flour from the Atlantic seaboard were equal to 190,000 bus. The Liverpool market opened ¼d lower, on the opening with ⅛d of the decline received at the close.

The government report issued yesterday of course, gave the receipts of wheat at 123,000,000 bus, and that was evidently accepted very generally by the wheat traders as meaning enough to see us through the crop year. That is a very hasty conclusion to have arrived at, for far from these figures being indicative of a large surplus to carry into the next crop year, they are suggestive of very great scarcity before another crop will be available. The traders in wheat, however, have had a surfeit of figures concerning farm reserves and apparently their necks will have fixed their attention on the fraud four years a year ago—from the government data—exactly before another harvest was unavailable and yet shortages followed so that on the present occasion with 50,000,000 bus more wheat than a year ago in farmers' hands, according to the Washington report, may not another similar season be more confidently looked for?

There was fair trading in the May future on the Duluth board, opened ¼c higher and up to 62¾c. There was good business in cash stuff. The mills bought about 15,000 bus at 1½c and ½c May, and the elevators took 85,000 bus at 1½c under May. The close was ⅛c higher than yesterday. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 62c; March, 62⅝c; May, 64¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 60¾c; March, 60⅞c; May, 62¾c; June, 63⅛c; July, 64½c. No. 2 northern, cash, 57⅝@58c; May, 60¾c. No. 3, 56½c. Rejected, 54½c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of R. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, March 11.—The bearish sentiment on the government crop report was contrary too unanimous at the opening. Cables indicated that foreign buyers of wheat also looked upon the report as insuring them abundant wheat at low prices. At 60 there was no pressure to sell, and the decline forced out but few stop orders. A leading local operator was noted as a heavy buyer, and this with predictions of much colder weather in the south of wheat belt steadied the market, and upon receipt of the news of about 400,000 bus being taken for export at seaboard points and a fair business here, the market rallied and closed the same as yesterday. We shall have a two-sided market for some time yet, unless we get some decided crop news.

Corn and oats opened easier on the government report, but the market was dull and the large aggregate of buying orders at 2@3c prevented any decline.

Provisions easier and ruled dull.

Tobacco Was the Strong Feature Today.

New York, March 11.—The stock market opened quiet and irregular with the changes slight as a rule. Tobacco was the feature and developed decided animation and strength. Heavy blocks of the stock have changed hands. The total dealings in it the first ten minutes reached 48,300 shares. The price improved 2¾ per cent to 77½. The trading in tobacco continued on a large scale but the fluctuations were narrow on a range from 76¾ to 78 with the latter current at 11 o'clock. The general list was also weak.

A MENNONITE CUSTOM.

A curious custom exists among the Mennonites who are settled in Manitoba, says the Pilot Mound Sentinel. When a young man and a young woman desire to become engaged, the lover remains in the house of the father of the intended bride for a few weeks before the marriage takes place. The object is that each of the contracting parties may become more fully acquainted with the character and disposition of the other while there is yet time to withdraw from what might prove an uncongenial alliance. Among Canadian lovers, the lady is only seen when she is dressed for display and is practicing her best behavior. The lover also, during the brief visits that are made, has an opportunity to conceal much of his real character, and both are sometimes disappointed and deceived.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 8 a. m. (Eastern time), March 11.—An area of high pressure central over Manitoba is attended this morning by a temperature as low as 24 below zero. Spreading south and east, it has caused a change of 10 to 20 degrees colder than yesterday in the Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys, the Dakotas, Minnesota and the upper lake region.

The storm center yesterday over Ohio has remained nearly stationary and snows have fallen in that section, and thence north and west to Lake Superior and the Mississippi river.

A second barometric depression that has advanced to the region north of Montana has caused a change to warmer and cloudy in that section and snow was falling this morning in the western portions of the Dakotas and Nebraska.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 2 below zero; maximum yesterday, 12; minimum yesterday, 6.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, March 11.—Forecast until 8 a. m. tomorrow: Wisconsin: Generally fair tonight and Thursday; much colder tonight; colder in east portion Thursday; brisk and high northerly winds. Minnesota: Generally fair tonight and Thursday; much colder in east portion tonight; warmer in extreme west portion tonight; rising temperature by Thursday afternoon; northerly winds.

THE NEW INTAKE STATION.

Two communication published in The Herald yesterday reflect the almost general sentiment of the people of Duluth regarding the water question. The people are just as determined today as they were when they voted last fall in favor of the constructing of a new water system to be operated by the city, and they are as firmly resolved as when the typhoid epidemic was at its height that this plant shall be built without needless delay. The people are now clamoring for action. They are tired of the waiting policy and they demand that the work of construction shall be pushed steadily forward.

It is this sentiment that opposes the idea advanced by Mayor Truelsen that it may be desirable to change the location of the new intake from the point selected at Lakewood to a point at Brighton, two miles nearer the city proper, and that an expert should be employed to decide whether as pure water cannot be obtained at Brighton as at Lakewood.

As The Herald remarked a few days ago, it makes not the slightest difference whether the water at Brighton is pure now. The water at Fourteenth avenue east was once perfectly pure until the growth of the city resulted in sewage being emptied at that point. The main idea in securing a new intake is to get a supply that will be pure for all time, or at least for many years. It would be absurd to claim that the water at Brighton will remain pure as long a time as will the water at Lakewood, which is two miles farther from the more thickly settled portions of the city. It does not require the services of an expert to determine this point. By all means keep the intake at Lakewood, or if there is to be any change whatever let it be a change to a point still farther east. The extra cost of laying mains is as nothing when compared with the certainity of a pure water supply for many years.

It is not strange that there are people already charging those in authority with bad faith and accusing the mayor and those who agree with him with a desire to delay and finally prevent the construction of an independent city plant. The people are so impatient with the delay already experienced in building the plant that they naturally regard with suspicion any person who advances any suggestion tending towards further delay. If Mayor Truelsen desires to act in accord with public sentiment, and at the same time do that which will best assure a constant supply of pure water for the city, he will drop the idea of changing the location of the intake or hiring an expert engineer.

TO OPEN NAVIGATION.

The Journal of the Society of Arts states on the authority of the United States consul at Ghent that a successful ice-sawing apparatus, by which bodies of fresh water may be kept open for navigation in winter, is in use on the river Scheldt at Antwerp. It consists of a strongly built boat, with rounded sides, carrying a small, portable steam engine. At the bow a moveable framework, which may be raised or lowered at will, carries the axes of two circular saws; these latter are operated by power from the portable engine. The boat itself is moved by means of a rope run over a windlass, the loose end of the rope being attached to an anchor fixed in the ice at a distance in front of the boat, and in the direction to be taken.

The framework containing the saws is placed at a suitable height, according to the thickness of the ice, and the saws are set in motion. Being separated from each other by a distance of about five yards, they cut out a band of ice which the boat breaks into fragments by its forward movement. By reason of its form it causes these fragments to scatter before it—that is to say, to disappear on the right and on the left under the ice remaining in place. Through ice two inches thick this machine forced a passage at the rate of twenty feet per minute. In eight-inch ice the advance was about one-third of a mile per day.

Perhaps this scheme might be profitably adopted to open navigation on the great lakes at an early date, by cutting through the ice in the St. Mary's river, below Sault Ste. Marie, earlier in the spring than the ice usually goes out.

THE TORRENS LAW.

A Chicago dispatch, published in yesterday's papers, said: "The first transfer of real estate was made under the Torrens law was made today. It took just thirty minutes to transact the whole affair. The cost of the transfer was $3. On the whole deal it is estimated a saving was effected of three weeks on the time and $47 in cash over the old system of transferring real property."

The Torrens law has now been in operation in Cook county, Ill., including the city of Chicago, for about a month, and already a large number of properties have been registered under its provisions. The motive of the law is to secure certainty of title and celerity in the transfer or mortgaging of real property. The instance quoted in the dispatch shows how quickly transfers are made and with what cheapness, as compared with the old method. There is no doubt about the certainty of titles registered under it. Other countries where this law is in operation have not had any trouble on that point.

The law, as passed in Illinois, does not make the public registering of a title mandatory, but if such a law proves effective its merits are so great that the old bungling, expensive, tedious and injurious method will disappear. The law itself must run the gauntlet of the courts as to its constitutionality. Even with this drawback the administration thus far is satisfactory. In a recent article commenting on the large number of applications already filed by property owners anxious to register titles under the new law, the Chicago Chronicle said: "Should the Torrens law prove effective what a great saving it will make in time, energy and money and everything else upon the expensive, clumsy and vexatious existing method. One will have title to his real estate publicly certified that can be transferred by the stroke of a pen as readily as a certificate of personal property or stock. He will not have to await the pleasure of a conveyancer and a lawyer, searches on taxes and various matters of that kind. He will have his certificate to be assigned as readily as one may assign a warehouse receipt. It is well that the law comes into operation at this time. In another generation, with insistence that a title shall be examined from the grant of the United States to date, the expense of an ordinary transfer would be equal to the value of an ordinary lot."

There is no reason why the Torrens system of land transfer should not also be applied to Minnesota. The Illinois law can be copied here if found to work satisfactorily in Chicago. The new legislature that meets in this state should pass such a law.

BRING IT TO DULUTH.

The proposed removal of the office of the supervising inspector of steam vessels from St. Paul to Dubuque, Iowa, has greatly stirred up the St. Paul people, and a Washington dispatch says Senator Davis and Representative Kiefer have filed a protest.

The Herald cannot see any reason why the office should be removed to Dubuque. Of course St. Paul is not a very satisfactory point for the inspector's headquarters, but if any change is to be made it would seem reasonable that the office should come to Duluth, in order to be at a point where there is some navigation and where there are vessels requiring inspection.

NAVAL VOLUNTEERS.

In another column will be found a series of resolutions adopted last night by J. B. Culver post, of the Grand Army, calling upon congress to pass the bill which authorizes the secretary of the navy to organize national naval volunteers in all states bordering upon the great lakes. Strong reasons are presented why a naval volunteer force is an absolute necessity in order that the cities along the great lakes may be properly protected from possible foreign invasion. At present Duluth and the other lake cities are practically defenseless. There has been some talk that in case of war the government could put guns on board the Northern line boats, but what good would this do, unless there was a force of men here trained to handle guns on board ships?

England has neglected no opportunity during the past few years to put Canada in a strong position of defense. The fortifications from Halifax to Esquimalt have been greatly strengthened, the Canadian militia has been newly armed with improved rifles, and torpedo boats and gunboats have been built by the dozen, of such light draft and size that they could easily pass through the Welland canal and come up the lakes and do incalculable damage unless this country had vessels, well equipped and properly manned, to meet them.

Franchises hereafter granted to electric street railway companies in Tacoma, Wash., will contain a clause to the effect that the company shall keep in repair all water pipes damaged by electrolysis. Recently, in repairing one of the principal streets, along which runs an electric car line, it was found that more than one-half of the surface and connecting pipes, running from the water main to buildings, had been so eaten away by the electric current, grounded through the rails, as to be useless.

The labor commissioner of Kansas writes to an Eastern commissioner the following graphic description of a controversy between himself and the governor: "Corporationists" go the governor and endeavor to procure the commissioner's removal. The commissioner refuses to resign for the following reasons, which are peculiarly Kansan: "First, the charges against me are false, and second, because the governor has no better place to appoint me to."

The proposition to issue $150,000 of county bonds to build new roads was more popular upon the Iron ranges than it was in Duluth. The majority against it here was overcome by the heavy majorities in favor cast in the range towns.

One of the provisions of the new civil service act proposed to be passed by the Maryland legislature is that a commissioner, in addition to the usual constitutional act, must swear that in the discharge of his duties "he will be wholly free from all political or partisan bias or influence of any kind." Such an obligation would at least serve to keep the official constantly in mind of his duty to be non-partisan.

The office of publication of the "Good Government, official journal of the National Civil Service Reform league," has been removed from Washington to New York. It says that "we have reason to believe that the president and most of the department chiefs will continue to extend the operation of the civil service rules over every branch of the service to which they can be applied."

Congressman Manderson predicts that the St. Louis convention will nominate either himself, Allison or Davis for president. The fight between Reed and McKinley is becoming so bitter that neither one is likely to be nominated. Senator Davis' chances are excellent.

The Oklahoma man who took his wife's name when he married, as some Europeans do, and is now suing for a divorce and the right to use his own bachelor name again, should go to London and get to be the hero of a novel. There is surely a career for him.

A Philadelphia dentist figures it out that the people of the United States have at least 280 tons of gold in their teeth. No wonder John Bull has a friendly feeling for us.

Quay for second place is the latest tip from the East, and he would no doubt be glad to be the tail to the Republican kite.

Money judiciously expended in building new roads and bettering old roads is never wasted.

CLEAN AND ABLE.

Brainerd Tribune: Hon. William E. Lee has formally announced his candidacy for governor. Mr. Lee is a clean and able man, a safe, conservative man, and he will not only have the support of the entire Sixth district and the greater part of the Seventh district, but also considerable strength in other parts of the state. His candidacy is meeting with the enthusiastic support of the Republican press and the Republican voters of Northern Minnesota.

NO INSTRUCTIONS.

Little Falls Transcript: There is a strong movement among Republicans in Minnesota to prevent any of the district conventions from instructing their delegates to St. Louis on the presidency. It is now generally conceded that the state is for McKinley if Davis is not a possibility, but it is no more than fair to send delegates who will support Davis as long as it appears advisable to do so. To instruct delegates for anyone else would be a political mistake at this time.

A PUZZLE FOR WHEELMEN.

Philadelphia Record: Take a bicycle, balance it with one hand, having one pedal at its highest point, the other at its lowest. To the lower one tie a string and pull it toward the rear of the machine. Which way will the bicycle go?

It will go backward.

Most people think it will go forward, because the string tends to move the pedals in the direction they move when the machine is going forward.

PROOF POSITIVE.

Boston Transcript: Mr. Murphy—I want you to sign this paper. It's an application from Michael Colliwins for a place in the sanitary department.

Mr. Easy (after signing)—Is he fit for the place?

Mr. Murphy—Fit for it? He ought to be. He has been after it for five years.

GEESE AND TURKEY RACE.

A gentleman once laid a wager with George IV that geese would beat turkeys in a race. The king, thinking that such a wager was already as good as won, willingly made the bet, and the gentleman was left to choose time and place and distance. Being well acquainted with the habits of the birds, he accordingly chose for the time the evening just before sunset, and for the place the road outside the city walls, and a mile for the distance. The time came, and each appeared with his flock of birds, and the race began. Long ere the end came the sunset, and immediately, true to their instincts, as soon as the sun had quite disappeared all the turkeys flew up into the nearest tree to roost, and no persuasion could induce them to budge an inch farther, and the geese, which had been slowly toddling on behind, quietly cackled in, the winners.

HE WOULD BE GOVERNOR.

A Sketch of the Career of William E. Lee.

Following is a brief biographical sketch of Hon. William E. Lee, of Long Prairie, Todd county, who has formally announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Minnesota:

William Edward Lee first saw the light of day in the city of Alton, Ill., forty-four years ago. At the age of 5 his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lee, removed to Minnesota, settling at the then comparatively frontier town of Little Falls. It was here that the boy obtained the meager schooling provided in pioneer days to the children of the common people and it was here that the first began life for himself. His father was a mill wright by trade, but at the breaking out of the rebellion left his family at Little Falls and enlisted in Hatch's Battalion, Minnesota volunteers. Young Lee was married at Barnesville, Todd county, his bride being Miss Eva A. Gibson, daughter of A. A. Gibson, a well-known farmer of that town. They have three children, all boys. The eldest is a student at the state university and the two younger lads are pupils of the St. Cloud normal school.

Mr. Lee first came into public life by his election as register of deeds of Todd county and he was re-elected at the next election. In 1885 he was sent by his constituents to the legislature, being returned in 1887. The year 1893 found him again a member of the house and at this session he was by a handsome majority of the Republican caucus chosen as speaker of that branch of the legislature. His services as speaker are too recent in the minds of the people of Minnesota to require any chronicle of them at the hands of this paper. Suffice it to say, that no abler man ever sat in the chair of the house of representatives. His rulings were noteworthy in their impartiality; his treatment of members of the three parties represented was commented upon again and again as being eminently fair, and the only fault found with Speaker Lee was his refusal to come at the party beckon and throw aside honesty and fairness for partisanship. As speaker he saw many measures he had originally drafted, framed into laws and put on the tax levy. He left the halls of legislation for private life with an unspotted reputation as a member of the law-making body and with the good will of every member of the house of representatives. That the friends that he made in the years of his legislative experience will be glad to extend a helping hand and give him the nomination for governor none will doubt.

Lee was next brought into prominence by his appointment by the board of managers as superintendent of the reformatory. That he should accept the office was a great deal more of a surprise to his friends than that he should resign it. He was named superintendent in August, 1894, and resigned March 6, 1896. As such superintendent he was a decided success, and the experience gained in the position and the acquaintance with the various state institutions gives him a prestige which, if elected, he will enjoy to the extent none of his predecessors ever did.

Mr. Lee's parents are still living. They reside at Long Prairie and last autumn celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. It is unnecessary to say they feel a pardonable pride in the success of their eldest son and the friends of the worthy couple will hope that they will be spared to see him sitting in the executive chair of Minnesota.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The Minnesota Iron company, at Chicago, has declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent payable April 15. The distribution will amount to $217,500. This is the first return to the stockholders since April, 1893.

Nickola Tesla, who has been experimenting with the Rontgen rays, now says he believes it possible, by aid of the X rays, to project a suitable chemical into any part of the body.

Repairs to the battleship Indiana have been completed at Hampton Roads.

Marvin L. Johnson, a well-known farmer near Omaha, drew a large sum of money from an Omaha bank a week ago and has not been seen since. His family and friends believe he has been robbed and murdered.

Gen. W. H. Penrose, commander at Fort Douglass, Utah, retired from the formal service of this country at noon yesterday, after devoting thirty-five years of his life to the military service.

Ex-City Treasurer Charles Greene, of Eau Claire, Wis., has been sentenced to state's prison at Waupun, for three years and nine months at hard labor. His shortage was $10,000.

At Wausau, Wis., George Blank was frightfully tortured by tramps and died last night. Blank was burned with red hot irons in an effort to compel him to reveal the hiding place of his money. The tramps secured only $1. They have been arrested.

The government has notified all mill owners on the Fox river, in Wisconsin, that the water on the river must be at the crest of the Menasha dam on April 15. Unless heavy rains fall this cannot be secured without a total suspension of milling operations. This will make fully 8000 persons idle, where mills are not provided with steam power.

A race over a mile and a half course for the skating championship of the United States and Canada, was won at Washington by Joe Donohue. Harley Davidson was second and Howard Moshier third. They were the only competitors.

There are rumors at Rome that the Kalifa with a large army is moving against Cassala. Dispatches from Wady Halfa say that Cassala has already been attacked.

AN OLD FRIEND.

New York Sun: "As I was walking up Broadway the other day," said Mr. Glimby, "a man with his hands in his pockets ranged alongside and spoke as fellows, or to the following effect:

"'Could you assist me a little? This is the first time I ever had to ask for help, but I'm a stranger in the city, and I want something to eat.'

"I didn't give him anything; I made some commonplace reply, and as I was walking faster than he I soon passed on ahead.

"I had to stop on the way; I was detained about two minutes. Just as I had straightened up again on my course after coming out of the store a man with his hands in his pockets ranged alongside and spoke substantially as follows:

"'Could you assist me a little? This is the first time I ever had to ask anybody for help, but I'm a stranger in the city and I want something to eat.'

"Moving along at his slow and uniform gait, but keeping going while I had been detained, he had just happened to overtake me. I made the same reply and passed on as before. I had one more stop to make, and just as I had returned to the street and got started on a man with his hands in his pockets ranged alongside and said:

"'Could you assist me a little? This is the first time I ever had to ask anybody for help, but I'm a stranger—'

"'A stranger?' I said, 'why how can you say that? You and I are old friends!' and this time I staked him mildly."

GRIP DEALS HARD BLOWS.

Some of Its Consequences Described By a Famous English Authority on Nervous Disease.

Dr. W. R. Gowers, the leading British authority on nervous diseases, tells how acute maladies like influenza leave the system weak and a prey to varied evils. Mental dullness, indisposition to effort of any sort, and stiffness in the arms, legs and back are among the ugly things that the baneful grip leaves behind it. Health and spirits are dragged to a very low level and kept there. Maybe the sufferer puts on a bold face and insists that he doesn't need any more medicine. He will pick up and be all right in a little while, he says.

So he will, provided he acts like a man of sense and hastens the return of his old energy with that sound, reliable stimulant, Duffy's pure malt whisky. Experiments unnumbered have been made to find something to tone and brace bodies exhausted by influenza and kindred diseases. Whatever the future will bring forth, the fact is solidly established that a good medicinal whisky is the thing needed to quicken the languid circulation, thus preventing an excess of blood in some parts of the body and an under supply of it in others.

Duffy's pure malt is not made for barroom purposes, but solely as a medicine, to be used in debilitated states of the body. Rigid analysis has shown it to be free from trace of harmful substance.

Its effects are immediate and so wholly beneficial, that even the dreaded grip has lost most of its terrors where this peerless whisky is used.

SILVER TONGUED.

The following is a good specimen of those inimitable compliments for which Hibernians are famous, says Answers:

Patrick was in the drawing room on an errand, and caught sight of his mistress' photograph on the mantlepiece.

"Yes, Patrick," said the lady, in response to some exclamation of his, "that is my portrait; but it flatters me a little."

"And sure, mum, it would have to flatter you a good deal," said Patrick, "to look as you do in my eyes, mum."

HE IS A CITIZEN.

Judge Morrow, of the United States district court in San Francisco, decided a few days ago that a Chinese born in this country is a citizen of the United States, and as such may leave and return to this country at any time he pleases. The decision was made in the case of a Chinaman who arrived in San Francisco from China recently, and was debarred from landing by the collector, on the ground that he was a laborer, and as such barred out by the exclusion act. The Chinaman was born in San Francisco and had been to China on a visit. The United States district attorney argued that a Chinese could not be a citizen of this country, even though born here, under the fourteenth amendment to the constitution. Judge Morrow ruled that a Chinaman born here is a citizen of the United States within the meaning of the citizenship clause of the fourteenth amendment, even if he is not a citizen of any state. The case will be appealed to the United States supreme court.

Attacked the Officer.

James Collins, a chain gang sojourner whose ideas, while they suffered him to get upon the chain gang, were too elevated to allow him to think of manual labor, made an effort yesterday afternoon to get out of the rock breaking duties which devolve upon members of that organization, and in doing so he attempted to crush the skull of Officer O. L. Johnson with a sledge hammer. He had been objecting to the work, and would only take it up when Johnson planted him bodily upon the rock pile and ordered him to go to work.

He did so desultorily, but in a moment he grasped the hammer and raised it over the officer's head. He was caught by a fellow prisoner, who threw him down. He was then placed in the dungeon to repent.

AN EARLY OPENING.

Capt. Singer Thinks Navigation Will Begin in April.

"Of course," said Capt. W. H. Singer, of the Singer tug line, I do not know any more about it than anyone else, but I should like to guess that navigation will open between April 5 and 20. Of course these storms have put us back somewhat, but the ice in the lake is now a mere bagatelle to what it is usually. We have not heard that the Sault is especially blocked, and our end of the lake will be open about as soon as the Sault."

When asked about the agreement between the tug lines whose rivalry was so warm during the early part of last season, Capt. Singer said that the agreement was not for the season, but for an indefinite time, until it should be abrogated, in fact, so it will continue in effect this season.

A LUCKY CHANCE FOR THE SICK AND SUFFERING.

We are aware that most people who suffer from nervous, chronic or long-standing complaints do not have the same opportunity to be cured as do the residents of the great cities where the most eminent physicians and specialists reside. In other words, our people are debarred from seeking a cure by the great and skilled physicians owing to the cost of travel to the large city and the high fees charged by such physicians.

Here, therefore, is a chance for the sick of our community which should not be lost. Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York city, who has the largest practice in the world and who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, offers to give free consultation by mail to all sufferers whom their local physician have failed to cure. You have the privilege of consulting Dr. Greene by letter, describing your complaints, and he will, after carefully considering your condition, send you a letter fully explaining all your symptoms, telling you everything about your complaints so plainly that you will understand exactly what ails you. He will also give you his advice, based upon his vast experience and wonderful success in treating such cases, as to just what to do to get cured. All this will cost you nothing, and you can thus have consultation with the best known physician and acknowledged most successful specialist in the world, without leaving home and at no expense whatever. The doctor is the discoverer of that greatest of all known medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and he has discovered many other most valuable remedies. Write him now, for this is a chance to get cured which you may never have again.

The Stonecutters' Trouble.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I will ask you once more for space in your paper, but not to answer Corresponding Secretary G. H. Thompson, as I do not want to take notice of his malicious letter because he does not follow the stonecutters' trade. I don't consider him a practical stonecutter, who does not own a kit of tools of his own; at least he did not last summer. But to the public I will say that I am ready to prove every word that I said in my letter, before a reputable committee of arbitration; also I owe an explanation to the proprietors of the brewery and to the general contractors, as my attention has been called to the words "unfair competition" which may reflow on them. I had not the slightest idea of referring to them. What I mean by unfair competition is that a few stonecutters have asked the contractors to furnish the stone and let them do the cutting by the job, while we have to pay heavy rent and keep a costly plant, in order to be in business. Now I will not answer any other correspondence on that subject as I don't believe in discussing a matter like this in the papers. Thanking you for space in your paper, I remain, respectfully,

Joseph Bourgeault.

Gun Club Election.

The Central Gun club held its annual meeting yesterday for the annual election of officers and other business, and the following officers were elected: President, J. W. Nelson; vice president, J. H. Moork; secretary, R. Little; treasurer, Phil Pastoret; field captain, D. H. Day; lieutenant, C. Carlson. The club decided to buy three medals for the season of 1896 at a cost of about $50. It is expected that there will be a lively season for the club.

Everybody should know what a good medicine Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is; it has cured many thousands and will cure you.

CARRIED

County Voted in Favor of Bonds For Building Roads.

The Vote in the City Was Light and Against the Bonds.

Virginia, Eveleth, Tower and Soudan All Gave Large Majorities.

The bond question carried yesterday and the county road is to be built. The city voted against the issue, but the ranges carried it by a large majority. The vote was very light in the city, only a trifle over 2000 being cast. There was very little interest, and the registration had been very small. The result in the city was as follows:

	In favor.	Against.
First ward	83	194
Second ward	96	206
Third ward	66	140
Fourth ward	74	114
Fifth ward	149	154
Sixth ward	132	149
Seventh ward	118	129
Eighth ward	113	292
Total	831	1,309

Majority against, 478.

The reports from the ranges have been coming in today and indicate beyond question that the bonds carried. Figures received at the Iron Range office today were as follows:

	For.	Against.
Town of Morse	23	4
Ely	29	63
Tower	215	16
Soudan	194	76
Biwabik	232	41
Eveleth, estimated	300	100
Virginia	420	4
Total	1,413	298

O. D. Kinney telegraphed from Virginia that the bonds carried by 532 majority up there. His figures probably included the Franklin mine precincts and probably some others.

Hibbing had not been heard from up to noon.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT.

That charming woman and finished actress, Marie Wainwright, who in her admirable art and attractive appearance and manner has no superior on the boards of any lyrary stage, will be the attraction at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday and on Friday evening will present the brilliant comedy "An Unequal Match," her latest and greatest success. This fascinating play is from the pen of Tom Taylor, the famous author of "The Ticket of Leave man." Miss Wainwright's excellent company is headed by such favorite players as Barton Hill and Nathaniel Hartwig. On Saturday at the matinee she will play "Camille" and on Saturday evening "Daughters of Erin."

THE TEMPLE QUARTET.

The Temple quartet will give a concert at the First Methodist church on Saturday evening, it being one of the entertainments in the Star lecture course series. An exchange says:

"From the opening number to the last dying strain of the sweet melody, there was absolutely nothing to mar the perfect enjoyment of the large and enthusiastic audience. Every number, every response to the persistent encores, was artistic. The same high standard was maintained in every number on the program. In appearance, action and ability, the company was almost ideal."

PADEREWSKI.

The sale of seats for the engagement of Paderewski, the great pianist, is very large and has exceeded the expectations of the management. Yesterday a telegram was received from Ashland asking if 100 seats could be secured for an excursion party. The sale has been even, too, that is all parts of the house have sold equally well.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

Of all the plays that were seen in Boston last season, "In Old Kentucky," which ran three months at the Boston theater to overflowing houses, is unquestionably the greatest hit. It will be seen here Tuesday evening, March 17, with the original company and the complete scenic outfit. It broke a forty years' record for big business at the big Boston theater and it will probably break the record here.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins filling the stomach with gas and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and, being an everyday occurrence, is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

It is now well known among able physicians that the whole constitution is gradually undermined and weakened, the nerves and vital organs are seriously affected by any form of dyspepsia. This is plain, as every organ, every nerve in the body is nourished by the blood and the blood is replenished from the food digested. If the food is properly digested the blood is pure, the nerves steady, but if supplied from a sour, fermenting, decaying mass, the blood is vitiated, poisoned and the result is shown in sleeplessness, lack of energy, poor appetite, nervousness. Every trifle is magnified and the dyspeptic sees nothing but the dark side of everything.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

It is not claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia and stomach weakness in its various forms, but for this it has been shown to be unequalled. The eminent specialists, Reed and O'Leary, have recently stated that they considered Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets an unfailing specific for disorders of the digestive organs, and the remarkable cures made in cases of long standing dyspepsia proves that this remedy has extraordinary merit.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical company, Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary, by giving perfect digestion, strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION.

Chamber of Commerce Considering the Amendments.

A special meeting of the chamber of commerce was called for this afternoon to consider the Duluth-Superior Bridge company's bill, now pending in congress. It amends the former franchise in several particulars. It allows the building of only one steam railway track on the draw. Two tracks would require too heavy a draw, the company says. This is not disputed by any of the chamber members.

Then some changes are made in the dredging required to be done. It is to be such as the secretary of war may see fit to require. No objection is made to this provision.

At the last meeting of the chamber the only objection raised was to the extension of time allowed for completing the bridge. The amendments allow one year for beginning work and three years after that for completing it. The opponents of this argue that the time is too long.

Another feature which has been brought up but has not been insisted upon as yet, is that foot passengers ought to be allowed free passage. When the original bill was being discussed by the people here, and the Commercial and Duluth-Superior companies were rivals, the agreement was made that foot passengers should be allowed to cross free of charge. When the bill was passed, it was found that that clause had been dropped from the bill. Now some people are coming forward who say that if the company wants the consent of the citizens to the amendment, let it in turn agree to put in that clause relating to free passage for foot passengers.

The chamber at this meeting will also discuss the proposed new by laws and amendments to the articles of incorporation. These will be of such a nature as will permit the reorganization of the chamber at any time into a commercial club.

NAVAL VOLUNTEER FORCE.

Strong Resolutions Passed By J. B. Culver Post.

At a meeting of J. B. Culver Post, G. A. R., the followin report was read and the resolutions contained therein were unanimously adopted:

Commander and Comrades of J. B. Culver Post, No. 128, G. A. R.: Your committee to whom was referred house of representatives' bill 5555, the same being "a bill to authorize the secretary of the navy to organize national naval volunteers in all states bordering upon the great lakes," beg leave to report their approval of said bill, and recommend the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions as expressive of the opinion of this post relative to the provisions thereof:

Whereas, the comrades of J. B. Culver Post, No. 128, G. A. R., in common with their fellow citizens of Duluth, view with alarm the expenditure by Great Britain of vast sums of money within the last few years in the construction of sea-going torpedo boats and gunboats apparently especially adapted for service on the great lakes; and the further building and strengthening of the heavy fortifications which guard the Dominion of Canada, not only along said lakes, but elsewhere; and the further equipment of the Canadian militia with the most modern and approved arms; and the further official report to the United States treasury department that the so-called fishery protective vessels of the Dominion are designed to maneuver in the Welland canal and are capable of holding it until the arrival of a British fleet; and

Whereas, Duluth, in common with other cities on the great lakes, is utterly defenseless from attack by either land or water, and her business and commerce at the mercy of a foreign foe making an approach via the canal named; therefore

Resolved, that it is the imperative duty of the congress of the United States to take steps to secure from all danger interests so great and important as the cities and commerce of the great lakes.

That the comrades of the Grand Army, probably better than any other class of citizens, comprehend the horrors of war and believe in the time-honored maxim of making due preparation therefor in time of peace.

That they stand ready to do all in their power to defend, as they did in the dark days now happily long past and almost forgotten, the land and institutions they love so well.

That they respectfully urge upon the senators and representatives in congress to use all means in their power to secure a speedy report upon and the passage through congress of H. R. bill No. 5555, which has for its principal object the enrollment in the states bordering upon the great lakes of a naval volunteer force; and that in the judgment of this post the provisions of said bill would result, if the same became a law, in placing at the disposal of the government, in case of war with a foreign nation, a large body of drilled and disciplined sailors and gunners, ready for duty at the first call.

Resolved further, that the adjutant of this post be instructed to send copies of these resolutions to the Minnesota delegation in congress, and to the naval committee, and especially call the attention of Hon. C. A. Boutelle, chairman of the naval committee, and George W. Hulick, chairman of the sub-committee, to the same and urge their speedy action upon the bill hereinbefore named.

SAYS IT WAS INSOLVENT.

Answer to a Damage Suit By a Grain Firm.

The Chamber of Commerce Clearing House association, of Minneapolis, has served its answer upon W. O. Dodge & Co. in the action brought some time ago. The suit involves the system of clearing in vogue in the Minneapolis chamber of commerce and will be watched with great interest for that reason.

The plaintiffs bring the action for damages on the ground that the clearing house ruined their reputation and solvency by an action in connection with a deal in wheat. Plaintiffs purchased 245,000 bushels from various parties, and the clearing house, it is claimed, sold them out. In making the answer, defendants tell the story of the transaction as follows:

The plaintiff was a member of both the clearing house and the chamber, having complied with the requirements. While insisting that position plaintiffs purchased 245,000 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat for May, 1896, delivery, and reported the same to the defendant clearing house, the defendant accepting the purchase according to its rules and regulations. These rules specify that when purchases are made, they shall be reported to the clearing house, and after a balancing of accounts, payments are made either way. According to the rules when the defendant accepted the deals, it stood in the place of both the purchaser and the seller of the described wheat.

At the time the wheat was bought, and up to Dec. 23, 1895, the answer states that there were great changes in market values, and a great decline in prices, the market being unsteady and panicky. On the last mentioned date, therefore, the defendant, conformably with the rules of the clearing house, made a call upon the plaintiff for a margin of 3 cents per bushel. The plaintiffs were unable to comply, and at 11 o'clock the defendant sold our 80,000 bushels at 55½ cents, later 90,000 at 55⅝ and 35,000 at 55¾. These sales were duly reported to the plaintiff, and an accounting was then and there held. In which the plaintiffs were paid $543.75 as profit, being full and fair satisfaction.

The plaintiff had charged in the complaint that the sale was made for the express purpose of destroying the credit of plaintiffs, and for the purpose of crippling the business. This the defendants deny, and assert, on the contrary, that the company was a member of the Duluth board of trade, and that prior to the Minneapolis loss it defaulted at Duluth, and so imparted the rumor that it was a notorious fact that the firm was insolvent and unable to carry on its contracts.

POLITICS AT CLOQUET.

Excitement Ran High in Yesterday's Election.

If anyone imagines that municipal politics is any less exciting in a small town than in a city, he should visit Cloquet. It might be well to remark incidentally that The Herald reporter was there to answer to attending a prize fight, and not for the purpose of studying municipal politics.

In the town of Cloquet, which is across the river from the village, excitement ran high, especially over the office of justice of the peace. Two of the well known residents are David Smith and David Freeman, and they have always been good friends, in fact Smith has for the last six years purchased the supply of milk for his family from Freeman. In this campaign, however, they took opposite sides in the justiceship, and the feeling between them grew strained. Yesterday Smith was hustling, and as Freeman saw chances of his favorite growing more doubtful he became enraged against Smith. Finally all of his nature rebelled, and going home he sent notice to Smith that the Freeman cows would no longer be permitted to supply the Smith household with nice rich milk, but he must look elsewhere for his supply. Smith thought it a huge joke, and the whole town was laughing over it.

A COAL COMBINE.

One Which Will Affect Northwestern Trade.

Pittsburg, March 11.—A combination of coal operators who supply the markets reached by the great lakes was formed in the city last evening to secure some profit out of the millions of tons of coal which will be sent to the Northwest during the navigation season, which opens next month. The pool includes every lake shipper in the Pittsburg district, and an effort will be made to combine with the Ohio lake shippers and divide the total tonnage on the basis of last years tonnage from the two states.

A committee was appointed to meet the Ohio shippers at Cleveland within a few days, at which the Pittsburg operators will make the proposition to divide the lake business on the basis of last season's tonnage. The combination means considerable to Pittsburg, for if it is put through the operators will realize several million dollars more than they did last year.

CURLING

J. A. Dewey's Rink Defeated A. H. Smith in the Medal Contest.

MacLeod's Rink Had Another Scramble For the Buttons Yesterday.

Unique Contest Arranged Between Whist Players and Curlers.

The play for the D. R. Black medal continued last night, J. A. Dewey's rink defeating A. H. Smith's by a score of 20 to 5. This brings Dewey into the semi-finals, and tomorrow night he will play R. J. MacLeod to see who plays Hurdon for the medal. The final game will probably be played Saturday night.

MacLeod's rink had another go for the buttons last night, but they still have them, though W. B. Dunlop's rink gave them one of the hardest rubs they have had in a long while. MacLeod's rink got a lucky start with a 5-head, and the result of the game was 16 to 11 in favor of his rink.

Hugh Mitchell and J. A. Waugh have a great deal of respect for themselves as whist players. In justice to them it might be stated that the other members of the Whist club have also by reason of sundry defeats administered at various times by the above duo. As curlers, however, they admit that they are not at home, not having the faintest idea of the game.

With Harry Hurdon and Ron Smith, however, the situation is just opposite. As curlers they are just about the top of the heap, while as whist players almost any old thing could beat them.

These diverging talents have given rise to a unique contest which is going on today. This afternoon at Glen Avon rink these four men are curling, the whist players against the curlers. They intended to play sixteen ends, and the result was of course a foregone conclusion. This evening, however, the whist players will play whist against the curlers, and the result is equally certain. Sixteen boards will be played, and then the total scores at curling and whist will be added up, and the losing pair will have to put up supper for the four.

A few men talk through their hats, but all men talk of the $3.50 Gordon. It's the latest.

ONE WOMAN'S TRIAL.

Judge: The new woman was deathly sick. She had thrown herself in an easy chair near an open window, where she could catch the cold air. Her face was ashen pale, cold beads of prespiration stood out upon her brow, ever and anon a convulsive movement shook her frame.

As she reclined there in a state of utter collapse, with her dainty handkerchief pressed against her lips, even one of the opposition faction of the club she belonged to would have felt sorry for her.

"This is dreadful," gasped the new woman, "I always thought that to be seasick was the worst feeling one could experience, but this is worse. Ah, me! this is what it is to be born before one's time. My mother could have saved all this if she had brought me up properly; but she was hide-bound by tradition and no doubt did what she thought was for the best. However, if I should have a daughter she would be brought up in the new way, so that in time she would be able to hold her own with men. When I was a child a girl was kept in utter ignorance of the great world about her. My brothers were taught to smoke. Why wasn't I? * * * Oh, I feel I am going to die! Where's my smelling salts?"

The new woman had been smoking her first cigar.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

An incident that illustrates the character of Gen. Pike was related of him by Uncle John Callahan, the oldest pioneer of this country, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

When a youth he and young Burrows were hunting along the banks of Tanner's creek, near where the county bridge now spans that winding stream. The couple separated in the dense woods that then covered the locality, but agreed to keep within hailing distance of each other for fear of hostile Indians, who had been reported in that vicinity. Burrows shot a wild turkey, and as he ran to where the crippled fowl lay fluttering, carrying his empty gun in his hand, the terrifying war whoop of a party of Indians sounded in his ear, and five stalwart savages sprang from ambush to make him prisoner.

To escape seemed impossible to the frightened hunter, but suddenly an answering shout rang out on the air, and the noise of Pike tearing through the tangled underwood, to rescue his friend, startled the Indians. "Come on, then, now we've got them," he yelled, as if calling to a squad of soldiers, and dashed boldly toward the outnumbering foe. His appearance was unexpected, and the surprised savages, believing they had been trapped by a party of white men, quickly retreated before the intrepid youth, and fled in frantic haste.

An unerring bullet from the ready rifle checked forever the speed of one of the fugitive Indians, and, springing forward, he grasped the gun of the dead warrior, and calling to Burrows to follow, lead the way to the nearest blockhouse, where the alarm was given and the scattering settlement aroused to the threatened dangers of an Indian invasion. The strategy of Pike not only saved the life of his companion, but the Indians, knowing his discovery of their presence in the neighborhood would arouse all the settlers and start them in pursuit, departed down the river, and the whites in that vicinity were not disturbed by them again for a long period.

Notice For Sealed Bids.

Duluth, Minn., March 10, 1896.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned at his office, 104 Providence building, Duluth, Minn., on or before the 10th day of April, 1896, for the purchase of the leasehold interest in the Spalding hotel, Duluth, Minn., belonging to the estate of E. P. Emerson, insolvent. Said leasehold interest runs to the first day of May, 1899, and the rental reserved therefor is $12,000 a year from the 1st day of May, 1896.

The Spalding hotel is the principal hotel in the city of Duluth, and is doing a large and successful business. The gross receipts from the operation of said hotel during the year 1895 have been $131,000, and a large profit was realized over and above all operating expenses. In view of the general improvement in business and the rapid development at the head of Lake Superior, there is a probability of an increased business and profit during the next few years.

At the same time with the sale of said leasehold interest will be sold the good will, furniture and apparatus of all sorts and supplies, etc., on hand of said hotel and connected with the hotel business carried on therein, including the bar and billiard room furniture, supplies, etc. Each bid must name the gross sum for the purchase of the leasehold interest which shall cover the furniture, apparatus and supplies above mentioned, for cash. The leasehold and chattel property above mentioned is subject to a mortgage of $13,000, with accrued interest from December 9, 1895, which will be paid out of said purchase price. Possession of the property will be given on the first day of May, 1896, if a bid is made which shall be approved by the district court. Right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Each bid must contain a certified check to the order of W. B. Silvey, receiver, for 2 per cent. of the amount of said bid, to be returned if the bid be rejected.

Further information required will be furnished on application. W. B. Silvey, Receiver of the estate of E. P. Emerson, insolvent.

The findings of Register Taylor and Receiver Ryan in the hearing on the order of the general land office to C. P. Maginnis to show cause why he should not be disbarred were made public today. Receiver Ryan finds for Mr. Maginnis, and Register Taylor against him.

Receiver Ryan finds that Mr. Maginnis was employed to act as attorney in the case in question by C. W. Smith, whom John Bowers, the man who makes the charges, authorized to do so; that Smith was the only man Maginnis knew in the case; that he received his instructions from him, and that he acted in accordance with them. He finds that Mr. Maginnis paid the money back to Bowers' attorney. Mr. Maginnis, he says, "for several years has been an attorney in good standing before this office; has been receiver of this office; has occupied other high positions of trust, has held other important offices and has been esteemed by the public, and his acquaintances as a man of honesty, integrity, truth and veracity. He therefore finds that the charges have not been sustained."

THE REGISTER'S FINDINGS.

After summing up the charges and reviewing the evidence, the register says that there is no testimony showing that Maginnis had made inquiry tending to lead one to believe that he thought the money in question belonged to anyone else. On the contrary, the register believes that the language of the receipt given Bowers indicates that he knew it was his. The register finds that Mr. Maginnis was Bower's attorney; that he was paid by Bowers himself for his services and for his lands, and that the money was never turned over to the land office. Mr. Maginnis' explanation of this is inconsistent, he says. The register had earnestly tried to harmonize Mr. Maginnis' statements with the testimony and the records, but had failed, and the more he investigated the more was revealed tending to show his guilt.

He finds, also, that John L. Simmons, Hiram Chadwick and John Morrison have been witnesses for Maginnis frequently, and that it is reasonable to suppose that Maginnis knew they were professional witnesses. "They are now regarded by this office as having been Mr. Maginnis' professional witnesses," continues the register.

Concluding, the register says: "The fact that Mr. Maginnis used these witnesses so frequently, together with the fact that there is now on file in this office an affidavit by one John Rustgard accusing him of defrauding one Wads H. Segaard out of $228 in a similar case, and that judgment was obtained against him for said sum, convinces us that he does not confine himself to legitimate practice. A letter from C. W. Smith to Maginnis introduced in evidence indicates that he has repeatedly violated the rules governing attorneys practicing before this office.

"The records referred to herein prove Mr. Maginnis to be a man of bad character, and is in substantiation of the charge against him, which we find to be proved beyond a reasonable doubt; and believing it to be for the best interest of the government, we recommend that Mr. Maginnis be denied the right to act as attorney or agent for claimants of land before the office or agent for claimants of land before this department of the interior."

"SPIFF" STORES.

In certain stores in Boston a commission is paid to the shop girls whom they succeed in selling goods at a figure above the regular price, says the Boston Globe. "This commission," it says, "is known among the girls as 'spiff.' In these 'spiff' stores, which are so-called to distinguish them from 'honest' stores, the wages paid the help are much lower, but the places are always in great demand, because a good sales girl can make nearly twice as much in commissions as she would be paid in a store where there is no 'spiff.'

"These girls are among the brightest in the trade, and in time they acquire the greatest faculty in swindling innocent shoppers. They are good judges of human nature, and can tell to a cent just how much can be squeezed out of each customer. The silk counter is always in charge of the shrewdest girl, for only the expert can distinguish between the different grades, and the ordinary shopper can be charged a couple of dollars extra on a single sale without arousing the least suspicion. Most of the 'spiff,' however, is made from the disposal of 'dead stock.'"

ASTONISHED BLANCO.

How a Yankee Saw the Venezuela Dictator.

A gentleman who went to Venezuela some years ago to secure a contract from the government tells an interesting story of his experiences with Guzman Blanco, who was then the autocrat of that country, says the Chicago Record. For three or four months he was kept dangling around the Casa Amarilla (the yellow house), in which the president resides and finally told Guzman that he wanted a final answer. Guzman turned to him with some impatience and said:

"Come to my country house at Antimino at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning and we will close this matter up."

"I'll be on hand, your excellency," was the reply.

The next morning he was called at 4, galloped out to Antimino, and was at the dictator's residence before the clock in the parish struck 6. To his surprise he found twenty or thirty people waiting to be received, and some of them men of importance, while the president sat upon the porch sipping his coffee and reading the morning paper. It was considered a dreadful breach of etiquette to interrupt the great man when he was reading, and there was not a person in the entire company who dared do it. They simply stood around or sat by where he could see them and awaited his summons. But the Yankee marched boldly up to the porch and said: "Good morning, general."

Guzman Blanco looked up in surprise from his paper, but the Yankee, knowing his temper and peculiarities, did not await for him to speak.

"In my country, general," he said, "it is not the custom for people to get up so early, but it is also a point of honor to meet an engagement promptly, and you see I am here on time."

"Have you had your coffee?" asked Guzman.

"Yes, sir; at the hotel a few minutes ago."

"It must have been miserable stuff. You ought to taste mine. I use none but what I grow on my own plantation, and always carry it with me, no matter to what part of the world I go," and ringing the bell he ordered a cup of coffee and a roll for his caller.

But the latter did not propose to waste time and immediately said: "You did me the honor to say yesterday that you would close up that matter at our interview this morning, and I have come prepared to do so."

"I wish my people were as prompt as you. Our great fault as a nation is procrastination. If we were as energetic as your countrymen, Venezuela would be a richer and more productive nation," and with that they went into business.

For an hour the details of the concession were discussed, and, being agreed upon, the president dictated to his stenographer the terms of the contract. Then turning to his guest he said:

"My secretary will write this out and tomorrow we will sign it."

"I would prefer to have the document signed now," was the Yankee's reply. "You have just said that the fault of your people was procrastination, and I propose that we avoid it this morning."

The secretary looked up in amazement. He had seen men sent to the calaboose for less, and evidently expected that the dictator would call a policeman to take the Yankee in charge. Guzman was a little angry at first, but, seeing that his guest was not abashed, smiled and said:

"That is a new way of applying my philosophy to your own interest. We will wait until the document is written and sign it here."

Handing a cigar to the Yankee he lit one himself and sat down for a chat while the secretary was writing. In a moment or two the director general of police tapped on the door and said that he wanted to see the president concerning a matter that required his instant attention.

"You will have to wait until I am through with this Yankee," was the dictator's reply; "he is teaching me the way they do business in the United States."

DEBS TO WORKINGMEN.

The Chicago Inter Ocean wants to give Eugene V. Debs due credit. He could scarcely have given workingmen better advice than in a recent lecture, when he said: "I don't believe these problems can be solved by force. I want to see the time when the workingman will make better use of his leisure hours. Cultivate the home and fireside. Better buy books than beer. I want to be candid enough to say I tried both. (Laughter.) I want the workingman to mix some thought with his toil. Cultivate self-reliance, and do himself what he can to solve the labor problem. Capital is doing just the same thing as you would do if you were in its place. The workingman should have home libraries. Five dollars will buy a good many books these days, and 50 cents will make a fair start. Get a primer on economics and learn about wages, food, clothing and shelter. Keep up the study for a year and see if you have not done very much to better your condition. If you want to be right certain to have a great many friends, but sure not to need one, save $1 a week, or as much as you can. No man has so sure a situation as the man who has something in bank. He is the last man to be discouraged. Everybody is your friend then and ready to help you."

Kentucky Republican House Unseats a Democrat and Seats a Republican.

Democratic Senate Retaliates By Dismissing James and Walton, Republicans.

Louisville, March 11.—A special to the Post from Frankfort says: As soon as the house went into session this morning the clerk read Mr. Dunlap's refusal to further contest the seat of Representative Kauffman. There were several arguments in favor and against the house dropping the contest. The chair held that it was perfectly competent for Dunlap, before the case had been prosecuted to the end, to have abandoned the contest, but he had no such right after the case had been tried. He cited the case of Cullan vs. Riordan as a precedent. "I hold," said the speaker, "that the house has the power to take a vote on the Dunlap-Kauffman case, and so rule."

A vote was then ordered on the minority report on the case to the effect that Dunlap is, and Kauffman is not, entitled to the seat now held by Kauffman. Poor and Elrington, Populists, voted with the Democrats. The Republicans voted solidly to unseat and the minority report was adopted by the vote of 49 to 46. The announcement of the vote caused much excitement among the Democrats who had not expected such a result.

By a vote of 51 yeas the house then seated Dunlap, Republican. Immediately the senate followed by unseating Walton and James, Republicans. There was a great cry and a rush for the door of the house to prevent the entrance of the two unseated senators. It turned out that Senator James was already in the house and excitement was very high and shouts of "stand to them" were heard on both sides. Hot words followed and trouble seemed imminent. The cry was heard to throw the first senator over the bannister who attempted to enter the house. In a few minutes the excitement seemed to have died out, but trouble is momentarily expected. The Blackburn men declare they will put James out of the house.

Dunlap is prevented from entering the hall of the house to take his seat. He now stands on the outside entrance of the hall and trouble is expected momentarily on this account. Speaker Blanford recognizes Lieutenant Governor Worthington as president of the joint assembly and Dunlap cannot take his seat until the ballot is over. An immense crowd is waiting in the hall and outside in the state house yard and excitement, which a while ago was at a very high pitch, is dying down.

SENATE EXCITEMENT.

Senators James and Walton Are Unseated.

Frankfort, Ky., March 11.—As soon as the news of the action of the house reached the senate, Senator Goebel jumped up and moved the adoption of an amendment to rule 85. The motion was seconded by Bronston amid the wildest confusion. The chair refused to put the motion and kept up a continual and loud ragging of his gavel. The clerk read the amendment. The chair declared the proceedings were revolutionary and a scene of riot ensued. Senator Bronston waved his arms frantically and shouted to the clerk to call the roll.

Senator Jones, moved that the senate adjourn. Amid the wildest excitement the lieutenant governor put the motion and the Republicans voted aye in a body. The lieutenant governor declared the senate adjourned and together with the Republicans left the chamber in a body. The report of the committee on election was then read. The roll was called and Senators Walton and James were declared ineligible to seats in the senate by a vote of 21 to none. (Wild cheers from Democrats.) Senator Walton declared that the proceedings were revolutionary and that he would not submit. Senator Bronston denounced him, and swore that neither James nor Walton should get in the joint assembly to vote. Only the interference of friends prevented a personal encounter.

Many men are armed and the slightest outburst may precipitate a tragedy. Dr. James succeeded in leaving the senate chamber before its vote to unseat was taken and entered the house. Senator Walton was not so fortunate and he is refused admittance. On one side of the door leading into the house chamber, stands the sergeant-at-arms of the house, while on the other hand stands the sergeant-at-arms of the senate, Jack Chinn, Jim Williams and several others. The crowd in the corridors and below in the hallways is greatly excited and is hard to restrain. The Democratic leaders now claim that, as two senators have been unseated in the senate and the house has not yet seated Dunlap, they will elect a senator.

THE JOINT ASSEMBLY.

Frankfort, March 11.—When the joint assembly convened Speaker Blanford issued orders that none others than members or senators be allowed the privileges of the floor. At 12:05 o'clock the doorkeeper announced the senate of Kentucky. The speaker, before recognizing the senate, said with great heat that the doorkeeper of the house had full control of the door and no other one had. Mr. Bronston declared that the ruling was without precedent. He shouted: "I move that Senator Goebel be made presiding officer of the assembly."

A storm of noes arose during which Lieutenant Governor Worthington appeared and took his seat and rapped for order and succeeded in quieting things for a time.

Senator Sayler implored members never to do anything that would bring disgrace on the state of Kentucky. (Cheers). "I am afraid that we have already crossed the Rubicon," he said. "Let us go no further." (Cheers).

The calling of the roll was begun. The chief clerk in calling the names of the members of the senate omitted to call those of James and Walton, the two Republican senators. The clerk of the house omitted to call the name of Kauffmann Democrat. The roll call showed 100 members present, with two paired.

The ballot for senator was then begun The Republicans refused to vote at all with the object of breaking a quorum. The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 54; Carlisle, 10; Buckner, 14. The chair decided that there was no quorum and therefore no election. Upon motion, the assembly adjourned at once.

THE DAY IN CONGRESS.

Cuban Resolutions Are Placed on Senate Calendar.

Washington, March 11.—In the senate today, Mr. Hoar was recognized on his resolution postponing the entire Cuba question until April 6, and directing the committee on foreign relations to make inquiry in the meantime. At 2 o'clock Senator Hoar, without finishing his speech, asked that the resolution go over without prejudice. Mr. Platt and others desiring to speak, it was so ordered. Mr. Morgan objected, and under the rule the resolution went to the calendar from which it cannot be taken except by a vote of the senate. The consideration of unfinished business, the Dupont election case, was then resumed.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, March 11.—The house committee on agriculture, by a vote of 9 to 6 decided today to lay upon the table the anti-option (Hatch) bill. This practically kills the measure for this congress.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, March 11.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $202,382,26. gold reserve, $128,559,597.

A leopard belonging to Robinson's circus, in winter quarters near Cincinnati, escaped from its cage the other day. The keeper and others tried to get it back to its quarters by firing blank cartridge at it, but without avail. Finally John G. Robinson, son of the manager of the show, fired a round when within twenty-five feet of the animal. This so enraged the leopard that it leaped upon and almost killed him. Its claws tore his head and body badly, and it sunk its teeth in his scalp. The animal was finally beaten off and killed with a load of buckshot. It was valued at $2000. Mr. Robinson's condition was serious at last reports.

Much better behaved was a large African lion belonging to the Kinkaid Overland show, which is wintering near Perryville, Ohio. It escaped from its cage, vanished into a dense wood nearby, was lost for five days and then returned and quietly resumed its old quarters.

WRITTEN IN MILK.

Letter Received by a Knowing English Convict.

On a recent stormy night a number of gentlemen, whiling away an hour or two in a cafe, were entertained by James Morrison, who is on a tour of inspection in this country, says the St. Louis Democrat. He had but recently arrived from England, where for over twenty-five years he has been identified with the work of caring for convicts in one of the largest prisons in the British possessions. Speaking of some of the incidents of his life in that capacity, he alluded to a detail of the tricks, many and ingenious, which some of the convicts resort to from time to time in their efforts to outwit the guards and effect an escape.

"On one occasion," said the venerable guard, "I had charge of tier No. 12. It was filled to the limit with long-time prisoners, and at its farthest end several cells had been set apart for those serving life sentences. One of these prisoners, a rough-looking chap, but as keen as a razor, had given us a great deal of trouble, and when he was placed under my care I was especially admonished to keep a sharp eye upon him, as he had already caught two other keepers by his tricks, and had done much mischief before they had got the upper hand of him.

"For weeks he was as quiet as a mouse, even refusing the usual 'constitutional,' or half hour exercise in the corridor. I suppose he thought he had me off my guard one day after supper had been served—in the English prison we serve this meal at 4 o'clock in the evening—and while I was at another part of the tier, busy receiving some supplies, he began his first break on my good book.

"After I had finished receiving and receipting for the supplies and getting them into place, I took up my regular beat down the tiers again, and when I had finished locking the outer cell doors, securely padlocking them.

"I had peeped in through the little window of his cell door and found him sitting quietly on the edge of his little cot, reading a book that had that day been sent him as a present from his sister—this was Christmas eve—and, after ordering 'lights out,' I fastened his door and went on to the next. This, 'No. 10,' was occupied by a 'trusty.' As I started to close his door, he stopped to the opening in the grating, and asked to speak a few words with me.

"Those few words startled me. He had heard 'No. 9' sawing bars. Could he have such a sound through forty-eight inches of stone wall that divided the cells? No; he heard the sound that attracted his attention through the narrow slit of a window that served to light his cell. With an 'all right,' to let him know I understood, I slammed the great bolted door with a bang, the vibration of which must have been heard in 'No. 9's' cell, and passed on down to the end of the corridor, finishing locking up. Removing my shoes I climbed out on the guard gallery, and, after proceeding cautiously for a distance, was directly over the window of the cell occupied by 'No. 9.'

"Listening intently for a few moments I could hear the soft 'slish, slish, slish,' of the steel saw that, with keen teeth, was slowly but surely eating its way through the steel bars below; and, hurrying back, I sent the 'quiet alarm' to the outside guard; then, taking my keys, I went quickly to the other end of the tier and unlocked and threw open the cell door, at the same time turning the rays of my lantern full upon him.

"He was in bed according to orders, but as his clothing had not been removed the ruse was 'too thin.' I had assistance by this time in the person of the supervisor of my section, and, after we had placed 'No. 9' safely in another cell, we began an investigation which resulted in the discovery that three bars had been cut cleanly through. Then we found the finely tempered steel saws secreted in the mattress of his cot.

"Finally my eyes fell upon the book he had been reading, and upon examining it carefully, I found that the edge of the binding was loose. I tore the book apart and discovered the whole conspiracy.

"The saws had been pasted up in the binding of the book, and there I found a letter which I had passed in to him that day, and, as it had the 'O. K.' of the governor of the prison on its face, showing that it had been read and its contents officially examined, it did not arouse any suspicion in my mind; but, upon reading it now, I was struck dumb to find that it gave 'No. 9' the 'tip' as to where the saws were hid in the cover of the book, and other 'pointers' that never should have reached him.

"Well, the letter was turned over to the governor and he put the expert examiner on it, who discovered that the first lines were written in ink, while the alternate lines were written in milk, which would be invisible until rubbed over with dust, when they would show as plainly as the ink lines.

"The message in ink was, to all appearances, an innocent letter from a sister, whose hope and faith in man had not been altogether shattered by her brother's criminal career, and it readily passed the examiner. 'No. 9,' however, knew better, and, when the sister's communication accompanying the present of the book had been read, he simply rubbed his fingers over the walks or floor of his cell, and then carefully passing them over the face of the letter, had brought to light the message from 'pal' outside the prison. The letter read thus:

"'Home, Dec. 24.

"'Under Cover, Dec. 24.

"'Dear Brother William:

"'Hulloa, old Pard;

"'It's just a year since you saw me.

"'And you won't be jugged this Xmas day.

"'I send you a nice book;

"'Inside of its "skin" are the "cutters,"

"'And you will find a "marker," too,

"'But will give you the fish line."

"'I saw the governor about the pardon, but you must crack your way out,

"'And it is useless to hope. Your loving sister,

"'May.

"'Red Mike.'

"By the word 'skin' in the rogues' parlance is meant cover. 'Cutters' are saws; a 'marker' is a confederate who helps in or will cover up an escape, and a 'fish line' is a rope used by burglars in scaling a wall or getting over any other obstacle that has helped. The whole scheme was laid bare to the eyes of the governor and his examiners, and thereafter all mail for the convicts was subjected to more critical tests than this one had been, and we knew how it happened that we had previously lost one of the most desperate criminals ever within jail walls."

THE ICE AGE

For centuries the north was an ice-locked land, and conditions of life had changed. From the pole to the southern ice limit, not one mountain projected its head above the unbroken snow; even Mount Washington was deep down under the surface, says Lippincotts.

Manhattan island lay buried at least 1500 feet under the ice, a wild, weird stillness rested over this favored spot, interrupted only by the crashing of the ice as pieces broke from the end of the glacier beyond the Narrows and, as icebergs, floated out to sea.

Ages had now passed since man first appeared in his primeval home. Some progress the mice had made, but man was still a rude and untutored savage; his crude weapons were only pieces of roughly chipped stone; but it was man with progressive and endless mind. And as the years passed the rude palaeolithic ancestor gave place to men with a higher degree of primitive art; flint-tipped arrows and axes of stone now gave man the mastery over every animal; food was no longer a matter of chance, but a matter of skill. Still at war with the elements, wild beasts, and savage neighbors, it was a fearful struggle; the world at the best was then no Garden of Eden.

For 20,000 years or more the ice, with its various advances and retreats, covered the north. Then began its final departure; but it was probably as slow in going as it was in coming. The land began gradually to sink, the winters became wilder, and the summers longer.

WILSON AND THE EXPERT.

A good gold dust story is told on George Wilson, who owned the famous Paris mine in Park county, Montana, says the Butte Mountain. Wilson was visited by some Englishmen one day, among whom was an expert of the English pattern—one who knew all about mines and a great deal about everything else, in his own opinion. They wanted to see some of Wilson's gold, and he panned out some very fine colors for their edification.

"But that isn't gold," pronounced the youthful expert, after a critical examination. "Me deah fellah, I am a graduate of the English School of Mines, and I know gold when I see it, you know. That is iron."

Wilson didn't say much. He just leaned over and took the alleged expert confidingly by the shoulder. "Mebbe it isn't," he said, "but don't go and give it away to those fellows down at the Denver mint, for I have been selling this stuff to them for gold all along."

THE LORD MAYOR.

By the average Briton the lord mayor of London is regarded as a sort of superior police magistrate, whose chief duty is to feed well and to provide a huge show once a year, says London Answers. As a matter of fact, the powers and privileges of the lord mayor are vastly more extensive than are generally supposed.

It is not generally known that within the boundaries of the city he is absolutely supreme, and takes precedence even of her majesty.

Without his permission no troops are ever allowed to march through the city.

While these powers are intended to add dignity to his office, some of his duties and privileges have a distinctly comical flavor.

For instance, at a coronation ceremony the lord mayor is always present, not as lord mayor, but in his official capacity of chief butler to the sovereign.

Upon the death of any of the royal family, directions are sent to the lord mayor to toll the bell of St. Paul's. Of course, the ringing is always deputed to another; but still, in the very unlikely event of no ringer being found, the lord mayor is bound to perform the duty himself.

One absolutely unique, if not particularly usewul, privilege he possesses. By means of a password given him by the queen he is able to pass through the gates of the tower of London at any hour of the day or night, a permission which is granted to no other citizen outside those officially connected with the tower.

STAGE SALARIES.

Gothamite: Sarah Bernhardt's salary is $1500 a week. Yvette Guilbert receives, under her present contract, $1000 a week and Calve earns $1200 for each of her performances. Olga Nethersole earns $250 a week. What with his salary and percentage of the receipts, John Drew makes in good times $500 a week. A competent leading man or woman, like Henry Miller or Herbert Kelcey, Viola Allen or Isabel Irving, can be had for $200 a week. The only player that has ever received, even in this prodigal country, a salary equal to that of Bernhardt was Mme. Modjeska. Edwin Booth, who knew nothing about the value of money, once engaged the Polish actress at a salary of $1500 a week.

Mr. Grau's contract with Guilbert lasts only two weeks, after which she returns to the cheap prices of Paris. Calve's contract lasts five months, but during that time she sings only twice or three times a week, after which she returns to the moderate salaries of Europe. Melba receives $1500 a night in this country, but in Paris she is content with $200 a performance. But Sarah Bernhardt's contract continues through summer and winter, and every Saturday night she pockets $1500. Taking one thing with another, the actress is better off than singers. Averaging the entire income of each performance we should say that Calve earns $50,000 a year, Guilbert about $35,000, while Bernhardt is sure of $7000 annually for five years.

BEANS AND VAGRANCY.

Boston Globe: A School street lawyer tells the following story as characteristic of the late Judge McCafferty:

Among the cases before him one morning was one in which a rather seedy-looking fellow was billed for vagrancy. The officer who made the arrest and who was the principal witness was one of those officials who never speak a good word for a prisoner. He testified in substance that he had seen the man loafing around for several days, and as far as he knew had no visible means of support.

"Was the man searched when arrested?" asked the court, nodding his head in the direction of the man in the dock.

"I searched him, your honor," replied the officer promptly.

"Did you find anything about his person?"

The officer looked at the judge somewhat confusedly and then, after a few moments of though, replied rather lightly:

"Yes, your honor; 10 cents."

"Can you buy a plate of beans for 10 cents?"

The officer thinking his honor was about to crack a joke, laughingly responded:

"Why, yes, of course."

"Then, sir," and the judge spoke severely, "understand from me that a man who has money enough to buy a plate of beans is not a vagrant. Understand further, sir, that as long as I am a justice of this court I never again want to see you bring a man before me on a charge of vagrancy who has 10 cents in his pocket. Mr. Clerk, discharge the prisoner."

City Officials Viewed the Pumping Station Sites This Morning.

Sentiment Seems to Be in Favor of Continuing at Lakewood.

Alderman Richardson Still Inclines Toward Minnesota Point.

The city ran itself for a few hours this morning while the mayor, the common council, the board of public works, the city engineer and Health Officer Routh were loaded into a special car on the Duluth & Iron Range railway and hauled out to inspect the work at the Lakewood pumping station and to view the Lakewood and Brighton sites with an eye to their respective advantages. The party left at 9 o'clock and went directly to Lakewood, where a stop of nearly an hour was made. The Brighton site was then visited.

All the aldermen were along but Olafson and Ole, and all present seemed to be in favor of the present site, many of them expressing themselves in favor of going farther up the shore should any change be made. Alderman Richardson took occasion to sound the praises of Minnesota Point as the place where a supply of pure water can be secured, in which he was somewhat reservedly seconded by Alderman Sang.

The general opinion among the members of the party seemed to be against a removal to the Brighton site, or to any location this side of Lakewood. Health Officer Routh said he considered the present site the best that can be secured this side of Knife island, and the majority of the board of public works is the same. Nor do any of the members of the council seem to embrace the idea of the Brighton site with any great eagerness. So far, the Brighton idea seems to be decidedly short on supporters.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that an expert should be secured to inspect the works and plans whether the pumping station be removed from Lakewood or not. Dr. Floyd Davis put up the bars of his microbe pasture and went with the party. The special train returned to the city just before noon.

Alderman Richardson has, perhaps, not read the report of E. H. Keating, made March 31, 1892, in his capacity of city engineer, on this subject. Mr. Keating, who, by the way, is considered one of the best engineers in the country, and who was predisposed in favor of the plan of drawing the water supply for the city from the sub-soil water of Minnesota Point, reported that the difficulty would be that the filtering material is apt to silt up and become clogged, rendering necessary enormous extensions or a resort to some other method of increasing the supply, and Mr. Keating alludes in his report to the unfortunate experience of some cities that have adopted this scheme, they having had to admit contaminated water directly into their filter basins from the nearest available source.

The problem that would be presented, after the sand of the Point had become thoroughly clogged would be to either move the Point or the well, to do either of which might puzzle engineers.

Was Ready to Go.

Archie Ellis, who has been confined in the county jail pending a hearing on the charge of incorrigibility, was taken before Judge Edson in the municipal court this morning. On the way from the jail, the officer inquired of Archie whether he would rather go to the reform school or stay in jail. Archie had an easy time in jail, but there would be a chance to learn a trade at the reform school, and so he was undecided.

"Well, would you rather go home or to the reform school," was asked him.

He wanted to know how long he would be kept at the reform school. He was told seven years, at his age.

"And dey teach me a trade and I don't get no sluggin' every night—is dat so," inquired Archie.

He was told that would be the case.

"Betcher life I'm for de reform school," said Archie, and his wish will probably be gratified. The hearing was set for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Holmes was to be seen in the city attorney's office today, holding down Ellsworth Benham's chair, digging up ammunition with which to annihilate the foe in some of the many suits in which the city is now engaged. BOAT CLUB MATTERS.

Executive Committee to Be Called Together.

George Gibson, secretary of the Minnesota and Winnipeg Rowing association, is today issuing letters to the members of the executive committee asking what is the most convenient date for a meeting of the committee at Duluth. The date suggested is about April 7 or 8, but if this is not convenient to the members of the committee, it will be changed. The committee will act upon the date of the annual regatta and other matters.

The members of the committee are as follows: George Galt, P. A. McDonald, Winnipeg; T. L. Wann, E. A. Jaggard, of the Minnesotas; George Drewry, Mr. Suarr, Rat Portage; F. H. White, W. C. Sargent and George Gibson, Duluth. The two latter are president and secretary ex-officio of the committee.

The Minneapolis Journal of a recent date contains a long howl because a few members of the defunct Lurline club have organized a four-oared crew, containing among its members De Brisay, the oarsman against whom charges of professionalism have been made and have stirred up the association for two years in succession. The Journal says that if De Brisay rows with the Lurlines, the Minnesotas will not row against them.

The Duluth men are not at all alarmed or stirred up over the matter. De Brisay was formally requested by the association last year not to row in the association any more. The members figured that a rupture of the association was of more consequence than any one oarsman, and that the simplest way out of it was to request De Brisay not to bob up any more as a disturbing factor.

De Brisay is now working in the Twin Cities, but the Duluth men have no idea that he will attempt to row in the regatta this year or that any club or crew will put him forth as one of its members. Therefore the Journal's howl seems uncalled for. Of course if De Brisay attempted to row the attempt would be promptly squelched, but there seems to be no likelihood of it.

Hackett, De Brisay's associate in the charge of professionalism, is no longer half way, but is an out and out professional, and it is said by men who profess to be judges, that he will be a prominent figure in future professional regattas.

Dr. Van Etten Taken Into Custody Last Evening.

Dr. E. W. Van Etten startled pedestrians in front of the Wieland block by suddenly breaking out into incoherent remarks which he uttered in a loud tone and accompanied with wild gestures. A telephone message was sent to the central station, to which Detective Joe Ryan responded, and took Van Etten in charge.

At the station, Dr. Van Etten gave his name and his occupation as that of physician. He said he had a wife and children in this city, but would not say where. He claimed to have come here from Massachusets recently. He became wild again on being locked up, and addressed Lieutenant McLean as Mr. Tuttle and tried to convince the officer that they had been acquainted in Olympia, Wash., where the doctor said he had a law office over Mr. Tuttle's shoe store. Dr. Van Etten is about 45 years old and apparently well educated.

Mr. Van Etten was taken to the county jail this morning and placed in charge of the probate court. He will have an examination tomorrow, but there is little doubt of his insanity. It is known that his mother lives in Detroit, and he will probably be sent there. He studied medicine, but has been in the shoe business in Paynesville, Ohio, for some time.

Derailed Nine Cars.

About 4 o'clock this morning a serious freight accident occured on the Eastern Minnesota at Herrick, fifty miles from here. Nine freight cars left the track and piled at the sides in confusion. The cause was supposed to be a broken wheel. Fortunately no one was hurt and the cars are not badly damaged. The morning passenger train on the Eastern Minnesota was four hours and twenty minutes late because of the accident, and the trains are using the St. Paul & Duluth tracks to Hinckley because of the accident. The tracks were cleared late this afternoon.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DR. FORIN'S CASE.

The Former West Duluth Health Officer's Story.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your issue of last evening you publish the city's answer to my suit, which places me in a very unenviable position. The claim in the answer is that I was removed from the position of health officer in West Duluth for gross negligence, the facts of the case being that I was appointed in April, 1890, for three years, according to the state law which governs appointments. In the spring of 1892 another was appointed to the office. No charge of negligence was ever preferred to my knowledge. One thing is certain: I was never given a chance to defend myself against the charges; if my conduct was such as demanded a change, it would have been easy to have proved a charge of negligence, but the council thought it easier to ignore any just and proper way of removal, but by a resolution, thought they had removed me. I claim that I was never properly removed, and in the spring of 1893 was again appointed health officer by a council partly composed of the same council of 1892, which would hardly have happened had I been so negligent and careless an officer during my former term of office. Further, in the spring of 1893, when I was again elected to the position, the village attorney, H. H. Phelps, stated that I succeeded myself in office, thereby recognizing the fact that I had never been removed. Yours truly,

Alexander Forin, M.D.

Duluth, March 11.

The People's Party.

A meeting of the People's Party league will be held at Kennedy's hall, at Superior street and Twenty-third avenue west, tomorrow night. The organization of ward leagues will be the principal business of the meeting. It is expected to have the ward organizations completed in time for the fall campaign. J. W. Nichols, H. A. Thomas and others will probably speak.

CLAIMS THEY ARE EXEMPT.

The St. Paul & Duluth railroad has filed an answer to the application of the state for judgment for taxes due Jan. 1, 1896, claiming that the lands in question are exempt because the road has paid its gross earnings tax of 3 per cent.

A. A. Warfield, assignee for Frederick Mebe, has filed a schedule of assets and liabilities, showing liabilities of $5334.42 and stock valued at $5202.08, at ten-seventeenth of the selling price. He asks for an order allowing him to sell the stock in gross.

POLICE

Special Guards Keep the Fiery Kentucky Lawmakers Quiet.

Mayor Julian, of Frankfort, Asked to Remove the Expelled Senators.

Exciting Scenes During the Day in Both Legislature Branches.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12.—As soon as the Democratic leaders found that the two members of the senate, James and Walton, had secured admission to the house chamber, they raised a protest. Mayor Julian, who was on hand with extra policemen, was found and asked to see that the men were removed peaceably from the floor of the house before the joint assembly convened, in order that all trouble might be prevented. The mayor refused to do so, and said it was within the power of the house, if it chose to do so, to eject the two men. Senator Bronson argued for some time with the mayor, but without effect.

The situation is very critical, because the Democrats declare that if any attempt is made by the two ex-members to vote, it will surely precipitate trouble. The Republican leaders assert that both James and Walton have a right to the floor of the house, and some of them are not slow to say that they will vote in joint assembly for United States senator. Adjt. Gen. Collier said that the only difference between the unseating of Kauffmann in the house and the declaring vacant of the seats of James and Walton in the senate, was that Kauffman was legally unseated and James and Walton were not. It is expected that the adjutant general will take a hand in case of trouble, if it breaks out.

The corridors are filled with an even more desperate set of men today than were present yesterday, and if trouble does break out the consequences cannot but be terrible. The men in the corridors are guarding the door of the house chamber, however. The outsiders look with longing eyes through the glass doors. Walton and James are sitting side by side in the left hand corner of the chamber, where it would be exceedingly hard to get at them in case of an attempt at expulsion.

Special police just at noon ordered all persons in the upper corridor to go below, and a dense mass of men are now gathered in the lower corridors. Among those in the senate cloak room are Chinn, Lillard, Williams, Thompson, Leach, Blackburn and a number of special policemen. No attempt has been made by force to clear the senate cloak room of those now in it.

When the senate filed to the house chamber to ballot for United States senator, Mr. Dunlap had not arrived upon the floor or qualified. When this fact became known, it served to cool to a degree, the excitement. It was evident that the endeavor of the Republicans to elect a senator today would fail, unless, of course, the Populist vote of Poor had been received. Half a dozen ladies were in the right hand lobby of the house chamber in spite of the exciting times of yesterday. They included Miss Laura Clay, Mrs. J. K. Hendy and mother of Versailles.

Senator Bronston asked that the journal of each house be read. An objection was made to the reading, and the chair sustained the objection and said that he had understood that only the journal of the joint assembly was to be read. Bronston made the point that the joint assembly must include the journals of each house. He again made the same argument as on yesterday, that there was no separate journal kept of the joint assembly, and that it was, therefore, necessary to have separate journals read in accordance with the law.

Mr. Landes said that the joint assembly had no jurisdiction to change or correct anything that occurred in either house on yesterday, and that Bronston had no right to make a request to have anything read save the joint assembly. He asked the chair to declare the gentleman out of order.

Mr. Blanford said that the joint assembly had no right to approve or correct any part of the journal of the house or senate of yesterday, and therefore neither should be read.

Mr. Bronston said: "The time has come when we must understand each other. The journals of the house and senate, of yesterday, are but a part of the joint assembly," he argued at length. The chair decided that the joint assembly was a separate assembly, distinct from each house. After more wrangling, Sayler, Democrat, moved that the reading of the journal of the joint assembly be dispensed with. Agreed to.

Before the call of the roll was begun, Senator Bronston stated that he understood that there was stationed in the corridors a platoon of police, he supposed for the purpose of preserving peace and order. He continued, "I ask why certain persons now on the floor of this house are here. I ask that first as a request and second make a motion that every person be excluded from the floor save members of the joint assembly, officers and the press."

Mr. Barnett made the point that the motion was out of order. The chair said that he thought the motion was out of order, but he would put it to the assembly anyway. The Republicans refused to vote, with the intention of breaking a quorum. Ellrington voted with the Democrats for the motion, as did Poor. The chair announced that no quorum had voted and the motion was lost. The presiding officer announced that he was still of the opinion that seventy members constituted a quorum and would so rule, and that in all ballots for senator seventy members must be voting to insure election.

Senator Bronston asked that the sergeant-at-arms of the senate be allowed to exclude those not entitled to seats in the assembly. (Cries of "sit down.") This angered the speaker, and he shouted that "he had asked for peace and begged for peace."

The chair ordered the call of the roll. The roll call showed 139 members present. There were only two pairs. The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 51; Carlisle, 12; Buckner, 1. Populist Poor refused to vote and the chair declared no election.

Upon motion the assembly adjourned until tomorrow. The Democrats are much pleased with the ruling of Lieutenant Governor Worthington in today's joint assembly, and say if seventy votes are required for a quorum as stated by him, that there will be no election this session. Republican leaders still declare that a majority of those present is a quorum. Both sides seem delighted that there was no trouble of any kind.

GUARDED BY POLICE.

Extra Precautions to Preserve the Peace.

Louisville, March 12.—A special to the Post from Frankfort says: "The capitol is under constabulary rule this morning. Mayor Julian ordered about twenty extra policemen to remain on duty in the rotunda of the capitol. They are in command of Chief Tobin, with instructions to keep the rotunda clear. This course was decided by the mayor after consultation with the governor, who said to the mayor that if Frankfort was unable to afford police protection to members, he intended to do so, if it took every state guard in Kentucky.

At 10:30 o'clock everything is quiet and there are no indications of a clash. Shortly after the house opened, Representative Kauffmann walked down the aisle and began to gather up his papers about his desk. Mr. Dunlap was not present when work was begun. Senators James and Walton were in the house chamber ready to be on hand when the joint session begins.

Representative Speed, Republican, sent up a resolution providing that whereas the authorities of Frankfort and Franklin counties have failed to suppress lawlessness, and mob violence, has attempted to obstruct legislation, therefore be it,

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this body that the capitol should be moved to a place where order and protection will be guaranteed." The speaker ruled the resolution out of order.

VENEZUELAN MATTERS.

No Settlement Heard of in Washington Yet.

Washington, March 12.—It can be stated positively, notwithstanding the publications to the contrary, that no settlement has been reached on the Venezuelan boundary question as yet, but, according to the best authority, matters are progressing in such fashion as to warrant the belief that there will be a satisfactory outcome. It is admitted that at present it cannot be told whether the ultimate settlement of this question will be effected as the result of direct negotiations between Great Britain and Venezuela, initiated through the medium of some mutually friendly power, or as the conclusion of the work of our own Venezuelan boundary commission. But in ore way or another a peaceful and honorable settlement of the dispute is believed to be entirely probable in the end, though this end may be still far remote.

If negotiations directly between Venezuela and Great Britain have been renewed at Caracas, the fact is not known to the officials here, who should surely be advised for their own guidance, and as the Venezuelan commission is proceeding diligently to the discharge of its duty of weighing all of the evidence obtainable respecting the actual location of the boundary line, and in this has been assured of the co-operation (informally, it is true as to Great Britain, but none the less effectually), of both parties to the dispute, the public expectation appears to turn in that direction.

Owing to the limited number of advance copies of the British blue book containing the British case which have been received so far, the commission has been obliged to struggle along with one single copy, which is, of course, inadequate for the simultaneous study of all of the members, but it is expected that within a day or two of the mails will bring a sufficient supply of the documents from London to facilitate the progress of the work. Meanwhile, so far as the document has been examined, it can be stated that it is not regarded as bearing out the promise of invulnerability claimed for it in London. In fact it is in many points regarded as open to impeachment as to actual historical events recited.

DUESTROW SENTENCED.

St. Louis Millionaire Murderer to Hang April 22.

Union, Mo., March 12.—Dr. Arthur Deustrow, the so-called millionaire murderer of St. Louis, who was convicted in the circuit court here a short time ago of killing his wife and baby in St. Louis, was brought before Judge Hirzel today and sentenced to be hanged April 22. Duestrow will be sent back to the St. Louis jail for safe keeping.

SUPERIOR DEPUTIES SAFE.

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—A special to the Dispatch from Madison, Wis., says: The requisition asked for by Governor Clough, to take the deputy sheriffs of Superior, who witnessed the Carlton prize fight, into Minnesota for trial will not be granted. No word has been given out, but this is the general understanding.

ELECTRICAL CONFERENCE.

New York, March 12.—The directors of the General Electric and Westinghouse companies have been in session since 11 o'clock this morning, considering working arrangements between the two companies. The meeting is still on, and it is understood that an agreement will be formulated providing for the regulating of prices, and the division of territory.

WRECK GONE TO PIECES.

New York, March 12.—The schooner Kate Scranton, owned and captained by Charles Bates, of Salt Habor, which went ashore about a mile east of the Eaton neck life saving station, Long Island, yesterday afternoon, went to pieces during the night. Two of the crew were drowned, Mate Oliver Christerman, a Norwegian, and George Upther, aged 50, a Colorado red man.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Liverpool, March 12.—John and James Maguire, described as Americans, were arrested here upon the arrival from Ireland today, charged with murder and robbery, committed at Rillick, County Tyrone.

NO DEGREES FOR WOMEN.

London, March 12.—The senate of Cambridge university, by a vote of 186 to 171, has rejected the proposition to appoint a committee to consider the question of conferring degrees on women.

CUBA

Senate Devotes Much Time to Discussion of Cuban Resolutions.

Senator Hill Spoke Against the Conference Report Because of Ambiguity.

Senator Sherman Closes the Debate---Dupont Case Taken Up.

Washington, March 12.—There is no abatement of public interest in the Cuban debate in the senate, as is evidenced by the large crowds which continue to fill the galleries to their full capacity. A number of ladies of the diplomatic corps were in the diplomatic galleries, and some of them occupying front seats were supplied with opera glasses, with which they surveyed the senators. Mr. Sherman gave notice that he would endeavor to secure a vote on the Cuban report at the earliest possible moment. After an hour was consumed in clearing away routine matters, Mr. Hill was recognized.

He was given marked attention and in opening said he would vote against the conference report, and would confine his remarks mainly to an explanation of his reasons therefor. He pointed out that this being a conference report the resolutions could not be amended. He would therefore vote against the report in order that at a subsequent time amendments might be made. The senator particularly objected to the third clause of the resolutions, stating that the United States has not interveved in the struggles between any European government and their colonies, but that owing to the proximity of Cuba, the United States should be prepared to intervene.

This he declared to be ambiguous and unmeaning. We had intervened in such controversies. We had intervened and recognized the countries which had been colonies of Spain. What the resolutions sought to convey was a threat to intervene. To this extent the resolution was unnecessary. It is subject to doubtful construction and a mischief breeder. It was liable to compromise us. The phrase "The United States should be prepared to protect the legitimate interests of our citizens by intervention," sounded like a threat, or it was buncombe.

"If this resolution means that we should increase our army, let us say so frankly and frame a bill for that purpose," said Mr. Hill. "If it means we should increase our navy, let us state it frankly and fearlessly and frame a bill to that end. Let us not indulge in idle boasts and threats and doubtful phrases as to our being 'prepared to protect legitimate interests by intervention.'"

At 2 o'clock there was a contest for preference between the Cuban resolutions and the Dupont case, which was finally settled by laying aside the Dupont case.

Mr. Sherman discussed at length the character of the resolutions and the conditions existing in Cuba. It was not best to send a joint resolution to the president, as it would compel his action in ten days and this was not judicious. He had confidence in the president. There were political differences between them, but, he said, "no one doubts his fidelity to the flag of the country." Mr. Sherman referred to Gen. Weyler as a butcher, and said the conditions in Cuba were flagrant. "If war does not exist in Cuba," he asked, "where outside of hell does it exist?"

Speaking of the demand for facts, he said Senator Lodge had outlined from Secretary Olney ample facts to justify the resolutions, but for obvious reasons these could not be made public.

At the conclusion of Sherman's speech the Dupont case was taken up and Mr. Pritchard addressed the senate in favor of seating Mr. Dupont.

GOULDS GO FREE.

Will Not Have to Pay New York Taxes.

New York, March 12.—The Goulds will not be compelled to pay the taxes on $10,500,000 which were assessed in this city for the year 1895. The suits had been filed against the estate of Jay Gould and his sons and daughters to enforce the finding of the commissioners of taxes. The defendants' pleaded non-residence.

When the case against George J. Gould came up for hearing before Judge Pryor, in the special term of the supreme court today, the corporation counsel's representative announced that it had been determined to abandon the suits, on the ground that the defendants' could establish the plea of not guilty. Judge Pryor vacated the assessment.

W. J. CAMPBELL'S SUCCESSOR.

Chicago, March 12.—Ex-Governor Fifer was unanimously elected national committeeman from Illinois by the Republican state central committee today, in place of W. J. Campbell, deceased.

The nomination of Dr. T. N Jamieson, of Chicago, was generally looked upon as being sure, but so much opposition developed among the country members that ex-Governor Joseph Fifer was finally agreed upon as a compromise candidate. Dr. Jamieson placed him in nomination, and he was declared unanimously elected amid much enthusiasm.

CARRIAGE FIRM RESUMES.

New York, March 12.—The old carriage firm of J. B. Brewster & Co., which failed last October, has been reorganized under the title of J. B. Brewster & Co. James B. Brewster is the president, and it starts with a capital of $50,000.

ALASKA TERRITORY.

Washington, March 12.—The house committee on territories today decided to recommend the passage of a bill creating a territorial form of government for Alaska and giving the territory a delegate in congress.

CLOTHING FIRM FAILS.

Columbus, Ohio, March 12.—The Union Clothing company made an assignment today to James M. Butler, attorney. Assets and liabilities not yet stated, but the assets are large, the store being one of the largest clothing houses in the city.

HUNTINGTON'S TALK.

Tells the House Railroad Committee Considerable.

Washington, March 12.—The house committe on Pacific roads today listened to a statement by C. P. Huntington similar to that made before the senate committee, in advocacy of a plan of settlement of the Pacific railway indebtedness. In concluding his address, Mr. Huntington remarked that no man was so anxious as he to see the roads pay 100 cents on the dollor; that it was the last great work of his life. He was doing only small things, and he hoped to live to see all his affairs on a solid basis.

A rambling discussion, participated in by Mr. Huntington and members of the committee, consumed half an hour. One of the questions asked by Chairman Powers was whether under the company's plan the Southern Pacific would be able to guarantee the payments.

"The Southern Pacific is a solid old company," Mr. Huntington replied, "and while I would not like to do anything to make it pay much money, I would be willing that it should guarantee these payments, because I am sure it would not be called on to pay. I am only one of several, but I have been running this thing thirty years and what I say generally goes. I am willing to promise that the Southern Pacific will guarantee these payments."

When Mr. Powers inquired if the charter of the Southern Pacific, granted by the Kentucky legislature, was broad enough to permit this, Mr. Huntington answered: "Oh, that is broad enough to do anything," and the committeemen laughed. "That is a broad charter and a clean charter," he said. "And has about done all we wanted it to."

Then Mr. Harrison, a Democrat, of Alabama, inquired if the income from the road during the past ten years, would not warrant a higher rate of interest than 2 per cent.

"No, there has got to be a little margin," was the reply.

SMUGGLING CHINESE.

Government Officers Make a Move to Stop it.

New York, March 12.—After considerable work in and around New York by government officers, the first public move to what will tend to break up an alleged big scheme to smuggle Chinese into this country was made when Thomas Burns was arrested and locked up in the Essex county jail on a charge of perjury. He is accused of swearing falsely to a passport which enabled a Chinaman, whose is name is for the present withheld by the authorities, to cross the Canadian border into Vermont on the alleged grounds that the Chinaman was engaged in business in Newark.

Burns was arraigned before United States Commissioner Whitehead and after pleading not guilty was sent to jail in default of $500 bail, pending a hearing. According to statements made last night it is the belief of government officials that a gang of Chinese, with shrewd allies, is doing a big business in bogus passports. Their headquarters are in New York.

IRON TRADE QUIET.

Structural Iron Alone Shows Signs of Promise.

Cleveland, March 12.—The Iron Trade Review this week will say: Quietness has not been more marked since the beginning of the year than has prevailed in all iron and steel markets the past week. The same weakness noted in our last report prevails in pig iron. Finished materials show no new developments as to prices or demand. Plates, shapes and bars show more inclination to weaken than other lines. In the case of the last two, wage reductions will be in force through March and April, the drop in puddling being from $4.50 to $4 a ton.

Structural material, as noted week by week, continues full of promise. Last year April was well along before things really began to move and some satisfaction is being derived from that record in lieu of any indications thus far that March is to be a better month than February. The probability that another week will bring a definite announcement concerning Bessemer ore prices, and the general belief that the basis will be in the neighborhood of $4 for standard hematites have no effect on the market for Bessemer pig.

RIOTS IN SPAIN.

Madrid, March 12.—Further demonstrations of students against the United States as a result of the Cuban resolutions of the congress of the United States have occurred. At Valencia, the students joined in a parade yesterday cheered for Spain and burned an American flag. The police succeeded in preventing the rioters from approaching the United States consulate. At Alicante, the mayor and police, while dispersing a similar anti-American mob, were pelted with stones. A number of policemen sustained injuries.

SNOW NEAR PITTSBURG.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 12.—The worst snow storm that has been experienced in West Pennsylvania for years swept over Pittsburg yesterday and last night. More snow fell during the twenty-four hours ending this morning than all the days of the winter. The temperature dropped 20 degrees, and another fall of 10 to 15 degrees is expected today. Despite the heavy snow trains on all lines were generally on time. On the Baltimore & Ohio road a freight wreck, near here last night, tied up the line for nearly eight hours. No one was injured.

INTERNATIONAL HURDLE RACE.

London, March 12.—The international hurdle race (handicap), for 200 sovereigns, was run at Gatwick today. Ten horses started over the two and a half mile course, nine hurdles. L. De Rotschilds' Revil, won, and the American horse Banquet II, formerly owned by Michael F. Dwyer, finished second. J. Talt, Jr.'s Sepoy was third.

NEW YORK'S EXCISE BILL.

Albany, N. Y., March 12.—Voting on the Raines excise bill will begin in the assembly at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The bill passed the senate on Tuesday. First will come eight amendments, which have been proposed, and then there will be a motion to struke out the enacting clause, so that the final vote can scarcely be reached before 6 o'clock. Some opponents of the measure profess a belief that the bill will fail of passage in the assembly.

KANSAS POLITICIAN DEAD.

Kansas City, March 12.—A special from Fort Scott, Kan., says: Ex-Lieutenant Governor Melville J. Salter died at his home, near this city, at 4 o'clock this morning of la grippe after a brief illness. Governor Salter has been one of the most active politicians of Kansas. He was elected lieutenant governor with Governor Thomas Osborn in 1874.

M'CARDY

Elected Minnesota Commander of the G. A. R. at Minneapolis Today.

Gen. Mertz Reappointed as Adjutant By the New Commander.

Mullen, of Minnesota, to Be Supported For a National Office.

Minneapolis, March 12.—After one of the prettiest and at the same time cleanest political fights ever seen in the ranks of any organization of any party, J. J. McCardy, of St. Paul, was elected department commander of Minnesota by the G. A. R. veterans assembled this morning in their state convention at Harmonia hall. Immediately after the announcement of the vote, the reappointment of Adjt. Gen. Mertz was declared, the appointment being the first official act of the commander.

Further action of the convention was taken, instructing the Minnesota delegation to the national encampment to present and support the name of J. H. Mullen, whom McCardy defeated for the office of commander, as a candidate for senior vice commander-in-chief of the national organization, an honor supposed to be slated for ex-Governor Barto, of St. Cloud, but which was tendered to Mullen as a balm to his disappointment. Mr. McCardy won on the first ballot by a vote of 315 to 295, and after a most tremendous effort.

The whole trouble was precipitated in the first place because McCardy refused to pledge the reappointment of Mertz in advance for the delivery of the Minneapolis vote. It was understood last year that with the national encampment, St. Paul was to have the department commander, but the Flour City veterans were too staunch supporters of Mertz and refused to take any chances of his non-appointment. When, therefore, the St. Paul men began to intimate that Mertz was pretty sure after all of another term in case of McCardy's election, even some of the Minneapolis votes began to waver.

McCardy was nominated by Judge Fish. Mr. Scheffer also seconded the nomination. Ex-Governor Barto did the honors for Mullen on the nomination, and George W. Morley and Col. Trowbridge, of Minneapolis, and E. F. Barrett, of Le Sueur, and Maj. Halsted, of Excelsior, seconded the effort.

On adjournment, the assertion was made that at least thirty Minneapolis votes, or more than enough to have elected Mullen, went to McCardy.

HELD FOR CANCELLATION.

A Land Decision Against Northern Pacific Road.

Washington, March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Smith today affirmed the commissioner's decision in the case of the Northern Pacific railroad against Llewynn B. Drew, from the Duluth land district. The company's selection of the tract in controversy is held for cancellation on the ground that it is not claimed as indemnity for any specific tract lost within the grant limits of the road.

WATERWAY TO THE SEA.

Bill to Charter the Maritime Company Introduced.

Washington, March 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Hansbrough today introduced a bill to charter the Maritime company of North America. This company proposes to construct a canal from Lake Erie to Lake Ontario, and from Lake Ontario to the St. Lawrence river or Lake Champlain, thence to tidewater by the Hudson river, thus forming a deep waterway to the Atlantic.

The canal is to be 26 feet deep, and 300 feet wide. The company is empowered to issue $200,000,000 of bonds to construct the canal.

MISS MONROE'S VERDICT AFFIRMED.

New York, March 12.—Judge Lacombe, in the United States circuit court of appeals, has affirmed the judgment of the circuit court for the Eastern district of New York, awarding Miss Harriet Monroe, of Chicago, $5000 damages against the Press Publishing company, of this city. The suit was the outgrowth of the premature publication in the New York World of the ode which Miss Monroe had written for the dedication ceremonies of the World's Columbian exposition in 1893. It was alleged by the complainant in this action that certain errors which appeared in the unauthorized publication of her ode were damaging to her reputation as a writer. Miss Monroe obtained a verdict in the circuit court in December, 1894.

WARSHIP LIBELLED.

New London, Conn., March 12.—A libel was instituted today against the United States torpedo boat Ericsson on behalf of Darrow & Comstock, New London ship chandlers. The amount of the claim is not disclosed. It had been expected that the Ericsson would steam to New York on Saturday of the present week, but now she will probably remain here until after the condemnation hearing. It is not known whether the claim of Darrow & Comstock is against the Dubuque company builders.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, March 12.—Today's treasury statement shows: Available cash balance, $263,641,681; gold reserve, $126,716,901.

IT WANTS THE BEST.

Chicago, March 12.—The Superior, Wis., Leader has abandoned the United Press, and commences tonight taking the leased wire report of the Associated Press.

SECRECY

Government Will Shut Foreigners Out From Inspecting Our Defenses.

Too Much Publicity Has Been Given to Naval Plans Here.

Published Reports of Naval Experiments Will Be Carefully Inspected.

Washington, March 12.—European army and navy officers who have visited the United States have frequently expressed surprise at the publicity with which all of the operations of our war and navy departments have been conducted, which is in marked contrast with the practice in Europe, and especially on the continent, where strict secrecy is always observed. Recently, the attention of the officers has been drawn to the obvious indiscretion in thus permitting foreigners, with whom we might, at a moment's notice, be at sword's points, to profit by the expensive experiments we have been making in the development of war material, and the immediate effect was the determination by the navy department to discontinue the practice of admitting representatives of other nations, either visitors or residents in Washington, as attaches of the various legations, to the tests which are conducted at the Indian Head proving grounds.

Now the war department is likely to follow suit as the result of publications in newspapers indicating a suspicious degree of activity on the part of some of the representatives of the European powers. Under the regulations of the department, it is not permitted to any foreigner to enter one of our military posts and take notes or plans of the fortifications. But in some cases, notably at Sandy Hook, owing to the absence of a suitable guard, it has been comparatively easy to secure information as to the general characteristics of the place, though no one, except the pupils under instructions in the torpedo classes, have the secret of the submarine mines and torpedo locations, and each one of these is placed under oath not to divulge it.

However, it was possible not long ago for a metropolitan newspaper to publish plans of the fortifications of New York harbor, showing the general features and the location of great guns, and this had the effect of arousing the officials of the war department to the necessity of more rigorously enforcing the rule intended to prevent just such information from falling into the hands of foreigners. Therefore it is probable that instructions will go to the commandants at each post to be more careful in the matter of admissions to the posts, and in addition there will be a more cautious editing of the matter that is published in the official reports and given to the public, especially the treatment of new devices and appliances of a warlike nature, that it might be regarded as proper to keep to ourselves against an emergency.

TRYING HIS NEW SUIT.

Quantico, Va., March 12.—The lighthouse tender Maple, with President Cleveland aboard, passed here this morning between 2:30 and 3 o'clock. The vessel steamed down in front of the small station of Widewater and dropped anchor. The president is accompanied by Col. Rives, United States army, and Commodore Limberton. Col. Walter joined them soon after they anchored and the party started for the colonel's blind at daylight. The snow storm has given place to bright crisp weather, and the prospects are good for ducking.

WAR IN AFRICA.

Rome, March 12.—The latest advices from Massowah are that the army of the Negus has reached Enticho, half way between Adowa and Adigral. The forces of Osman Digna have arrived at Galusit.

WEAK-KNEED ITALIANS.

Paris, March 12.—The railroad trains crossing the frontier from Italy are crowded with Italians who are leaving that country to escape military service in Africa.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. SAN FRANCISCO CYCLING.

More World's Records Were Broken Yesterday.

San Francisco, March 12.—Two world's records were broken at the indoor bicycle tournament last night. Egan and Jaegling, on a tandem, rode a half mile in 1:00 3-5, and Peter Metcalf, paced by the same team, rode the distance in 1:01.

The final of the ten-mile club race was contested by Wells, of the Bay City wheelmen; Squires, of the Acme club; Leavitt, of the San Francisco Road club, and Birdsall, of the California club. Each man took his turn at setting the pace, until the 76th lap, when Wells assumed the lead and commenced his famous long sprint, with Squires working like a demon to take the pole from him, but his efforts were unsuccessful. Wells pushing his wheel over the tape a comparatively easy winner. Time, 25:28 2-5.

The final of the quarter mile race was won by Edwards, he defeating Tantau easily. Time, :35 4-5.

Delams won the mile handicap from the 50-yard mark; Cook, second from 80 yards. Time, 2:57 2-5.

ALASKAN GOLD.

Expedition of Boston People Going After it.

San Francisco, March 12.—A mysterious expedition left today for Alaska. The steam schooner Excelsior was chartered, and so quietly was the matter carried out that the owners of the vessel, C. A. Hooper & Co., knew hardly anything of the plans of the managers. Last year some wealthy citizens of Boston heard rumors of immense gold bearing deposits at Cook inlet, and an experienced miner was sent up to view the country. He made a thorough search for the shining metal, and in his opinion he was successful beyond all question.

He, with a few friends, measured off ten acres of land which showed gold from the grass roots on to bed rock. Water rights were sold, and the prospectors washed out a few ounces and started for Boston. The gold is both fine and coarse, and the mint here values it at $16 per ounce. The Boston investigators incorporated, and $100,000 was paid in. Henry G. Spaulding and G. T. W. Braman, the latter at the head of the west side electric roads, came at once to this city and made preparations for the expedition.

'FRISCO'S CHURCH SCANDAL.

San Francisco, March 12.—At the evening session of the church council before which Dr. C. O. Brown is being examined, George Bickford told how he found the Overman-Tunnel letters. He was followed by Mrs. George Barton, who testified for two hours to conversations she had with Mrs. Tunnel concerning Dr. Brown and Miss Overman. The witness was positive that Mrs. Tunnel had told her on one occasion that she had just got back from Tacoma, where she had accompanied Mattie Overman. The latter, Mrs. Tunnel went on, had become sick "through a love scrape" with Dr. Brown and the pastor had paid Mrs. Tunnel's fare to and from Tacoma, and given her $10 besides. At other times the witness had seen Mrs. Tunnel, whom she had previously known as a poor woman, with $200.

M'KINLEY MEN AT ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, March 12.—Within the past four days friends and supporters of Maj. McKinley, of Ohio, have secured accommodations for 1500 people here during the republican national convention. The McKinley forces have made contracts with the Southern for all the space that hotel would give them and the same thing has been done by them at the Lindell, St. James, Laclede, Planters and at every hostelry where any accommodations whatever could be secured.

NORTHWESTERN MILLING.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 12.—The Northwestern Miller gives the following epitome of the week's milling news: Minneapolis mills turned out 208,915 barrels last week against 219,775 barrels the week before, and 174,090 barrels for the corresponding week in 1895. The demand for flour is very light from all sources, and, what is worse, prices are demoralized and much below a living margin.

THE MISSING STEAMER.

San Francisco, March 12.—The Pacific Mail steamer San De Janeiro has been out thirty-four days from Yokohama and not a word has yet been heard from her. Fifteen per cent reinsurance has been offered by the English underwriters, and here were not many takers at that price in San Francisco. The company has not yet abandoned hope, and bravely assert that they will continue to hope for at least thirty days more.

There is nothing so good for burns and rost bites as Salvation Oil. It effects a speedy and permanent cure. 25 cents.

BATTLE OF THE BOOTHS.

New York, March 12.—Ex-Commander Booth has not yet answered the cablegram he received from his father, asking him to go to England and see the general. When asked if he would go to the other side the commander said: "I will not go. In a few days I will make a statement in which I will make known the name of the new organization which I have started." A prominent Salvationist said last night the refusal of Mr. Booth to go to England by invitation of his father might cause the general to come to this country in a very short time.

Yes, the Gordon is the newest thing in hats. Seeing is believing. Believe.

BIG TOBACCO SMOKE.

Lancaster, Pa., March 12.—The tobacco warehouse occupied by C. Walt Kendig was entirely destroyed by fire this morning, together with between 700 and 800 cases of tobacco. There is an insurance of $35,000 on the tobacco which will fully cover the loss. The building was owned by Mrs. J. Gust Zook, whose loss is about $2000. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

SNOW IN THE EMPIRE STATE.

New York, March 12.—Snow fell all night in the interior of the state. Dispatches received today report from eighteen to twenty inches of snow at Saratoga, Amsterdam, Monticello and other points and considerable interruption to railway traffic in consequence. In this city, the storm subsided before midnight, and today the weather is clear, but cold.

CHEERING

Col. Perez, of Maceo's Army, Is in New York on Business.

Gomez and Maceo Are Very Well Satisfied With Conditions.

No Trouble in Getting in or Out of Cuba Now.

New York, March 12.—Col. Fredico O. Perez, chief of staff of Gen. Maceo, of Cuba, is in the city on a secret mission. He will return to Cuba in a few days. In an interview last night he said:

"When I left Cuba, Gen. Gomez and Gen. Maceo were very well satisfied with the conditions existing and hoped to be able to do something more decisive in the near future. The raid through the central provinces has brought good results. The Cubans gained ammunition and men. Many Spanish volunteers have taken the field with them. In the eastern part of the island over 1000 Spanish regulars have deserted to the Cubans.

"Since I left the army there has been a reorganization and some changes. Maceo and Gomez were about to unite their forces again. They now have an army of about 25,000 men in the central provinces. The Cubans have throughout the island about 60,000 perfectly armed men and about 40,000 partially armed. Of the armed men, about one-third are cavalry men, who have plenty of good horses. The Spanish mounted infantry men are no match for them. Many of the Spaniards are not able to ride, and when they charge they cling with both hands to the pommels of their saddles, and do not control their horses.

"Since Gen. Weyler took control, the Spaniards have done nothing. They have a great many flying columns in the field, but they are always with the rear guard, following after and never by any chance coming in contact with the vanguard. This is the reason Gen. Maceo was able to pass from the province of Pinar Del Rio to the province of Havana without firing a shot, though the Spanish army was marching in the region. I saw it in the ten years' war the Spanish fight like demons. Now there is a change; they seem to have no heart for their work. They fight weakly and do not seem to care how the battle may go.

"The Spaniards appear to be very much demoralized, both on account of the movements of the Cubans and the action of the American congress. The resolutions passed by the house and senate have given much joy to the Cuban leaders. I had no trouble in getting away from Cuba. In fact there were many facilities. I left the island at a point not far from Havana. The whole interior of the island and the coast, with the exception of the few harbors held by the Spaniards, are practically under the control of the insurgents."

Col. Perez was wounded Jan. 18, in the battle of Garro, where the Spaniards ambushed the troops of Gen. Maceo and killed four men. Col. Perez was shot in the neck, and was in the hospital for several weeks. He left the island about a week ago.

VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

Rumor That a Settlement Has Been Reached.

Chicago, March 12.—A special from Washington says: A settlement of the Venezuelan question has been reached. It will be announced at an early day. Of this satisfactory conclusion of the controversy the president has had knowledge for two days past. Great Britain has acted with a magnanimity which commends her to every credit. She concedes so much that there will be little to arbitrate should arbitration be necessary.

Under the terms so far outlined, Great Britain agrees to submit all the questions in dispute to amicable adjustment with the president, through the state department, as one of the contracting parties. That Venezuela would agree to almost anything suggested by the United States has been known all along. It is surmised that the attitude of some of the influential London papers in pointing out alleged defects in the British blue book, may have something to do with the change of attitude by Queen Victoria's ministers. The president was in very high spirits last night over the favorable turn in the controversy between the two nations.

HAS NOT HEARD IT.

London, March 12.—The under secretary of state for foreign affairs, Sir Thomas Henry Sanderson, was asked today if the report that a settlement of the Venezuelan question had been settled was correct. He said he would be glad to say that the question was settled, but he said he knew nothing of such a settlement as was reported in New York. "For all I know, however, a settlement may be near, but I have not heard of its attainment."

TOBACCO CAUSED CONSUMPTION.

Used 3½ Pounds of Tobacco Weekly For Thirty-Two Years.

Two Rivers, Wis., March 11.—(Special.)—Great excitement and interest have been manifested in the recovery of an old-time resident of this town, Joseph Bunker, who has for several years been considered by all his friends a hopeless consumptive. Investigation shows that for over thirty-two years he used three and a half pounds of tobacco a week. A short time ago he was induced to try a tobacco-habit cure called "No-To-Bac." Talking about his miraculous recovery today he said: "Yes, I used No-To-Bac, and two boxes completely cured me. I thought, and so did all my friends, that I had consumption. Now they say, as you say, 'how healthy and strong you look, Joe,' and whenever they ask me what cured my consumption, I tell them No-To-Bac. The last week I used tobacco I lost four pounds. The morning I began the use of No-To-Bac I weighed 126½ pounds; today I weigh 168, a gain of 42½ pounds. I eat heartily and sleep well. Before I used No-To-Bac I was so nervous that when I went to drink I had to hold the glass in both hands. Today my nerves are perfectly steady. Where did I get No-To-Bac? At the drug store. It is made by the Sterling Remedy company, Chicago, Montreal and New York, but I see by the printed matter that it is sold by all druggists—I know all the druggists in this town keep it. I have recommended it to over 100 people and do not know of a single failure to cure."

THE ELECTIONS TUESDAY.

The Whole Labor Ticket Elected in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 12.—There has been a great leavening of the political loaf of the cause of the "common people" in this county, and the result shown by the first local election of the year is an avalanche. The old ring parties have heretofore ruled with a high hand. The people determined this spring to take a hand, and their labor ticket Tuesday swept everything in sight, electing officers in both village and township by overwhelming majorities, obtained through the efforts of the Grand Rapids Labor league, as follows:

Charles Kearney, labor candidate, 326; regular nominee, 95. For trustees, T. H. Hennessey, 324; Thomas Trainer, 114, regular nominee; C. W. Robinson, 292; W. V. Fuller, 110, regular nominee; George Vient, 292; August Johnson, 130, regular nominee; for recorder, C. C. Miller, 308; E. C. Kiley, 107, regular nominee; treasurer, Henry Hughes, 275; L. C. Warriager, 144, regular nominee; justice of peace, O. H. Stilson, 416, fusion; H. E. Graftam, 120, regular nominee; H. C. Huson, 296; constables, E. Kable, 301; H. Withers, 411; M. Buckley, 106, regular nominee. The township ticket was elected by the labor party on an average of over 3 to 1. The total vote cast was 423.

This will be a staggering blow to the old parties, and is an indication of what the people will do in the whole county this fall. The money question and free coinage, with good local government, are among the chief points aimed at.

LA PRAIRIE.

La Prairie, Minn., March 12.—The election in the village of La Prairie resulted as follows: President, J. H. French; trustees, John Mowrer, M. J. Baker, R. H. Bailey; recorder, Will Marvin; treasurer, Mat. Spang; justice of the peace, James Campbell; constable, Irvin Martin.

BARNUM.

Barnum, Minn., March 12.—At the village election the following were chosen: President, A. M. Townsend; trustees, D. D. Rush, A. Anderson and A. Johnson. At the town election the following were elected: John Devlin, chairman; James McHarg and M. Bomier, trustees.

TWO HARBORS.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 12.—The village election resulted as follows: James H. Lunz, president; John Runquist, Joseph Haule and Joseph Lafonde, trustees; Jay Bryan, recorder; John P. Paulson, treasurer; W. D. Lawrence, justice; J. C. Bradon, constable. The town elected as chairman W. D. Lawrence; supervisors, Peter Carlson, John Swanstrom; clerk, W. B. Woodward; treasurer, J. B. Lewis; assessor, F. W. Walker; justice, W. D. Lawrence; constable, H. K. Gillon.

CARLTON.

Carlton, Minn., March 12.—The village election resulted: President, Asa Paine; councilmen, J. M. Woodworth, C. A. Nelson, A. Gillespie; treasurer, A. D. Eckland; recorder, M. T. Wilander; marshal, E. Shells. The proposition for the separation of the village from the town of Twin Lakes was bitterly opposed and was defeated by a large majority. All the old town officers re-elected except Treasurer Peters, who was defeated by P. O. Toren by 15 votes.

HINCKLEY.

Hinckley, Minn., March 12.—The following were the officers elected for the village: R. C. Saunders, president; village council trustee, John K. Anderson. There was quite a good deal of opposition for the office of chairman of supervisors, but W. H. Nowask easily won the honor by a vote of 54 to 36. A. L. Holm and Henry Cinder were elected as supervisors. John M. Currie was elected as town clerk by a large majority.

RUSSIAN SUZERAINTY.

New York, March 12.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: A Constantinople correspondent writes that, thanks to the diplomatic successes of M. Nidleoff, Russia's ambassador at Constantinople, Turkey's relations, as far as the Balkans and Egypt, will in the future be entirely controlled by Russia. In return Russia engages to support Turkey and keep the peace in Armenia. Two hundred fishermen, belonging to Revale, with their horses and carts, have been blown out to sea on a piece of floating ice. They had only one day's provisions with them and they have now been missing five days.

Paris, March 12.—The Eclaire today, commenting on the Cuban resolutions of the United States congress, says that in view of the exaggerated pretensions of the United States, it is difficult to see why European diplomats cannot at least extend their good offices to Spain."

WEST END

Republican Club Meeting Held Last Evening at Stewart's Hall.

Special Meeting Will Be Held Wednesday and a Hall Secured.

Program For the Orange Lodge Entertainment Next Thursday.

The Republican club, of West Duluth, held another meeting at Stewart's hall last evening. President L. A. Barnes, who was elected at the former meeting, presided, and a fair representation of Republicans was present. The committee appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws reported and the principal part of the evening was taken up in the discussion and adoption of the rules and regulations of the organization.

Plans were also adopted for the selection of delegates to the county convention for which a call has been issued. An addition of several names increased the membership roll last evening to about thirty, and the club starts out with good prospects of success as a political factor in the coming campaign.

The president announced last evening that a special meeting would be held next Wednesday evening at a place hereafter to be designated. It is the intention to secure, if possible, the use of the old council chamber at the village hall for the meetings of the club, and a committee was appointed to interview the alderman on the matter. If the hall cannot be secured for the next meeting, it will be held at Stewart's hall. The club will hold bi-monthly meetings on the second and fourth Wednesdays of the month.

Was Found Insane.

E. Wade Van Etten was examined as to his insanity in probate court this afternoon, and was found to be very insane indeed. He remarked casually during the examination that he had just been riding the Masonic goat for several days, and he had not quite recovered from the effects of it.

Conversing about the goat he said that its horns were polished and its back very slippery. He will be removed to Detroit, where his mother is said to live.

WAS NOT CORRECT.

City Engineer Patton says that if the editorial in the morning paper is true, then he is in the fix of the old lady whose dog did not know her, and, like her, must conclude he is somebody else. The morning paper says editorially that he is in favor of the Brighton site. He thinks he talked enough in favor of the Lakewood situation to enable people to know "where he is at."

The old man who looks out at the world with clear and healthy eyes cannot help feeling great gratification at the thought that his children have inherited from him no weakness nor tendency to disease. The healthy old man is the man who has throughout his life kept his digestion good and his blood pure. Not one in a thousand does do it. Germs go through the healthy body without effect. Let them once find lodgment or let them find a weak spot, they will develop by the million and the blood will be full of them. Instead of giving strength to the tissues, it will force upon them unwholesome and innutritious matter, and the man will lose flesh and the more susceptible he is to disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the only medicine that absolutely and infallibly cures all blood diseases, and almost all diseases are blood diseases. It isn't a medicine for some one particular so-called disease. It is a medicine for the whole body. It forces out all the germs of disease, and replaces impurities with rich, red blood.

MICHIGAN SILVERITES.

Lansing, Mich., March 12.—Some twenty-five Democrats, representing various sections of Michigan, are holding a free silver conference in secret session at the Hotel Downey today. George P. Hummer, of Holland, has prepared an address to the people which is being discussed in detail before being made public. Its object is the creation of a free silver sentiment strong enough to insure the sending of a free silver delegation from Michigan to the Democratic national convention.

DIVIDED THE DELEGATION.

Atlanta, Ga., March 12.—The McKinley forces have practically captured the Georgia vote in the national Republican convention. Eight out of the eleven congressional districts have acted so far and of the sixteen delegates chosen, thirteen are, according to the statement of A. E. Buck, chairman of the state executive committee, pledged to McKinley, the others being for Reed.

BIG BOSTON FIRE.

Boston, March 12.—A general alarm has just been given for a fire that broke out in the Pope Manufacturing company's building at 3 p. m. PULLED UP THE RIVER.

Sam was a light-skinned darky of middle age, with an ever bright and ready reply for all, says the Kansas City Star. He was employed in the street department of the town of D——. One day a gentleman, finding him at work tearing up some cobble stones from the street, and desiring to hear one of his witty replies, asked him what he was doing:

"Why, sar, I's er-pullin' up de street; by-and-by I'se gwin' to pull up de river."

"Pull up the river! Why, Sam, that's a gigantic job. You'll have to pump and haul many a year before you can accomplish that."

"If youse want ter see me do it, I'se willin'."

"Well, Sam, I would like to see how you would go about it, and if you can prove to me that you can finish such a job even within a year I will treat you to a suit of Sunday clothes."

And off he started for the river with the gentleman and several other people who had gathered around during the conversation. Reaching the river Sam piloted the gentleman and the crowd to an old skiff. Jumping into it he seized the oars and started, shouting as he did so, "Dere, sah! I's er-pullin' up de riber now!"

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Price of Wheat Suffered Another Decline on Bearish News.

Offer of Duluth Wheat to Liverpool Declined as Too High.

The Condition of the Winter Wheat Plant Reported as Fair.

The cold wave justified by its severity all and even more than had been predicted of it by the signal service bureau yesyesterday. It was preceded, however, by snow at places where the drop in the temperature had been greatest and to some extent mitigated the effect of the freeze upon the price of wheat on the board of trade. The opening of the market for that article indicated that some of the operators feared damage to the plant might result from the cold weather, and for an hour or more the prevalence of that idea was seen in a gradual, though not material advance in the price. At the end of that time the buying became slow and the price began to give way, and May, which opened ½c lower at 62¾c and advanced to 63¼c, got down to 62¾c before 9 o'clock. Later it rallied ¼c but sold down before the close to 62¼c. The mills bought 40,000 bus No. 1 northern at 62c and 60c May, and the elevators took 35,000 bus at the same price. The close was ¾c lower all round than yesterday.

The Daily Trade Bulletin of Chicago had the following regarding the condition of the winter wheat plant: "Information at this season of the year is of little real value, owing to the changeable weather. However, the reports in the aggregate indicate that the crop as a whole is in fairly good condition. There is some complaint of damage in Southern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Southern Ohio, Southern Indiana, Southeastern Illinois and in some sections of Kentucky. Tennessee and Wisconsin, mainly the result of the drouth in the fall compelling rather late sowing and extreme changes of the weather during the winter. There are also many good reports in New York, Northern Ohio, Central Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Iowa, the great majority of the returns indicate a very good crop. In South-west there is a large increase over that of last year. Returns from Canada favor so far an average yield."

The weakness which succeeded the early strength was the outcome of the heavy condition of the cash end of the wheat trade. One of the commmission houses at Chicago which makes a specialty of the exporting of grain cabled an offer of Duluth wheat to Liverpool last night on the basis of closing quotations of last day. The wheat was offered for delivery to go forward at the opening of navigation. The reply to the offer was "Price nine pence too high." That being the equivalent of 21c per bu, shows that the buyers there and sellers at Chicago are quite widely apart in their views. Another Chicago commission house did not receive a single cabular proposal to their cabled offers. The flour brokers on the Chicago change reported the domestic demand as of a slow retail character and the foreign trade as being absolutely nil. Those were the chief causes which led to the decline referred to above. The routine statistical and other news of the day was not of a character to influence the market much in either direction. Minneapolis received 272 cars and Duluth 78, or 350 together, compared with 310 cars a week ago and 273 a year ago. The Atlantic ports cleared only 207,000 bus of wheat and flour together. Crop reports, which of course must refer to a time previous to the freeze, were generally favorable. Closing cables reported Liverpool unchanged since yesterday. Following was the Duluth close.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, March 12.—Our strong wheat market yesterday did not appear to bring any response from the English markets and the edge was off. At the opening, an effort was made to advance prices and some large buying was noted, but the undercone of the market was weak and early buyers did not exhibit much confidence. A large export business was reported at the seaboard, which caused a temporary halt, but the decline again started and the close was at the lowest point yet reached since the recent upturn. The cold wave did not materialize to any extent that would cause apprehension, and the crop reports as far as received denote fine prospects for the growing crop, with the possible exception of a small section of Indiana. It looks heavy to get right with every indication of a further decline.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Opening Speculation Confined to One Security.

New York, March 12.—The stock market opened dull and firm with the speculation almost exclusively in American tobacco. The dealings in this stock in the first quarter of an hour aggregated 16,000 shares, one block of 4000 shares changing hands at 79¼. An advance of 2¾ to 80¾ which occurred was not sustained. Chicago gas and general electric displayed strength and improved ½ per cent. The grangers and other prominent shares were moderately traded in after 10:15 and secured sharp fractional gains. Tobacco sold up 1⅜, but at 11 o'clock had declined ¾. The speculation was very dull, but a confident tone prevailed.

Further upward progress was made in prices in the second hour with the more noteworthy improvements in the granger groups. St. Paul was helped by the anticipation in some circles of the declaration of an extra dividend at today's meeting of the directors. The governmeat crop report was a bullish factor on the group. Burlington displayed the greatest strength, rising 1¼ per cent. Net gains of a point or fractions were also recorded in general electric, Chicago gas, distilling, tobacco, Louisville & Nashville and Western Union.

Tobacco did not maintain the advance and went a shade below last night's closing. The new Erie securities were dealt in at 15⅝ for the common and 40¼ for the first preferred. Silver certificates were active $50,000 changing hands at 69¼@69¾. The market at midday was rather dull, but steady at the top. The sales to noon were 107,500 shares.

A Sufferer Cured

"Every season, from the time I was two years old, I suffered dreadfully from erysipelas, which kept growing worse until my hands were almost useless. The bones softened so that they would bend, and several of my fingers are now crooked from this cause. On my hand I carry large scars, which, but for

The first bottle seemed to reach the spot and a persistent use of it has perfected the cure."—O. C. Davis, Wautoma, Wis.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 8 a. m. (Eastern time), March 12.—The high pressure area central over Manitoba has intensified, and under its influence the weather has become colder in all districts from the Rocky mountains eastward to Lake Huron, and as far south as the Gulf states. In Montana, the western portions of the Dakotas and the Canadian provinces north of that section, the temperature has fallen 10 to 24 degrees. In the section embracing the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, the temperature at 8 a. m. today ranged from 6 above zero, at Detroit, to 24 below zero at Moorhead, with freezing weather as far south as Memphis, Tenn. Moderate to heavy snows have fallen in the western portions of the Dakotas and Nebraska, and light local snows are reported in the lake region and the Lower Mississippi and Central Mississippi valleys.

Duluth temperatures at 7 a. m. today, 6 below zero; maximum yesterday, 11; minimum yesterday, 2 below zero.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Fair and colder tonight; Friday fair, with slowly rising temperature; variable winds.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, March 12.—Forecast until 8 a. m. tomorrow: Wisconsin: Fair tonight and Friday; colder tonight; northerly winds. Minnesota: Fair tonight and colder in east portion and warmer in extreme west portion tonight; rising temperature Friday; northerly winds.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION.

The Herald is satisfied that the action of the chamber of commerce on the bridge bill does not reflect the sentiment of the business men of Duluth. Perhaps it would be correct to say that it does not represent the views of the chamber itself, it being adopted by a meeting at which only about fifteen members were present.

The people of Duluth as well as the people of Superior are anxious to see a bridge erected of the character proposed by the Duluth and Superior Bridge company. The Herald opposed the original bill presented by this company to congress, and it was largely due to the campaign conducted by The Herald that public sentiment was aroused on the subject and a joint committee of Duluth and Superior met and formulated a measure that was regarded as satisfactory. The bill was passed by congress as thus amended, with the exception of the provision for free passage of pedestrians. This provision was dropped because its insertion was secured primarily at the instance of a rival company which was at that time also seeking the right to build the bridge, and for the further reason that capital could not be obtained to build the bridge, if it was to be free to pedestrians.

The objections to this provision, which were raised by the company at that time, apply with equal force now. It is a well known fact that the Duluth and Superior people who compose the company have not sufficient money of their own to build an expensive bridge of the character provided by the law already passed. They must go into the money market and float the necessary bonds to construct it. Any man acquainted with the present condition of the money market and the great difficulty of inducing capitalists to invest in any new enterprise at this time knows that it would be impossible to do anything with such a provision in the bill.

A free bridge is greatly to be desired, and The Herald would earnestly support the idea, were it not convinced that insistence upon this point would result in seriously delaying the construction of any bridge at present. Every business man in Duluth is anxious to see the bridge built, and there is hardly one who is not ready to have it made a toll bridge rather than have its construction delayed for a single moment. Col. Grilley made a good point at yesterday's meeting when he said that the bridge can be made free at any time when the counties of St. Louis and Douglas or the cities of Duluth and Superior want to buy the bridge. The law now makes full provision for the acquisition of the bridge by the people at any time, and this gives ample protection in regard to tolls for pedestrians so far as the future is concerned. The great point at the present time is to secure the construction of the bridge, and no obstacle should be placed in the way of obtaining that result.

Mr. Towne, who introduced the bill, was anxious to get an expression of public sentiment and requested the chamber of commerce to take action. It is to be deeply regretted that the business men generally, who are members of the chamber, did not turn out to yesterday's meeting and voice their sentiments upon this subject. The views of ten or twelve men cannot be regarded as expressive of the sentiment of the members of the chamber or of the sentiment of the business community, which is vitally interested in the construction of the bridge at the earliest possible date, and Mr. Towne will do well to be guided in his action regarding this bill, not by the vote of a small minority of the chamber, but by the wishes of the business men generally.

CONCERNING VENTILATION.

A recent number of the Medical Record contains an instructive article on the effect of expired air upon animal life which contains some views in opposition to generally accepted ideas in regard to ventilation methods. The article is contributed by the editor of the Medical Record, Dr. Shrady. "We need not," he says, "emphasize the evil effects of what is usually called bad ventilation. It is, perhaps, true that acute diseases are not to be traced to the same, but it may be safely stated that there is a distinct deterioration of vital forces in those who are constantly subjected to the impure atmosphere of badly ventilated rooms. The cause of the sickening sensation which comes over us upon entering an atmosphere contaminated with many breaths, or of the gradual deterioration of the vital forces which follows confinement in such an atmosphere, is not known. For a number of years prior to 1888 the view prevailed that the discomfort and danger to health and life in badly ventilated rooms were largely due to organic matters contained in the air expired, and that the increase in carbonic acid due to respiration had but little effect in producing the bad results. Recently, however, several experimenters have concluded that the organic matters in the exhaled breath are not harmful, at least to animals."

Discussing recent experiments on the subject, Dr. Shrady says: "The results justify the conclusion that the discomfort felt in crowded, ill-ventilated rooms is not due to excessive carbonic acid nor to bacteria, nor, in most cases, to dusts of any kind, but is, in reality, due to excessive temperature and unpleasant odors. Nothing in these experiments show the cause of the unpleasant, musty odor of an unventilated room, and attention is called to the curious fact that cases of fainting in crowded rooms usually occur in women, and are connected, the author thinks, with defective respiratory action, due to tight lacing. Finally these investigations, the authors declare, go to prove that some of the theories upon which modern systems of ventilation are based are either without foundation or doubtful, and that the problem of securing comfort and health in inhabited rooms requires the consideration of the best methods of preventing or disposing of dust of various kinds, of regulating temperature and moisture, and of carrying off poisonous gases derived from heating and lighting apparatus, rather than simply diluting the air to a certain standard of proportion of carbonic acid present."

DULUTH SHOULD PROTEST.

Reference was made yesterday to the protest made by St. Paul people against the removal from that city to Dubuque of the office of the supervising inspector of steam vessels. Senator Davis and Col. Keifer will endeavor to present the case to Secretary Carlisle and cause the order of removal to be revoked. The only reason advanced by Gen. Dumont for the removal is that Inspector Tibbals' family resides near Dubuque, and he made a request to have the office located there. The move was made with the greatest secrecy, and the St. Paul people were unaware of what was going on until the office fixtures, etc., had actually been loaded on a car and were on the road to Dubuque. That Secretary Carlisle and Gen. Dumont should have been parties to such a contemptible piece of business is astonishing.

The feeling stirred up at St. Paul and the protest of Senator Davis and Congressman Kiefer may result in the order of removal being countermanded. And at this point, a matter of interest to Duluth has arisen. A Washington dispatch to the Pioneer Press says that, as a result of the protest, "it is understood that the St. Paul office will still be maintained, and that a board of local inspectors will have headquarters there. There is now pending in the senate a bill to revise and codify all laws in reference to steam vessel inspection. It provides that one inspector of hulls and one inspector of boilers shall be located at St. Paul after July 1, 1896. At present Messrs. Chalk and Monahan, local inspectors, are located at Duluth."

This seems to imply that the inspectors now at Duluth are to be removed to St. Paul should the senate bill be passed by congress. Duluth should vigorously protest against such a change. No doubt Mr. Towne will enter strong opposition to such a bill, should it reach the house, and he should be backed up by energetic protests by all the commercial bodies of Duluth. In the meantime, Mr. Towne should see that no secret orders are issued by Carlisle or Dumont or any other official at Washington removing the two inspectors to St. Paul.

The scramble for delegates to the Republican national convention from the South will not strike the average citizen as a very dignified method of securing delegates to be intrusted with the authority of nominating candidates for the presidency and vice presidency, says the Boston Transcript. If this competition went on between the citizens of the respective states exclusively, and was not started and promoted by delegates sent from the North, the case would present a far more seemingly appearance. It would not look so much like a grab from the outside. But as all the aspirants are doing the same thing, it is probably regarded in the light of a set-off, yet it will accumulate troubles for the national convention to settle, when it shall assemble.

AN AMBIGUOUS PLANK.

The financial plank of the platform adopted by the Ohio state convention yesterday is a disappointment to those who looked for some clear expression upon the question which promises to be the chief issue at the national convention of the Republican party. It is simply another straddle—a plain attempt to reach a compromise that allows Mr. McKinley to talk pleasantly to both sides of the financial question. The Ohio platform follows very closely in this respect the last national platform. The wording is slightly different, but it is open to the same charge of ambiguity. The Ohio plank says:

"We favor bimetallism and demand the use of both gold and silver as standard money, either in accordance with a ratio to be fixed by an international agreement, if that can be obtained, or under such restrictions and such provisions to be determined by legislation as will secure the maintenance of the parities of the value of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal."

There is but one redeeming feature of the above statement. It does not declare in favor of the single gold standard, but recognizes that bimetallism is sound Republican doctrine. That such an ambiguous plank will aid Mr. McKinley, however, must be seriously doubted.

A Christian correspondent says that Mme. Eve Nansen, the wife of the explorer, is at the present hour undisputably the principal concert singer in Norway. Mme. Nansen is not a brilliant prima donna, but her graceful, refined and intelligent art—akin to that of the pianist, and composer, Mme. Grondahl, who won numerous admirers in London some years back—never fails to charm Norwegian audiences, assisted as it is by a fine presence and a melodious voice. Mme. Nansen recently achieved great success at Stockholm and Copenhagen. Her last concert at Christiania gave occasion to a veritable ovation, partly, of course, due to her position as the wife of a famous man.

A rumor comes from Europe that Prince Boris' conversion by command from Catholicism to "the Bulgarian national church" is not satisfactory to the czar, who may insist that the little fellow shall be baptised in the Orthodox Greek church. The czar is said to regard the Bulgarian church as schismatical. These rapid and continuous conversions are liable to be attended with serious results to the health of a convert who is but two years old and is allowed no voice in the selection of his creed.

The stomach of an ostrich that died a few days ago in the menagerie in Central park, New York, was found to contain a wooden clothespin, two pieces of glass, a mouth harmonica, a piece of umbrella handle four inches long, a metal skate key, a brass door key, a silk handkerchief, a horn comb, two pieces of coal and three pebbles. Yet the ostrich did not die of indigestion, but tuberculosis. There is something in the proverbial ability of the ostrich to digest the indigestible, after all.

The Kentucky legislature of 1894 was induced by Collis P. Huntington to grant the Southern Pacific railroad the charter under which it is run, and which it was impossible to secure from any of the states through which the Southern Pacific system makes its way. The Kentucky legislature of 1896 has just refused to repeal this charter, setting aside the claim that the charter is contrary to the new constitution on the ground that that fact does not affect its validity, for it was constitutional when it was enacted.

Speaking of the proposed public art commission, the American Architect says: "So long as it was currently supposed among the artists of the country that only female sculptors with long curls had any chance of securing commissions for the United States government, artists who could not boast these advantages, however great their merits in a professional way, declined to waste their time in hopeless competition."

"Oom Paul's" salary as president of the Transvaal works out at about £7000 per annum, with £400 a year for "coffee money," i. e., for entertaining purposes. It may be added that the old gentleman keeps well within the £400, for his official entertainments are neither numerous nor costly. As regards his private fortune, this may be put roughly at £1,000,000. How he made it is known only to himself and his Maker.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: "Before this war talk becomes more serious we insist that the Chicago authorities should hunt up the Nina and consorts and put them in commission for the protection of the lake ports. There are something like 4,000,000 people living along the shores of Lake Michigan who will protest against having nothing between them and desolation excepting the Andy Johnson."

The News Tribune this morning made the following remarkable statement: "Even Mark Antony lived and died without enjoying the distinction of being addressed as 'Marcus.'" If he was not so addressed, will the sapient member of the journalistic kindergarten state how he was addressed?

Levi P. Morton is said to have called a halt in his expenditures for the presidential nomination. He says that if it costs $100,000 so early in the campaign, he wants to quit. If he is wise, he will quit at once, because the nomination will go to a Western man.

The excitement caused by the senatorial deadlock in the Kentucky legislature is likely to prove unfortunate for the Republicans of Kentucky, says the Indianapolis Journal, because it may defeat all attempts at Republican reform.

Holmes, the condemned murderer at Philadelphia, says he is ready to die. Any man who is compelled to live in Philadelphia is undoubtedly ready to die at any time.

In Sydney, Australia, those people who spit on the floor in the public buildings are fined. The application of similar penalties in this country might work a needed reform.

Who will get the votes controlled by Platt and Quay? Answer this question, and you will probably name the winner at St. Louis.

The Davis boom is not a noisy boom, but it is steadily growing and will talk more loudly in June.

A SENATORIAL GUM CHEWER.

Washington Post: Senator Carter of Montana, who has the most infantile skin and the best finger nails in all our august senate, is addicted to one habit that is passing strange in a man of his age and position. He chews gum. Once upon a time, not long ago, he went into a drug store way out at Fourteenth and Chapin streets, and said he wanted some gum. Now the man who keeps that shop always has the largest thing in gum—"chewing wax," the Westerners say—and he smiled genially and remarked:

"Will you have 16 to 1?"

Senator Carter looked haughty. When you go to buy gum you don't care to have political jokes thrown in.

"No, sir, I will not!" thundered the senator, but as he turned to leave the shop his eye fell on a placard advertising "16 to 1 chewing gum—16 to 1 you'll like it."

It's 16 to 1 that he did like it, for he bought it.

THE DETROIT SCHOOLS.

Detroit News: It has been the custom in times past to brand any person who questioned the estimates of the board of education as an enemy of the public school system. The same cry will probably be raised this year, but the estimators will not be doing their duty by the people if they heed it. If the present public school system were worth $1,293,166.35, the taxpayers of Detroit could make no better investment, but it is not. The kind of education the children are receiving in the public schools is of a mighty cheap character, and its real worth is only a fraction of what it costs.

LOVED AND HONORED.

Luverne Herald: There are no better men than Bob Evans, and he is loved and honored at home and abroad because, like him whose name led all the rest, he is one of those who "loves his fellow men;" because he is known to be every inch a man—a man of character and the soul of honor. Too generous and kind hearted to cherish an injury, he never forgets and never fails to reciprocate an act of kindness. No man in the state has labored more zealously or disinterestedly in behalf of the Republican party; no one has given to the support of its cause more effective service, and no one is more deserving of the honors which the party may have to bestow.

THE LEADING QUESTION.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The parson—I want the young especially to see the moral in this story of Absalom. In the very beginning of life's race, almost at the outset of his career, he fell.

Deacon Spinner (waking up and instinctively catching the parson's last words)—Wh-what wheel was he ridin'?

ITALIAN ANTIQUITIES.

Some days ago a well-known dealer in antiquities offered for sale to the Louvre museum, in Paris, a splendid collection of ancient silver vases from Italy of Greek or Italian workmanship, says the London News. The museum was unable to pay the price asked—£20,000—and declined the bargain. The Italian minister of education, having learned of this, has taken proceedings under the Pacca law against Signor di Prisco, the owner of these antiquities. The latter is a large land owner at Bosco Reale. He secretly made excavations on his estate and found twenty-eight silver vases of remote antiquity.

Notwithstanding the Italian law prohibiting owners of antiquities from sending them out of the country without leave, or, rather, on account of this law, which prevents old works of art from commanding anything like their natural price in the impoverished country, Signor di Prisco smuggled his find out of Italy and offered it to a Paris dealer for £5000. Continuing meanwhile his search, he found other similar vases, which duly joined their fellows in Paris, and the whole lot was offered to the Louvre. The Italian minister of education throws interesting light on the facilities which underpaid officials are supposed to afford to illicit exporters of antiquities. He issues a notification that, should any officials be found to have connived at this latest evasion of the Pacca law, they will be criminally prosecuted.

OLD CLERGYMAN DEAD.

New York, March 12.—The Rev. Elliott Tompkins, for twenty-three years rector of St. James' Protestant Episcopal church at Long Branch, has died at his home there, aged 68 years.

QUEEN MABISA.

The South African imbroglio brings up an extraordinary character in that part of the world, says the New York Mail and Express. This is Queen Mabisa, wife of King Khamas, the lord of Khamas country. It is a rich, populous land, and prospers greatly under its sovereignas. The queen is about 40, of medium height, great breadth, thickness and weight and is as black as coal. She dresses in black silk in the simplest London style, and uses almost no finery. She is a devout Christian and a prohibitionist. She treats drunkenness as a misdemeanor, but is more bitter against the seller than the tippler. She spends nearly all her revenue in charity of some sort. She is a liberal patron of churches, Sunday schools, day schools and needle work clubs. She entertains generously and is particularly kind to the wives of explorers and settlers. By many Africanders she is called the "Black Victoria." In the present trouble her people are keeping aloof from both sides, and are praying that peace will be restored.

CAMEL STEAK.

Parisians are to have an opportunity of tasting a dish hitherto practically unknown in this country, says the London Telegraph. It is announced that some Algerian butchers have made arrangements with two Parisian firms for furnishing camels' flesh on the capital. It is said that the meat is similar to beef, though shorter and white like veal, and contains great nutritious qualities. Among the Arabs the hump is looked upon as a great delicacy and eagerly tempts the swarthy epicure.

DEFAULT HAS OCCURRED IN THE payment of the amount secured by a mortgage given February first, 1893, recorded February fourth, 1893, at 8 o'clock a. m. in Book 103 of mortgages, St. Louis County, Minnesota, records at page 301, by Elizabeth Mannheim and Joseph A. Mannheim, to Carleton College.

By the terms of said mortgage the mortgagors agreed to keep the buildings situated on said property insured in some responsible insurance company to the amount of at least $4000, with loss, if any, payable to the mortgagee, so long as the mortgage remained unpaid, and to pay all taxes and assessments on the mortgaged property as soon as the same became due and payable, and authorized the mortgagee, in case such payments should not be made by them to effect such insurance and pay such taxes and assessments, and agreed that the amounts paid by the mortgagee therefor should be a lien on the mortgaged premises, secured by said mortgage and bearing interest at the rate therein provided. Default was made by the mortgagors in the payment of both said insurance and taxes and the mortgagee on the 28th day of December, 1895, paid $30.65 to effect such insurance and on the 27th of January, 1896, paid $422.05 for taxes and assessments then past due on the mortgaged property.

There is now due and claimed to be due, on said mortgage, for principal and interest the amount of $6304.10, for insurance paid and interest thereon $30.91, and for taxes and assessments paid and interest thereon $422.75, in all the amount of $6857.76, and no proceedings have been taken at law to collect any portion of the same.

Therefore in pursuance of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the parcel of land in St. Louis County, Minnesota, therein described, known as lot No. nine, West Fourth street, Duluth Proper, First Division, according to the recorded plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County, will be sold by the sheriff of St. Louis County, at public auction, at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, on Saturday, the 21st day of March, 1896, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount then due upon the debt secured by said mortgage, for principal and interest, insurance and taxes paid by the mortgagee, with interest thereon and the costs and disbursements of this foreclosure, including an attorney fee of one hundred dollars therein provided in case of foreclosure.

Dated this 6th day of February, 1896.

And whereas, such default consists in the non-payment of the sum of eighty dollars ($80.00), interest due in two installments of forty dollars ($40.00) each, on April the 1st, 1895, and October the 1st, 1895, respectively. The holder of said mortgage has exercised the option to him given in said mortgage by declaring and he does hereby declare the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage with all accrued interest thereon, to be now due and payable.

And whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due and there is due upon said mortgage debt at this date, the sum of one thousand one hundred eleven and 84-100 dollars ($1111.84), as principal and interest.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT.

Miss Marie Wainwright and her company will appear at the Lyceum tomorrow and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon, presenting "An Unequal Match," a fine comedy by Tom Taylor, on Friday evening and "Daughters of Erin" on Saturday evening. On Saturday afternoon she will play "Camille." The Detroit News says of her in the first named play:

"She was at her best in the sylvan surroundings of the first act. The wholesome, simshiny qualities of the girl were portrayed with the utmost truth. Her satire in the last act was very well finished bit of work. The characterization as a whole was well knit and convincing. Its progress from stage to stage was subtly portrayed."

THE TEMPLE QUARTET.

The Temple quartet will give a concert at the Methodist church on Saturday evening in the Star lecture series. The quartet is one of the finest in the country. Miss Katherine Ridgeway accompanies the quartet as reader. The Boston Globe says of her:

"As a reader Miss Ridgeway was very pleasing, her voice being full and vibrant, her gestures graceful, while her stage presence is unaffected and natural. Her selections embraced a variety of styles, which gave scope for the expression of different emotions and showed a true interpretation and dramatic force."

PADEREWSKI.

The Boston Post says of Paderewski, the great pianist, who will visit Duluth on Monday and play at the Lyceum:

"Let the musicians scoff about his Beethoven playing; let unbiased judgment proclaim howsoever far and wide that it is not Beethoven; and still that feeling so inexplicable, yet so heart-felt, so often false to tradition, yet so irrepressible; so artistically at variance with pure, cold facts, yet none the less sincere, will have it that Paderewski, like Liszt and Rubinstein, is a law unto himself. Genius atones. Whether or no the most fastidious of critics may like to take his Beethoven or Schumann roast beef "sugar coated" has little to do with the fact that the artist who so serves it in this instance is beyond all question a man of genius and a brilliant luminary."

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

"In Old Kentucky" will be the attraction at the Lyceum next Tuesday evening. Its success has been little less than phenomenal. In the face of the most serious business depression known in years, it filled the theaters last season to their utmost capacity. It is given this season with a complete new outfit of scenery and many new and attractive features. The play is a true and stirring picture of Kentucky life, beginning in the mountains and shifting to the blue grass country. Naturally a story of this kind presents many excellent opportunities for scenic display and the author has. it is said, given a spirited delineation, animated, refreshing and true to the life of the scenes and characters to which he has devoted his talents.

Everybody should know what a good medicine Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is: it has cured many thousands and will cure you.

Hammond Discharged.

Jason C. Hammond, a grain inspector at elevator "D," had a hearing in the municipal court yesterday on the charges of deserting his 2½-year-old son and failing to support his wife. The whole trouble, it became evident by the testimony, grew out of incompatibility of temper between husband and wife. Mrs. Hammond, after one of their many disagreements, leaving their home at 25 Eighteenth avenue west, taking the child with her. It appeared that after the separation, Hammond paid a grocery bill and arranged to pay his wife's rent. Judge Edson discharged the defendant.

WAS FOUND GUILTY.

Lamont, the Superior Murderer, Must Pay the Penalty.

After a trial lasting eight days, Henry Lamont was found guilty of murder at Superior last evening by the jury after an hour's consideration. The arguments were finished yesterday afternoon, and the court's charge lasted until 5 o'clock, when the case was given to the jury. Assistant District Attorney Dahl argued in behalf of the state in the morning, and he was followed by Col. Loud, who spoke eloquently, but to no purpose, in behalf of the murderer. Mr. Sloan closed for the state, taking from 4 o'clock to 5:30. Judge Winji's charge was brief, and at 6 o'clock the jury took the fate of Henry Lamont into the jury room.

At 7 o'clock the foreman told the sheriff that they had agreed upon a verdict, and at 7:40 the judge arrived and took the bench. Shortly after the murderer appeared, looking as carefree and self-composed as he has done throughout the trial. He listened to the reading of the verdict without expressing emotion, and then went back to jail as phlegmatically as he came.

The trial lasted eight days, and it was one of the most interesting which has taken place in Douglas county for years.

ONE OF THE BEST FEATURES

Of the Pyramid Pile Cure

Is the fact that it cures every form of Piles without one particle of pain. This desirable point is not obtained by the use of injurious opiates, which deaden and paralyze the nerves of the parts and make matters worse in the long run. But it is done solely by its remarkable healing and soothing effects.

And while it thus gives immediate relief, at the same time the disease is not merely checked, but a radical cure is rapidly accomplished.

And the point we want to make clear is that all this is done without a particle of pain.

This fact is one reason for the great popularity of the Pyramid Pile Cure and constitutes one very great difference between it and almost any other kind of treatment for piles.

Every kind of surgical operation for piles is excruciatingly painful, besides endangering the life of the patient, and in most cases is not to be compared with the Pyramid Cure, neither in making successful cures without pain nor in cheapness and safety.

The Pyramid Pile Cure has been before the public too long, and its merits recognized by too many people to allow it to be classed with the many salves, suppositories, pills, etc., and you run no risk in trying it, as is often the case with new and untried preparations.

If you are ever troubled with any form of piles or rectal disease, do not forget the Pyramid Pile Cure. Prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Albion, Mich., and sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

Sent to Owatonna.

Archie Ellis had a hearing in the municipal court on the charge of incorrigibility. Mrs. McCollum, Archie's mother, testified that, although Archie had a good home and easy duties he preferred to run about the street, staying away from home for days, hanging around with hoodlum companions and getting in training to be a tramp. Archie's chief aversion seems to be school. Judge Edson ordered him sent to Owatonna.

A Heavy Verdict.

The jury in the case of Andrew Hedeen against the Duluth Manufacturing company yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of $5916 in favor of the plaintiff. Hedeen was painting a roof for the company when the ladder on which he worked became unhooked and he fell to the ground, ladder and all. Last term a verdict of $2500 was secured, but the company secured a new trial, with the result that the plaintiff doubled his verdict.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.

CHANGES

Chamber of Commerce Suggests Some Bridge Bill Amendments.

Want Free Toll to Pedestrians Granted By the Company.

Terms of the Purchase to Be More Explicitly Provided For.

The members of the chamber of commerce yesterday decided that in order to secure the consent to the amendments to the Duluth-Superior Bridge company's bill the company must allow free passage to foot passengers. The discussion over the bill was long and interesting.

During the meeting a telegram was received from Congressman Towne, saying that he would support such amendments as the people wish, provided he could learn what their wish is.

The committee to which the bill was referred reported in favor of the amendments, provided that foot passengers be allowed to cross free.

The discussion began over the question of whether the time for the completion of the bridge is extended in the bill amending the original franchise.

G. A. Leland expressed the opinion that this is so, or at least the act is ambiguous.

Thomas S. Wood, the company's counsel, said a year's extension is all that is asked. The company wants to April 24, 1898, and would not object to a specific provision to that effect.

Upon Mr. Leland's motion it was adopted as the sense of the chamber that the provision be made.

FREE FOOT PASSAGE.

The question of free foot passage was then taken up. Thomas Wood said the company itself did not care so very much whether foot passage is free or not, because it believes the street cars will carry about all of the people, but it makes a vast difference in selling bonds whether it is in there or not. It will be cut to get the money as it is, and with such a clause inserted might be impossible. He called attention to the fact that the cities when they purchase the bridge will get it for the cost, maintenance, repairs and 7 per cent interest, less the net income from the tolls.

This discussion then turns to this feature—the eventual purchase by the city—and the question arose as to what "tolls" means. Does it mean the entire income of the bridge or only the sum received for vehicles, etc., crossing the bridge.

E. C. Gridley considered this provision for purchase a more important feature than free foot passage.

After considerable discussion it was voted to recommend an amendment which should provide for a deduction of the net income from tolls and all other sources, in the event of purchase.

The free foot passage question was next taken up. Mr. Gridley said the purchase question was more important. If that is fixed the people have a safeguard. If the tolls are excessive they can buy the company out and get the benefit of those already collected. With this safeguard the company will be reasonable.

MR. SEARLE ARGUES.

F. E. Searle argued at some length in favor of striking out the clause in the committee's report providing for free toll to pedestrians. He said he regretted to take this step, but he felt that without that clause the bridge would not be built, because it would be difficult to get the money. It is hard to raise money, and a little matter of that kind will often block a whole enterprise. The question of whether or not the bridge is built is a greater one than whether or not pedestrians have to pay tolls. He said the men interested in this company have the good of the city at heart and should be encouraged rather than hindered. The men who project great enterprises seldom reap the rewards, and it will undoubtedly be so in this case.

E. C. Gridley seconded Mr. Searle's motion and argued on the same line.

Col. Harris opposed it and said the bridge ought to be free for foot passage.

The motion was lost and the report of the committee approved.

The new by-laws and constitution of the chamber were read and approved. They provide that a separate board may be organized by any ten members of the chamber to take up a special branch of work. The idea is to have the chamber represent all branches and interests, and be a central body with subordinate organizations.

Too Much Whisky.

A lumberman, who gave his name as Peter Noe, was found by Officer McKenzie lying on the sidewalk on Superior street, near Fifth avenue west, apparently intoxicated, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Examination disclosed that the man was in great pain and breathing with difficulty. He was removed to the central station, where he was examined by Dr. Graham, who found him to be suffering from the effects of exposure and "forty-rod" whisky. Noe was taken to St. Luke's hospital and put to bed. At the station, Noe was sure he was going to die and gave expression to repentance for what misdeeds he had committed.

CECILIAN SOCIETY.

Wagner Recital at the Spalding Last Evening.

The Spalding dining room was filled with a large audience last evening and the Wagner recital given by the Cecilian society was a very successful affair. The absence of Mrs. D. H. Day, who was unable to be present, was greatly regretted, especially, too, as it was she who arranged the program.

The opening number was the march from "Tannhauser." It was played with two pianos, Mrs. Clague and Miss Lynn at one and Mrs. Loman and Miss Crowley at the other. It was excellently rendered.

Chr. Oelschlagel played the prize song from "Die Meistersinger," a legende, and "Kuiawiak" by Wieniawski. They were finely rendered, especially the legende.

Mrs. C. P. Craig sang "Elsa's Dream" from "Lohengrin." She was in excellent voice and brought out the full depth and beauty of the number. For an encore she sang a dainty spring song.

F. M. Stephenson sang "The Evening Star" from "Tannhauser," a difficult number well adapted to his fine baritone voice. He was given an enthusiastic encore and sang "Thou Art Like Unto a Flower."

"Elizabeth's Greeting," also from "Tannhauser," was the Wagnerian number selected by Madame Renard and it was one of the most delightful of the evening. For an encore she sang "Good Night, Sweet Dreams," by Bischoff.

Miss Theresa Lynn played the "Spring Song" from "The Flying Dutchman," and executed the difficult number in a very pleasing manner.

Mark C. Baker sang "By the Sea" and the serenade by Schubert in place of Mrs. Day's number. They were finely rendered.

Mrs. S. S. Bradley sang two dainty numbers "Snow Flake," by Cowen, and "The Robin," by Neidlinger. Mrs. Bradley's voice shows great progress and evidences earnest study and perseverances. She sang the numbers in a very pleasing manner.

E. W. Prophet, a baritone, who has been heard but a few times, sang the "Toreader's Song" from "Carmen," and for an encore "It Was Not So To Be," by Nessler. He has a voice of fine quality and will make his mark.

A collection for the students' fund was taken up and a nice sum was realized.

THE STONECUTTERS' TROUBLE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Mr. Bourgeault may fill your paper with statements foreign or false to this subject, but will he act like a man and settle with his men in the case in dispute, as well as the wages due them from last summer on the Winnipeg job? We will be glad of a reputable board of arbitration. Why, I would even allow my kit of tools to be inspected, although neither they nor myself have anything to do with the matter, except that I happen to be, yours respectfully.

G. H. Thompson.

Duluth, March 12.

A NEBRASKA PHENOMENON.

Omaha, March 12.—A strange phenomenon has been noticed in various parts of Nebraska. Water stands higher in wells and is found in larger volume in streams than for several years at this season. There has not been very much rain in Nebraska during the past winter, yet small streams are full. The weather bureau has begun an investigation and the railroads are assisting. All reports thus far confirm the first one.

ONE HONEST MAN.

Dear Editor: Please inform your readers that if written to confidentially I will mail in a sealed letter the plan pursued by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous weakness, night losses and weak, shrunken parts.

I have no scheme to extort money from anyone whomsoever. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong, and anxious to make this certain means of cure known to all.

Having nothing to sell or send C. O. D., I want no money. Address

James A. Harris,

WITH HEART AND SOUL,

Our Ministers Proclaim a Gospel of Health.

Show to Weak, Tired and Debilitated People

How Health and Strength Can Be Easily Obtained.

There are no words so strong as those spoken by the true minister of the gospel. One knows and feels, instinctively, that such words come from the heart, and are uttered only with the earnest purpose of doing good to humanity.

The boundless influence for good for those who are weak, nervous, debilitated and run down in health, of the strong and powerful words of these well-known clergymen is an assurance of cure for sufferers. These great preachers thus proclaim a new gospel of health to the sick and discouraged, which means renewed health, hope, happiness. Their good tidings are doubly welcome at this season, for in the spring almost everybody is run down or ailing and needs just such information in regard to what to do.

Rev. F. H. Buffum, of Winchester, N. H., who is Grand Army chaplain for the state of New Hampshire, says:

"The remedial effect of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy on the weaknesses and nervous prostration of my wife was so positive and speedy that we can heartily testify to its undoubted merits."

Rev. G. L. Wells, of Hardwick, Vt., writes:

"I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy with most excellent results. It did great good for my wife. We think highly of Dr. Greene's

REV. G. L. WELLS.

Rev. C. D. R. Meacham, pastor, Baptist church, Townshend, Vt., states: "I am very glad to say in regard to Dr. Greene's great remedy that when my blood was badly impoverished and my nervous system greatly impaired, Dr. Greene's medicine gave me wonderful relief. At the present time my health is as good as at any time in my life, and my confidence in Dr. Greene's remedy is constantly increasing."

Rev. Henry Langford, of Weston, W. Va., says: "I became so nervous I was unable to hold my head steady in the pulpit, nor could I hold or handle my books and papers without great trembling and weakness of my hands and arms. I was so nervous that I could scarcely feed myself. In fact, my nervous system was wrecked.

"I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and am wonderfully improved in health and strength. Dr. Greene's Nervura did it. I can heartily and truthfully recommend it to the sick. Too much cannot be said in praise of this splendid medicine. I say this for the good of other sufferers from nervous and prostrating diseases who can be cured by this remedy."

Clergymen strongly recommend the people to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy because they know it cures, and because it is a physician's prescription, the discovery of the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York city, who can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

His Sanity Questioned.

An individual, who gave his name as Ralph Miller, was discovered by Officer Smollett early last evening under the Lake avenue viaduct, acting in a way that at once attracted the officer's attention, and in answer to an inquiry from the officer he said he had lost a lot of bed-bugs and wanted to know if Smollett had any of them. As the man was evidently off his mental balance, he was taken to the central station and locked up. Miller is a tramp blacksmith, who came here from Two Harbors several weeks ago, and has been in confinement before on account of eccentric conduct. He will be examined by Judge Ayer today.

Probationer's Reception.

The Epworth league of the First Methodist church, will hold a "probationers' reception" at the church Friday evening, March 15. There will be a Progressive Circle conversation on the following subjects: "An Amusing and Antithetical Attempt at Analytic Alliteration;" "Paderewski;" "Your Favorite Humorist;" "The New Municipal Administration;" "How Can we Improve the Efficiency of Our League;" "Balloon Sleeve, a Pantomime." This will be followed by a musical program and refreshments. The program will commence at 8 o'clock sharp.

TEACHERS AND STUDENTS

SHOULD TAKE HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

It supplies just the material that is most wanted by brain work and nervous exertion—the phosphates.

NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people never learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be properly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling symptoms. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected. When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

COCKROACHES are a nuisance. Exterminate them. COCRELINE will do it. 25c, extra size 75c, at all druggists.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The Richland County Immigration association has been organized at Wahpeton. The officers of the association are: E. H. Carter, president; C. M. Johnson, vice president; Don R. Davidson, treasurer; J. W. Woodhull, secretary. Governor Allin and other prominent men of the state were present, and the chief executive addressed the convention on the needs of the great Northwest. One of the rules of the organization excludes all political matters from discussion in the meetings of the association. The convention voted $600 to be used in judiciously advertising Richland county's advantages.

The North Dakota board of agriculture, in session at Grand Forks, has elected J. J. Dow, president; C. A. Sanford, vice president; A. J. Cole, treasurer; J. G. Hamilton, secretary. Owing to no appropriation, the fair this year will be abandoned. The board will at once arrange for one next year of huge proportions.

At Jamestown it is alleged that there are some very queer matters in connection with the late grand jury that indicted Trustee Montague, of the insane hospital. While the jury was in session, and before any bills had been found, statements were made that an indictment against Trustee Montague had been secured. This, although the members of the jury were sworn to secrecy and had been especially cautioned by the court.

The charges of bribery against Senator Bailey, Fuller and Deputy Examiner Bob Wallace were passed over by the Jamestown grand jury in silence; the blind piggers were not considered, although the court especially charged the jury to consider all alleged violations of law, and the recent transfer back to a pigger of $300 worth of personal property, including liquors, was an occurrence but a few days prior to the calling of the jury. Other gross violations of the law were completely ignored.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Parties returning to Armour from the Turgeon artesian well report that it has broken loose and developed into a gusher of the first magnitude. The well is an 8-inch one, sunk a year ago. Until a few hours ago the water flowed to a height of only nineteen inches above the top of the pipe. It seems it had been gradually working out at the bottom and suddenly increased its flow until now an 8-inch stream spurts to a height of eleven feet above the top of the casing.

A test case was brought at Chamberlain by the county against Morrison & Clemmenger, artesian well contractors, for using county pipe in private wells, was decided in favor of the county. They took two lengths of pipe from a county well.

The surveyor general's office at Pierre is at present at work transcribing the notes of the surveys of the Fort Randall military reservation. As soon as possible Land Commissioner Lockhart will take the whole tract for the state. This will give the state a large body of good land in a settled locality, and which will lease readily.

Judge Campbell, at Millbank, sentenced Frank Kattwitz to the penitentiary for eight years for brutally kicking his wife to death during a drunken debauch. He first kicked her in the house, she ran out doors and he followed, kicking her again and again until death ensued.

Carl Vess was placed in jail at Miller charged with chasing John Rainey with a shotgun, intending to kill him.

Raleigh Mead and Sylva Snoddy, prominent young people of Miller, were married at St. Lawrence Tuesday evening.

The Gordon hat has come to stay. A man who exchanges $3.50 for a Gordon will never pay $5 for a hat.

All last winter George A. Mills, of Lebanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by all druggists.

FINISHED

Grand Jury Completed Its Labors and Was Discharged Today.

Several Indictments Have Been Returned Against Doe and Roe.

Are Wanted For Violating Game Laws---Criminal Calendar Taken Up.

John Doe and his cousins, John Roe and James Roe, are in trouble again. The grand jury this morning returned indictments against all three of them for having game in their possession with intent to ship it out of the state, the game having been killed in Minnesota. John Doe is indicted for having in his possession seventy-four partridges, and the Roe brothers are indicted together for having fifteen prairie chickens.

It is not known upon whom the bench warrants issued upon these indictments will be served, or whom the grand jury has cloaked under these convenient names, but further proceedings will develop that. Three indictments were also returned against parties who are not yet in custody, and whose names were therefore not given out.

The grand jury's report included a resolution directed to the mayor of Duluth. The attention of the jury had been called to the fact of the existence of houses and rooms of assignation in the midst of the business and residence districts of the city below Second street, with a request for investigation. The jury, however, inasmuch as the mayor is the head of the city, has control of the police and has expressed his intention of keeping this species of crime in its accustomed district, referred the matter to him, expressing its confidence that he would carry out the views expressed in his inaugural address.

Another resolution calls the attention of Humane Officer Haskins to the fact that a number of children are residing in a house of ill-fame in Virginia, and directs him to remove them. A bench warrant has been issued for the proprietor.

This finished up the grand jury labors for the term, it having found nothing but good in the county buildings, jails, etc.

Judge Moer complimented the jurors very highly upon the speed and dispatch with which they had waded through this term's criminal grist, disposing of twenty-six cases since they commenced, a week ago. He remarked that it was a great saving to the county, and the jurors complacently moved away to draw their pay, full of the pleasant sensation which is the reward of duty well done.

Joseph Banckack was arraigned this morning on a charge of manslaughter in the first degree and given until tomorrow to plead. He was indicted under the name of Bambanack, arrested under another unpronounceable name, has been written up under several others, but on his own authority the court now has it correctly—Banckack.

Frank Munchia and Albert Mitchell will also plead tomorrow morning.

THE CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

Judge Moer this morning began work upon the criminal calendar, taking up the case for assault against Rudolph App, alias Tony App, who was accused of pointing a loaded Winchester rifle at Lieut. McLean. The testimony developed the fact that there had been bad blood between the men, but the reason was not forthcoming.

The jury in the case of S. F. White, as administrator for Jacob Wasser, against Walter H. Singer, went out yesterday afternoon and this morning brought in a verdict of $750 for the plaintiff for the loss of Wasser's life in last summer's tug collision.

The case of Stratton against Merritt was still on in Room 3, before Judge Ensign, and it was not expected to go to the jury before tomorrow morning.

Judge Morris, in Room 2, was hearing the case of the Northern City Fire Insurance company against W. E. Richardson, assignee for the American Loan and Trust company, to recover three shares of Vermilion and Grand Marais Mining company's stock, or its alleged value, $1500. It was expected to last all day.

In the struck jury case of Sam R. Johnson against the Pennsylvania and Ohio Coal company, the struck jury panel was quashed. As the defendant stated that it believed a struck jury to be necessary for the trial of its case a continuance was asked on that ground. It was denied, and the defendant company will have to content itself with an ordinary jury.

She leaves two children, Mrs. George Thorpe, of Monroe, Wis., and Dr. O. P. Sutherland, of Minneapolis. The news of her death was received with great regret by her many friends here.

BY THE GAS ROUTE.

Thomas C. Keefe's Spirit Flies to Eternity.

A man whose name appears on the register as Thomas C. Keefe, was found dead in a bed in room 26, at the St. James hotel this morning. Keefe went to the hotel about 8:30 o'clock last night and applied for a room. Clerk John Nelson assigned him quarters, to which Keefe directly retired, this being the last seen of him alive.

About 10 o'clock this forenoon, the clerk detected a strong odor of gas in the hall, which he traced to the apartment assigned to Keefe, to which he gained access with a pass key, finding the occupant lifeless, with the gas jet on at full head.

Dr. Fullerton was summoned, who pronounced Keefe to be beyond all human aid. Nothing was found in his clothes to give a clue to who he is or where he is from beyond a card bearing the words "John Keefe, Franklin, Minn."

He was fairly well dressed and looked like a thirfty working man. The sum of $11 in money was found in his pockets. The body was taken to Bayha & Tibbett's undertaking rooms.

PARK POINT FIRE.

Dwelling of Charles Peterson Destroyed Last Evening.

The 2-story frame dwelling of Charles Johnson, situated on Park Point, one block from the old fire hall, was totally destroyed by fire last night. The flames were discovered shortly before 9:30 o'clock, and at that time a few pailfuls of water would have saved the building, but there was not even a hand extinguisher to be had and the fire abated only when the structure had been completely consumed. The Peterson family saved their furniture but the loss of the building, which was valued at about $1000, will fall on Peterson, there being no insurance. The house had recently been raised and it is supposed that a crack was made in the chimney in so doing and that it was through this that sparks ignited the woodwork.

An Awful Score.

The curling contest between Hugh Mitchell and J. A. Waugh, whist players, and Ron Smith and Harry Hurdon, curlers, took place at Glen Avon yesterday afternoon, and it was a merry bit of slaughter. Sixteen ends were played, and the grand total was 39 to 3 in favor of the curlers. The whist game has not yet been played, but it is not likely that the whist players can recover their lost ground, as they would have to average over two points advantage on each of the sixteen boards.

J. A. Dewey and R. J. MacLeod played for the buttons last night, and MacLeod still has them. The score was 16 to 12. That makes seven games MacLeod has won since he got the buttons. This afternoon MacLeod and Dewey were to play in the semi-finals of the D. R. Black medal contest.

SAW DR. FLYOD DAVIS.

The Council Committee Visited Him Last Evening.

Aldermen Harker, Rowley and Richardson, composing the council water works committee, had an interview at the Spalding last evening with Dr. Floyd Davis, the water expert. The city fathers were conducted to the apartments of the microscopist and on first entering were surprised to find the suite apparently deserted. This apparent incivility nettled the visitors. A voice soon was heard from behind a curtain, however.

"Are there any reporters with you," said the voice. The reply was that there were not.

"Please lock the door," continued the voice.

The door was locked and the doctor stepped from behind the drapery that had concealed his form. Stealing to the window, the doctor gazed up and down the street and then pulled down the blinds. He then shook hands with his visitors.

"How are you coming, doctor," inquired Alderman Harker.

The doctor looked at his feet as if comment were unnecessary.

It was explained that his visitors wanted to know how the investigation was progressing.

"Ah, I have made a discovery," said the doctor.

"What is it?" inquired Alderman Rowley, getting out a notebook. It is a notebook in which memoranda of the progress of the work is kept—its pages were clean last evening.

"You know my men, or, rather the men of the health department, have been taking water at various depths off the canal entrance," remarked the doctor.

The committee said rumors to that effect had crept out in spite of the efforts of the press censors.

"Well, I have demonstrated that the water extends clear to the bottom of the lake," announced the doctor.

"And farther than that," he continued, "I am able to say that the water shoals toward the Wisconsin shore, and my friend, Dr. Routh, will bear me out in this," said the doctor, enthusiastically. The oracle manifested no further disposition to talk and the committee backed out of the room.

A Herald man asked Health Officer Routh today what had been done in the course of the investigation.

"I am not at liberty to say yet," answered the doctor. "You know, there are currents, counter currents and undertows in the lake and we want to investigate them with a view to settle on the place to secure pure water, not only now, but for years to come."

"How do you know as to the existence of these currents and counter currents?" inquired The Herald man.

"Well, expert navigators tell us that," responded the doctor.

"Why can't these expert navigators chase these currents around and get onto their curves? There are lots of expert navigators lying around just now, and they would come cheap?" remarked The Herald man. The doctor did not say.

Perhaps when the council is called on to pass another $250 installment of the expert's pay they may take a notion to inquire, and with more success.

DUFFY HAS GONE.

Creditors Looking For the Missing Plumber.

David J. Duffy, is appears, has been playing his friends for duffers. Duffy, who has been in the plumbing business at 14 Fourth avenue west, under the firm name of D. J. Duffy & Co., evidently finding the financial situation to present contingencies that he could not overcome, determined to cut the Gordian knot by disappearing. He took a header accordingly, and so masterly was his retreat that not a soul who erstwhile knew him knows where to address dunning letters, for with him to know was to owe. Duffy first arrived in town in 1892, developing as a scab on the occasion of the plumbers' strike in that year. He afterwards became a boss himself and joined the Master Plumbers' association, which organization he left not long ago and began a rate war, taking many jobs at unprofitable figures. John T. Lanigan, the company, had by this time withdrawn from the firm and Duffy accomplished his financial ruin by his own unassisted efforts. He sent his wife to Virginia some weeks ago on money he borrowed for that purpose, and it is supposed he is now also headed in that direction.

TROUBLE

Kentucky Lawmakers Again Have an Approach to Danger Lines.

Bronston Defies the Governor and Raises a Senate Row.

But Speaker's Prompt Action Prevents Any Very Serious Outbreak.

Louisville, Ky., March 13.—A special to the Post from Frankfort says: The state house was full of ominous rumors this morning. Party leaders held secret conferences. St. John Boyle, the Republican nominee, was consulting all night. Into his rooms at the Capital had the leaders went with mysterious rapidity. It was not denied that Mr. Boyle and his friends determined to ignore the illegal expulsion of Senators James and Walton by the senate on Wednesday, and that at the proper time these senators were to rise in their seats, be recognized by the chair and cast their votes for Boyle, whether the clerk or the senate, who is chief clerk of the joint assembly, recorded their votes or not. Of course he will refuse to call their names or enter their votes as cast on the journal, but this, the Republican leaders have decided is not necessary if Dunlap will qualify and vote for the nominee.

Mr. Boyle received another long telegram from Senator John Sherman today in which he gave it as his opinion that sixty-nine votes constituted a legal quorum since the death of Senator Weissinger, and with Dunlap and two illegally expelled senators voting with the other sixty-six members would elect him in his opinion the senate of the United States would so decide. The ruling of Lieutenant Governor Worthington yesterday that seventy votes was required to make a legal quorum did not disturb the leaders.

They believe that the ruling would be changed. The Republicans called in all the pairs. There was to be no faith put in the vote of Populist Poor for Boyle, although that unfortunate member was overwhelmed by letters and telegrams from his home county, urging him to vote for the nominee. Both James and Walton were in the house chamber shortly after that body met. James declares he will answer his name if called. Walton says the same.

It develops this morning that the Democratic members are far from being united on the policy to be pursued. At 11:30 a. m. Sheriff Armstrong received instructions from Governor Bradley to clear the senate cloak room in which were Senator Blackburn and his friends, including Jack Chinn, and others. As soon as the senate majority heard of this move of the governor, the leaders of Senator Blackburn grew hot and at once drew up a resolution of rebuke to the governor. It caused the wildest confusion.

The reading of this resolution caused a sensation. Petrie said that it was extraordinary, and he asked that a committee be appointed to confer with the governor and see if such an order had been issued by him. Senator Bronston grew fiery and bitterly scored the governor. He called for the adoption of the resolution. Senator Goebel spoke equally as bitter. He said the governor had no right to interfere with the rights of the senate. "I for one," he shouted in high, cold, penetrating notes, "am ready to protect my own rights and privileges."

Salyer, Democrat, was not carried off his feet by this storm of denunciation of the governor. He said it was the duty of the senate, out of respect to the governor, to send a committee to find out from that official if he had issued such an order. "If it is true he has issued an order," said he, "then I am in favor of passing the resolution, but let us not act hasty."

Bronston said: "This committee will never go with my consent nor my vote."

The sheriff, who was present, here said that he had received the orders mentioned from the governor.

Senator Bronston said: "I denounce the act of the governor, is it were with the last drop of my blood. It is an outrageous and unlawful and treacherous act. I denounce it," he almost screamed amidst the pounding of the gavel and the suppressed hum of many voices. "Let the governor leave us alone. Pass the resolutions and condemn the man who is governor by accident. I denounce his action and I am ready as a Kentuckian and as a man." Then, white as a sheet the senator sat down. The sergeant-at-arms shouted: "The presiding officer will clear the floor."

Then senator Debge arose and denounced the reflection of Bronston on Governor Bradley as false and untrue. "I say it to his face," said he, glaring at Bronston. Then he sat down.

Senator Bronston jumped up and commenced to unbutton his vest and many present thought that the time for bloodshed had arrived. Before he could act the presiding officer succeeded, by pounding the gavel and pleading for quiet, in restoring order.

Senator Salyer rose and said that he was not willing to insult the governor of Kentucky, and moved to refer the motion offered by Bronston to the committee on rules, and this was done.

Bronston, Goebel and the leaders of Blackburn, seeing that they had been outvoted, subsided, and one of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed in a deliberative body has ended. If the sheriff attempts to clear the senate cloak room there will be trouble, as Blackburn and his friends say, they will not get out.

The news of the exciting scenes in the senate had reached the house before the joint assembly hour arrived, and when the senate filed in, shortly after noon, the members of the house had not been fortunate or unfortunate enough to hear what had passed in that body. The call of the roll developed the fact that the Republicans had not succeeded in getting out all their members. There were two pairs. The roll call showed 128 members present, necessary to a choice 65. The reading of the journal was dispensed with, without any attempt on the part of the senators to delay the proceedings, by insisting on having the journal read.

The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 50; Carlisle, 13; Buckner, 1. The Republicans again refused to vote, and there was no quorum. When Populist Poor's name was called he refused to vote. The chair announced that there had been no election. The assembly then adjourned.

JACK CHINN'S BLUFF.

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—Shortly after 11 o'clock, Sheriff Armstrong made his appearance, with eight deputies, in the corridors, between the two house chambers. Senator Blackburn, with a few of his friends, including Jim Williams, Jack Chinn, and others, came over to the senate cloak room about half-past 11.

Col. Chinn approached Col. Lew Tarleton and said he understood that Tarleton had been talking about him as one of a crowd of ruffians. Col. Tarleton said that he had not said anything of the kind, but he had said, as a citizen of the county, he thought the civil authorities should be able to suppress an outbreak of any kind.

PUGILISTIC MATTERS.

National Club Denies Having Offered a Purse.

London, March 13.—The officials of the National Sporting club say they have not yet offered a purse for a match between Robert Fitzsimmons and James J. Corbett and that no articles have been sent by this club to the United States for their signatures. They add that they are quite prepared to arrange a meeting on certain conditions, one of which is that Corbett must make an apology to the club for his statements reflecting upon its members, made after his return to the United States from England.

FOX HAS A LETTER.

New York, March 13.—When the foregoing cablegram was shown to Richard K. Fox today he produced the following letter from George W. Atkinson, of the Sporting Life, which accompanied the articles of agreement. The articles and the letter are both in the same handwriting, that of Mr. Atkinson. The letter reads:

"The Sporting Life, 148 Fleet street, London, Feb. 26, 1896.

"Dear Mr. Fox: If Corbett and Fitzsimmons sign enclosed agreement it will be satisfactory to the National Sporting club. Date can be arranged by cablegram. Should they, in addition to the purse, wish to box for a side stake, add the amount. The Police Gazette or Sporting Life can hold the money. Kind regards, yours faithfully, George W. Atkinson. P. S.—Any other matter can be settled by cablegram, and you can have a reply in two hours."

Mr. Fox says he is perfectly satisfied they were sent with the authority of the National Sporting club. After reading the cablegram denying that the club had offered a purse or had sent articles of agreement for the signatures of Corbett and Fitzsimmons, Mr. Fox cabled to London for particulars and expects a reply this afternoon.

THE RED LAKE INDIANS.

Cannot Get Agricultural Implements Before July.

Washington, March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Eddy called at the Indian office today in reference to a supply of agricultural implements for the Red Lake and Pembina Indians. He was told that nothing could be done before July 1 when the next appropriation bill will become available. The next allotment of $10,000 has already been determined upon. After $4700 is disbursed to employes, the balance will be used for the supply of implements.

Mr. Eddy will endeavor to secure a favorable report on the bill drafted by Secretary Smith to put it to these Indians, the lands now occupied by them at the mouth of War Road river. It is said to be the intention of the secretary to reserve these lands from the opening in the event that the bill is not passed when the reservation lands are advertised.

APPLIES TO LAKE STEAMERS.

All the Engineers Must Be American Citizens.

Washington, March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house today passed a bill which provides that all engineers and assistant engineers on ships of American registry must be American citizens and subject to draft in time of war. A similar bill has been reported to the senate. It applies to the lake as well as to the ocean steamers.

UNION PACIFIC.

Senate Committee on Pacific Roads in Session.

Washington, March 13.—The senate committe on Pacific roads resumed its sitting today devoting itself to the Union Pacific. Mr. Oliver Mink, one of the receivers of the road, was the first witness called. He was questioned by Senator Wolcott and said there was included in the system about 5000 miles of road, of which about 1850 miles was government aided road, and about 1822 miles which belong to the Union Pacific company.

For this 1822 miles the gross earnings had been for the twenty-six months since the road came into the receiver's hands, $32,832,632, and the operating expenses $21,719,232. He said that in this time the company had paid $3,556,965 in interest on debts secured and especially upon the company's lands, of which it held 347,000 acres.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Date Originally Set Will Be Adhered to.

St. Paul, March 13.—The date of holding the thirtieth national encampment of the G. A. R. will not be changed. The original date was the first week in September and that will be adhered to. The rumor of a change of date for the encampment was started during Gen. Walker's visit to St. Paul early this week. The general did not request a change of the date, but simply expressed the opinion that a later date would better accommodate one or two departments, but no change was made or proposed.

EXTENDING JURISDICTION.

Washington, March 13.—The house committee on judiciary today agreed to favorably report a bill to give the courts of Texas, Arkansas and Kansas jurisdiction over criminal and certain civil cases of the Indian territory which they had under the act of 1875.

PEACEFUL

Italy's Abyssinian Trouble an Agent of Peace For Europe.

War Cloud Vanishing and the Dreibund is on Top.

England Will Help the Italians Financially and in Other Ways.

Rome, March 13.—Out of the terrible storm of popular anger which swept over Italy when the news of the defeat of the army under Gen. Baratieri reached here, little remains but a feeling of great resentment against the Italian commander. All rioting has ceased. The reservists, who fled from the country sooner than go to Africa at the call of the government are returning, and it is not believed any steps will be taken to punish them.

Negotiations with King Menelik have been opened, and it is anticipated that peace will be concluded before long, and that war office has countermanded the instructions sent to various points for the hurrying forward of reinforcements to Africa. The new cabinet is settling down to work, and the financial situation is brighter than anticipated. Under these circumstances Italy breathes freer than for some time past, and there is a feeling of gratitude for those who have aided in Berlin, during the past few days, in bringing about this change from blank despair to great hope in the future.

The conferences which have taken place here recently between the Marquis Di Rudini, the new premier, and the Duke of Sarmoneta, their audiences with King Humbert, and the constant exchange of telegraphic messages between this city and the German capital, have been coincident with the meetings in Berlin of the Austrian minister for foreign affairs, Count Goluchowski; the German foreign minister, Marshall Von Bieberstein; the Italian ambassador to Germany, Count Di Busca; and the imperial chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, supplemented by audiences with Emperor William.

Out of all these exchanges of views it is believed has grown a much healthier state of affairs for all Europe. The German emperor is understood to have been somewhat, if not entirely, weaned from his longings for closer relations with Russia, and a possible alliance of the three empires, and the attitude of Germany toward Great Britain, it is anticipated, will undergo a change for the better. This is due to the fact, according to report, that Great Britain, when the situation was outlined to her from Berlin, before the arrival there of Count Goluchowski, promised loyal support for the Italians in the emergency, and took steps to order an advance up the Nile from Wady Hafa toward Dongola of a strong column of British-Egyptian troops to act as a diversion, and prevent the concentration of the natives for a joint attack upon the Italians.

An Italian loan, it is further stated, could have been floated in London, and the half pledged support of Great Britain to the dreibund, a support hitherto involving little else than an irritating uncertainty, is rumored to have developed into a much more cordial and solid understanding with the powers forming the dreibund. Both Emperor Francis Joseph and Emperor William are praised for this result, as it is known that they have striven night and day, since the storm broke, to relieve the strain here, which at one time was severe enough to threaten the foundation of the throne. In fact now that the crisis is over, it is admitted that King Humbert at one time was face to face with the possibility of outbreaks serious enough to develop into almost anything. Italy condition, of course, was greatly to the advantage of the Socialists, who profited by it to obtain concessions which they could not otherwise have commanded.

To cap the peaceful climax comes the pleasing report that the Emperor of Germany, the Emperor of Austria and King Humbert will meet at Genoa in a few days, and that a series of brilliant fetes will mark this public proof of the renewal of the ties which compose the dreibund, which is intended to demonstrate to all whom it may concern that Italy, instead of being friendless, upon the verge of bankruptcy and encumbered by a tottering throne, is strong in the support of Germany and Austria, and will be backed by Great Britain in any great emergency.

It is reported that a British naval squadron will be ordered to Genoa upon the occasion of the meeting of the emperors and King Humbert, in order to openly demonstrate Great Britain's sympathy with Italy and the dreibund. Finally, it is said that before the emperors meet at Genoa, Emperor Francis Joseph will have succeeded in entirely reconciling Queen Victoria with her imperial grandson, and so the peace of Europe, it is hoped, will be further cemented, and the possibility of war will be driven further into the background. Orders have been sent to Massowah that the reports of the generals on the defeat of the Italians at Adowa are to be supplemented by the forwarding to this city of a number of important witnesses of the engagement.

It was at first proposed to court martial Gen. Baratieri at Massowah, in fact that plan has not been entirely abandoned, but there were so many utterances of disapproval in the press when the plan was outlined that it is understood that Gen. Ricotti has decided to have the unfortunate officer tried in public, and in this city. There is a strong movement, however, among certain military men and others to have the trial conducted in secret, as it is feared that revelations may be made which will not strengthen the case of Italy before the world. It is believed, however, that the war office authorities will have a public trial. It is admitted that 12,000 men were killed, wounded or taken prisoner at Adowa, though the official figures have not yet been given out.

Gen. Baratieri repeats that the disaster, though unavoidable under the circumstances, was not due to any desire to strike a big blow before the arrival from Italy of his successor, Gen Bal-

TOWER

The Minnesota Mine Has the Largest Stockpile in Its History.

A Canadian Railroad Likely to Be Built to Rainy Lake.

Tower, Minn., March 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—James and George Beatty have completed their winter's cut on Willow river, and their crew came down Sunday. A million and a half feet of logs, principally white pine, were banked and will be floated this spring down the Little Forks to Rainy river. The Keewatin Lumber company, of Rat Portage, has purchased them.

Smith & O'Roake are putting in ties on a large contract with the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, shipping from Norway. About 60,000 have been cut so far this winter, and the firm expects to put in 10,000 more before the snow leaves.

A leap year dance was given by the young ladies of Soudan at Breitung hall last Friday evning. Misses Clara Shephard and Maggie Morton had charge of arrangements, and the Kid band furnished music.

The extra freight which has been running between Tower and Ely this winter was laid off the first of the week, and the one crew will make the run from Ely to Duluth.

The Minnesota mine has now the largest stock-pile known in its history. The exact amount it contains is not known, but is between 300,000 and 400,000 tons, a part of it left over from last year. In one of its shafts the company has replaced the pumps by a 12 by 24 pumping engine, which is expected to raise the same amount of water with 50 per cent of the steam formerly required.

The Rainy River Railroad company has obtained from the Canadian government the usual $3000 per mile subsidy for the eighty miles of road constructed, and recently sent a deputation to Ottawa to ask for a further bonus of the same amount for a seventy mile extension of the line from the Atikokan range to the head of navigation on Rainy Lake which would complete the connection between Port Arthur, the Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake. The Canadian gold fields and the agricultural resources of Rainy river will furnish traffic for the line.

The township election at Soudan passed off quietly Tuesday, the only opposition being for the office of overseer of highways, Joseph Mosich securing a majority of fifty over Gaust Johnson. Those elected are: Supervisors, D. W. Owen, chairman; W. J. Trevarthen and James Nettel; clerk, Charles Lowman; treasurer, James Harrington; assessor, J. J. Morton; constables, Mike Anderson and James Mitchell; justices of the peace, Matt Nettel and George Bloomfield; overseer of highways, Joseph Mosich.

At the Wiley gold mine at Lake Harold a sawmill, with a capacity of 10,000 feet a day, has been erected. The stamp mill has a capacity of 100 tons of ore per day, and to this two frue vanners will be added. From vein No. 1 the last samples assayed, from the bottom of the 25-foot shaft, yielded $779 in gold and 14¼ ounces silver. So far the mill has been supplied with ore from veins No. 2, a peculiarity of which is that native copper was truck thirty feet from the quartz. The average of the vein is $82 in gold, the free gold amounting to $8.50 to $10 per ton, and the concentrates varying from $98.20 to $519.76. The fluctuations are due to the varying proportions of the decomposed protogene, which in some case carried a large percentage of barren pyrite. Veins 3 and 4 have been more fully developed than have the others. On vein No. 3 a tunnel has been driven seventy feet, showing a vein of two feet, and on vein No. 4 the tunnel is in 125 feet, the width of the vein being from 2 to 5½ feet. A shaft has been sunk seventy feet, thirty feet below the level of the tunnel, and the walls are well defined and show signs of slickensiding. Assays show from $12.60 to $1006 in gold per ton. A tramway is being built from these veins to the mill, a half mile distant.

Nels J. Benson, the hardware man, has entered into a partnership with Albert Applequist, and the new firm will conduct a grocery business in addition to hardware.

Ralph Connable, Jr., manager of the Connable Fish company, came down from Crane lake yesterday to purchase supplies for next season's operations. As far as possible, Mr. Coonable will give employment to the homesteaders in his vicinity, many of whom have lived on their claims, waiting for a survey, until they have become pretty hard up.

THE COUGH WHICH LINGERS

because of a run-down condition of the system, and is not affected by ordinary cough medicines, will yield readily to because it gives strength to the weakened body and enables it to throw off disease.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins filling the stomach with gas and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and, being an everyday occurrence, is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

It is now well known among able physicians that the whole constitution is gradually undermined and weakened, tha the nerves and vital organs are seriously affected by any form of dyspepsia. This is plain, as every organ, every nerve in the body is nourished by the blood and the blood is replenished from the food digested. If the food is properly digested the blood is pure, the nerves steady, but if supplied from a sour, fermenting, decaying mass, the blood is vitiated, poisoned and the result is shown in sleeplessness, lack of energy, poor appetite, nervousness. Every trifle is magnified and the dyspeptic sees nothing but the dirk side of everything.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuarts Dyspepsia Tablets, and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

It is not claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia and stomach weakness in its various forms, but for this it has been shown to be unequalled. The eminent specialists, Reed and OLeary, have recently stated that they considered Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets an unfailing specific for disorders of the digestive organs, and the remarkable cures made in cases of long standing dyspepsia proves that this remedy has extraordinary merit.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical company, Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary, by giving perfect digestion, strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

SUTRO IS ANGRY.

Says Huntington's Statements Are All Falsehoods.

San Francisco, March 13.—California read the report of the testimony given by C. P. Huntington yesterday before the house committee on Pacific roads with mingled feelings of amusement and indignation. In discussing the public feeling in California with regard to the Central Pacific funding scheme, Mr. Huntington is said to have remarked, that there were perhaps 100 people in the state who are opposed to the project. How near Mr. Huntington's estimate is to the truth may be judged from the following statement made by Mayor Sutro:

"Of the 1,500,000 persons in California, it may safely be said that 1,400,000 are opposed to the funding bill. The 100,000 who favor the scheme are bankers who hold the bonds of the company and people under control of the company. It is outrageous that Huntington should have the effrontery to tell such bare-faced falsehoods to a congressional committee. He would have congress believe that I am the only man in the state who is opposed to the bill, when as a matter of fact the sentiment is almost unanimously against it. It will be the greatest calamity that ever befell a state if Huntington succeeds in hoodwinking congress to pass the bill. The funding scheme proposed by Senator Morgan will be fairly acceptable."

MINISTER WILLIS.

Will Leave Honolulu to Save Being Fired.

San Francisco, March 13.—A special from Hanolulu to a local paper says: United States Minister Willis has announced his intention of leaving Hawaii, April 15. This statement, made in the face of the minister's recent denunciation of a similar report, is construed and generally believed to mean that he will not return.

Many people are of the opinion that the American legation will be closed for the remainder of President Cleveland's term in order to get even with the Dole regime for criticising the action of Minister Willis in refusing to acknowledge the January celebration. Mr. Willis' departure is looked upon as the only recourse left, as he has been persona non grata from the moment of his arrival. There has been more or less talk of the possibility of the government giving Mr. Willis his passports, and it is fair to surmise that Willis is leaving to prevent such a contingency.

CANADIAN CATTLE HEALTHY.

London, March 13.—The Canadian minister of agriculture has had an interview with the secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, and has urged that the evidence is conclusive that Canadian cattle are free from disease and stated that Canada is confidently expecting that the existing restrictions should be removed rather than continued. Mr. Chamberlain promised that the imperial government would carefully consider the matter.

Seattle, Wash., March 13.—One party of sixteen men from Pennsylvania, and of nineteen from Michigan, arrived here today to outfit for Alaska. The Pennsylvania people are going into the Yukon country and those from Michigan are bound for Cook's inlet on the steamer Utopia.

PUGILISM IN SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, March 13.—Tom Sharkley, the Marine, and Alex. Greggains fought eight rounds to a draw at the Rush street theater last night for charity. It was declared a draw. Dal Hawkins defeated Phil McGoldrich in two rounds.

BOGOTA POLITICS.

New York, March 13.—A special to the Herald from Panama, Colombia, says: The Herald's correspondent in Bogota telegraphs that President Caro has resigned office, leaving Vice President Calderon to act as the chief magistrate. It is presumed that the step was taken by Caro in order to qualify himself as a candidate at the coming elections for the office from which he has just retired.

BLOWN UP

Dr. Burghill, of Chicago, Has a Terrible Accident While Experimenting.

Chemicals Explode and Wreck the Office and Maim Burghill.

Strange Results of a Photographer's Quest For Something New.

Chicago, March 13.—Dr. A. V. Burghill, who caused a sensation by offering through a Chicago paper to sell himself absolutely for $5000, doing anything, even sacrificing his life, if the purchaser required, was blown up and terribly injured in an explosion last evening. The $5000 was wanted, he said, to provide for his aged mother. The explosion was in connection with hazardous experiments in flash light photography, previous trials of which in this city had almost invariably resulted disastrously.

Burghill lost both of his eyes and both of his hands were so mutilated that they will have to be amputated. The accident occurred in the office of Dr. W. C. Linquist, No. 80 Hill street, where Dr. Burghill was experimenting with some dangerous explosives with which he was endeavoring to compound a preparation for taking flash light photographs. It completely wrecked the office of Dr. Linquist and the detonation was of such volume that it could be heard a half mile away.

Photographer Vernon W. Lawrence, of West Forty-third street, was with Dr. Burghill at the time of the explosion, but was saved from similar injuries by waiting in an outer office while the experiment was being conducted. A little less than two months ago Lawrence experienced two explosions while in search of the same flash light effect. His gallery was damaged and he was injured, but this did not deter him in his investigations. Early in February he made his third experiment. It, like the first two, ended in a destructive manner and nearly killed him.

His gallery was wrecked and it was some time before he was able to resume his work. In the hope that others more fortunate than himself could aid him he inserted an advertisement in one of the Chicago papers saying he would pay liberally for the discovery of the combination he sought. He desired a stronger flash light than is now known in the photographic art. Dr. Burghill answered the advertisement telling Lawrence that he had made the discovery he was seeking for.

A meeting was set for last evening at Dr. Linquist's laboratory and it was while Burghill was preparing the mixture for producing the flash light that the explosion occurred. Burghill claims to have obtained his knowledge of chemistry in Russia, although born in Sweden. He alleges that he was driven from Russia for his advocacy of better treatment of Jews and Lutherans. He also says that while in Russia he was for a time in the employ of the Russian secret service. According to his story he received signal honors at the hands of the czar, among them being the Roumanian iron cross, and after the great Nihilistic riots, was presented by the emperor himself with the order of the cross of St. George, for conspicuous bravery during those troubleous times.

In America his life seemed a failure, and seeing poverty and perhaps death staring him in the face he became desperate and wrote a letter to one of the Chicago papers in which he offered to sell himself. He declared he would do anything the buyer asked. He said he would kill or steal, or kill himself while insured in the owner's favor. No name accompanied this strange letter, but it was published and attracted the attention of a man who offered to aid the writer if he could find him. After an investigation it was learned that Burghill was the writer, but that already he had repented of his rash promise.

DR. BROWN'S TRIAL.

Another Woman Found Who Has a Grievance.

San Francisco, March 13.—At the evening session of the council before which Dr. C. O. Brown is being tried, only newspaper reporters and witnesses were admitted. Attorney Nagle, Dr. Brown's counsel, was not permitted to remain in the room, and before departing made several sarcastic remarks about the manner in which the trial is being conducted, which may prevent him from attending any of the remaining sessions. The session was devoted to the hearing of the testimony of a young lady, a member of the church, who swore that some time ago Brown threatened to circulate a scandalous story about her unless she should cease her opposition to him.

She said the story was based on the fact that two years ago, while assisting in decorating the church, out of curiosity, she accepted the invitation of an organ repairer to go inside the big coal way and the gradual drop in price from $4 per ton down by degrees to $2.40.

Now the miners have practically shut down. Some of the large companies are owing their men from one to two months' pay. The merchants are not able to carry the burdens thus cast upon them and already some have been forced to the wall. The outlook here is anything but bright, and while as yet there is no starvation, it is only a matter of a short time when there will be hungry men, women and children, unless a speedy turn in affairs is taken for the better.

ARRESTED FOR TREASON.

Berlin, March 13.—The police have confiscated today's issue of Der Socialist, on the ground that it contains treasonable matter, and its editors will be prosecuted on the charge of lese majeste.

RUSSIA'S CHINESE TREATY.

Pekin, March 13.—It is stated here in official circles that confirmation has been obtained of the report circulated some months ago that a secret treaty has been concluded between Russia and China, giving the former extraordinary rights in the way of railroad building through Manchuria, etc.

ASSISTANT ARCHITECT.

Washington, March 13.—Secretary Carlisle has appointed Henry Ives Cobb, of Chicago, to assist the supervising architect of the treasury in preparing the plans, specifications and drawing for the new postoffice. Salary $4500 a year.

KICKED

Out of His Own Store Into the Street.

That is What Happened to a Dishonest South Side Groceryman Yesterday.

(From the Chicago Times-Herald.)

One groceryman, at least, who tried to palm off a dishonest piece of goods, ran up against the wrong man on the South Side yesterday. He was actually taken by the collar, kicked and thrown out into the street by an indignant and enraged customer on whom he tried his usual practice of selling an inferior and dangerous piece of soap at a big profit instead of a well-known, standard brand at a reasonable profit. That the groceryman met his just deserts no honest man or woman can gainsay.

We say to the great public, beware of such imposters. Purchase your grocery supplies of an honest retailer who has not only respect for his pocketbook, but for the health and lives of his customers. Take a piece of Kirk's American Family Soap and lay it alongside of any other laundry soap. It is not necessary that you be a judge to see at a glance the difference; then compare the size, and after you have made a full comparison, we are satisfied that Kirk's American Family will be the piece of goods you will select. Do not be influenced by what some retail groceryman will tell you who has an ax to grind, and that ax is a big profit and a dangerous article composed of rank fats and alkalies that may give you a dangerous and loathsome skin disease.

Look and see, to make sure that you are not being imposed upon, that the name

JAS. S. KIRK & CO.

Is Stamped Either on the Wrapper or on the Piece of Goods You Purchase, and You Know You Are All Right.

BARATIERI RETURNING.

He Will Probably Not Be Court Martialed.

New York, March 13.—A special to the Herald says: It is learned that the Marquis Di Rudini has promised the king not to take any proceedings against Signor Crispi. The ex-premier has informed his friends that his majesty will insist upon an energetic prosecution of the campaign until Menelick has been crushed. There is, however, good reason for supposing this to be incorrect. The statement that Emperor William, of Germany, has opened negotiations with Austria to revise the Austro-German treaty of alliance in the sense that an attack by France or Germany shall be the "Casus foederis" for Austria, is unfounded.

Gen. Baratieri will arrive at Naples on March 24, and will come to Rome immediately. It is now improbable that he will be tried by court martial. The situation in Abyssinia is extremely serious. Everything depends on the results of Gen. Baratieri's efforts. Signor Crispi is making strenuous efforts to overthrow the marquis Di Rudini as soon as parliament meets.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Chicago Garment Workers Strike to Help Others.

Chicago, March 13.—In aid of the cutters, who are now out on a strike in this city, eight thousand Chicago union garment workers, last night at their meeting, declared a sympathetic strike. This vast body of workers will necessarily be joined by as many more who are not members of the union, but who are in sympathy with them and for whom there will be no work during the idleness of the cutters, trimmers and tailors.

The sentiment in favor of the strike was practically unanimous. At a meeting of the Cutters and Trimmers' union No. 61, held last night, the advisability of calling out members of that body was approvingly discussed. The general feeling appeared to be that in creating an absolute tie-up of clothing manufacture in Chicago lay the best chance for the garment workers to win a battle which they look upon as one involving the existence of their organization.

STARVING MINERS.

Destitution in the Colorado Coal Mines.

Erie, Col., March 13.—If the coal war has been a boon to consumers it has also been death to the miners. It has brought a reduced income and a bare subsistence in all cases and destitution to not a few. It may yet result in actual distress to many families. The winter has not been a favorable one for coal miners. The weather has been mild and the demand correspondingly light; hence the miners earned small wages, not to exceed $25 per month. A great many have earned nearer $10 or $12 a month. Close upon this condition of affairs came the coal war and the gradual drop in price from $4 per ton down by degrees to $2.40.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The fire in the Pope Manufacturing company's building at Boston yesterday did about $100,000 damage. The Youth's Companion building was damaged $10,000, all being fully insured.

The steamer Wolfe, one of the leading vessels of the St. Johns, N. F., sealing fleet, which left last Tuesday, was crushed in the ice and sank yesterday. All the crew were saved.

Democrats of Ashland, Wis., are trying to boom Pioneer Thomas Barlon for mayor, but so far he has not accepted their offer.

The proposed Northwestern Knights of Pythias encampment at Minneapolis has been sanctioned by the supreme officers, and it will be held in August and will be a success.

Superintendent S. P. Wires, of the Duluth fish hatchery, was before the senate game and fish commission yesterday and talked about shipping fish spawn, etc.

At the Shoshone Indian agency, near Landers, Wyo., two half breeds and two white men stole the wife of Jim Washakie and started for the mountains with her. The husband pursued the abductors and caught up with them sixty miles from the agency and was shot through the body and thigh. The Indian police are after the miscreants and trouble is expected.

The missing steamer Rio de Janeiro is safe. She struck a lot of bad weather, ran out of coal and went to Honolulu, where she coaled and went on to Yokohama.

Stevens Point, Wis., had a fire in its electric lighting plant which did considerable damage, and the city will be in darkness for a week until the dynamos can be repaired.

An argument in one of the many suits against the Superior Land and River Improvement company was heard in the appellate division of New York's supreme court yesterday. The suit grew out of President Weeks's peculiar financial methods.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road has decided to grant the G. A. R. people the 1-cent a mile rate asked for the St. Paul encampment.

Heavy snows prevailed in Mississippi yesterday and much damage was done to fruit and vegetables.

Lino Nava, alleged defaulting postmaster of the City of Mexico, was arrested at 4 o'clock yesterday morning in an obscure suburb of that city and consigned to Belem prison. He has been in hiding for two years. First he fled to San Francisco and returning to Mexico, has lived near the city, going out only at night. He was discovered by accident.

Harley Davidson, of Toronto, beat Joe Donohue, the champion skater at Washington, yesterday, by two yards, in the two and a half miles indoor skating championship race. No time was taken.

Peter Feely, an A. D. T. boy of St. Paul died yesterday of hydrophobia. He was bitten a year ago and four deaths from bites of the same dog have resulted.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the floor of the office of the Diamond Mill company in Grand Forks collapsed and wrecked the office furniture and windows. The floor was loaded with twenty tons of bran and flour and fell without a moment's warning. Chief Engineer Satterlee escaped injury by jumping into an adjoining office. Ten minutes before George B. Clifford and his two brothers were sitting in the office and hardly left the building when it collapsed.

The state board of agriculture of North Dakota held its annual meeting at the Dacotah hotel in Grand Forks and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, John J. Dow, of Grand Forks; vice president, C. H. Sanford, of Courtney; treasurer, A. J. Cole, of Grand Forks; secretary, J. G. Hamilton, of Grand Forks. Active steps will be taken to secure an appropriation from the next state legislature so the buildings can be erected in time for holding a state fair in the fall of 1897 on the grounds donated by citizens of Grand Forks.

The city of Jamestown will elect an entire new set of officials—from mayor to dog catcher—April 6. All officials hold office for two years instead of one, as heretofore was the custom.

The Business Men's union of Grand Forks held a meeting Thursday evening, when a resolution was passed approving of the protest of the Lake Carriers' association against the construction of a bridge across the Detroit river by the Michigan Central Railroad company.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The resignation of M. H. Rowley, as receiver of the Black Hills National bank at Chamberlain, has been accepted by the comptroller of the currency, but the resignation will not take effect until the close of the present quarter. In the interest of economy the comptroller has decided to consolidate the receiverships of the First National bank, of Hot Springs, with the Black Hills National bank, and Thomas E. Micklejohn, at present receiver of the former will, after April 1, have charge of the business of both banks.

A young man named Barnhart attempted suicide at Aberdeen by cutting his throat. He inflicted severe but not fatal injuries on himself. He was despondent over a love affair.

Upon information of State's Attorney Pendergast, the drug stores of Nathan Johnson and Redmond & Fitzgerald at Miller were closed for violating the prohibitory law. A large amount of liquor was confiscated by the sheriff.

The Republican county convention will be held at Mitchell March 14, when nine delegates will be chosen to attend the state convention at Huron. The sentiment among the people here is very strong for Senator Allison, with some other Western man as second choice, and McKinley as favorite among the Eastern candidates.

After the hardest campaign ever fought in this state, Senator Pettigrew last night carried the caucuses in every ward of Sioux Falls and nearly every precinct in the county by majorities of two to one. The combination which had been formed to prevent his going as a delegate to St. Louis is killed.

ITS HISTORY.

How Texas Charlie's Life Was Saved by the Indians.

THE ADVENTURES OF A UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SCOUT. THE SAME REMEDY THAT EFFECTED HIS CURE NOW USED THROUGHOUT THE CIVILIZED WORLD.

SOME years ago Mr. Chas. Bigelow, now one of the proprietors of the famous Kickapoo Indian Remedies, was acting as a government scout in the Indian territory. He was known at that time as "Texas Charlie," and while on one of his expeditions was taken sick with a severe fever, and for a few days lay at death's door. During his sickness he was cared for by an Indian Chief and his family, in whose lodge he lay, so weak that he could hardly raise his eyelids. An Indian doctor visited him, and gave him that now most famous of Indian remedies, Indian Sagwa, and by its use he was snatched from the jaws of death and restored to health, owing his life to the wonderful efficacy and curative power of this medicine. He then endeavored to persuade the Indians to give to him their secret of its ingredients. This at first they refused to do, but after much persuasion and many discussions they at last partially yielded to his request and the Chief of the Tribe sent East with Mr. Bigelow five of his most renowned medicine men, together with an ample supply of the roots, herbs, barks, gums, etc., used in the manufacture of their medicines. What started thus in a small way has ever since increased, and to-day there is manufactured from similar materials gathered by the Indians themselves, their famous remedies, which have done so much to alleviate suffering of every description. Throughout the civilized world there is no more potent remedy known for diseases resulting from a disordered condition of the kidneys, liver, stomach or blood than Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. This together with their Kickapoo Indian Worm Cure, Kickapoo Indian Salve and Kickapoo Indian Oil, makes a list of remedies that will accomplish a cure in all classes of sickness. These can be obtained at any druggists.

Upham to Anna M. Platt, by an instrument of assignment dated May 9th, 1882, and recorded in the register of deed's office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, on May 10th, 1882, at eight (8) o'clock a. m., in Book nine-seven (97) of mortgages, on page one hundred sixty-five (165), and which mortgage was extended by an agreement in writing between the said Anna M. Platt, assignee of mortgagee, and the said Henry C. LEAP YEAR PARTY.

The ladies of Jephthah chapter, O. E. S., carried off high honors at their dance given at Great Eastern hall last evening. About thirty couples were present from Duluth and their presence added much to the pleasure of the evening. The management of the dance was wholly in the hands of the ladies, and too much praise cannot be given them for their admirable work as floor managers. Professor Collins, of West Superior, acted as prompter, and the music was furnished by Bethune's orchestra.

Why is one woman attractive and another not? The most admirable and attractive thing about an attractive woman is her womanliness. Everybody admires a womanly woman. She must have health, of course, because without it she would lose the brightness of her eyes, the fullness of her cheeks and her vivacity. Real health must mean that a woman is really a woman. That she is strong and perfect in a sexual way, as well as in every other. That she is capable of performing perfectly the duties of maternity. Some are born with what is called "constitutional weakness." Those who do not enjoy perfect health, need only take the proper precautions and the proper remedy to become perfectly well and strong. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure any derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. Sold by druggists.

dissera. He claims that the plan of battle was carefully mapped out between himself and his generals, that the latter approved it and that it would have succeeded, had it not been for the fact that the native troops under the Italian flag became panic stricken, and so brought about the complete defeat of the Italian forces. Disinterested judges still hold that the real cause for the defeat of the Italians is to be found in the almost unceasing clamor of certain newspapers of this city and other parts of Italy at the alleged inaction of Gen. Baratieri. These apparently unjust comments upon his conduct of the campaign seem to have goaded him to push forward when good generalship would have avoided such a step until the plan for the advance upon Tiger were completed, which is not believed to have been the case, as over 15,000 reinforcements were on their way to him when his utter defeat was flashed from Massowah.

Politics, it also appears, may have entered somewhat into the situation, for Baratieri was recently elected a deputy, as a mark of public appreciation of his previous victories in Africa, and he was known to have formed political ambitions, possibly aiming at the war portfolio, when he met the great check which has wiped him out of political and military life for ever. "If he had only waited for reinforcements," say his friends. And that seems to be the key to the whole trouble. The general did not wait for his reinforcements, and the real cause for his failure to do so may be found in his possible political future, which was threatened by the taunts of certain newspapers at his alleged inactivity, when, as everybody now sees clearly, he should have remained inactive for quite a time longer. But the new troops also meant the coming of a new commander, and although he denies it, this may have been another feature of the case.

SLUMPED

Wheat is on the Toboggan Slide and Dropped Again Today.

A Heavy Outpouring of Long Wheat Responsible For the Decline.

Long wheat was plentiful at the opening today and buyers of short wheat were in large numbers at the very liberal concessions in price which was conceded by the holders. May, which closed at 62¼c yesterday, was for sale on the Duluth board at 61¾c, when trading commenced this morning. All that was offered at this price being quickly absorbed—by the shorts principally—and more being wanted, it soon reached to 62c. There was no fresh reason for the additional weakness, so it must have been because of a tardy recognition of previously existing conditions.

Liverpool, it is true, was quoted as opening ½d lower, but seeing that the weakness at Chicago on yesterday afternoon's curb was probably known in Liverpool this morning, a decline there of ½d indicated some undeveloped reason for independent strength. What it was became known here during the forenoon, when cablegrams were received quoting a later state of the Liverpool market describing it as firmer and from ½d to ¾d higher because of the news from Argentine, a Liverpool message reading: "Argentine stocks exhausted." While the latter was generally considered much too radical a statement to be believed, there were Liverpool advices by mail here which showed a material falling off of Argentine shipments.

If any heed was being given to the bullish features of the situation, the comparatively small receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth would have had some effect but with many traders afflicted with a virulent attack of lower-prices-on-the-brain, such matters receive no attention. Minneapolis and Duluth received only 290 car loads against 431 on the preceding Friday and 370 cars on the corresponding day of the year before. It appeared to be forgotten that the wheat in country elevators of the Dakotas will be assessed for taxation April 1 and therefore they would now be hurrying it forward if they had an excessive quantity, as they have hitherto done in previous years. The export clearances were 207,000 bus of wheat and flour together from the principal Atlantic ports.

May opened ½c lower at 61¾c, advanced to 62c and held fairly steady until noon, when it broke again under the weight of long wheat and sold down to the spilt 60¾-¾c. July opened at 62c, advanced ¼c and declined to 62¼c. The elevators bought 15,000 bus No. 1 northern to arrive at 1¾c under May. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 59¾c; March, 60c; May, 62¼c; No. 1 northern cash, 58¾c; March, 58¾c; May, 60¾c; June, 61¾c; July, 62¼c. No. 2 northern, cash, 55½@60½c; May, 58¼c. No. 3, 54¾c. Rejected, 51¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 60½c; No. 1 northern, 59½c. Rye, 35c. No. 2 oats, 18¾c; No. 3 oats, 18¼c. Flax, 86c.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of P. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, March 13.—Wheat was very weak on curb last night and opened weak this morning, causing heavy liquidating sales. Later Liverpool cables steadied the market by quoting higher prices consequent upon decreased offerings of Argentine wheat, but traders soon remembered the Liverpool advices a few days ago which quoted a weak and lower market on account of heavy offerings of Russian wheat. Later in the session the selling commenced again, and when the market struck 63c it toppled over a lot of pyramids and stops until a May sale at 62½c resulted. There was free liquidation of long wheat all day both local and for country account, and the bear traders and privilege traders who bought early to cover put out their lines again before the close. Outside advices were most uniformly bearish, and though long futures at Liverpool were steady, wheat for spot delivery was disgustingly weak. The outlook seems to favor 60c wheat again very soon.

Corn and oats depressed partly in sympathy with wheat and partly by free selling of the distant futures.

Provisions are the strongest thing on the floor, and the buying is of a nature that tends to the belief that we shall have a better market.

Puts, May wheat, 61¾c.
Calls, May wheat, 62¼c.
Curb, May wheat, 62⅝c asked.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MR. PETTIGREW'S VICTORY.

Senator Pettigrew is one of the senators whom the old goldbug Pioneer Press had on its little list marked for defeat. He is one of the free silver senators who were to be repudiated by the people and turned down hard at the first opportunity, according to the Pioneer Press. Mr. Pettigrew did not propose to be killed off in this summary fashion by any goldbug paper, and he decided he wanted to go as a delegate to St. Louis and take to the Republican convention a delegation from South Dakota that would vote for Cushman K. Davis for president.

So he returned home and began the fight. All the goldbug papers and goldbug politicians, and the McKinleyites, joined together in opposition, and it must be said that it was a lively fight. The South Dakota senator is a fighter of long experience, and he made a redhot campaign, from start to finish, and the result is that he has triumphed completely, and the McKinleyites and the goldbugs have been routed all along the line.

A Sioux Falls dispatch to the Pioneer Press tells the story in these words: "After the hardest campaign ever fought in this city or state, Senator Pettigrew carried the caucuses in every ward of the city and nearly every precinct in the county by majorities of two to one. The combination which had been formed to prevent his going as a delegate to St. Louis is killed. Pettigrew came here two weeks ago and has made a vigorous campaign, speaking in all neighboring school houses, charging his opponents with being railroad lobbyists, and advocating free silver. It is thought he will easily carry the state, and South Dakota will be against McKinley."

Possibly we will now hear less from the goldbugs about reading Senator Pettigrew out of the Republican party or retiring him to private life.

THE ROENTGEN RAYS.

It is remarkable how gullible the public is in regard to scientific discoveries. The latest proof of this fact is afforded by the many stories told about the Roentgen rays which are accepted by people of average attainments as absolute facts. They have believed without question some of the most absurd and improbable things. It is related that one well educated and well read gentleman expressed the idea that by use of the rays a perfect photograph of any person could be obtained through a wooden door. He did not realize that the rays would have to be behind the person to be photographed and that then the shadow simply of the body more marked where the bones occurred would be drawn through the door and produce the image on the photographic plate.

However, the discovery is but in its infancy and Consul General DeKay, at Berlin, reports many recent developments of the discovery by German scientists which are unknown in this country. For instance, he reports that they have been used to detect false pearls after an exposure of forty-five minutes and an Austrian professor has discovered that they can also be used to detect false diamonds. A Berliner has made a special photographic paper for the direct reception of the rays. In consequence it is now unnecessary to make a negative, and so the reversed impression incident to the negative is obviated. Moreover it has been found that many pictures may be taken at once in this manner, by using a packet of the sensitive paper, since the rays penetrate all of the layers.

Rector Bender in Spies has succeeded in passing the rays through a brass counter, the resulting photograph showing the inscription on one side and a bird in relief on the other. New methods of work have been brought to light. The length of exposure has been reduced from one hour to a few minutes. The heavy charges of electricity which destroyed so many crookes tubes have been found to be unnecessary. Moreover, the tube itself is not required and an ordinary incandescent electric lamp suffices if the metal plate is placed at a certain distance to it to serve as a center for the cathode or X rays.

But one of the most important applications of the rays has been made surgically. By placing a subject to be examined before a screen faced with a mixture of barium, platinum and tyanum and allowing the rays from a tube enclosed in a dark cloth to traverse the body, the impression can be seen by the eye on the surface of the screen which is rendered florescent where the rays fall uninterrupted upon it, and the surgeon is consequently enabled to move the subject freely before the screen and examine the interior of the body for foreign substances or hurtful growths and distorted bones. It is in the practice of surgery that the discovery promises to be of the most practical value. The reduction of the length of exposure is adding to its usefulness in this line.

TUNNELING DETROIT RIVER.

According to a Montreal dispatch published today, President Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific, said that his road has nothing to do yet with the proposed bridge over the Detroit river, but would probably use it, if built. He added that a tunnel was first spoken of, but its practicability was too uncertain to justify undertaking the enterprise.

The Grand Trunk built a tunnel under the river between Port Huron and Sarnia, and no one heard anything about its practicability being uncertain. It has been asserted by the best engineers in the country that a tunnel beneath the river at Detroit is practicable and would cost no more than a bridge with piers that would be serious and dangerous obstructions to navigation. That a safe, commodious, well lighted, well ventilated tunnel, cheaper in the first instance and in maintenance, can be built, is shown by reports of boards of engineers made by congress in 1879, 1889, 1890 and 1894. Gen. William Sooy Smith, one of the most eminent engineers in the country, has certified that a tunnel can be built for $3,000,000. Lyman E. Cooley, of Chicago, another well known expert names the same figure, and S. G. Argtingstall, John Nicol, George Chambers, Henry Collins and D. Farrand Henry and other engineers agree as to the feasibility and economy of building the tunnel.

In view of these facts, President Van Horne's statement that the practicability of the tunnel is to uncertain will hardly stand investigation.

THE JAMESON RAIDERS.

The decision of the London police court, in which Dr. Jameson and associates are being examined, will do much to settle the status of the British army, as well as of filibusterers. Because among those arraigned with Dr. Jameson are thirteen officers of the British army. The Kansas City Star says that Dr. Jameson might possibly seek to be excused on the ground that he was an irresponsible person, a professional filibuster like Gen. "Billy" Walker, who was shot in Central America years ago, but Dr. Jameson's associates who took part in the armed invasion of the Transvaal and who are now brought into court, all bore her majesty's commission and were regularly serving in the royal army. It is just as if when Walker was captured in Honduras a score or so of officers of the regular army of the United States had been captured with him. What in that event would have been regarded as the position of the United States government in relation to Walker's enterprises.

It is not of so much moment, adds the Star, what may be the fate of Dr. Jameson, but it is a matter of great interest to peaceful and neighboring countries what may be the decision of the court in regard to these British army officers. The British army is everywhere; we have all heard of that drum beat of the British soldier which follows the sun in his journey round the world. Is it to be understood that wherever there is a British garrison or military force that the majors, captains and lieutenants may, calling on the rank and file to follow them, start off on a raid into a neighboring country, the government of which is at peace with Great Britain? That pirates, robbers, filibusters, adventurers, should do such things is sometimes to be expected. But is it to be considered the regular practice of officers of the British army?

The raid was a gross violation of the rights of the Transvaal and an insult to the dignity of Great Britain, according to the claim now made by the British government. Had it been a successful raid, it is hardly likely that it would have been regarded as an insult by those who conduct affairs in Downing street. The animus of the whole affair is found in the desire of the British South Africa company to seize more territory, and in this respect it does not differ from the policy pursued by other English companies and adventurers and approved by the home government when attended by success. The South Africa company includes some of the socially most prominent men in Great Britain, the duke of Abercorn figuring on its board of directors while others of the aristocracy have "lent their names" to the enterprise. The main fact brought out by the evidence thus far is that the rank and file of Jameson's men were inveigled into the raid, only learning when it was too late to retreat or withdraw from the force, that they were not being led against a native chief as they had supposed, but against the Boers. Testimony to this effect was given in the presence of a distinguished audience, among those who heard it being the duke of Abercorn and others, who if they did not incite Jameson to raid the Transvaal must be grossly indifferent to the affairs of the corporation of which they were directors.

There will no doubt be sufficient influence used to secure only a nominal punishment of the raiders, if they should be found guilty, because Dr. Jameson is regarded by millions of Englishmen as simply one who dared, as a man who did what he saw people in high places wanted to have done without their connivance becoming public. Although on trial in the Bow street police court, Dr. Jameson is the most popular man in London today.

THE LEE SENTIMENT.

The News Tribune, which the other day ungratefully referred to "the Washburn gang" in terms of derision, affects not to perceive any sentiment in St. Louis county or other Northern counties in favor of William E. Lee for governor. As the News Tribune feels compelled to support Governor Clough, owing to their close relationship, it is not astonishing that it refuses to see any Lee sentiment here. And perhaps it is an excellent thing for Mr. Lee that it has adopted this course, because its support is something that candidates in this county do not seek, regarding it as a serious handicap. Inasmuch as Governor Clough needs all the help he can get, he is to be pitied for having incurred the support of the News Tribune.

But let the News Tribune keep its weather eye open and it will possibly perceive some things political that will astonish it. And not the least prominent of these things will be the strong Lee sentiment developed in St. Louis county.

Those wise words of advice from the president of the Christian Endeavor society show the spirit of that organization, and its ruling desire to promote harmony and prevent any lack of concord between its members and the churches whereof they are also members. President Clark writes to the Endeavorers: "Whatever work you undertake as unions for missions, citizenship, evangelism, or anything else, always and everywhere seek the approval of your churches. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it will be given, and in the hundredth case, do not do it."

The Marysville, Mo., Tribune is writing up the popular pastors in the region whose public opinion it moulds. The breezy quality of the sketches promises to make the series a unique contribution to ecclesiastical biography, judging from the following sample: "Preacher McKinney, of Hopkins, is what the sports call a 'crackerjack.' He looks like a sport himself—of the tin-horn variety. He dresses like a follower of the races, uses tobacco, swears occasionally, invents perpetual motion machines and makes an occasional bluff at practising law."

The first number of the Northwestern Miner and Marine Review has been issued by Col. A. E. Chantler, the former manager of the News Tribune. It is to be a bi-weekly journal and will be devoted exclusively to the mining and marine industries at the head of the lakes. The first number is filled with interesting matter, and the publication promises to be a success.

The bolting from the two great national parties, of which so much is heard just now, says the Boston Transcript, will present to ambitious politicians, if each party should nominate its strongest candidate, an aspect very unlike what it does before the respective conventions have passed the ordeal of placing the tickets before the people.

On the authority of one of the several annual publications dealing with the nobility and gentry, the London Times estimates that there are about 14,000 persons who may be included "among the aristocracy" of the United Kingdom. It will be observed that the upper ten thousand is growing, but is by no means catching up with the lower ten millions.

Callias Bey, the titled Greek who wedded the widow of Phineas T. Barnum, having "shaken her down" pretty thoroughly, is reported to have "shaken" her entirely. She is now on her way home from the isles of Greece with less money and more experience. Titled foreigners are expensive luxuries.

Mark Hanna denies that money is being used in McKinley's interest. Well, what is being done with the campaign fund to which many manufacturers have contributed. And how is John Goodnow going to get back his expenses? Go to, Mark, and tell the story to the marines.

On March 17 the English house of commons will debate a motion urging the government to become a party to an international monetary agreement, and it is not unlikely that the motion will be adopted.

The latest name suggested for the new convention building in St. Louis is the Pantheon. This is an excellent name, and its use will be a relief to the ear tired with hearing of auditoriums, etc.

The New York Mercury says: "Think as you like, Cushman K. Davis will go down to St. Louis with a strong Northwestern backing, and he also has a following in the middle and Eastern states."

Senator Harris, of Tennessee, expresses supreme confidence that the free silver men will control the Democratic national convention. Grover's goldbug ideas are not popular with the rank and file.

Spanish newspapers are telling their people that the United States can muster but 40,000 troops. They should consult Princess Eulalie and her husband, who might enlighten them on this point.

Since Mr. Platt burst forth in song, it has been discovered that President Cleveland has a rich baritone voice. And it is safe to say that Cush Davis is a tenor of the first water.

Gas has been reduced in Washington to $1 per thousand feet. Considering the large supply at the capital, the price remains excessive.

Senator Pettigrew seems to have lost none of his popularity in South Dakota, if the result of the Republican caucuses be any indication.

For the best newspaper published at the head of the lakes this week, see The Saturday Herald tomorrow.

THE MOST SKEPTICAL

Must Banish All Their Doubts and Fears

When Confronted With Such Testimony to Merit as That Herein Given.

It is simply astonishing how many unsolicited endorsements of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets are daily received. Surely no remedy ever took such a hold upon the people and never was such earnest faith in a specific shown. As an example, here are a few from Boston alone and all received within two days:

Charles A. Hallowell, of the West End drug store, No. 165 Cambridge street, writes: "I find Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets the best selling tonic on the market. Those who have used them are more than satisfied with their efficiency. My personal experience and the testimony of those helped and cured warrant me in stating that they are most effective in restoring vigor and removing all nervous conditions."

Joseph A. Craig is the proprietor of the large barber shop at 29 Howard street and says: "My wife has used Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets for nervousness, debilitation and loss of flesh. The results are highly satisfactory. The Tablets are unequaled as a tonic. I also wish to state that my foreman who has been running down for three years and has tried many remedies without beneficial results has been fully cured by the use of the Kola Nervine Tablets."

William H. Knight is a well known apothecary located at 97 Court street and thus testifies: "The constantly increasing sale of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets and the favorable results reported from their use, warrant me in stating that you have put upon the market a remedy that sells upon its merits. Kola, in this form, is most desirable."

Edward Clacey is chief man in charge of Austin & Stone's famous museum and writes: "Your Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets have proved a great boon to me. I have been a sufferer from insomnia for some time. The use of the Tablets has resulted in almost instant relief. It is a pleasure to give you these facts."

No opiates, narcotics or poisonous ingredients of any kind used in this wonderful remedy. It stimulates the functions and restores health and leaves no trace of anything but good behind.

TOWNE'S GREAT SPEECH.

It Should Be Read By Every Republican.

Omaha World-Herald: The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record compliments Congressman Towne, of Minnesota, as follows:

"Mr. Towne made a really great speech upon the question of silver. He knew his subject. Emerson said: 'It is the universal nature which gives worth to particular men and things.' So Mr. Towne rose to the conception of great general principles. He passed beyond the incident, beyond prejudice or passion, and related himself and his subject to the universal nature. His mind is in an atmosphere of lucidity and he gave clearness along with his thought. His ideas were saturated with light. It was like that ptolemaic system of astronomy where all the planets move in cumulative spheres because he gave the garter of intellectual knighthood to all of his listeners. He was speaking upon an abstruse question, and he made it so clear that each hearer felt his intellectual worth enhanced by the ease with which he could understand a difficult subject.'

These are strong words of praise for the maiden speech of a new member who has not reached the age of 38, but they are fully deserved. Mr. Towne's speech was remarkable for felicity of expression for irresistible logic and for the bold and commanding spirit which pervaded it.

It was the utterance of a Republican, and that, too, a Republican from an agricultural state. It ought to be read by every Republican in the Northwest. The World-Herald will, at an early day, be able to state the cost of copies of the speech when ordered in large lots for distribution, but until then the readers are urged to write to Mr. Towne direct. He is not a rich man and cannot afford to distribute his speech at his own expense. Send him a stamp and ask him for a speech, or send him a large sum and ask him to send as many as the amount will pay for. Distribute them among your Republican neighbors; it will make converts wherever it is read.

WHAT IS THE MATTER NOW?

Princeton Union: Congressman Towne has some fool friends in Duluth whom he had better call down at the earliest moment.

Anoka Union: The hoggishness of the Twin Cities pales into insignificance when compared with that of Duluth.

GRONSETH & OLSEN

THE ROUNDER.

General Manager Warren, of the Street Railway company, as a usual thing is not given to excessive smiles or laughter, while on duty, but the other day he received an accident report that sent him into spasms of laughter, and he has not stopped smiling yet. The company is bothered considerably by the number of children who persist in riding on the draft irons or dumpers at the rear end of the car. Conductors are instructed to keep the children off, but while they try to obey, the children manage to steal many a ride. It is not from niggardly motives that the company objects, but from a fear that some of the thoughtless little chaps may get seriously hurt. But to the story and report.

Conductor —— saw a boy hanging on to the rear end of his car a couple of days ago and stealthily tried to open the rear window, reach out and grab the boy, when he proposed to "yaak" him into the car and administer a lecture and let him go. The boy, however, heard the window open and quick as a flash essayed to jump to the ground. He made the jump, but there was a sound of tearing cloth and the boy hung by the seat of his trousers to the coupling pin at the end of the car, with arms and legs cutting irregular swaths through the atmosphere, which was not of a prepossessing character, that day. The conductor saw the boy's predicament; saw that he was safely hooked and the following brief dialogue ensued:

"Hello, Johnny! What's the matter down there?"

"I can't get off; boo, hoo, hoo," sobbed the suspended urchin.

"What are you doing there, anyway? asked the conductor.

"Nothin'; let me off," cried the unwilling tourist.

"Well, Johnny I'll let you off if you promise never to steal any more rides."

The boy yelled out his promise, the car was stopped and by the help of the conductor the boy was "unhooked" and fled like a deer.

The conductor's report stated the foregoing facts, and under the head of "Remarks" said: "Excuse me, Mr. Warren, I wish you could have seen the kid, it was too d——n funny for anything."

* * *

A few days before Chief Armstrong retired from office a funny incident happened at police headquarters one day. The chief owns a dog named Lion, which often followed him to the office and took a position at the door of Harry's private office. Secretary Force has occasion to visit the office of the chief frequently during the day, and the only way he could get into the room was by jumping over the dog. Force's "too, too, solid flesh" rebelled against this exercise, and he raked his brain to devise some means of getting rid of the dog. While rummaging in his desk he came upon one of the firecrackers bought for the entertainment of Humane Henry Hawkins on one of his recent visits to police headquarters, and he decided to try it on the dog, which was fast asleep. Tying a piece of cord around the cracker he placed it between Lion's legs. The cracker exploded and the dog flew into the air at the same time, and what a racket ensued! It was odds against there being a whole pane of glass in police headquarters when the dog got through. Lion was at last pacified and slunk under one of the desks. Shortly afterwards Chief Armstrong came in, and missing his canine friend, he whistled to him, but could not prevail on Lion to leave his new quarters. The dog went home that night and never came back.

HUNG JURY ON SPELLING.

Scraps of paper used as ballots by a jury in the criminal court, says the Chicago Tribune, were picked up in the jury room last evening. The jury had returned a verdict of guilty in some case, and this is the way four of the jurors spelled guilty:

"Gilte."
"Guillite."
"Gille."
"Gulltz."

The other eight good and true men managed to find the unlucky defendant guilty in the proper form.

DONNELLY FOR PRESIDENT.

The Ablest Exponent of Populist Doctrines.

New York Mercury: Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, is a bright particular star in the literary firmament of America.

He is a genius.

He has written a great many books, and written them well. He is a prodigy of industry.

He never wearies and never rests.

If in the field of politics he has accomplished nothing for himself, he has made it very uncomfortable for others. A great many people admire him for the enemies he has made.

He is the hero of many a forensic battle. On the rostrum he has no equal.

In all such contests he has never failed to skin and tan the hide of his antagonist, metaphorically speaking. He is an intellectual buzz saw that no one can afford to monkey with.

Just now he is publishing the Representative, a Populist paper at St. Paul, and its columns bristle with keen sarcasm, brilliant rhetoric and Populistic logic.

Socially he is a kindly man. He is a most exemplary husband and father. His domestic life has been a sweet and beautiful poem. But on the sea of politics he has always been a stormy petrel. The louder and fiercer the winds blew and the higher the waves rolled the better is Donnelly pleased. When he skins an enemy he pours vitriol on to add to his sufferings, in private life he is a Dr. Jekyll. In politics he is a Mr. Hyde.

The Mercury is glad to know that he is making a financial success of his paper. He always could fool "part of the people all the time."

Jacob, in blessing his eldest son, Reuben, said: "Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel." In politics Donnelly has been a Reuben—"unstable as water"—and he has not excelled. That is, he has not achieved personal success. He commenced his career with every prospect of a brilliant future. But his penchant for raising hades on every conceivable occasion deragated him to private life. Getting outside of any healthy political organization, he got several tons of brimstone and set up a little hell on his own account, and he is still doing business.

The Populists and free silver men ought to make him their candidate for president. He is by far the ablest exponent of their doctrines, and he has brimstone enough to carry him through the campaign and light up the political sky with a lurid glare. Why not start a Donnelly boom?

DECLARED FOR SILVER.

What Are Bimetallists Going to Do in Minnesota?

Princeton Union (Rep.): Plank second of the Republican state platform, adopted at state convention, July 11, 1894: "The Republican party believes in the use of both gold and silver as money, maintaining the substantial parity of value of every dollar in circulation with that of every other dollar. It believes in bimetallism and that the restoration of silver as ultimate money to the currency of the world is absolutely necessary for business prosperity, proper rates of wages and the welfare of the people. Holding these views, we believe it should be the policy of the United States to do everything in its power to promote the restoration of silver to the world's currency."

This was the currency plank on which the Republicans of Minnesota were returned to power in 1894. The same platform which endorsed the statesmanship and the administration of Nelson as governor, of Davis and Washburn in the senate, and of Fletcher, Kiefer, Tawney and McCleary in the house, declared for "bimetallism and the restoration of silver." The platform on which Tawney, McCleary, Heatwole, Kiefer, Fletcher, Towne and Eddy ran for congress, the platform on which every state official went before the people, declared that the Republican party "believes in bimetallism and that the restoration of silver as ultimate money to the currency of the world is absolutely necessary for business prosperity, proper rates of wages and the welfare of the people."

Considering this pledge of doctrine is it not exceedingly wise and proper, indeed, if not binding upon the Republicans of this state, to send to St. Louis at the coming convention delegates who represent these views? Is it not a breach of faith to send goldbug delegates? And yet what silver supporter is being pushed for a position? The eminent politicians whose names are being heralded over the state are for the most part gold standard men. Where are the silver men? What are they doing? Why are none of them mentioned? Surely the Republicans of Minnesota are not going to send to St. Louis a goldbug delegation, in the face of the last state platform. Receiving 60,000 plurality on that platform, we are now going back on it. It cannot be. The silver forces of the party must be up and at work. No backing out can be permitted now. We cannot afford to stultify ourselves. Silver must be represented, and silver delegates must be put forward. Gold standard organs have repudiated the platform, but the Republican party has not, and Republican voters must see to it that silver men go to St. Louis.

REV. ZEPHANIAH MEEK, D. D.

Rev. Zephaniah Meek, D.D., is a household name all over the South. Since 1867 he has owned and edited the "Central Methodist," the leading paper of the Methodist Episcopal church in the South. He represented his state at the general conference.

He was one of the Kentucky commissioners at the Chicago Columbian exposition. During his ministry in the South he has built and dedicated five chapels. He writes from Caldettsburg, Ky., where his home is, as follows:

"I have used several bottles of Paine's celery compound for nervous trouble, resulting from overwork, and with immediate effect, as well as permanent benefit. It is the best nerve tonic that I have ever tried. It has also been used in my family with great benefit."

Tired-out, half-sick men and women need something more than a mere rest. They need a positive, unmistakable nerve food; they must have a reserve of nerve-force to draw from, before their heads will cease to ache and their nerves cease to tremble with neuralgia.

It is estimated that there are over 10,000,000 nerve fibres in the body.

So long as these minute tissues are kept fully nourished, one lives in blissful ignorance of any such thing as neuralgia, headaches, or even a nervous system, but let one become "run-down" and the nutrition of the body get low, and every one of these myriad fibres becomes a "live wire" within the flesh. Headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, and other forms of nervousness and debility result directly from a famished nervous system. Paine's celery compound is able to correct this faulty condition. It builds up the nervous system and sustains it. The brain at once feels the strengthening effects of the superb nutriment. There are thousands of men and women today who have been enabled to keep vigorously at work who must have given up but for Paine's celery compound.

At the earliest sign of reduced nerve force, inability to sleep, langour, or a gloomy habit of mind, everyone should look immediately to the nutrition of their nervous system and to the purity of their blood. Paine's celery compound will attend to both of these urgent needs more thoroughly and more speedily than anything else in the world. Paine's celery compound is not to be confounded with the common preparations, the sarsaparillas and nervines. Being the discovery of a man of science, Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of Dartmouth college, it has the support of the best physicians; they prescribe it universally; and the many sick persons made well by its use proves that that support is merited.

To the great majority of business men a vacation, to say nothing of three months of complete inactivity, is out of the question at this season, even when their brains demand a complete rest and their nerves ache and threaten them with prostration. Now, there are hundreds of business men and hard-worked professional men in this city in just this condition. What are they to do? Those who are tired out "run down" and debilitated at this trying season will do well to read some of the straightforward and convincing statements from the men and women who have ben cured by Paine's celery compound.

Nervous weakness vanishes before Paine's celery compound as mist before the strong, health-giving rays of the sun. Convince yourself of the fact at once, if your health is at all impaired.

WILL THEY BE LEGAL?

Improper Notice of Republican Primaries Given.

The county convention which will select delegates to the Aitkin and state conventions will be held next Friday and the caucuses on Thursday evening. The law provides that when caucuses are to be held by any party "it shall be the duty of the duly authorized committee of such political party for such county or city to publish a notice once a week for at least two sucessive weeks, the first publication of which shall be at least twenty days previous to the day appointed that such primary election will be held." Accordingly, the county committee prepared the notice and cause it to be inserted in the News Tribune, confident that the law had been fully complied with.

The morning paper, however, has announced that the caucus will be held on March 16. The question now arises, can this be corrected within less than a week of the date of holding the primaries and still be a legal notice? It is now impossible to give the voters twenty days notice of the time and place for holding the caucuses and if they are held next Thursday night will they be legal? In the case of mortgage foreclosure and other notices if a wrong date is given it must be corrected and the full number of insertions required by law given it in its corrected state. Why should not the law be equally strict in this case? If it is, the Republican primaries held next Thursday will not be legal, and then what? The blundering morning paper is the cause of the whole trouble.

AFTER EAST-ENDERS.

Commercial Club is Suspicious of Them.

The Commercial club declared a want of confidence in the council normal school committee last evening. The sentiment of the meeting was that the council committee looked at the normal school site from an East End point of view, and that the West End should have its representative on the ground at the conference with the state normal school board today to look after its interests and "keep an eye on the other fellows," as it was expressed.

The "other fellows" are the council committee members. To that end, the club committee on normal school site was heavily reinforced. Messrs. Swanstrom, Johnson, Hill, Downey, Sloan, Ole, Sievens, Fitger and Allen being added. These in addition to the three members heretofore appointed, makes a body that is at least formidable in point of numbers. It will undoubtedly secure one of its declared objects, which is to awaken certain East Enders who have professed ignorance of the club's existence to the fact that it is on earth. This committee declared its intention of going after the state normal board people in packs today, and taking the trail bright and early in the morning. The opinion was expressed last night that the Lincoln park site is the favorite with the board and will prevail if log rolling can be prevented.

In the course of the discussion, Duluth's representatives in the legislature were roasted, salted and sprinkled with red pepper for not having secured a bill carrying an appropriation. The attendance last evening was slim, there being but fifteen members present when the meeting was called to order, but the assembly made up in earnestness what it lacked in numbers.

The report of the retrenchment committee was passed over, the normal site matter engrossing sole attention, and so the world is left in suspense for another week as to the opinion of the club on that document.

The secretary was instructed to procure a copy of the Duluth-Superior bridge bill, which will be discussed at the meeting next Thursday. The names of I. Callahan and J. Wilson were proposed for membership. E. G. Swanstrom presided as chairman pro tem.

NICARAGUA'S WAR.

The Whole Country Under Martial Law.

New York, March 13.—A special from San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, says: A gentleman who has just returned from Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, said in speaking of the situation there: "It is difficult to know really what has happened at the front, but the government's position is undoubtedly very critical. The government's failure to follow up the victory at Niagrot is taken as confirmation that the government knows its force is insufficient.

The rebels are trying to gain time and endeavoring to undermine government rule in Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala. Honduras sent a force to the frontier with the avowed purpose of assisting the government, but is now said the troops are treating with Leonists and it is doubtful which they will take. Business is at a standstill and the whole country is under martial law.

FIGHT ON THE OCEAN.

New Scheme For a Corbett and Fitzsimmons Meeting.

New York, March 13.—James Wakeley, of this city, has received the following letter from T. H. Franklin, of New York, which he is investigating, and if the project is approved by his attorneys, he will make an offer for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, better than that recently made by the National Sporting club. The letter says:

"I have for sale a floating theater built on a strong hull, capable of seating 1500 people; is fit to go to sea or any point along the Atlantic coast. Could be used for boxing matches. She can be towed to sea outside the three-mile limit, which would bring her outside the jurisdiction of any country and not amenable to any law. This is just the thing to pull off any match with. The theater is fitted complete with stage, gallery, private boxes, seats, cafe, living rooms, etc. She is built extra strong, so as to stand rough weather. She cost $40,000, can be bought now for $15,000. Would like to hear from you."

THE PINGREE PLAN.

It Will Be Continued in Duluth This Year.

The most estimable plan for the relief of the poverty stricken without making them paupers, inaugurated by the exceptional mayor of Detroit, and therefore called the Pingree potato plan, will be again in operation in Duluth this year. The plan was a happy thought, and its success in Detroit and elsewhere bears testimony to its efficiency. Many a man who had nearly lost all in the struggle with his pride, which prevented him from asking public assistance, was rescued by the Pingree potato plan, and enabled not only to make an honest, independent living, but to lay by a few dollars of profit, which carried him through the hard winter.

There are many pieces of ground about the city which would make choice market garden sites. They are not in use, and it will be no trouble at all to induce their owners to loan them for the purpose of putting in practice the Pingree potato plan. Last year it was fairly successful in Duluth, but it was not completely successful, because so few seemed to be willing to get an independent living that way. The plan is admirable, and it is passing strange, when the county is paying out to its paupers $3000 more or less each month, that so few are willing to take hold of it. A living is assured any able-bodied man who will merely use his strength and the ground and supplies furnished by the Associated Charities.

Because the plan is called a "potato" plan is no reason why it should be confined to potatoes. One can grow almost anything in this section, and he will have one of the best markets in the world for his produce. To a large extent this should be the solution of the problem of how to care for the county poor, and it should result in a reduction of the sums now spent for caring for the poor.

It is drawing near the time to make application for these pieces of ground, and any one desiring them should apply to Capt. J. W. Miller, secretary of the Associated Charities, at his office in the Woodbridge block.

The county has already provided for making a start for these people. Last year $500 was appropriated to buy seeds for these people, and it surely cannot be all exhausted yet.

INDIANA ALL RIGHT.

Washington, March 13.—The navy department received a telegram from Port Royal, S. C., saying that the United States steamer Indiana was coming in the harbor this morning. The Indiana was out in this week's storm, and while no apprehension was felt concerning her safety, the news was welcomed by naval officers.

AMUSEMENTS.

MARIE WAINWRIGHT.

Tonight Marie Wainwright will appear at the Lyceum in "An Unequal Match," a comedy by Tom Taylor, and of which the New York World said: "The story of the comedy is familiar, telling of the transfer of a beautiful girl from an humble home to a position in society to which she has never been accustomed; her inability to change her simple, natural manners to fit the artificial conditions of her new station; the estrangement this causes between herself and husband brought the wiles of an adventuress; and her ultimate triumph, when she comes out as the well-bred, self-contained woman of the world. The role is trying and none but a finished actress can hope to fill it successfully."

Tomorrow afternoon "Camille" will be presented and tomorrow evening "Daughters of Eve."

THE TEMPLE QUARTET.

The Temple quartet will give a concert at the First Methodist church in the Star lecture course series. The quartet is composed of E. M. Spears, first tenor; E. F. Webber, second tenor; Robert Bruce, baritone and accompanist, and L. B. Merrill, bass. The Worcester Gazette says of the quartet:

"For many years the Temple quartet and thoroughly artistic and pleasing performances have been associated in the minds of musical people, and every one who was present at last evening's concert felt that the members of the quartet were deserving of the many good things that have been said about them in the past."

PADEREWSKI.

If there were any doubts as to the success of the Paderewski engagement they have been dispelled by the large sale of seats which has already been made. If the great Pole does not pack the Lyceum it will be about the first time that he has failed to draw a crowd. There is about as much interest for some in his personal appearance as in his playing. The Boston Gazette said of him in this respect:

"He is tall and slim, pallid of countenance, his face is long and thin, and with sharply cut features. His hair, which is profuse, is of a reddish hue, and stands up as if electrified. A slight mustache decks his upper lip, and a very long neck protrudes above his collar—a peculiar and striking individuality generally; almost uncanny in the effect it produces at first sight, but tempered by a quiet, modest and dignified bearing."

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

Few plays of recent date have been more highly commended than "In Old Kentucky," which appears at the Lyceum on Tuesday evening, St. Patrick's day. It was beyond question the most successful play on the road last season. Three companies have been playing it in various parts of the country and all to great financial returns. The play tells a comparatively simple story in a stirring way; the types represented by the characters are interesting as well as human, and what is most important of all, they appeal to the heart. The production is an elaborate and expensive one and the scenes represented are remarkable for their fidelity to nature.

Notice For Sealed Bids.

Duluth, Minn., March 10, 1896.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned at his office, 104 Providence building, Duluth, Minn., on or before the 10th day of April, 1896, for the purchase of the leasehold interest in the Spalding hotel, Duluth, Minn., belonging to the estate of E. P. Emerson, insolvent. Said leasehold interest runs to the first day of May, 1899, and the rental reserved therefor is $12,000 a year from the 1st day of May, 1896.

The Spalding hotel is the principal hotel in the city of Duluth, and is doing a large and successful business. The gross receipts from the operation of said hotel during the year 1895 have been $131,000, and a large profit was realized over and above all operating expenses. In view of the general improvement in business and the rapid development at the head of Lake Superior, there is a probability of an increased business and profit during the next few years.

At the same time with the sale of said leasehold interest will be sold the good will, furniture and apparatus of all sorts and supplies, etc., on hand of said hotel and connected with the hotel business carried on therein, including the bar and billiard room furniture, supplies, etc. Each bid must name the gross sum for the purchase of the leasehold interest which shall cover the furniture, apparatus and supplies above mentioned, for cash. The leasehold and chattel property above mentioned is subject to a mortgage of $13,000, with accrued interest from December 9, 1895, which will be paid out of said purchase price. Possession of the property will be given on the first day of May, 1896. If a bid is made which shall be approved by the district court. Right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Each bid must contain a certified check to the order of W. B. Silvey, receiver, for 2 per cent. of the amount of said bid, to be returned if the bid be rejected.

Further information required will be furnished on application. W. B. Silvey. Receiver of the estate of E. P. Emerson, insolvent.

KAUFFMANN & YEZMER.

Part of Their Missing Stock Found in St. Paul.

Four cases of goods that were shipped to Kauffmann & Yezmer, the bankrupt merchants of Ely, Minn., who were indicted by the Ramsey county grand jury on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses, were recovered Wednesday afternoon at the house, part of which is occupied by J. B. Geiss, 450 Charles street, St. Paul. It is a coincidence, merely, that Jacob Geiss was the man that the St. Paul creditors of the firm sent to Ely to take charge of the stock. Mr. Geiss does more or less of similar work. He now has charge of a stock in North Dakota for the wholesale grocery firm of J. H. Allen & Co. He was not at home when the goods were stored in his house, and his wife thought that there was nothing suspicious in the circumstance.

A brief review of the case of Messrs. Kauffman & Yezmer may not be out of place. Last fall the firm purchased a $12,000 stock of general merchandise, largely of St. Paul wholesale houses. The men were considered reliable and but little cash was paid on the purchases. On Nov. 15 a bill of sale transferring part of the newly purchased stock to a relative was placed on record at Virginia, where Kauffmann & Yezmer also had a store. When the news of the transfer reached the ears of the St. Paul creditors they became alarmed and sent an agent to investigate. He found only a small part of the $12,000 stock on the shelves of the Ely and Virginia stores.

The firm made an assignment and Leonard W. French, secretary and treasurer of the house of Kellogg, Johnson & Co., jobbers in shoes in St. Paul, was made receiver. He found very little to receive. Kauffman & Yezmer were arrested on state warrants and brought to St. Paul. They spent some time in the county jail. The grand jury took up their case and returned bills against both men, charging them with obtaining goods under false pretenses. Judge Willis heard the cases on one of the counts and discharged the men. It was shown that their representations of financial reliability were made to a mercantile agency, and not to the firm alleged to have been defrauded. On another count a stay could not be obtained for the return to the city of the principal witness, Ambrose Guiterman, and the case was dismissed.

Just what had become of the $12,000 worth of goods was the question that puzzled the creditorzs of the firm. An investigation at Ely and Virginia was not without results, however. It was learned that the drayman at Ely had been instructed not to haul any goods consigned to the firm from the depot to the store unless asked to do so. Accordingly, as fast as the cases of goods arrived at Ely they were redirected to Virginia. The drayman at Virginia had similar orders regarding the consignments. Agent Nelson, of Virginia, told the detectives that the names of the consignees had been marked out with black paint. The other names on the boxes were also obliterated. New addresses were put on. These goods came back to St. Paul in the original packages. It was found that new names were given as consignors and consignees. The records of the railroads from Virginia furnished sufficient information for the establishment of this fact. The boxes were sent to unknown names in St. Paul. A few cases at a time were shipped, and as fast as they arrived in this city some one having in his possession the bill of lading called at the freight house and took them away. It is estimated that $10,000 worth of dry goods, boots, shoes and notions was disposed of in this manner.

Four cases and a trunk were found in the Charles street house, and there is no doubt they contain part of the $12,000 stock that was never paid for. The rest of the stock is supposed to be stored at different places in St. Paul.

THE SITES

The Normal School Board Looked Them Over This Morning.

The Cromwell Site and Several Others Were Not Considered.

One of the East Lawn Sites Will Probably Be Selected.

Five members of the state normal school board arrived this morning and registered at the Spalding. After performing their ablutions and enjoying a hearty breakfast, the party gathered in front of the Spalding's hospitable open fire-place, in which a cheery fire was burning, and picked their teeth. Duluth had arranged for a consignment of her finest weather and a Minneapolis man remarked that the Zenith City is where he should go to escape winter's blasts hereafter.

Aldermen Crandall, Richardson and Twenty and Clerk Richardson arrived and the party was soon after joined by the mayor. Introductions and handshaking followed. The members of the committee who are here are, President Castle, of Minneapolis; Secretary Pendergast, of Hutchinson; ex-Congressman S. G. Comstock, of Moorhead; W. J. Mitchell, of St. Cloud, and C. A. Abbey, of Winona. President Hale, of the council, came in a little later. A deputation of traffic and a hum of excitement in the street was heard and the very numerous committee from the Commercial club marched in, deploying by platoons, led by E. G. Swanstrom, and each member affixed an eye on the council committee. In accordance with the program announced at last night's meeting of the club. Their interesting ceremony was not sooner over than President Denfeld and W. A. Pryor, of the board of education, arrived and the party boarded the carriages in waiting and the round of the sites was commenced, the Forty-second avenue east location being the first on the list. All of the sites will be visited but those at Lester Park and Woodland, both of which the state committee has already seen.

SEVERAL ELIMINATED.

The state board committee and escort returned to the hotel at 1230 o'clock. The beauties of the visitors had been sharpened by Lake Superior ozone and they proceeded at once to dinner, exhibiting a unanimity of sentiment in that particular at least. Conversation with members of the board revealed the fact that no condition attached to the J. H. Cromwell site, located on Superior street, midway between Duluth and Lakeside, requiring that a $100,000 building be erected thereon, it impossible for the committee to consider it. Nor will the Magoffin, Lester park, Woodland, West Duluth or Hunter park sites be considered. Further than this no expressions were elicited, either at the hotel or during the tour of inspection, that throw any light on the choice that would be made.

When the board came together after the dinner hour there was a general discussion of the various sites. The Lincoln Park was quite favorably considered, but the sentiment seemed to be in favor of lot 29 and block A, in East Lawn division. This site is situated at Fifth street and Twenty-third avenue east, one block from the street car line. It is offered by Richardson & Day for $8000. This site will undoubtedly be selected.

Later—A hitch has developed. It was discovered that the East Lawn site would only contain six acres by going into the street. The board would not accept anything short of six acres, clear of the street line, and it therefore heard from Capt. Allen on the Lincoln Park site. Meanwhile Mr. Day is figuring and may be heard from again on the East Lawn site. At first notice he was unable to add anything beside the lots above mentioned.

BORGSTROM REPLIES.

Claims to Have Run His Office Economically.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you please allow me space in your paper to make a complete statement of all business transacted in my office during the year 1895, showing the amount of each receipts and work done for which this office should be credited, as well as all disbursements or expenses in the form of register's salary, clerk hire and incidentals for which the office should be charged.

Taking for granted that the readers of your paper, and especially my friends, who saw the article in your issue of March 10, wherein I was severely criticised and held up as a masterpiece of reckless ness and extravagancy in running this office, will be anxious to hear from me, whether I plead guilty to all of those accusations or not, I have decided, without entering into any controversy with the reporter who framed and wrote that article, and without unfriendly feelings to either him or the parties at whose instigation the same was done (and who will certainly be known further on), to settle all dispute between this reporter and myself and for the purpose of giving him the benefit of all the truth there is in it, as well as to let the public know the actual result of my first year's business in this office. I will ask the same paper to bestow upon me the courtesy of publishing the following, which is a copy of my annual report filed with the county auditor at the beginning of this year., and which can be seen by any one who so desires by simply asking the county auditor for the same. The report reads as follows:

"In compliance with the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, I hereby submit a statement showing the business transacted and the total amount of earnings by this office for the calendar year ending Dec. 31, 1895, and the amount of costs and expenses for said year.

The above certainly cannot be disputed by any one, and will have to stand unaltered by any and all the newspaper articles that may be written to the contrary from now and forever more. But here the illustrious Herald reporter interposes and will in all probability find food for another article of the same nature in the matter of the Lake county bill, which was not collected in full—to which I will say right here that I am not responsible for the said reduction. I did the work of comparing and certifying to between 1100 and 1200 instruments, and acting under the advise of the state general attorney, I charged the same price as I would a private individual, and no one will dispute but that the amount of work on part of this office would be the same whether the work was done for a private individual or for a county. I turned the bill over to the county commissioners, for collection, as they alone are authorized to make settlement in cases of that kind. There is a special law which really debarred them from collecting more than 10 cents for each instrument, and they were compelled to make such settlement, but I am free to say that they did the best they could for the interests of our county.

Without any further remarks, refutation or discussion over the figures given in the article to which the above is intended as a reply, the above will have to stand as incontestible evidence in the case and the reading public will be the judges, each one for himself, and they will decide whether the affairs of this office have been so badly managed during the last year as was prognosticated in the great write up which I received last summer. I have confined myself to last year's business alone and will at the end of the present year (or before turning the office over to the favored individual whom The Herald reporter should like so well to see in here, and whose way he so assiduously and illustriously paving, if he should be elected) render an account of all my doings for the year, and it is reasonable to expect that one year's experience in the office will enable me to do fully as well and better than last year. Anyway, if the two first months of the year fell short in business and left a deficit, there is nothing to prove that the result of the whole year will be the same way. And now I am through and The Herald reporter as well as everybody else who is interested in his reform work, is welcome at my office at any and all time and I will in the future treat them as well as in the past, as complacently and accommodatingly as I know how, and if I have failed in so doing heretofore, the same has been entirely unintentional on my part.

HAS A FAMILY.

William Johnson, who died suddenly at mile post 62, on the Duluth & Iron Range railway, appears, thus far, to have had no friends who take a sufficient interest in him to claim his body, and the remains yet lie at Bayha & Tibbetts' undertaking rooms. Yesterday a man who refused to give his name, called to see the body, and he stated that he thought Johnson had a wife and three children, the whereabouts of whom the man giving the information was unable to state.

THE COUNTY ROAD.

Commissioner Dinham Wants the Money Kept Here.

At the meeting of the board of county commissioners this afternoon Commissioner Dinham introduced the following resolution and as it seems to be in line with the idea of most of the commissioners it will probably be adopted:

Resolved, that no contract for the building of any portion of the roads provided for in the late bond issue, shall be let to any person who is not a resident of St. Louis county; and that no one who is not a resident of St. Louis county shall be employed to perform any labor on said roads.

Further resolved that, as far as possible, all materials used in the construction of said roads shall be purchased from dealers in St. Louis county.

Resolved further, that all unskilled laborers on said roads shall receive not less than $1.50 per day for ten hours' work.

Resolved, that the foregoing resolutions be inserted in the specifications.

It is further resolved, that no contractor shall be allowed to contract for the building of more than five miles of said road.

Had Red Whiskers.

An excited individual walked into the office of the health department this morning and announced in a loud voice that he was looking for a fellow with red whiskers who worked for the board of health. John Rossiter got into a drawer, pulled it shut and peeped out the keyhole.

"He is a fat man, that fellow," said the visitor, John came out.

The visitor turned out to be John Beckerand he complained that Carl Claus, of 603 East Tenth street, keeps a cow-stable that is offensive to the neighbors. He further said he had complained to the board last summer and a man had been sent up to whom Claus had paid $5 for keeping quiet. This was the man with whiskers.

Dr. Routh could not find any record of such a man in the employ of the department—that is, a fat man with red whiskers. Claus later appeared and said "whiskers" was a cow doctor, and the money was paid him for services. Claus has a dead cow on his premises and was awaiting its removal. The animal will be removed today.

Friends Heard From.

The friends of Thomas C. Keefe, who was asphyxiated by gas in the St. James' hotel, Thursday night, have been heard from. Messages were received this morning from William C. Keefe and D. F. Keefe, of Morton, Minn., and Surveyor General Kerwin, of St. Paul, requesting that the remains be cared for until they arrived. The deceased was employed at Brown's lumber camp, on the Duluth & Iron Range railroad. It is said that he had a good home, and was not under the necessity of engaging in the laborious work in which he was employed, but was impelled by a spirit of adventure to see some of the less bright side of life.

Will Positively Appear.

Some persons have been spreading the report that Paderewski, the great pianist, has cancelled his date, and is not coming to Duluth on Monday next. This is false, and there is no ground whatever for the rumor. F. J. Marsh, the local manager, announces that Paderewski will positively appear here, and says any reports to the contrary have no foundation whatever. They have undoubtedly arisen from malicious motives.

Cutting, who has held the office of deputy marshal for two or three years, has resigned, having found that his private business required more of his time than he could give if he continued as deputy marshal, Marshal O'Conner has appointed Thomas J. Monahan to the vacancy. The office has no princely salary attached to it, but is fairly remunerative. If the bill pending in congress, which makes these offices salaried instead of relying on fees, passes, it will be a pretty good thing.

CANCEL

Minnesota's Claims to Certain State Lands Cancelled By Government.

Register Taylor Informs Attorney General Childs of the Decision.

State Will Undoubtedly Make an Attempt By Appeal to Recover.

St. Paul, March 13.—Attorney General Childs yesterday received a letter from the register of the land office at Duluth in regard to the state's claims to swamp lands in the Fond du Lac reservation in Carlton and St. Louis counties. Register Taylor states that Commissioner Lamoreaux has cancelled the state's claim in the 251 Indian allotments, which aggregate 1360 acres, and has also refused to recognize the state's claim to tracts aggregating 2320 acres, which, while they are not in the allotments referred to, are still within the limits of the reservations.

The ruling is in accordance with the positions taken by the department in the Red Lake reservation cases, and while the facts in regard to the treaties with the tribe may differ, the general principle involved is the same—the right of the state to swamp lands which at the time of the swamp land grant were included in Indian reservations.

While nothing is said in Register Taylor's letter about an opportunity to appeal, the attorney general for the state auditor will undoubtedly take one, and the preparation of the case will be begun at once.

Olathe, Kan., March 13.—Ex-Governor John P. St. John, in an interview here today, denied the statement recently made that he is or will be a candidate for president on the Populist ticket, or a candidate for congress in this, the Second district. Furthermore, he says that he is not an aspirant for any public office within the gift of any party.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Favorable News Booms Pacific Mail Holdings.

New York, March 13.—The stock market opened quiet but irregular, with the changes slight except in a few instances. General Electric was the feature. Simultaneous sales were made at the opening at from 39½ to 38½. Pacific Mail advanced 1⅝ per cent to 27¾ on the news of the safe arrival of the missing steamer Rio De Janeiro.

A general selling movement was inaugurated shortly after 10:15, in which Pacific Mail lost all of its previous gain, sugar a point and General Electric went down to about yesterday's closing figures. Other leading shares lost liberal fractions and at 11 o'clock speculation was heavy in tone.

Business was considerably restricted during the second hour, but a steadier tone prevailed. Sugar, Pacific Mail and Distilling met with support at the low level and improved substantial fractions. The changes in the balance of the list were devoid of significance and the market at midday ruled steady. The sales to noon were 94,000 shares.

New York, March 13.—A cable from London brings the news that Samuel L. Clemens, Mark Twain, is dangerously ill at Jeypore, India. The nature of his illness is not stated.

NO DEFEAT HEARD OF.

London, March 13.—The government was questioned in the house of commons today regarding the sensational reports circulated by a news agency that the Italians had suffered another defeat in Africa. George N. Curzon said the government had no news of the reported reverse in which the Italian garrison of Sabdevati, between Kassala and Agordota had been compelled to retreat to the hills. Mr. Curzon added that the telegraph line to Kassala was in working order.

BLUE BOOK ERRORS.

London, March 13.—Sir Richard Webster, attorney-general, replying in the house of commons to the criticisms upon alleged discrepancies in the Venezuelan blue book, said that the reason that all the quotations in the preliminary statement were not found in the appendix was that some of the documents were not printed. He added that all of the quotations will be found in the original documents, of which a second collection will shortly be published. Continuing, Sir Richard Webster said that the only case of a mistake was in a quotation on page 5, on which is a note giving general import matter which was inadvertently included in the textual quotation.

BELGIUM BIMETALLISTS.

Brussels, March 13.—The premier, M. P. Des De Naeyer, replying to a question urging the re-establishment of international bimetallism, said it was easy to acknowledge the importance of international bimetallism, should it be acquired, and assures the chamber that the government would acquiesce in any measure insuring by international agreement the stability of the monetary exchange of gold and silver.

OFFICERS RESIGN.

But Their Colonel Refuses to Accept Them.

Columbus, Ohio, March 13.—Fifteen commissioned officers of the Fourteenth regiment Ohio National Guards, Col. Coit commanding, tendered their resignations today, the senate having killed a bill to reimburse Coit for heavy expense in securing acquittal from a charge of manslaughter, based on the death of a man in a mob which was fired into by soldiers at the Washington Court House riots.

Col. Coit will return the resignations disapproved, holding that the terms of service have not expired; that the state needs their services, and that he will rely upon those officers to respond in defense of the state when called.

CANADIAN LABOR FEDERATION.

Ottawa, Ont., March 13.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Knights of Labor and other prominent labor men, it was decided to form a Canadian federation of labor, having no connection with the United States labor organizations, and to organize at once. Canadians believe there is no longer anything to be gained by their connection with the international association, since the alien law was enforced by the United States, which prevents a Canadian member of affiliated bodies from obtaining employment in the states.

One Man Dead and Another Badly Hurt.

Minneapolis, March 13.—Oscar E. Enburg, representative of the White Sewing Machine company, living at 2455 Tenth avenue south, died at St. Mary's hospital this morning from injuries received in a collision with an interurban car last night. Bernard Ivers, residing at 3713 Fifteenth avenue south, who was with Enburg, is at his home suffering from external cuts and bruises. He has a chance to live.

TO EQUIP NAVAL VESSELS.

Washington, March 13.—The bureau of construction and repair, of the navy department, today sent to the house committee on naval affairs a request for a special appropriation to put a number of war vessels into shape for service if they are needed. The committee is meeting today and discussing the advisability of granting the request.

TEXANS' LONG JOURNEY.

Fort Worth, Texas, March 13.—A party of pilgrims from San Zaba and Lampasas counties passed through this city today en route to Jerusalem. The pilgrims are well to do and have stood high in the estimation of all at their respective homes.

WAS FROZEN STIFF.

A Man Found Dead With a Broken Neck.

Minneapolis, March 13.—Gus W. Oster, of Dassel, Minn., was found this morning at 7 o'clock in the rear of 221 Washington avenue south. He was frozen stiff and his neck was broken. The coroner was at once summoned and after viewing the remains decided that death had been accidental. Oster had been about town for the past week. Last night, in the early part of the evening, he was playing pool in Eric Lind's place on Washington avenue, between Third and Fourth avenues. He was intoxicated.

No one is supposed to have have seen him until he was found this morning. From the position of the body, Oster must have attempted to have go up the back stairs and fallen backward and broken his neck. He was 30 years old, and is supposed to have been single.

Dewey is Mighty.

J. A. Dewey's wonderful rink of beginners defeated R. J. MacLeod's veterans in the D. R. Black medal contest at Glen Avon rink last night. The score was close, 16 to 17, and the fact that the beginners got one advantage of four points won them out. They put up a stiff game even now, and the old players prophecy that this rink will give them all pointsr soon.

The finals for the medal, between Dewey and Harry Hurdon, was to be played this afternoon if possible. If not, it was to be played tomorrow.

Released From Debts.

The first insolvent to be released from all liability from his debts under the laws of 1895, is A. C. Gilman. He assigned last January, and a few weeks later applied for release from his debts. A hearing was called and notice sent to all his creditors. But two objected, and, their claims are not included in the order filed this morning releasing Gilman from all personal liability or indebtedness incurred prior to his assignment. As to all other creditors the court orders judgment to be entered against Gilman, and then satisfied in full of records.

As Fine as Ever.

Miss Sarah Taylor, who has been in charge of the millinery department at Freimuth's for several seasons returned this morning after a month's absence in the fashion centers of the East. Freimuth's millinery department has always been recognized by the ladies of Duluth as the place to secure the finest and most stylish headwear and this season Miss Taylor says will prove no exception to the rule, as the stock and assortment will be the best ever shown here.

Willie—Sister has been asleep all the afternoon.

Washington Star: "Doan judge by pa'rantages," said Uncle Eben. "Many a boy gits er lessol baf wif his skates on by doin' jes' dat."

Life: Willie—I know sister would be glad to go skating with you, Ringway—What makes you think so? "She says she has been dying all winter to have you break the ice."

Boston Transcript: Mrs. Graves says her husband is the most considerate of mortals. "Why," she says, "I might wear a bonnet for ten years, and he would never hurt my feelings by telling me how shabby it looked."

Chicago Tribune: "I can overlook his past," sighed the grieved and mortified young woman, after a careful inspection of the ring she had just received from her lover, "but I own I am bitterly disappointed with his present."

The diamond was paste.

Philadelphia Press: He was proposing to the Boston girl, and in the fervor of his plea he leaned over her anxiously. "Pardon me," she said, "are you not getting a trifle too parsimonious?" "Parsimonious?" he gasped; "or as the vulgar would put it, 'close.'"

Cincinnati Enquirer: Ferry—Wright, considering that he is a poet, is not so awfully egotistic. I heard him admit that Shakespeare had done some pretty good work.

Wallace—Why shouldn't he admit it? Shakespeare is dead.

Chicago Record: "Mr. Insite, give the class your idea of optimist and pessimist."

"Yes, sir. An optimist is a man who is happy when he's miserable, and a pessimist is a man who is miserable when he's happy."

Harper's Bazar: "That's a wonderful light that foreign scientist has discovered," said Hicks. "It's so strong that if you let it shine through a pocketbook a camera will make a picture of money in it." "Jove!" said Wilbur. "I'd like to have some of that. If it could make a picture of money in my pocketbook I'd have an easier time with my creditors."

Yonkers Statesman: Yeast—Who is that richly dressed lady coming out of that fashionable restaurant? Crimsonbeak—She's an artist's model. "And this seedy looking fellow coming out of the free lunch saloon?" "Oh, he's the artist."

Washington Star: Let dogs delight to bark and bite; to do so is their fate. They can't be turned; they never learned, you see, to arbitrate.

Boston Transcript: Street Urchin—Mister, give me a match. Citizen—Sorry, bub, but I haven't a match about me. Street Urchin (exhibiting the package he has held behind him)—Then you want to buy a box. Only 1 cent. Thank you, sir.

Puck: Husband—Do you think it saves you anything to have a running account at that dry goods store?

Wife—I know it does. You can't imagine the amount of time it saves me. Why, I never have to stop to ask the price of anything I wish to purchase.

Somerville Journal: He—Well, darling, I hate to go, but it is time for me to begin to say farewell.

She—Why, Algernon, it is only 10 o'clock.

He—Yes, I know, but I have to be at the store at 7 in the morning, you know, and I must be away from here sure by half-past 12.

PAT OBEYED ORDERS.

While in front of Petersburg Gen. Butler received information that his favorite horse, Almond-Eye, had been accidentally killed by falling into a ravine, says the Boston World. Upon the departure of his informant he ordered an Irish servant to go and skin him.

"What, is Almond-Eye dead?" asked Pat.

"What's that to you? Do as I bid you, and ask no questions."

Pat went about his business, and in an hour or two returned.

"Well, Pat, where have you been all this time?" sternly demanded the general.

"Skinning the horse, yer honor."

"Does it take nearly two hours to perform such an operation?"

"No, yer honor; but then, you see, it took 'bout half an hour to catch him," replied Pat.

Gen. Butler cast upon his servant such a ferocious look that Pat thought he meditated skinning an Irishman in revenge for the death of his horse.

Charles Erickson Saved From Prison By an Unexpected Turn.

Clearly Guilty of Forgery But a Witness Failed to to Appear.

Archie McArthur, Hibbing's Justice of the Peace, Was Indicted.

Charles Erickson, accused by the grand jury of forgery, was a most surprised and gratified criminal this morning. The general impression is that he has not stopped going yet and that he is still wondering how it happened. All he knows that he is free, and that what looked like a yawning black gate to the penitentiary suddenly changed to a rosy roadway to freedom, and so gratified was he that he is still treading it to see how it seems.

This is the way it happened. Erickson was indicted by the grand jury for passing a forged check for $25 upon Gust Bergquist. The check was upon the First National bank of Superior, and one of the bank officials appeared before the jury and promised also to appear upon the trial. The case was taken up yesterday afternoon and the web of proof was slowly wound about the prisoner.

This morning when the county attorney got through with his case he announced that the bank official from Superior had failed to appear and the state rested.

Judge Moer said that that was the state's misfortune, and not the fault of the defendant. The needed witness could not be compelled to come, as he is not within the court's jurisdiction.

EVIDENCE WAS CLEAR.

The evidence was all clear and condemning. There was no doubt whatever that the prisoner was guilty and, moreover, it was said that he is a very hard case. But there was one thing lacking. The missing banker's testimony was necessary in order to prove that the check was a forgery. Under the circumstances Judge Moer had to order the jury to return a verdict for the prisoner, which was done.

"That releases the prisoner without further proceedings, does it not," asked Judge Powell, who was defending Erickson.

"It does," replied the court.

That was sufficient. Erickson picked up his hat and dived for the door. No one stopped him, and the luckiest criminal on the docket is probably going yet.

W. M. Abrahamson, the clothier, was also a witness for the state. He was subpoenaed for today, but he failed to appear. A court warrant was issued for him and he was brought before Judge Moer and fined $5 and costs for contempt. He promptly paid $7.90 and went on with his testimony.

John W. Fowler, who was indicted yesterday afternoon for taking indecent liberties with the person of Mary Miller, was arraigned yesterday afternoon and given until this afternoon to plead. He was released on $500 bail.

HIBBING JUSTICE INDICTED.

A. C. McArthur, a Hibbing justice of the peace, was another of the men who were indicted yesterday, and whose names were not given out because they were not in custody. He is now arrested, and was brought down this afternoon and arraigned. He is charged with willful neglect of official duty, and the specific charge against him is that he has been collecting money and not turning it over.

The other indictment is against David Forti, who is accused of keeping a house of ill fame at Virginia. He also was brought down this afternoon and arraigned on abench warrant.

Peter Duplais, a partner of Frank Muncia, of Virginia, was brought down upon the same charge. Forti runs the establishment in which the children reside which the grand jury ordered Humane Henry Haskins to remove.

Frank Muncia, charged with keeping a house of ill fame at Virginia; Albert Mitchell, forgery and Joseph Bareknack, manslaughter in the first degree, pleaded not guilty this morning. Anthony Jellier, Harry Glover and Eugene Soubident, charged with assault in the second degree with intent to rob E. E. Bonn, this morning withdrew pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty, Jellier as charged, and the other two to assault in the third degree.

There are no more criminal cases ready, so Judge Moer adjourned to this afternoon. Monday the Stuckey case will be taken up.

THE CIVIL CALENDAR.

This morning the jury in the Merritt case went out at 10:30 and was still out at noon. Judge Ensign then took up the case of Kate Kain against the Virginia Water company and others to recover $2000 damages to her home and her health. She alleges that early in the winter of 1894-95 the defendants conceived the idea of putting in a skating rink on some vacant lots adjoining hers.

In order to do this they began to flood the lots with water. When the rink was full it ran over. It ran into Mrs. Kain's lot, filled up her well, sent the potatoes and flour barrels afloat in her cellar, and when it was full it froze, just as the ice on the rink did. Mrs. Kain did not need any skating rink in her cellar, and she did not like it a bit.

That was not the worst of it, according to her complaint. The freezing of the water in the well ruined that, she says. The freezing of the water in the cellar ruined the foundations, she says. They spread and racked the house, causing the chimney and the plaster to break and fall. Moreover, it made the house damp, and this ruined her health. All this rack and ruin for the sake of a little enjoyment on the skating rink, and for it Mrs. Kain demands $2000 damages.

The case of the Northern City Fire Insurance company against the American Loan and Trust company was expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

S. F. Snively, president of the St. Louis County Republican club, has called a meeting for tomorrow, Saturday night. All members and also those desiring to become members are requested to be present. Delegates to the Republican State League convention are to be chosen, and other matters of importance considered. The meeting will be at the city hall at 8 o'clock.

RESCUED FROM SHAME.

A Wayward Girl Taken Home By Her Mother.

A scene was enacted in the woman's department of the central station this morning that emphasizes the truth that fact can give fiction cards and spades and beat it. A mother who for months had been sorrowing in her Canadian home for a daughter who had lost herself to home, friends and decency, clasped the child in her arms, her grief now changed to joy, and that daughter sobbed out her repentance on that mother's breast, while sunshine seemed to suddenly illuminate the gloomy corridors with its ironed windows.

A year and a half ago, pretty Millie Pritchard left her home at Rat Portage, Ont., angered at some fancied slight and went out into the world, drifting to Duluth, where she found employment as a scrub-woman at the St. Louis hotel. The work was hard, the pay poor and poor Millie's heart was weighed down at the prospect of the cheerless struggle for existence among strangers that stretched before her. The path of right living seemed stormy and there was a grey sky overhead. The other path seemed to be all sunshine and the quaguires were covered with gay flowers that deceitfully suggested a fair sward for tired feet beneath. She choosed the latter. She soon knew better, but it seemed to her to be everlastingly too late. Many a time she thought yearningly of home, but, convinced that she had sinned beyond forgiveness, she gave no sign. She did not know the strength of the mother's love that, step by step, was tracing her into the labyrinth of sin in which she was straying, to at last rescue her from the life that kills the soul.

She had confided to a companion between whom and herself had sprung up a friendship such as often brightens those places where her home now was. That friend fell sick and was taken charge of by the good sisters of St. Mary, and to whom she told the story of the friend. The chance of a rescue was grasped and the police were informed. The latter had already been appealed to by the mother, and last night a detective found Millie in one of the most notorious places on the "point," painted and bedizened, and she, being under 18 years of age, was mercifully laid hold of by the law, and taken to the central station. This morning the mother, who had traced her daughter to Duluth, was taken to her. Mother and daughter will leave for home at once.

A NEBRASKA FIRE.

Four People Rescued Who Were Unconscious.

Lincoln, Neb., March 14.—Fire broke out in the wholesale and retail millinery establisment of M. Ackerman & Co., at 12:30 this morning, and raged fiercely for over two hours. The entire department was called out. The building is in the heart of the business district and adjoining structures were threatened. The stock of Ackerman & Co. is practically a total loss.

The fire originated in the basement and worked through to the first floor and totally ruined the stock on that floor. It was confined to the Ackerman building, and the loss will be heavy and was insured for $40,000. Four persons including District Judge Cornish and State Representative Spencer, who had rooms in the building, were taken out unconscious by the firemen. One fireman was injured.

Abyssinians Well Supplied With Needful Stores.

Massowah, March 14.—The Negus has reviewed 15,000 of his troops in the presence of Maj. Salza, the Italian officer, who is treating for peace with the Abyssinians. The troops marched in good order and were well armed. Later the Negus showed Maj. Salza his quantities of provisions, the Italians having some time ago been under the impression that the Abyssinians were short of supplies. In fact it is said that this is one of the reasons that prompted the disastrous advance.

EGYPTIAN WAR CLOUD.

Cairo, March 14.—The advance of the British-Egyptian troops from Wady-Halfa up the Nile upon Dongola will be begun without delay, according to statements made in semi-official circles here. The Connaught rangers have already been ordered to Wady-Halfa.

VICTORY

Zelaya's Troops in Nicaragua Defeat the Leonists Most Decisively.

Rebels Lose 200 Killed and Have Many Prisoners Taken.

Troops Will Soon March on Leon, the Rebel's Stronghold.

(Copyright 1896 by the Associated Press)

Managua, Nicaragua, March 14, via Galveston, Tex.—The Nicaraguan government troops won a victory over the rebel Leonists and there is great rejoicing here in consequence. The battle took place at and about Pital, not far from Mom.tombo. Between 2000 and 3000 men were engaged. The fighting was severe and the troops from Leon, Chichagalpa and Chinandega, the three strongholds of the Leonists, numbering about 1500 men, were completely routed, with the loss of about 200 killed and wounded. Only about fifty of the government troops, which numbered about 1200 men, were killed or wounded.

The rebels were commanded by Gen. Ortiz, the commander-in-chief of the Leon forces; but Baca, the rebel president, was, at Leon, it is believed, supervising the work of putting that city in as complete a state of defense as possible previous to the arrival before it of the government army and the army which the government of Honduras has sent to the support of the troops of President Zelaya.

The government troops were commanded by Gens. Palse and Bodan. Pital is a small town near Lake Managua. Outside the town is a high ridge of ground which forms an admirable point of vantage behind the town, advancing 800. The government troops began to advance from Nagrote on Wednesday after a skirmish with the enemy, which resulted in the Leonists being driven backward with a loss of fifty killed and wounded. The government forces approached Pital yesterday morning.

The fire opened upon the part of the rebels commenced as soon as the troops were within range, but the government forces acting under explicit orders, reserved their fire and continued their advance taking advantage of all of the ground in order to obtain protection from the bullets of the Leonists, which are as rule either fell short or flew high above the heads of the troops. The result was that President Zelaya's troops were able to get within good striking distance of Pital with the loss of three killed and seven wounded. The Leonists, however, kept up the firing throughout the advance, and the government forces moved on Pital in four columns, each of about 300 men and took up positions in a half circle before the town.

The first and third columns opened a hot fire on the rebel positions and under its cover, columns two and four pushed forward at the charge until they reached much better positions, half sheltered by an unequality in the ground. From there they opened fire on the Leonists, enabling columns one and three to push onward. During this advance, thanks to the well directed fire of the government troops, the loss of the latter was trifling. All four columns then concentrated their fire on the ridge occupied by the Leonists and then began a series of short rushes forward and eventually there was a charge upon the ridge, a short bayonet fight when the summit was attained and then the Leonists broke and ran for Pital, pursued by the troops of President Zelaya.

When the Leonists reached the shelter of the town they made a stand, but by this time the two guns with the government columns had been brought into action and the Leonists were cannonaded very cleverly, considering the lack of training of the government gunners. The rest of the fight was not a walkover for the government soldiers; the Leonists defended the place stubbornly, but the troops pushed on and eventually entered the town, driving the Leonists before them at the point of the bayonet. The enemy afterward scattered and in small bodies fled toward Leon, after making a short stand outside of Pital and firing at low range on the new victorious soldiers of the government.

A few shots from the artillery, however, completed the rout of the Leonists, who left about 200 killed and wounded on the field, besides taking away with them a large number of men, who were slightly wounded. The government troops also captured over 500 prisoners in the houses of Pital, the rebels in nearly every instance throwing down their arms as soon as the soldiers broke in the doors of the buildings. There is much rejoicing here today at this further success of the president's soldiers and he is receiving congratulations on all sides. The church bells have been kept continually ringing ever since the glad news was made public and a battery of artillery has already fired three presidential salutes.

The blue and white colors of Nicaragua are floating from every building of any importance, and even the smallest mud hovels have displayed some kind of decoration in honor of the victory of the Nicaraguan troops. The success of the government troops at Pital is all the more pleasing to the inhabitants of this city, as many of the men engaged were Nicaraguans and Gen. Palse is a great favorite here.

The garrison of Managua was paraded this morning in marching order, and the commanding officers read the president's message announcing the victory to the troops. The news was enthusiastically received. The soldiers then marched through the capital cheering for the government, and the president said the government troops are now being concentrated for the advance on Leon, which will commence in a few days. Although no official announcement has been made it is expected that the Honduras troops will soon be in touch with those of Nicaragua, and as both republics suffer from the machinations of clericals, who are the mainsprings of the present rebellions, they will practically be fighting for a common cause, and the result should not be long in doubt, although it is understood that Leon and its neighborhood has been very strongly fortified and well provisioned.

BROWN TRIAL ENDED.

And the Pastor Waits For the Verdict.

San Francisco, March 14.—The Rev. C. O. Brown is waiting for the verdict of his ecclesiastical judges, and Miss Mattie Overman is speeding toward the southern boundary of the state. The case against the accused pastor is closed. Every witness has been heard and the last argument has been made. The sensational trial closed with a dramatic scene, in which men and women cheered the minister who is fighting for a reputation.

The executive sessions of the council have been held, but a verdict has not been reached on all points involved. The charge of immorality, so far as Mrs. Stockton is concerned, is not sustained. An informal ballot was taken which showed that the sense of the council was that the evidence was not sufficient to support the charge. The council decided that Mrs. Stockton's word, until corroborated, was not sufficient to convict Pastor Brown.

The second vote was on the charge of intimidating a young lady member of the church. The evidence on this charge was heard Thursday evening and seemed to make a deep impression on the council. This impression was confirmed in the executive session last night. The church was thoroughly canvassed and various members expressed themselves freely. One clergyman known up and down the coast is said to have expressed the belief that Dr. Brown ought to have been shot for his persecution of an innocent girl, in turning an innocent epithet to his own advantage.

The deliberations of the council developed the fact that the charges of intimidation made against the pastor by a young lady of the church are among the most serious of all. The council is here nearly unanimous upon this point than upon any other. Stubborn efforts are being made to convict the pastor on the charge of immorality, but it is believed a compromise will be made on a verdict of unministerial conduct, although Dr. Brown has several determined friends who wish to have him vindicated in all the issues.

ENGINEER CORPS.

Overworked Body of Important Government Servants.

Washington, March 14.—The frequent breakdowns of the engineer officers of the navy, attributable to hard work, will bring about the anomalous state of affairs that the retired list of the corps will soon become larger than the active list. The increase in the retired list has become particularly remarkable during the past ten years, or since the building of modern naval vessels with their complex machinery, and the figures prepared by the navy department on the subject fully illustrate this rapid breaking down of the engineers. On the first of January, 1886, there were 221 officers on the active list and seventy-one on the retired list, or 32.1 per cent as many on the retired list as on the active list. On the first of last January there were 173 on the active and 104 on the retired list, or 60 per cent as many on the retired list as on the active list.

In other words, the percentage of retired to active officers has almost doubled during the past ten years, covering the period of the upbuilding of the navy. Compared with the number retired in the other branches of the naval service, the figures are startling, and the engineer officers argue that they show that their work must be very much more severe than that of any other officers.

VICTORIA FORTIFICATIONS.

New Guns For the British Coast Defense.

Victoria, B. C., March 14.—Five new guns for the Esquimault land fortifications were received from England yesterday and will be placed in position at once. They are breech-loaders of six-inch bore with barrels 14.6 feet long. They are intended for Macauley Point, while the other two will be mounted here. The guns, though seemingly large, are not to be compared with two still to arrive and now at Vancouver. These latter are of 9-inch bore.

The works at Macauley Point are now well advanced, though but little of the fortifications can be seen. From this point guns can be discharged with terrible effect, and underneath they can be hidden with the greatest protection, the disappearing carriage being operated with hydraulic power.

A NIHILIST TRAITOR.

Offers to Become a Russian Police Spy.

Chicago, March 14.—According to the Tribune, one of the Russian Nihilists concerned in the assassination of Czar Alexander II. of Russia, has applied to the Russian government for a pardon, offering, if the pardon is granted, to join the Russian secret service and give the government valuable information. The Tribune says the name of the applicant is Gregor Krasnow, who for twelve years has lived in Chicago under an assumed name, carefully protected by his countrymen.

After the assassination of the czar Krasnow was arrested, but secured his release on bonds through influential friends and fled to America. For years the Russian police thought him dead. A prominent local Russian is quoted as saying that Kursnow has cost the exiles of his nation over $30,000. They regarded the money well spent until now. Krasnow, it is said, was in Chicago a week ago, but has now disappeared.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW.

Cincinnati, March 14.—The cigarette and the Ohio small boy are to be strangers henceforth. The legislature of the state has so decided. The house yesterday passed a bill prohibiting the sale of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco to minors, under 16 years of age. The senate had previously passed the bill and later in the day it became a law. Dealers violating the statute are subject to a fine of $25 to $100 for the first offense. For each subsequent offense the penalty is a fine of from $50 to $400, or sixty days' imprisonment, or both.

DECIDED

Secretary Smith Decides Boundaries at Red Lake and White Earth.

Holds Old Lines of the Reservations Should Be Adhered to.

Homestead Entries For the Lands in Dispute Will Be Rejected.

Washington, March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Smith today rendered a decision on the questions submitted to him as to the true boundaries of the Red Lake and White Earth reservations. In all the three lines, southern, northwestern and eastern, he decides that the old lines should be adhered to on the ground that to disturb them now would be to overthrow vested rights, which is against public policy and a long line of rullings by his predecessors.

As to the southern boundary he decides the line run by Surveyor Merrill in 1872, which was afterward confirmed and accepted by the department in 1885, to be the true line. As to the northwestern boundary, the secretary sustains the Adley survey of 1878 that the head of Thief river is at the confluence of the east and north branches of that river. This line has been accepted for more than twenty years; many entries have been made by settlers; swamp and school lands have been selected by the state, and to declare this line illegal now would be to imperil and annul the vested rights of these patentees and grantees.

In the matter of the eastern boundary, the survey of 1875 is sustained. The dispute in this case was as to what was the source of Black river. Butler's survey of 1875 designated the source of this river as the point where running water entered it from the east. The contention was made that the source of this western branch was the true source of the river, but the secretary holds that the line established by the original survey is correct. He also holds that to sustain this line after so many years would deprive indians of the vested rights to about 200,000 acres of land and about 25,000,000 feet of pine lumber which has been appraised at their expense. A number of homestead entries have been made for the lands in dispute and the secretary directs the commissioner of the general land office to dispose of those entries in accordance with his decision. They will, of course, be rejected. The secretary says that the state's swamp land claim will be disposed of at an early day.

MURDERER WALLACE.

He Expiated His Crime at Peoria Today.

Peoria, Ill., March 14.—Henry Wallace was hanged at Pekin today. The drop fell at 10:15. Wallace was hanged for the murder of his sister, Mrs. Bowlby. Dissatisfaction over the disposal of their father's estate was the cause of the murder.

Wallace passed a bad night, being sick all night with pains in his bowels. He partook of a light breakfast this morning, but was very weak and completely unnerved, having lost that nerve for which he was noted. At 11 o'clock, Sheriff Stout read the death warrant to Wallace and he then proceeded with him into the enclosure where the gallows were. He was placed over the death trap, and strapped and handcuffs put on him. The sheriff asked him if he had anything to say, and he replied:

"Not a word."

Then the rope was adjusted around his neck. Wallace shot through the trap with a struggle, and was pronounced dead a few minutes afterward.

SOUTHERN SNOW BLOCKADE.

Kansas City, March 14.—Specials to the Star from western Missouri and Kansas show that the most severe snow storm of the season is in progress. At many places snow has been falling for twenty-four and forty-eight hours. At Carthage Mo., and Pittsburg, Kan., street car traffic has been impeded. Crops generally have been benefited.

MORTON'S BOOM.

New York, March 14.—The Republican convention for the first assembly district was held today at Pittston. Delegates to the state convention were chosen and Governor Morton's candidacy for the presidential nomination was endorsed by resolution.

FATHER O'GRADY INSANE.

Cincinnati, March 14.—The circuit court today adjudged Father O'Grady insane and he was committed to Longview asylum. He is not expected to live long and will never be tried for the sensational murder of Mary Gimartin two years ago. He became intimate with the girl in Ireland. They came to this country together. When she attempted to get away from him, he pursued her and murdered her on the street in this city.

APPROVED BY GROVER.

Washington, March 14.—The president has approved the act making seven years unexplained absence proof of death in pension cases; to incorporate the supreme council of the thirty-third degree of Scottish Rite Masonry for the Southern jurisdiction of the United States and authorizing the distribution of World's fair medals and diplomas.

WANTS TO BUILD WARSHIPS.

San Francisco, March 14.—Gen. George B. Williams, of Washington, the founder of Japan's present financial system, and for five years the financial adviser of the Mikado's government, sailed for Japan today as the agent of the Cramps, of Philadelphia, to secure, if possible, contract for some of Japan's new warships.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

New York, March 14.—Daniel Ackerman, wife murderer, was condemned at Patterson, N. J., to be hanged April 24.

R. L. BELKNAP DEAD.

Succumbed to Bright's Disease in New York.

New York, March 14.—Robert Lenox Belknap died at his home in this city of acute Bright's disease. Mr. Belknap was born in this city on July 23, 1848. After graduating at Columbia college in 1869, Mr. Belknap connected himself with the firm of Fuller, Lord & Co., and in 1871 he was elected vice president of the Mercantile and Loan Warehouse company.

He became treasurer of the Northern Pacific in 1879, and retained that position until 1888. In business he was associated with William P. Stevenson and was besides president of the Northern Trust company, of West Superior, Wis., and a trustee of the Real Estate Trust company, of this city.

Mr. Belknap was married in 1870 to Mary Phoenix Remsen, daughter of the late Henry Rutgen Remsen. He leaves a widow, three sons and three daughters. He was one of the honorary associate editors of the American Historical Register and took great interest in the various patriotic hereditary societies of which he was a member. He was for several years one of the vice presidents of the Presbyterian Social union, of New York city.

Mr. Belknap always devoted much of his time to charitable and philanthropic work. He became a manager of the Presbyterian hospital in 1877 and was the treasurer from 1880 to 1892. He has been a manager of the American Bible society since 1879; president of the board of trustees of the Presbyterian church on University place since 1881; trustee of the theological seminary at Princeton, N. J., since 1887; manager of the Society of Lying in Hospital of the city of New York since 1881, and its treasurer since 1892; a member of the New York Sabbath committee since 1887.

He was a member of the Union, Union league, University, Down Town, New York Yacht, Sewanhaka Yacht, Pine Upelon clubs of New York, and of the Minnesota club, of St. Paul, and Kitchi Gammi club, of Duluth. He was formerly president of the Duluth Gas and Water company and was the first president of the Land and River Improvement company, of West Superior.

QUIET IN KENTUCKY.

Another Ballot With No Disturbing Influences.

Louisville, March 14.—A special from Frankfort says: Senators James and Walton were on hand early again this morning and had no difficulty in gaining access to the house chamber. The chief of police and sheriff with their assistants were on hand as usual. The sheriff made no attempt to clear the cloak room of the senate, but about 11:30 o'clock he ordered all persons except members and officers to leave the upper corridors and this was done. The crowd present, however, is much smaller than on yesterday and indications for trouble of any kind are few.

The joint assembly convened at 12 o'clock and everything passed off quietly. The call of the roll showed 131 members present, necessary to a choice 67. There was one pair, Freeman with Holloway. The republican senators refused to vote. Senator Hayward arose and declared that the preservation of the public credit requires the maintenance of a sound currency and that he would cast his vote for a man who favored these principles, John G. Carlisle, the greatest secretary of the United States since Alexander Hamilton. The announcement of his vote was greeted with cheers.

At the conclusion of the roll of the senate, Senator Deboe asked for the call of the roll of absentees and the Republicans then voted for Boyle. Populist Poor voted for Pettit. The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 35; Carlisle, 11; Boyle, 67; Pettit, 1; Buckner, 1. The chair announced that as no one had received a majority of the votes cast, there had been no election. On motion, the assembly adjourned.

AN IMPORTANT SUIT.

Government After Some Big Timber Thieves.

St. Paul, March 14.—Judge Riner, of the United States district court of Wyoming, is on his way to Minneapolis, where on March 17, he will try a very important case in which the United States is the plaintiff and C. A. Smith, John H. Ellsbury, Joel Bassett, William L. Bassett and the Pine River Logging and Improvement company are the defendants.

The United States claims and alleges that the defendants have, without any warrant from the government, cut timber on the Indian reservation to the amount of $467,-99, for which it demands judgment.

The case against the defendants was worked up with much labor by John Stryker, whom the government appointed its special counsel for this case. On the other side are E. G. Hay, John Atwater and A. Ueland.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

New York, March 14.—Alexander Nenetty, a butcher of Yonkers, murdered his step-daughter, Mary Wittlowsky, today, and then killed himself. The Nenetty man, tired of his wife, sought to win her daughter, who is but 16 years old. The girl repulsed his advances and informed her mother of the man's conduct. Today he seized Mary as she was preparing to leave the house, and, placing a revolver against her left breast, fired a bullet through her heart. Then he turned the weapon upon himself and fired two shots, dying in a few minutes.

TO PROTECT THE MURDERERS.

Chicago, March 14.—A dispatch from Louisville, Ky., says the first regiment of the state guard is in readiness to move at an hour's notice, if there is any danger of mob violence to Jackson and Walling at Newport or Covington. Today orders were received to have the regiment in readiness.

NICARAGUAN REBELS BEATEN.

Managua, Nicaragua, March 14.—Via Galveton, Texas, March 14.—A desperate fight lasting five hours has occurred at Pital. The rebels made a stubborn resistance, but were finally beaten. Two hundred were killed and wounded. There is great rejoicing here, church bells ringing and cannon fired in celebration of the government victory.

CIGARETTE DUTY INCREASED.

SUICIDE

Charles E. Snell Cut His Throat Nine Times This Morning.

He Was Found Dead in His Room at Six O'Clock.

He Was Suffering From Nervous Prostration and Mind Trouble.

Charles E. Snell, proprietor of the Duluth news depot at No. 16 Fifth avenue west, was found dead in bed this morning in his room at 22 Fourth avenue west, the razor with which he had killed himself still sticking in the horrible gash he had inflicted in his throat. Mr. Snell had been under treatment for nervous prostration for several days, and it was, undoubtedly, in a fit of temporary insanity brought on by his complaint that he committed the awful deed.

F. L. Brant, whose room is directly across the hall from that occupied by Snell, was with him nearly all night, seeing him last at 5 o'clock this morning, when he appeared to be rational. Brant went across the hall and lay down to get a little rest, leaving the door open, through which he could command a view of Snell's room.

Awaking from a brief nap at 6 o'clock, he noticed that Snell's door had been closed. He crossed the hall to see if the patient needed anything and was appalled to find that Snell had, during the short interval he was left to himself, put an end to his earthly troubles. The household was aroused and Dr. Maxwell, who happened to be near, was summoned. One glance assured the physician that his aid would be of no avail, and Coroner Eklund was sent for.

NINE GASHES INFLICTED.

Examination revealed that Snell had risen from bed, procured a razor, returned to bed and deliberately cut himself to death, nine gashes having been inflicted, the last one of which completely severed the wind-pipe. The case was so evidently one of suicide that no further investigation seemed necessary and the body was taken to Bayha & Tibbetts' undertaking rooms.

Snell had been suffering from nervous prostration brought on by too close application to books and business, and, it is said, had been recently greatly exercised over matters of religion. He had been inquiring into Spiritualism, Christian science and many other "issues," and this probably did more to unbalance him than anything else.

He was much depressed yesterday, so much so, in fact, that friends who called on him sent for spiritual advisers to endeavor to cheer him up. Bishop McGolrick and Rev. D. Cleland both responded to the call and conversation with them seemed to momentarily remove the cloud that hung over his spirits.

Bishop McGolrick said today that Snell expressed to him a fear that he was going to die and asked him if he thought he was sinking. The bishop was convinced that his trouble was only of the mind and advised him to get away from business for awhile and rest.

HEALTH WAS GOOD.

Dr. Bowers, under whose care Snell had been placed during the absence of Dr. Taylor, his regular physician, said this morning that he visited Snell early yesterday evening, when his pulse was strong, and although his temperature was a little high, there seemed to be no ground for Snell's fears that he was going to die. The deceased had worried a good deal lest his brother-in-law, who had been telegraphed for and is expected to arrive from New York tomorrow morning, should not get here in time to find him alive. His friends endeavored to keep up his spirits, but he was fully possessed of the idea that if he went to sleep he would never awake and nothing could divert his mind from that phantasy. Many things are now recalled that go to show that the dead man had long been struggling against an inclination to suicide and that his mind has been unbalanced for some time.

Mr. Snell was about 30 years of age, and first came to Duluth in 1889, as agent for the St. Paul Pioneer Press. He was afterward employed as bookkeeper by R. C. Mitchell, and for the last two years has been in the book and news business in the Lyceum building. He had no debts and was of good habits, and the only possible theory by which his act may be explained is insanity from over-study and too close attention to business.

A telegram was received last night from Snell's brother-in-law, H. L. James, of Medina, N. Y., to whom Snell had telegraphed his condition, informing him that he would be in Duluth as soon as possible, and he is expected to arrive here tomorrow. A telegram to him telling him of Snell's sad end failed to intercept him and he will reach here totally unprepared for the terrible news. Snell's parents reside on a farm near Shelby, N. Y., and are well-to-do. The deceased was a member of Palestine lodge, No. 79, A. F. & A. M. No arrangements for interment will be made until Mr. James arrives.

Royalty in the Big City is Looking Everywhere For Amusement.

A Bicycle Boom is Raging Violently in Staid Old Lunnon.

(Copyrighted 1896, by Associated Press.)

London, March 14.—The eyes of the statesmen of this country, and for that matter of the whole of Europe, have been turned toward Berlin during nearly the whole week. There, it is believed the dreibund has been solidified and improved by a better understanding with Great Britain and to the great relief of King Humbert, of Italy, whose throne was undoubtedly shaken by the defeat of the Italian army under Gen. Baratieri, at the battle of Adowa.

Although the prince of Wales, who is yachting in the Mediterranean, is away, the princess of Wales and her daughters, Princesses Victoria and Maud, with the latter's fiancee, Prince Charles, of Denmark; the duke and duchess of York, the duke and duchess of Saxe-Coburg and several other visiting German royalties are in town, and all in apparently indefatigable search of amusements of many and various descriptions. Possibly the most interesting feature of the drawing room was the introduction of Prince Karl, as Prince Charles of Denmark is generally termed, with Princess Maud, to the court circle. The ceremony took place in the throne room, and it was easy to see that the princess of Wales was very proud of the young people. Indeed, so much so, that in driving from Marlborough house to Buckingham palace, the princess gave "Karl" and "Harry" the places of honor in the carriage in order that the happy pair might be seen by the great crowds of peoplining the street.

The departure of the queen on Monday for the south of France has drawn forth more talk of the feebleness of her majesty. It is said that she is evidently grieving greatly at the loss of Prince Henry, of Battenberg, who was never tired of waiting upon his mother-in-law, and who no doubt had sincere love for the aged sovereign.

The decision arrived at this week by parliament to allow the opening of the museums and art galleries on Sundays has afforded delight to the majority of the people, and indicates a rapid change in public sentiment on the subject. It was only ten years ago that parliament rejected a similar motion by a crushing majority, and its action was upheld in most quarters. But the determination to open the British and Kensington museums, the national gallery, etc., on Sunday, is now received with general commendation which would seem to indicate a passing away of the stern conservatism which has been a feature of the British character for generations.

The ameer of Afghanistan seems to have been pleased, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, at the reception accorded here to his second son, Nazrulah Khan, for he is sending the queen £120,000 worth of gifts in charge of a special envoy. The duchess of Marlborough did not attend the queen's drawing room, although it was announced that she would do so. Instead, the young duchess remained in Paris, where she and her husband are the guests of the marquis of Dufferin, the British ambassador, and where the duchess was one of the guests invited to meet the prince of Wales at luncheon while on his way to the Riviera.

It is reported that two new morning Liberal penny papers are to be started shortly in this city, and it is also said that Henry C. Cust, formerly editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, is soon to preside over the destinies of a new morning paper to be called the May Fair Gazette.

The bicycle boom is increasing in volume daily in England. The leading English firms are completely blocked with orders. Two American firms recently started doing business in London with large stocks of wheels and they are reaping a harvest.

It is announced that Princess Kaialuni, of Hawaii, who is now in Northern Italy, is to be married to an Italian nobleman on Easter Monday.

The sensation of the week in domestic politics here has been outspoken opposition, headed by the Times, to the government proposal to allow the duke of Cambridge a large pension in addition to the £14,000 which he already draws as a royal duke and honorary colonel of the guards. The proposition is directly contrary to the promise made by the Conservative leader, A. J. Balfour after the Liberals were defeated, and the question promised to cause some lively debating in the house of commons. It is very doubtful if the government, even with their influences and big majority, can carry the motion.

During March

Colds and chills are prevalent, and unless the system is strong enough to throw them off, serious illness, often ending in pneumonia and death results.

The Cause

Of colds, chills and attendant dangers is found in the blood, poisoned by uric acid, which should be expelled by the kidneys.

The Effect

Of this kidney-poisoned blood is far-reaching. Health and strength are impossible while it exists. The system is being continually weakened, leaving it open to the ravages of colds, chills, pneumonia and fevers.

The Cure

For such a diseased condition is found in Warner's Safe Cure, which will restore the kidneys to health and enable them to properly perform their functions. There is no doubt about this. The record of the past is

CHINESE RAILROADS.

Project to Build From Pekin to Hankow.

San Francisco, March 14.—Col. M. R. Jefferds, an American railway engineer, who has an agreement with the concessionaires, by which he is to have the contract for building the Pekin & Hankow railway provided he secures subscriptions in this country or in Europe to the amount of 10,000,000 taels, about $13,500,000 in Mexican money, is in this city. There are in China at present but two short railroads, one of 150 miles and the other of 621 miles. The mayor of Jun Tung has been given permission to construct a railroad from Pekin north to Hankow, a distance of 720 miles. This right is also granted to build from Pekin south to Canton, a distance of 600 miles upon completion of the Hankow road.

One of the conditions is that not less than two-thirds of the capital necessary, which will amount to about 20,000,000 taels, must be subscribed by Chinese. Col. Jefferds, who was in China at the time, secured the agreement, and when he carries out the terms, will give him the contract for building the road. He came to California to induce the Chinese merchants in San Francisco to subscribe and to use their influence to overcome the prejudice of the countrymen and show the value of railroads.

MANCHURIA RAILROADS.

Washington, March 14.—The cable news from Pekin confirming the report of a secret treaty between Russia and China giving the former extraordinary rights to build railroads through Manchuria, Northern China, is regarded with indifference at the Japanese legation in this city, where it is said that the building of railroads through Manchuria was a matter of no special interest to Japan. There is at present but one line of railroad in Manchuria, that following the coast from 200 miles north from Tien Tsin, and it is believed that the concessions referred to have in view a connection between this line and the Russian Trans-Siberian railway, now in course of construction.

M'GARRY

The Former Virginia Editor is Made Postmaster in Cass County.

No Examination For West Point in Sixth District This Year.

What They Are Saying at Washington About Politics in Minnesota.

Washington, March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two new fourth-class postoffices have just been established in the Sixth district upon the request of Mr. Towne. They are Ethel, Mille Lacs county, where Charles Malone has been appointed postmaster; and Walker, Cass county, with J. G. McGarry, postmaster. Walker is on Leech lake at the terminus of the Brainerd & Northern, and is the new town recently located by the Leech Lake Townsite company, and is said to be rapidly growing, the country round about settling up in good shape. Postmaster McGarry, formely of the Virginian at Virginia, is the manager of the company.

The war department recently called upon Mr. Towne for the naming of a cadet at West Point, to enter upon the graduation of Thomas F. Maginnis, of Duluth, in June, 1897, and he had nearly completed preparations for an examination in June to select the successful boy to succeed Maginnis. Today the war department informed him that the invitation to name a cadet was necessarily recalled, as Cadet Maginnis had been granted leave of absence on account of ill health until Jan. 6, 1897, which would delay his graduation until June, 1898. There were already quite a number of applications on file for the appointment, and quite a large number of bright boys in the Sixth, who had intended entering the list of competitors, will be disappointed. There have been quite a number of inquiries from the Sixth as to the Annapolis appointment. There will be none to appoint for three years.

It is awfully hard to find out what the rivers and harbors committee is doing. Once in a while a little information leaks out, and some stories are published in regard to the progress the committee is making which may and may not be correct. Mr. Towne feels somewhat encouraged over the prospect of getting the committee to report in favor of the construction at once of a canal for the Duluth and Superior harbor. If he can accomplish that it will only be by giving up all hopes of a very large appropriation this year. One or two members of the committee who are working for the plan for important improvements in their states are persisting in the insertion of an appropriation at this session, in order to secure the great advantage the plan will give in having the work speedily completed in the future.

The rivers and harbors committee left Thursday night for Pittsburg, for a trip down the Ohio river for a short distance to inspect improvements and proposed improvements, upon the invitation of steamboat men of that river.

Minnesota men in Washington are watching with considerable interest the reports which come from the state in regard to the political battles which are going on there. Members of congress all hope to see a Davis delegation from the state, which will be honestly for the senator, and one, too, which will not necessarily antagonize especially any other candidate. A delegation which is instructed for second choice, or which is known to be much in favor of Mr. Reed or any other candidate, will not have the weight and importance it ought in order to accomplish results in favor of Senator Davis. The fight for the nomination is narrowing down between McKinley and the field, with the possible Allison candidacy as an adjunct, and it must be said that it is becoming a very bitter fight. This is not so much a bitterness between the leading candidates as it is between the McKinley men and some of the leaders in the opposition. Senator Davis has not yet become involved in that bitterness, and if his friends at home act wisely he need not be. Senator Allison occupies a like position. In only one way could a delegation known to have strong second choice leanings help Davis. With the fight intense between McKinley and the field, and it known that Minnesota would swing to McKinley if Davis were out of the field, his friends would be in a position to say to the other leaders of the opposition: "If you want to defeat McKinley, you must come to us. If we drop Davis, Minnesota will go to McKinley, and the only way for you to beat McKinley is to nominate Davis." If the delegates are willing to be swung to any other man, the managers of the field may not listen to the Davis men when the critical time comes for the break up. If good sense prevails, however, all thoughts of second choice will be dropped.

It is the general belief here that Tom Reed is not so near the presidency now as he has been at any time during the past year. The news from the West has been a great surprise, for it was believed that he would develope a great deal of strength in some states, and have a large vote from the West. Up to date it looks as if his support would be confined entirely to the delegates from the New England states, a few from the South, and from New Jersey and Delaware, and what he will get from Pennsylvania and New York when the break up comes from Morton and Quay, if it does come. He may have in addition, a few votes from the Pacific coast, and from Chicago, if Cullom's name is not presented. In most estimates Senator Allison is given quite a large following. So far, results do not bear out that view, and I doubt if his vote on the first ballot is as large as Morton's, and it will not be much larger than Quay's. The charges and countercharges of the past few days against some of the McKinley managers and the managers of the so-called combine is stirring up a bitter feeling, and it is safe to say that every possible effort and combination will be made by those opposed to the Ohio man to prevent his nomination at any stage of the game. McKinley must be nominated on the first or second ballot, is the usual way it is put. The conventions of this week have been in his favor. Those of next week and the week after will largely determine whether he is to make it on the first ballot. A candid view of the situation is that unless there is a marked change in it very soon, McKinley will have enough votes to give him the nomination on the first ballot, despite all the efforts of opposition leaders, who comprise the shrewdest politicians in the party, and who know all the open and secret ways of manipulating conventions.

* * *

Next to the expression of Minnesota's opinion on the presidential question, the fight over the governorship is attracting most attention here. The members of the house are keeping out of the contest entirely. This is so because they are away from Minnesota, and cannot keep close to public sentiment there, and because they regard it a matter for the people to settle, and that it is not their place to get into it. So far as is known to the public, none of the delegation has expressed a preference, save such expression as there was in the letter of Senator Nelson recently published in the Minneapolis Journal.

* * *

It is supposed that most of the house delegation will be renominated without opposition. Washingtonians believe that Uncle Loren Fletcher will be able to defeat Frank Davis, and it is the general supposition that McCleary will be able to succeed himself, though he has an opponent who is said to be very popular and a very able man, and one who will put up the strongest kind of a contest. There is much opposition in his district to McCleary's gold standard views, but at present this does not seem to be affecting into the contest at all. The member who has the hardest fight of any on his hands is Col. Kiefer, of St. Paul, and it is reported here that he will have much trouble in carrying Ramsey county, if he carries it all. That county will settle the battle. Eddy, Tawney and Heatwole will have no opposition for renomination, and the same is generally supposed in Mr. Towne's case, notwithstanding the talk in St. Paul papers and in some of the county papers in the district.

* * *

Speaking of Towne, it is passing strange that the Twin City papers and even one or two in the Sixth district have complimented McCleary so highly in comparison with Mr. Towne. Mr. McCleary is a fine man, accommodating, always a gentleman, and his speech in reply to Mr. Towne was a good speech. But there is absolutely no comparison between the two men, as regards their speeches or their work or their influence in the house. Mr. McCleary is in his second term, Mr. Towne in his first session, yet the latter has more influence by far among the members of the house and senate, is doing more work in every way, and covers more ground.

McCleary is essentially a specialist. He is strong on the gold side of the money question, and without grasping the financial problem with the depth or profundity of Mr. Towne, nor able to give his arguments the same lucidity, he has attained a much more than ordinary knowledge of the subject. He has probably confined his study of the question too much to one side to give him the liberal understanding of it that he should have and that Towne has. He is too much of a home body to make wide acquaintance among members, and his acquaintance after three years here is probably not nearly so extensive as that of the Sixth district man or of any other one of the delegation. And yet a Todd county paper a few days ago had a warm eulogy of the great honor McCleary was to Minnesota and a slighting allusion to Towne. It is indeed wonderful. This is not written to cast any reflection upon Mr. McCleary, for he is a useful member, and in a way a gentleman and an able man, but is called out by references to him and to Towne in some quarters of of Minnesota that are not only not just, but are wide of the truth.

* * *

Another criticism which I have seen passed upon Mr. Towne by Minnesota papers which do not approve his position on the silver question is that his views are one-sided, that his arguments for silver were superficial. That is just the opposite of the truth. Whether one agrees with him or not, this must be acknowledged, and the experienced members of congress all acknowledge it, no matter upon which side of the question they are. The great strength of his speech, and what attracts the most attention, is the very great knowledge it shows, the lucidity with which he makes his points, and the vast understanding of the question it exhibits. Old members here were astounded at the wide knowledge he had of the subject. His speech shows that he had not studied one side of the question only, but all sides, and that whether his views are correct or erroneous, they were formed by the widest reading upon the money problem. No other man in this congress has shown so great a knowledge of the history of the coinage question as did Towne.

* * *

Mr. Eddy has left for home to be present at his congressional convention, and Mr. Tawney will leave in three or four days. In Eddy's district the same convention which elects the delegates to St. Louis will renominate him. No other members will go home to conventions.

Suffered Eighteen Years.

Pains Departed and Sleep Came.

Mrs. Julia A. Brown, of Covington, Tenn., whose husband has charge of the electric light plant at that place, has been a great sufferer. Her ailments and speedy cure are best described by herself, as follows:

"For 18 years I suffered from nervousness and indigestion. I tried every remedy recommended by family and friends, but I could get no relief at all. Two years ago, while being treated by three local physicians, Drs. Barret, Maloy and Sherod, they informed me that I had become dropsical, and that there was little hope for me. I then decided to try

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine,

I was then unable to get to sleep until well on toward daylight, and during all this time I had a deep, heavy pain in my left side. I was most miserable, indeed, but after taking one-half bottle of the Nervine I could sleep all night just as well as I ever did. The Nervine is the only remedy that gave me any relief whatever. I am now well and strong, and I thank God every day of my life for Dr. Miles' Nervine."

BUBBLES or MEDALS

"Best sarsaparillas." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything — one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is ——? . . . . There's the rub. You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could if you were chemists. But then do you need to test it? The World's Fair Committee tested it, — and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. Those others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles since the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

WORLD OF TRADE.

What Dun Sees in the Present Conditions.

New York, March 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade, which issued today, says: Waiting is still the rule. Large hope but little actual business explains the strength of some markets and the weakness of others, with the feeling that the spring of 1896 ought to bring larger business, will not suffice to meet expenses all the year unless larger gains than does not come. It is especially noteworthy that prices of materials have varied quite differently from prices of manufactured products, although in most cases the advance last fall was commenced by extraordinary upbuilding of prices for materials.

Thus cotton is 20.9 per cent higher than a year ago, but cotton goods average only 10.7 per cent. Wool is 33 per cent higher than a year ago, but woolen goods are on the whole about 4 per cent lower. Pig iron is only 9 per cent higher than a year ago, while finished products of iron and steel average 45 per cent higher. Thus comparisons are important because they disclose some of the maladjustments of prices which inadequate consumption and combinations have produced.

The output of pig iron March 1 was 181,806 tons weekly, against 190,460 Feb. 1, but the unsold stocks have risen 69,761 tons during the past month, or 17,441 tons weekly, and the unsold stocks of the great steel companies are included. There is reason to believe that actual consumption is still at least 10 per cent smaller than the production of pig, and the price of Bessemer at Pittsburg has fallen from $10.60 early to $12.25, with exceptionally large sales even below that figure. Prices of finished products are not quotably lower, although all mentioned are, with iron. The industry is waiting for a larger demand, which it is hoped, may soon come to clear away the accumulation of surplus stocks. Of the minor metals, tin is unchanged on the demand, at 11.12 cents and there is more movement in tin at 13.4 cents, while lead is slightly weaker at 3.15. Tin plates are weak, in part owing to the light demand, but American Bessemer h. C., 14 by 20, full weight, are quoted at 3.75 against 3.85 for similar foreign brands. Aluminum rolling ingots are now offered at 60 cents per pound in ton lots, the harnessing of Niagara having already reduced the cost of this metal for the world.

Cotton goods sell but slowly, notwithstanding recent reductions in price, and the enormous accumulation of unsold stock causes apprehension in many quarters. In woolens, the demand is very largely for low grade goods, and fierce competition affects the prices of the better grades materially. In clay worsteds the manufacture has been so far overdone that the stoppage of some of the most important works is considered not improbable. The great need of a more effective law to prevent undervaluations of imports is now realized by all parties, and one has been already unanimously recommended by the congressional committee.

Sales of wool at the three chief markets are the smallest in five years and for two weeks have been only 6,683,900 pounds of which 3,339,200 were domestic, against 9,541,500 last year, of which 5,180,500 were domestic, and 12,017,676 in 1892, of which 8,360,425 were domestic. Prices are still maintained, with decreases in Australian supplies.

The market for wheat is weaker, with no better reason than the government report of the wheat in the farmers' hands, which is altogether out of keeping with the government estimate a year ago, and yet is probably more nearly correct. Western receipts still exceed last year's and for two weeks have been 4,567,262 bushels against 3,636,715 last year, while the Atlantic exports, flour included, this week are a little smaller than a year ago, and have been for two weeks only 2,921,057 bushels, against 3,540,133 last year. Corn is a shade firmer, without apparent reason, and cotton maintained a sixteenth advance although the prospect of yield this year is at least as good as it has been at any time.

Failures for the week have aggregated $2,910,775, against $1,682,052 last year. Manufacturing were $806,915 against $783,236 last year, and trading were $2,005,560 against $897,656 last year. Failures for the week have been 300 in the United States against 293 last year and sixty in Canada against fifty-seven last year.

BRADSTREET'S IDEA OF THINGS.

New York, March 14.—Bradstreet's this week says: The only conspicuously favorable feature of the general business situation is the report of February's gross railway earnings throughout the country. Receipts of 126 companies last month were larger, with a single exception, than in any preceding month for more than three years, the February total for 1896 being $34,484,000, a gain over the total last year of nearly 14 per cent. These results are due, in part, to favorable weather conditions, large grain traffic and the inclusion of one more business day.

General trade shows no marked change. Distribution of merchandise is most active for dry goods, hardware, shoes and millinery, paints, oils and heavy chemicals, but orders have been unsatisfactory. Jobbers report spring trade of a waiting character, due to belated snow storms and cold weather. Collections, with few exceptions, are no better and in many instances less satisfactory, which tends to retard the movement of merchandise.

Total exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States during the six business days of March 12, amount to 2,491,000 against 2,499,000 bushels last week, 1,791,000 business in the corresponding week of last year, 1,295,000 bushels in the same week of March, 1894, and as compared with 2,886,000 bushels in the first week of this month, 2,675,000 bushels in the same week a year ago, 2,000,000 bushels in 1894, and 2,000,000 bushels less than in the previous week, and as compared with 2,000,000 bushels in the like week last year and 2,675,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1894.

Business failures in the United States this week (also Canadian) number 344, against 343 last week, 293 the first week of March, with a total of 293 for six business days ending with March 14, compared with 293 in the preceding week, and 293 in the corresponding week of 1895, and 293 in the second week of March, 1894, and 293 in the corresponding week of 1893, and 293 in the like week of 1892.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The divorce case of L. Dowell Odell vs. Marie Odell granted at Grand Forks yesterday, has an interesting history. The plaintiff came to Fargo several months ago and secured the decree on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. He is a member of a prominent family in Quebec. His married life was not a pleasant one because he was a Protestant and his wife a Catholic. He made an attempt to have a Canadian parliament annul the marriage but had failed.

The residence of Alderman Morton Page was completely destroyed by fire at Fargo. The flames caught from a stovepipe. The building and furniture were fully covered by insurance.

Recently the Fargo city council advertised for bids for the printing of the ordinances. The lowest bidder, it was found, intended to have the work done in the Twin Cities and local printers made such a protest that the council rejected all bids and called for new ones from Fargo only.

A 2-mile skating contest for the championship of North Dakota between Nervel Daple, of Bathgate, and Tom Elsberry, of Rolla, occurred at Rolla at the rink. Daple was an easy winner. Large numbers of visitors from surrounding towns were present.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

A committee from the W. C. T. U. of Pierre visited the saloons and houses of ill-fame and gave them notice that they would be allowed until Friday afternoon to close their doors and quit business. No attention was paid to the notice and a number of complaints have been filed with State's Attorney Holmes, which will probably bring definite action this afternoon.

Governor Sheldon has appointed E. T. Sheldon, of St. Lawrence, Hand county, a member of the board of regents, vice F. E. Pale, the present treasurer of the board, whose term has expired, and A. B. Smedley, of Milbank, Grant county, to succeed himself on the board.

Friday morning was the coldest at this season of the year for fourteen years. The mercury was thirteen degrees below zero, with six inches of snow on the ground.

The house of representatives by a vote of 178 to 56 unseated Gaston A. Robbins, Democrat, from the Fourth district of Alabama and seated W. F. Aldrich, the Republican opponent.

Among the passengers who arrived on the steamer Saale at Hoboken yesterday were Leon Reubin, his wife and baby. The man's bulging pockets attracted the attention of the customs inspectors, and he was searched. Fourteen valuable gold watches were found secreted about various parts of his clothing. His wife had gone with her infant to Meyer's hotel. Inspectors followed her and after searching twelve gold watches were found in the infant's underclothing. Reubin was arrested for smuggling.

Alice Hutchinson and Sarah Jones, who were arrested at New York, gave evidence which clinched the case of the mysterious murder of Stephen Powell at Hempstead, L. I., against John Wayne and Arthur Mayrow. Powell is a confession of the murder by Wayne, in which he attributes the striking of the fatal blow to Mayrow. Mayrow refuses to talk further than making a general denial.

In the German reichstag at Berlin yesterday there was a stormy scene caused by Herr Bebel, one of the Socialist leaders, accusing Dr. Carl Peters, the African explorer, while he was imperial commissioner to Afrika, in 1891, with sentencing a negro and negress to be hanged, without trial, to the nearest tree, because they had taken a fancy to each other, of which Dr. Peters, (being himself immune with the negress) disapproved.

Snow fell last night all through the Southern states.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

S. E. Phillips, One of His Tenants, Made the Complaint.

Dancing Club Formed Last Evening and an Instructor Engaged.

J. S. Palmer, owner of the Palmer block on the corner of Grand avenue and Fifty-sixth avenue west, was arrested this morning on a warrant for assault sworn out by S. E. Phillips. Mr. Phillips rents house room in the Palmer block and the controversy which led up to the trouble between the parties relates to rent, notes and other financial affairs. Palmer claims that Phillips is in arrears for rent and Phillips claims that he has been paying rent by making payments on a note given to certain parties by Palmer. Last evening the dispute between the two became so warm that it ended in a rough and tumble encounter, during which Palmer scored by measuring his opponent's manly physique on the floor. Phillips also claims that his clothes were torn and that he was otherwise placed hors de combat. Palmer was taken to Duluth for preliminary trial this morning. He was allowed to depart on his own recognizance until his trial, which was set for Monday nex..

DANCING CLUB FORMED.

About twenty-five people met at the Bennett hotel last night to discuss the advisability of organizing a dancing club. It was found that there were enough persons interested in the matter to make the affair a success and a meeting will be held at the same place next Thursday evening, when a committee to manage the finances will be chosen and a name be selected for the club.

Professor Collins, of West Superior, has been engaged as instructor and prompter, and will meet with the club on Thursday evening of each week for ten weeks. The instructor was present last evening and treated those present to a pleasant dance, and Landlord McCrae did the handsome thing by providing light refreshments. Professor Collins will also organize a children's class to meet on Thursday afternoons.

CHALLENGE TO LINTON.

Capt. Phelan Wants to Fight the Congressman.

Washington, March 14.—Representative Linton, of Michigan, the leader of the A. P. A. sentiment in the house, received some days ago a letter from Capt. Thomas Phelan, of Kansas City, the well-known Irish agitator, in which Capt. Phelan challenged him to fight a duel at Bladensburg, the challenge being preceded by a denunciation of Mr. Linton's course in opposing the church school appropriations and the placing of a statue of Father Marquette in the capitol. Mr. Linton paid no attention to the communication, and from some other source it found its way into the newspapers.

Mr. Linton was asked today if he had made any reply to the challenge, and said: "Since the house defeated the appropriations for non-sectarian institutions in the District of Columbia, partly through my efforts, my mail has been loaded every day with a great number of letters from religious fanatics and cranks, denouncing me violently, threatening dire vengeance and death in various forms. All of these letters I have thrown in the waste basket. There have been so many that there was not time to read them all, and I have paid no attention to any of them.

"This letter from Phelan was one of them and I suppose went into the waste basket with others. I had forgotten the letter, nor did I think who Phelan was until the letter and a sketch of his career was printed in the papers. Since publicity has been given to it, I may conclude to make some reply. Not so much to Phelan as to the fanatical spirit he represents. Of course fighting duels is not in my line. That sort of performance is considered rather ridiculous by Americans of this generation. The threats which I have received from cranks have not alarmed me in the least and I would have been glad if no publicity had been given them. I am opposed to government appropriations to assist sectarian work and shall continue to oppose them."

Capt. Phelan is represented as a celebrated broad swordsman and a Fenian. A few years ago he was stabbed in a row in O'Donovan Rossa's office.

MARK TWAIN ALL RIGHT.

ALMOST A MURDER.

Northport, Wash., March 14.—Harry Finnick, a Chicago traveling salesman, had a narrow escape from death last night. Finnick won $350 playing poker in Timothy Vogel's gambling place. This broke Vogel, who persuaded Finnick to enter a disreputable place. As soon as they were inside, Vogel drew his revolver and told Finnick that if the money was not returned he would kill him. Finnick grabbed Vogel just in time to prevent a bullet entering his heart. The bullet ploughed a furrow in his cheek. Finnick drew his revolver and several shots were exchanged, but without effect. Vogel was arrested and lodged in jail. There is strong talk of lynching, but the jail is being carefully guarded. Finnick has the reputation of being an all round athlete.

FROZE HIM OUT.

Wichita, Kan., March 14.—W. P. Campbell, assistant attorney general of this county, whose activity in closing up local "joints" recently, led to a suit against him in which malfeasance in office was charged, has tendered his resignation to Attorney General Dawes, to take effect immediately. This is the result of recent changes in police commissioners, which it is charged deprived Mr. Campbell of all assistance from police or other official sources.

WANT TO VOTE.

San Francisco, March 14.—Mrs. Anna Shaw, vice president of the Woman's Suffrage association, arrived in this city from Chicago last night accompanied by Mrs. Mary Garrett Hay, one of the national organizers of the same body. Their object in visiting California is to carry forward a campaign throughout the state in favor of the constitutional amendments to be voted on at the fall election granting suffrage to women.

CROWDING TO ALASKA

Tacoma, Wash., March 14.—Between 800 and 1100 men have arrived here from the middle states to outfit for the Yukon. There are parties here now from Chicago, Colorado, Montana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Oregon and California, preparing to go on the next Alaska steamer. The demand for Yukon sleds has become so great that a factory employing six men is now engaged in turning them out.

A RAILROAD'S RESPONSIBILITY.

General Eastern Agent Stearns, of the Illinois Central, remarks that his company is indirectly responsible for the Venezuelan troubles. He says: "Just before the World's fair our company printed a folder for distribution in Venezuela. It was in Spanish and English. There was an elaborate map on the back, showing the Central and South American countries. I took the folder to the Venezuelan consul here, but he became indignant when he saw the delineations of the Venezuelan territory. He denounced the work as incorrect despite my pleadings.

"Subsequently I went to the Venezuelan minister in Washington, and he approved of the plan. But his horror knew no bounds when he saw the map. 'This is an outrage,' he cried, 'and if you send them to my country I will have them burned. You are giving the English my country, and that is robbery.' At my request the minister changed the delineations in the map, and we had new plates made. We distributed several thousand folders in the different Venezuelan cities, and now we are officially informed that the map is used in the schools of Venezuela. You see, the boundary question settled by the Venezuelan minister to his satisfaction has indirectly involved our company in the present troubles."

HIGHER

Wheat Was Firmer Today on More Encouraging News From Abroad.

Stocks In and Afloat For Europe Smaller Than Since 1891.

The Argentine Shipments Also Showed Signs of an Impending Collapse.

The early news influencing wheat was somewhat more encouraging today and the opening figures were about ½c advanced. Stocks in and afloat for Europe were reported to be smaller than at any time since 1891 and cables did not respond to the slump here, declining only ½d. But the action of the market yesterday had strengthened the bears' confidence and this was soon evident, aided also by the heavy Northwest receipts. May opened here ½c higher at 61¾c, declined to 60⅝c and towards noon advanced again to 61¾c. July sold late at 62½c. About 40,000 bus of cash wheat changed hands, one-half going to the mills at 1½c under May and the rest to the elevators at 1½c under May. The close was ½c higher all round than yesterday.

The Liverpool market showed only a very moderate amount of sympathy with the bears on this side, inasmuch as yesterday's break brought a quotation of only 1d decline at Liverpool. The Argentine shipments for the week exhibited slight premonitory symptoms of an impending collapse; the quantity exported was 1,040,000 bus for the week, and according to recent advices from there each succeeding week for some time to come should show a gradual decrease in the exports. The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts were 540 cars against 401 a week ago and 327 car loads on the year before. The increased number of cars received today was explained to be because of the release of some train loads that had been sidetracked for a day or two on account of an accident on one of the roads leading into Duluth. The Chicago receipts comprised 33 car loads and the rail shipments there were 93,000 bus.

The week's clearances of wheat and flour from both coasts, reported by Bradstreet's, were 2,401,000 bus against 2,407,000 bus on the week before and 2,701,000 bus for the similar week of last year. Of that quantity 596,000 bus went from the Pacific side. The day's clearances from Atlantic ports were light, being only equal to 148,000 bus. Reloading wheat and flour together. The general expectation regarding Monday's visible supply statement is that it will show only 480,000 bus or 500,000 bus decrease. Duluth wheat stocks will show a decrease of about 450,000 bus. Following were the evening guesses here:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 60¾c; March 60¾c; May, 62¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 59¾c; March, 59¾c; May, 61¾c; June, 61⅞c; July, 62¾c. No. 2 northern, cash, 56¾c; May, 58¾c. No. 3, 54¾c. Rejected, 51⅞c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, March 14.—Wheat today was dull compared with yesterday. Cables came lower but not so weak as our yesterday's decline would warrant. Argentine shipments were slightly less than last week's but receipts in the Northwest showed considerable increase over last week. Quite a little short wheat put out yesterday was wanted back today, and operators are inclined to be cautious after the week's severe decline. Crop news is almost uniformly bearish, and though the weather remains cold the winter wheat belt appears well covered with snow and prospects are very favorable for a large acreage and a good start of spring wheat. The preponderance of sentiment seems to favor a further decline.

Corn and oats easier on larger anticipated receipts for Monday, but reports from Western points do not indicate a large movement as yet.

Provisions higher with a firm feeling and good buying by a leading operator. There is an impression that the market for ribs and lard particularly has been largely oversold.

Puts, May wheat, 62¾@62¾c.
Calls, May wheat, 63½@63¾c.
Curb, May wheat, 63c asked.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Opening Prices Showed Some Fractional Changes.

New York, March 14.—The initial stock prices showed fractional changes this morning. The dealings for the first fifteen minutes were mainly confined to the industrial group. Tobacco rose ¾ and general electric fell an equal fraction. Northern Pacific preferred made a further decline and went off 1¼. The general list was tending higher. Tobacco was well supported after 10:15 a. m. and touched 83⅛. The Northern Pacific shares continue to sag on fears of a large assessment. The common fell away to 2⅜ and the preferred to 14. In the general list slight gains were present with distilling in especial favor. General electric rallied ⅝, but subsequently reacted ¾ to 36⅝.

Realizing sales in tobacco caused a recession to 82¾ with a subsequent recovery to 82⅞. The general list had a strong tendency. Sugar displayed especial strength, advancing 1¾ to 117⅞ on improvement in the prices of the foreign and domestic product. The closing was irregular with the list generally a small fraction higher on the day. The total sales were 109,700 shares.

EAST WORDS TO A BELLE.

Truth: "No, Mr. Swackhammer," returned the haughty beauty, coldly, "I can never be anything but a sister to you."

"Margery Tutsgall," said the poor but proud young man, drawing himself up to its full height, "many a girl has married, just as you are figuring on doing, for the love of money, and thereby added much to the world's already large and well-selected stock of misery. Many a maiden has sold herself for ambition's sake, only to discover, when it is too late, that she has paid more for her whistle than the ruling market price of whistles. Give up this intention of marrying a plutocrat—fling it aside as you would a worn-out liver-pad. You may fancy now that money is everything; but when you have grown old what will be more precious than to know that there is one fond heart that has battled against the world all these years for your sweet sake?"

"It is useless for you to say more, Mr. Swackhammer," said the beautiful girl, decisively. "You are not my choice."

"I know I am not your choice," he replied, manfully, "but when the time comes that I am your only chance remember that my address is at the same old stand. That is all, Margery. Good-bye!"

A LEGISLATOR'S MISTAKE.

A story is told down East of a comical old fellow who was elected to the legislature a decade or more ago, says the Galveston Journal. He had never before gone farther away from home than Bangor, and so the capital city was a perfect terra incognito to him. Arriving there, he rather excitedly inquired of the station loungers where the state house was, and for a joke was told to "go over Kennebec bridge and turn to the right at the top of the hill," and he'd know the big building when he came to it. This, of course, brought him after a long walk to the imposing front entrance of the insane hospital. Here he rapped lustily till some one opened the door and asked what was wanted. "I suppose I'm entitled to a seat in here somewheres," he said, and it was a full half hour before they got matters straightened out so as to be satisfied that he wasn't a really, truly crazy man.

MR. HILL STILL SCHEMING.

Reports from New York indicate that James J. Hill has not abandoned his plans for the consolidation of the Great Northern road with the Northern Pacific, and is still working to accomplish that result. Nearly a year ago, Mr. Hill had a deal almost consummated for the consolidation of the two great railway systems and he would have succeeded in establishing a gigantic railroad monopoly in the Northwest had it not been for the publicity given to the work going on under the surface, which enlightened the security holders as to the real value of the Northern Pacific property, and had it not been for the strong public sentiment aroused against the scheme throughout the Northwest. In the face of the protest made by the press and the people of the Northwest, Mr. Hill's scheme could not win and he was finally checkmated.

But Mr. Hill has not lost hope of carrying out his great scheme to become the dictator of the railroads of the Northwest, and he is again hard at work perfecting a new plan to accomplish his purpose. A New York dispatch says: His friends, and he has many who are rich and powerful, have secured a large number of the consols, and are trying to get more at a proper price. They are said to have now over $1,500,000 of these securities, and are gathering them in as rapidly as they appear in the market. Mr. Hill is understood to have sailed for Europe and the full strength of the Hill faction will not be known until the Dutch are heard from. Mr. Hill's reputation among the financiers and investors is good for the reason that he has always paid the interest on his bonds promptly and has declared satisfactory dividends on his stock. As long as this is done, the investors do not trouble their minds about the means employed to make so good a showing, and why should they.

Mr. Hill will undoubtedly acquire some new strength in Holland and Germany, in addition to what he already has in New York, but it is doubtful if the canny Scotsmen will take any more of the alluring wares which will be offered them. Some who are known to be not over friendly to the consolidation scheme, suggest that Mr. Hill's consolidation with the Northern Pacific, or at least his participation in the reorganization which is expected at an early date, is a ground hog case, averring that a large amount of money must soon be spent in repairs on the Great Northern, and that this will be obviated if Mr. Hill can use the tracks of the Northern Pacific, its tunnel through the Cascade range and the valuable terminals at Seattle and Portland. Conservative judges claim that Mr. Hill will not be able to secure more that representation on the new board of the reorganized Northern Pacific, but they do admit that he will probably get as much as this.

The prospect that Mr. Hill may succeed in his latest scheme, unless steps be taken at once to defeat his plans, should again arouse the people of the Northwest to the great danger to which they are now exposed. Mr. Hill must be prevented from securing exclusive control of the traffic of the Northwest and thus destroying the competition which has hitherto existed. The whole Northwest has a vital interest in defeating his monopolistic scheme, and there is no place in the Northwest that is more interested than Duluth in preventing the carrying out of his plans. The consolidation of the two roads would destroy all competition between Duluth and the western country. It would undoubtedly result in an increase in freight rates and the levying of additional tribute upon the business men and the farmers of the Northwest. Duluth is now anxious for a new and independent line to the Red River valley in order to secure greater competition than now exists. The consolidation of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific would mean the destruction of the little competition which we now possess.

THE REGISTER OF DEEDS.

A communication from Register Borgstrom, in reply to a recent article in The Herald, was published yesterday. It was charged that Mr. Borgstrom is running the register of deeds' office at a loss to the county, and that notwithstanding the decreased receipts he has been increasing the salaries of employes in his office. Mr. Borgstrom replies by quoting his report to the county commissioners for the calendar year 1895. This was not the period covered by the figures given by The Herald a few days ago. The Herald quoted the receipts and expenditures of the register of deeds' office from February, 1895, to February, 1896, inclusive, a period of thirteen months. Its object was to show that he is running behind more than ever before and that this is due to the expensive manner in which he manages the office, and that notwithstanding the increasing deficit he has been increasing the salaries of employes in the office. In February last alone, the deficit amounted to over $300. What the county's loss on this office will be during the present year no one can tell positively, but if every month shows a similar loss there will be a deficit of about $3500 at the end of the present calendar year.

But take Mr. Borgstrom's own figures for the year 1895, and glance over them. He says his total receipts were $10,869.74. This total is not correct and has been reached by the practice of deception. He includes in his receipts $1221.15 from Lake county. This item was put in solely to pad his receipts, because he never received the amount from Lake county and could not lay any legal claim to it. The county commissioners of Lake county allowed him $112.60 rather than have any more trouble over the matter, but Register Borgstrom was not legally entitled to one cent. This bill arose from the transcribing of records, necessitated by a change in the boundary line of the two counties. The Lake county officials did all the work of transcribing, and no work whatever was done on it by Mr. Borgstrom or his assistants. He performed no work and was not entitled to any fees, because the state law is explicit upon this point. Possibly it would be absurd to expect that Mr. Borgstrom knew any more about the law than he does about the actual duties of his office. But he had the nerve to send a bill of $1221.15 to Lake county. After considerable dispute, he was allowed $112.60.

Consequently the actual receipts of Register Borgstrom's office in 1895 were $9761.19. The expenses of the office were $10,153.09, and the deficit therefore amounted to $391.90. The Herald believes that if the office had been run in a proper manner, with due regard to economy, the balance would have been on the other side of the ledger, and the county would have secured a handsome revenue from the office.

Mr. Borgstrom referred several times in his communication to a Herald reporter being responsible for the article to which he objects and that the reporter was inspired by some one who desires to step into Mr. Borgstrom's shoes. Register Borgstrom should disabuse his mind of these false ideas. The Herald assumes full responsibility for these articles. The reporter was directed to make an investigation into the manner in which the register of deeds' office is being conducted and publish the result. No one outside of The Herald office inspired the article or knew that it was to appear. The Herald has had occasion in the past to publish similar facts about Mr. Borgstrom's conduct of his office, with the result that the exposure caused him to cut down the expenses of the office. Let him conduct his office in a businesslike manner and he will not find it necessary to pad his receipts in order to conceal a deficit.

THE DULUTH-SUPERIOR BRIDGE.

The Superior Inland Ocean, as well as the city council and the Commercial club across the bay, has fallen into an error regarding the bridge bill. The Inland Ocean says: "The council unanimously pronounced against the proposed amendments, one of which grants an extension of time of four years in which the bridge must be completed. The Commercial club after a spirited discussion passed a resolution making it the sense of that body that the bridge be completed by April, 1898, and that it be free to foot passengers and bicycles. With such provisions, and with proper safeguards towards insuring the erection of a strong and permanent structure, the bill would probably get the endorsement of the people of Superior."

In the first place the bill does not grant an extension of time of four years in which the bridge must be completed. If the Superior people who object on this point had taken the trouble to carefully read the bill they would have seen that it proposes no such extension of time. It simply provides for one year more than is stated in the original bill which became a law. The bill introduced by Mr. Towne provides for completion of the bridge before the end of April, 1898, and surely that is not an unreasonable length of time in which to erect such a structure.

In the second place, a provision for free passage of foot passengers and bicycles would probably delay the building of the bridge for several years at least. No capitalist will buy the bonds of a bridge company with its sources of income thus restricted. The people of Duluth and Superior are anxious to have the two cities connected by a bridge and they do not want to wait five or ten years for it. They would rather pay a small toll than have the building of the bridge delayed for even one year. So far as The Herald has been able to discover, this is the prevailing sentiment. There can be no long continuance of the tolls if the people desire to make the bridge free at any time. The original act granting authority to erect the bridge makes ample provision for its acquisition by the cities or counties at any time, and this provision affords ample protection.

There is much loose talk, principally by people who were interested in a rival bridge company which failed to get the charter from congress, about making the bridge free now, but if they know anything about the condition of the money market and the extreme difficulty to induce capitalists to invest in enterprises of this character, they know that the insertion of a provision for free passage of pedestrians and bicycles would seriously delay the construction of the bridge.

That France has something more than a merely diplomatic interest in the South African question is demonstrated by the estimate current in Europe that French capital invested in the mines of that auriferous region aggregates $300,000,000. Large as this sum is, it is said to be far exceeded by French investments in Russian stocks, while Spain is virtually mortgaged to France. France is one of the richest countries in the world, or she could not have hundreds of millions to loan while enduring a burden of taxation that would break down many other nations commonly reckoned prosperous.

The New York Tribune has nearly thrown off all concealment of its opposition to Governor Morton's presidential aspirations. No other interpretation can be given to the following remark: "He is not a candidate of a great many New York Republicans, because he has not been great enough to rise above faction and be the governor as well as the presidential candidate of a whole party. That is all that ails Governor Morton and his boom. It is all that disturbs the process of events that might make him the unanimous choice of the New York delegation at St. Louis. It is the weakness of amiability. And it is fatal."

By the death of Mrs. George B. Sargent, Duluth loses one of her oldest residents. Mrs. Sargent was one of the pioneers at the head of Lake Superior and saw it grow from a mere hamlet to one of the largest cities in the West. The old settlers will recall with pleasure the warm hospitality which was always extended by Gen. and Mrs. Sargent, and those who knew the dear old lady in latter days will ever hold her in deep respect and affection. Mrs. Sargent was identified with nearly every good work in Duluth and her kindly aid and sound advice will be much missed.

It now seems probable that the present congress will abolish the Russian spy system in vogue in the postoffice department. The agitation of the subject has resulted in the adoption of an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill offered by Representative Quigg, of New York, which cuts off the appropriation for the pay of these secret spies. If there is no money appropriated for their pay the spies will, of course, have to be discontinued. The matter is to be still further acted upon, and the total abolishment of the system is assured.

The last number of the Eveleth Star is deserving of special mention. It consisted of eight pages, filled with fine illustrations of the principal buildings of Eveleth and scenes at the rich iron mines which surround the town, and accompanied by well written articles descriptive of Eveleth's progress. The whole number reflects great credit upon Editor Dowling, whose enterprise deserves appreciation by the Eveleth people.

Free lodgers at the new floating lodging house in New York will all be put under a shower bath the first thing. No free sleep without first a free dousing for sake of the cleanliness which is next to godliness. It is not expected that the lodging house will be popular at first with tramps who have forgotten the smell of soap and water; but thus does the work of the soap mission go on.

The story is afloat that Governor Clough will throw his strength to Mr. Clapp, if he finds he cannot win himself. He will have to do this early in the balloting.

Mr. Lee's strength continues to increase. The indications are growing that he will be the next governor of Minnesota.

The St. Louis Star says: "The constitution of the United States has done most remarkably well just as it is for over 100 years. And it is one of the oldest maxims in existence to let well enough alone."

The consolidation of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern must be prevented. Mr. Hill's scheme to create a railroad monopoly in the Northwest must be defeated.

The civilized world has long looked upon Africa as a weak country open to conquest, but a few more European defeats like those administered by Menelik and Oom Paul will create the impression that Africa is full of virility.

BATTLEAX'S STEEPLECHASE.

Him going to ride for us! Him with the pants and the eyeglasses and all.
Amateur! don't he look just like it—it's twenty to one on a fall.
Boss must be gone off his head to be sending our steeplechase crack
Out over the fences like these with an object like that on his back.
Ride! Don't tell me he can ride! With his pants just as loose as balloons
How can he sit on his horse! and his spurs like a pair of harpoons;
Ought to be under the dog act, he ought, and be kept off the course.
Fall! Why he'd fall off a cart, let alone off a steeplechase horse.

* * *

Yessir! the 'orse is all ready—I wish you'd have rode him before;
Nothing like knowing your horse, sir, and this chap's a terror to bore;
Battleax always could pull, and he rushes his fences like fun—
Stands off his jump twenty feet, and then springs like a shot from a gun.
Oh, he can jump 'em all right, sir, you make no mistake, 'e's a toff;
Clouts 'em in earnest, too, sometimes, you mind that he don't clout you off—
Don't seem to mind how he hits 'em, his shins are as hard as a nail.
Sometimes you'll see the fence shake and the splinters fly up from the rail.
All you can do is to hold him, and just let him jump as he likes,
Give him his head at the fences, and hang on like death if he strikes;
Don't let him run himself out—you can lie third or fourth in the race—
Until you clear the stone wall, and from that you can put on the pace,
Fell at that wall once, he did, and it gave him a regular spread,
Ever since that time he flies it—he'll stop if you pull at his head,
Just let him race—you can trust him—he'll take first-class care he don't fall,
And I think that's the lot—but, remember, he must have his head at the wall.

* * *

Well, he's down safe as far as the start, and he seems to sit on pretty neat,
Only his baggified breeches would ruinate anyone's seat—
They're away—here they come—the first fence, and he's head over heels for a crown!
Good for the new chum, he's over, and two of the others are down!
Now for the treble, my hearty—by Jove, he can ride, after all;
Whoop, that's your sort—let him fly them! He hasn't much fear of a fall.
Who in the world would have thought it! And aren't they just going a pace?
Little Recruit in the lead there will make it a stoutly run race.
Rolling clean over his boy—it's a miracle if he's not dead.
Battleax, Battleax, yet! By the Lord, he's got most of 'em beat—
Ho! did you see how he struck, and the swell never moved from his seat?
Second time round, and, by Jingo! he's holding his lead of 'em well;
Hark to him clouting the timber! It don't seem to trouble the swell.
Now for the wall—let him rush it. A thirty-foot leap, I declare—
Never a shift in his seat, and he's racing for home like a hare.
What's that that's chasing him—Ratalpan —regular demon to stay.
Sit down and ride for your life now! Oh, good, that's the style—come away!
Ratalpan's certain to beat you, unless you can give him the slip;
Sit down and rub in the whalebone now—give him the spurs and the whip!
Battleax, Battleax, yet—and it's Battleax wins for a crown;
Look at him rushing the fences, he wants to bring t'other chap down.
Ratalpan never will catch him, if only he keeps on his pins;
Now! the last fence and he's over it! Battleax, Battleax wins!

* * *

Well, sir, you rode him just perfect—I know from the first you could ride.
Some of the chaps said you couldn't, an' I says just like this a' one side:
Mark me, I says, that's a tradesman—the saddle is where he was bred.
Weight! you're all right, sir, and thank you; and them was the words that I said.

MESMERIZED HIS PARTY.

Wabasha Herald: J. A. Tawney does not appear likely to encounter any opposition, in this district, for a third nomination for congress. James seems to have mesmerized his party, and to have built his fences high and strong.

HE SHOULD BE CHOSEN.

Sauk Center Avalanche: There now seems to be some doubt as to the selection of C. F. Hendryx, of this city, as one of the delegates to the St. Louis Republican convention. If he should be left, it will not be any great surprise, as he has so frequently been promised some good position in the past, and then dropped at the eleventh hour that his defeat now would but be in keeping with past experiences. If this district wishes to send an able and eloquent delegate to the St. Louis convention, one who could nominate any man to the office of president with honor to himself and friends, it will make no mistake in selecting Charles F. Hendryx, the brainy and able editor of the Sauk Center Herald.

EARNED A RENOMINATION.

Delano Eagle: Attorney General Childs should be renominated. He has earned it by his devotion to duty.

THE BOND PROPOSITION.

Vermilion Iron Journal: County Commissioners Morcom, Miller and Dinham are to be congratulated for the result of the vote on the bond proposition, and we hope they will look to it that the money is wisely expended. Another man to whom much credit is due is John Owens, whose ready eloquence and skill in parliamentary tactics combined succeeded in turning meetings in Duluth, called to oppose the issue, into assemblages clamoring for bonds.

LOOKS LIKE HALL.

Little Falls Herald: The St. Paul Herald mentions E. P. Barnum, of St. Cloud, as a probable Democratic nominee for governor. Mr. Barnum is a good man, but it looks more like O. M. Hall than anybody else.

THE ALPHABET OF HEALTH.

Avoid drafts and chills,
Beware of catching colds,
Coughs, grip and pneumonia.
Do not take any risks,
Even if you are quite well,
For danger is always near.
Grip is in the air,
Hidden disease hover about and Influenza threatens us
Just at this season.
Knowing this should lead us to Look after our health, and
Meet these trying conditions.
Nature must be assisted,
Our systems need regulating and
Pure, rich blood must flow
Quickly through our veins.
Renowned physicians say that a pure
Stimulant is the best thing
To take for promoting health;
Uniting, also, in praising the Virtues of Duffy's pure malt whiskey,
Which is medicinally pure, and
Xcellent in effect.
Young and old experience renewed
Zest and benefit after using it.

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

If your tea-table stands in your parlor or reception room, my dear Modern Woman, you are distinctly out of date. You must banish it and its appointments; its pretty cup and saucers. I do not mean to suggest that it must go into outer darkness entirely. Perish the thought! But the present demands of fashion dictate that you must each day set it forth in all its attractive allurements, or your maid servant or man servant must bring you a tray at 5 o'clock upon which are all the belongings of your tea-table, then you must spread your prettily embroidered cloth upon the waiting table, and arrange all the dainty cups and saucers, and spoons and kettles, and tea-caddies and other things upon it with your own fair hands. This is a task which is not only an agreeable one, but has many a pretty suggestion to the onlooker. If you have a pretty little room, which is your own sitting room, then your table may stand dressed in all its glory there, but the family sitting room or parlor, drawing room, or reception room is not exactly the place to keep a set out tea-table. The cloth and cups and saucers gather dust, and microbes, and germs and things, and the wary hesitate to partake thereof. A pretty cabinet may hang upon the wall near to your tea-table, holding the cups and saucers close at hand, and a deft handed hostess can show a pretty appreciation of her belongings by her ability to swiftly and daintily dress her table for her waiting guests. Then when the maid brings hot water, and tea-cakes or biscuits and sandwiches, it does not take long to serve the fragrant and steaming cup. Gossip tells us that Mrs. Diminick ensnared Benjamin's affections across the tea-table, that a dainty tea-gown and prettily manipulated cups and saucers, "down-cast silken lashes," which now and then lifted to flash a telling glance, while preparing the cheering cup, were factors so charming in an attractive personality that Benjamin Harrison widower, ex-president of the United States, fell a willing victim, and straightway proposed that she should make him the happiest man on earth, and daily show him, as wife in her own home, her ability to make the best cup of tea ever tasted.

* * *

I am sure that you will murmur discontentedly over the decree which banishes your pretty tea-tables and allows it to be set out only at the hour of tea serving, and yet, moth and dust do corrupt, and in these days when the veriest tyro dabbles in science, and quotes learnedly long dissertations on the subject of germs and bacilli, and tells us the diseases and horrors concealed in the tiniest particle of dust, then it is wise to allow no lurking atom to lie hidden anywhere. The mildest and most innocent looking persons at your board may be bacteriological experts, and continually on the lookout for microbes and molecules to molest and make them afraid of your most dainty belongings and viands. What bliss must lie in the future for those friends of yours —when some mastermind has made clearer the images of the cathode ray, think of the pure pleasure of radiographing different portions of one's anatomy, thus to chase the coy and wily microbe from its hidden den—think of fishing in the limpid stream of one's own life-blood for the evil germ, plucking him out—doubtless they will teach us how to—and casting him from one, thus to combine the pleasures of the chase with benefit to one's self. It is a great subject, and those who study thereon find sermons in dust, and books in one's own body, and make life somewhat unbearable to those about them. Therefore dust, dust and forever dust, not only your tea-table, my dear sister, but your belongings as well, if you would be up to date and walk in the way of those who chatter of science and good to the human race.

* * *

Some one has said that when man learned to protect himself against wild beasts, he advanced rapidly in civilization, and when he has learned to protect himself against microbes and the like he will swiftly develop into the perfect man. The developments of science, which teach us protection, show us that, unconsciously almost, we use nature and nature's means for our preservation. Even the smoke from green wood which tries the patience and soul of the housekeeper, is one of the best disinfectants known, capable of destroying the germs of disease suspended in the atmosphere or that have settled upon the furnishings of the room, so that if the wind is not in the right quarter, and your wood fire does not burn brightly, but persists in sending puffs of blinding smoke out into your room, do not complain; endure it, and smile grimly to yourself as you think of the efficacy of its disinfecting powers.

* * *

If you are wise in the study of proper environment you will keep your growing plants about you in sunny windows; not a great many, as they may in quantities exhale dampness into the atmosphere, but enough of them to give the necessary touch of green and living freshness to the room which takes away the "still-life" look. There are just two things which make a joy in a room apart from human presence—a vivid bit of living green in plant life, and a glowing wood fire. There is company and infinite suggestion in them, and one need never be ennuyee amid such surroundings. As I have often suggested to you before, across the tea-table, I advise you again as spring begins to draw nigh, to gather growing plants and flowers about you and give yourself occupation and interest in watching their development.

If you have not through these winter days cherished and watched the growth of plants, then go to the florist's, pick out pots of blooming and healthy specimens and take them home to brighten you and your environment, or start your seeds in boxes for spring. A pot of tulips or hyacinths last a reasonably long time, and are very satisfactory; or if you prefer to keep a vase of cut flowers about you, take some favorite flower and adopt it as a mark of your personality. If you wish to be up to date, the carnation is the flower of the hour. That is, it is distinctly the spring and winter flower, just as the chrysanthemum is the flower of autumn. Two or three of the magazines have articles this month on it, and it has been a rival all winter for the orchid, stateliest and queenliest of flowers and has displaced in a measure the rose. To the West belongs the honor of having recently produced a new specimen, large, deep crimson, and exquisitely fragrant. This new carnation commands a price of $10,000. At least, that is the offer made by Eastern florists to the Michigan man who has produced this wonderful new specimen.

* * *

So many women have seen cherished and fine specimens of palms grow sick and die under some hidden and blighting influence, that I sought out a florist not long since to ask advice upon the subject of their growth and habits. Of course he used technical names and said that it was a pity that they had no common names, but only thus are they known and only by these names can they be secured. He suggested that in purchasing palms it was unwise to buy very young plants, as the growth of them is very slow and no variety can be said to shoot up in a single night. The soil in which they are grown must be rich, but not too heavy; well rotted sod mixed with sand is perhaps the best. The pots should have more depth than breadth as the roots strike downward.

Put plenty of broken potsherds and charcoal in the bottom of the pot, for if the drainage is not good the water will stand about the roots, souring the earth. The leaves should be sprayed frequently and if scale collects on them should be sponged off with soap and water or a solution of alcohol and water. The Latanias are excellent for house culture, as they grow more rapidly than most palms and are not particularly delicate of constitution. The Latania Borbonica (Chinese fan palm) is a great favorite. I recently saw a very beautiful specimen of this. It was fifteen feet in height and three feet around the stem with immense drooping recurved leaves.

The Livistona are also fan palms; the handsome leaves are so full that they seem to be set rosette-wise on the leaf stalks. One of the best specimens for the house is the Raphis, a native of China and Japan. The Raphis Humilis has the reputation of being able to stand more neglect than any other palm. It throws up a great many slender drooping leaf stalks, with the leaves set like small fans on the end of them. A very beautiful variety is the Washingtonia Filiferi, being quite hardy and robust. It has dark green fan-shaped leaves, from which hang thread-like filaments, giving it a most singular appearance. It is a native of California, and very easily grown. If you have steam heat in your house and wish these plants to thrive, turn the steam into the room now and then to give them relief from the dryness of the heated atmosphere, or if you have heated air, put your tea kettle on to boil, and then you will be surprised to find how well they repay you for their occasional drink of moisture.

If you are accomplished in the use of the brush, my dear Modern Woman, you must no longer dabble in China painting and pottery, but you must turn your attention and brush to other branches of the art. If you are a fair copyist; and skilfull in water colors, or better still, if you have originality and the artist's soul, take up miniature painting as a passion. The shops in the larger cities are full of water color sketches of "Miladys" in daintiest of modern garb, framed in all the glory of gold mat and Renaissance frame, or the photograph touched into a counterfeit presentment, is a fair imitation of that more beautiful specimen, painted on ivory, copper or even gold, and set in plain gold frames, or in one richly encrusted with pearls or diamonds. It is a distinct fad at present, and if one is accomplished as an artist, and achieves a reputation even among friends for success in the art, she has succeeded in one of the difficult branches of painting, for miniature painting in reality is much of it done with the magnifying glass, and it takes not only the steady hand and clear eyesight, but almost phenomenal ability as an artist.

Miniature collecting is also a fad of the day, and there is at present great searching going on among old belongings for the beauties and belles of 100 years or so ago, when it was the fashion of the times. It is one of the most fascinating ways to waste money, because some of the old miniatures are almost priceless as works of art, and the jeweler's skill in setting. The woman who begins a collection of miniatures will invariably add her own to the list. It is an easy way, as in all portrait painting; for even though born hopelessly plain, she may thus thrust beauty on unlovely features, and appears to posterity as divinely fair—the artist's idea of what she should be.

"It is very pretty," said a woman, whose portrait Buchanan Read was painting; "but it does not look at all like me." "It is not a portrait of you as you are," said he, "but it is a portrait of you as you should be."

France has always produced miniature artists, and the art has never entirely died out there. Some old French families are noted for miniature collections, as, for instance, that of the Marquise de Brille, whose collection dates from the days of the gay and gallant Francis I. The Vicomtesse de Janze has a superb collection. Her magnificent palace is entirely furnished in Louis Quinze style, furnished throughout without one bibelot, one piece of bric-a-brac or furniture to hint that other ages or other standards of art ever existed. If you presume to "know thyself" take up one of your own photographs, and with the knowledge your mirror teaches, color it in exquisite tints, and from this drift off into the large sphere of true miniature painting, and follow the dictates of Fashion with your brush. Agate.

TWO LIVES SAVED.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thomas Eggers, 139 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a terrible cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Duluth Drug company's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

A Sufferer Cured

"Every season, from the time I was two years old, I suffered dreadfully from erysipelas, which kept growing worse until my hands were almost useless. The bones softened so that they would bend, and several of my fingers are now crooked from this cause. On my hand I carry large scars, which, but for

THE SITE

East Lawn Division Selected For the Normal School Building.

Richardson & Day Made a New Offer and the Council Accepted.

Normal Board Was Informed and Immediately Accepted the Site.

The normal school site has been formally accepted by the council, tendered to the normal board and accepted by them, and all that remains is for the state to appropriate some money to build the school. When the hitch in the selection of the site arose yesterday afternoon because the board decided that the site would have to include six acres clear of the street line, the mayor immediately called a meeting of the council for 8:30 o'clock to remedy the matter. The board was much pleased with the East Lawn site with that exception.

When the full council convened at 8:30 last evening Richardson & Day had a new proposition to offer. They consented to take fifty-seven feet from the front of lots 1 to 12, in block 18, removing Garden street to that ground and adding the space now occupied by the street to the site. This would give the site a little more than six acres inside of street lines. This operation would shorten the lots in block 18 from 142 to eighty-five feet, therefore Richardson & Day asked $3000 more, making $11,000 in all.

In order to get the matter before the council Alderman Krumsieg moved the adoption of the site. This precipitated a lengthy and animated discussion.

Alderman Richardson wanted to know if the site had to be paid for now. He understood that there was no appropriation for the school and there might be none for years. He thought that should be taken into consideration.

Alderman Krumsieg thought the state would build and that it would not ask a site if it had not that intention. The opportunity for obtaining a normal school should not be passed by.

THOUGHT IT TOO MUCH.

Alderman Olafson thought Duluth should get the school by all means, and he was willing to concede it to the East End in order that Duluth might get it, but he thought it wrong to give $3000 more than the original price. Proper notice was given and six acres were called for. If Richardson & Day made a mistake let them correct it. It should be their loss, not the city's.

Alderman Krumsieg had an impression that Richardson & Day had not offered the site as containing six acres. They had merely offered certain described property.

Alderman Sang thought they had no business to submit a proposition if they did not have the amount called for.

Alderman Olafson thought there was a "nigger in the fence," because Richardson & Day came in after the site was selected and chapped $3000 on the price. The rest of those who offered sites knew that six acres were required and the city should pay but $8000 for the six acres.

Alderman Harwood thought that the city should not let $3000 stand in the way of getting the school located here, as it would get it back a thousandfold.

Alderman Richardson thought it did not look quite straight. Alderman Crandall was willing to admit that Richardson & Day might have made a mistake and that their intentions were good. They thought that the site included the legal right to the middle of the street, and that would make the original offer more than six acres, but the board refused to consider the area outside of street lines. He thought the chances of getting the school should not slip by, and he intimated that as the board was not any too favorable to Duluth it might slip if this site was not secured.

Alderman Rowley concurred with him and called for the question, but Alderman Olafson wanted to know from Richardson & Day, first, would they give six acres for $8000, and, second, would they take city orders, payable when the school was located, or how?

HAD NO DESIGNS.

Frank A. Day explained to the council that Richardson & Day had no fell designs on the city treasury. They had supposed the site would include up to the street line, hence the shortage of the original offer. To make up the tract they had to ruin twelve choice lots and replat it all. The price asked is about half what it is worth. As to payment, the owners of the property lived out of the city and he could not get to them inside of a week.

Alderman Richardson then heartily withdrew all aspersions and apologized. Alderman Nelson wanted to know if the matter could be put off until Monday to see about payment for the site, but there seemed to be a well-defined fear that the normal board might escape and that it would be difficult to get them together again, so the council decided to take no risks.

When the vote was taken there was no dissent, and the new proposition was accepted.

City Clerk Richardson was then delegated to tender it to the board, which was then in session at the Spalding. Escorted by only a couple of newspaper men he did so. The board had heard all about it and had its action all ready and typewritten.

It was to the effect that the site be accepted and the matter referred to the attorney general for further action. The board sugested that the deed be made out directly to the state and that it be placed in escrow with the attorney general until the appropriation for the school be made.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Mrs. J. A. Sample Owes Her Strength to This the Best of All Remedies.

For the unfortunates who lie awake, staring at the ceiling and counting the strokes of the clock, every sleepless night is an eternity.

Mrs. J. A. Sample, of 1558 Broadway, New York city, was afflicted with insomnia until her nerves were on the verge of prostration. She thinks her condition was due to indigestion. Here is what Mrs. Sample says:

"I have used Paine's celery compound with marked and decided benefit. It is especially useful in insomnia, arising from indigestion and poorly nourished nerves.

"I should add that my granddaughter, Vera Hatleigh, was so thin and puny at the age of 10 as to cause the greatest anxiety. We had no difficulty in inducing her to take Paine's celery compound. Today the roses bloom in her cheeks, and I never saw a healthier, stronger child than Paine's celery compound has made her."

The brain is the center of the nervous system. Sleep alone rests this vigil organ, together with the nerves. During the waking hours the nervous system works incessantly. Poor sleep means poor nervous condition, and prolonged insomnia leads in every case to prostration, and too often to dread insanity. The mischief that results from weakened nerves is much greater and more destructive than most folks even dream of.

The all-important thing for nervous, run-down persons, and for those who are losing sleep is that Paine's celery compound builds up the whole physical system, and by improving the digestion and regulating the nerves it insures sound, refreshing sleep.

In winter most women and many men had hothouse lives. A flagging appetite, a disposition to pick at this dish and that, rather than to eat a square meal, is among the early indications of failing health. Then comes delay in falling asleep and the fretful, uneasy feeling the next day.

Deliverance from such a miserable condition by the use of Paine's celery compound has caused men and women from every section of the United States to write sincere, hearty words of praise and thankfulness for this grand invigorator. People enjoying perfect health sometimes wonder at this gratitude; but whoever has suffered from prostration of the nerves, of which insomnia is one of the symptoms, will understand how hard it is to overstate the torment of this condition. And whoever has been made completely well by Paine's celery compound feels that no words can overstate the joy and gratitude such persons feel.

This is the state of mind of thousands of nervous, sickly, broken-down persons who have used Paine's celery compound and been made well.

Mrs. Sample tells of the happy result in the case of her grandchild. One of the most conspicuous instances of the remarkable power of Paine's celery compound over debility is shown in the relief it has afforded children. Of course the dose is adapted to the age of the little patient. The compound purifies the blood and corrects any tendency to constipation. Pale, puny children are made vigorous, rosy and healthy by this incomparable remedy.

THE COUNTY ROAD.

Commissioners Discussed it Yesterday Afternoon.

The county commissioners held an adjourned meeting yesterday afternoon and discussed the appointment of a road committee to transact all road business for a year. Another proposition was that three from the various commercial bodies make up a committee to see that economy is observed in the doings of road money.

Commissioner Dinham's resolution as to the letting of contracts was introduced, but all three matters were laid over until next Friday.

H. M. Peyton and A. L. Ordean petitioned the board to have their names removed from the petition for the erection of a county hospital. I. McCormick asked permission to erect telephone poles along public highways, and his request was referred. The petitioner proposes to connect Hibbing, Virginia, Mountain Iron, Biwabik, Eveleth and Tower with a telephone system, and if his request is granted he proposes to begin work within three months.

Took the Body Home.

A. H. Keefe and D. F. Keefe, the brothers of James C. Keefe, who was found dead in bed at the St. James hotel, Thursday morning, arrived yesterday afternoon to take charge of the body. They were completely overcome by the affair and expressed their fear of the effect it would have on their father. The deceased was only 18 years old and was the pet of the family. He had been at work at Brown's lumber camp, near Two Harbors, and was enroute to the family home at Birch Coulie, when he lay down to take his afternoon sleep. His brothers say that James would not have blown out the gas or turned it on after the light was extinguished, and are satisfied that the jet was turned on accidentally. They expressed gratitude for the care taken of the body pending their arrival. The Keefes left for Birch Coulie with the remains last night over the St. Paul & Duluth road.

Duluth, Minn., March 10, 1896.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned at his office, 104 Providence building, Duluth, Minn., on or before the 10th day of April, 1896, for the purchase of the leasehold interest in the Spalding hotel, Duluth, Minn., belonging to the estate of E. P. Emerson, insolvent. Said leasehold interest runs to the first day of May, 1899, and the rental reserved therefor is $12,000 a year from the 1st day of May, 1896.

The Spalding hotel is the principal hotel in the city of Duluth, and is doing a large and successful business. The gross receipts from the operation of said hotel during the year 1895 have been $131,000, and a large profit was realized over and above all operating expenses. The leasehold and chattel property above mentioned is subject to a mortgage of $13,000, with accrued interest from December 9, 1895, which will be paid out of said purchase price. Possession of the property will be given on the first day of May, 1896, if a bid is made which shall be approved by the district court. Right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Each bid must contain a certified check to the order of W. B. Silvey, receiver, for 2 per cent. of the amount of said bid, to be returned if the bid be rejected.

Wagner

Does not appeal to most people for the reason that his music, in order to be appreciated, must be thoroughly understood. Wagner's music is so essentially German, so interwoven with the legends and thoughts of that country that a person who has not lived and studied there many years cannot teach it, for Germany is the only country in which all of Wagner's operas receive the necessary attention. A year or twos' study of Wagner, even in Germany, can give but a superficial knowledge of the beauties of his music. It is a part of a liberal education to understand Wagner. A teacher cannot teach what he does not play. Wagner, Beethoven, etc., taught at—

His Mind Troubled.

Thomas McLaughlin, ex-captain of police, who was arrested yesterday afternoon on complaint of his wife, who alleged that he had threatened her with a knife, appeared in the municipal court this morning and his hearing was set for Wednesday morning next, at 10 o'clock, bail being fixed at $500, in default of which he was committed to jail. The weapon McLaughlin brandished at his wife is a cavalry saber that has been broken off at half its length and ground to a point, making a weapon something like a Chinese stiletto, and is a villainous looking affair. It is thought McLaughlin's mind is affected, as, in addition to violent outbursts of temper, he has taken to burning up the clothes of his wife and sister, yesterday stuffing an astrakhan cloak valued at $150, belonging to Mrs. McLaughlin, into the stove.

PILGRIM CHURCH RECEPTION.

The reception at the Pilgrim church last evening was a very pleasant affair. Rev. C. H. Patton's remarks on the "Home and Haunts of Shakespeare" were marvelous in their descriptive power, and one forgot for a time that they were in the new Western world, and not in historic England. His closing remarks referring to the possibility of a war with the mother country, led one to feel that he wished the time might come in our day when the nations of the earth should have war no more. Mrs. d'Autremont's numbers were excellent. Numerous etchings placed around the room and refreshments daintily served by the ladies of the church added to the pleasure of the evening.

Were Not Guilty.

Attracted by the noise of a row in Martin Smith's saloon, at 509 West Superior street, about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Officer McKenzie entered and found three men rolling and pounding each other around on the floor. The man who was in the minority in the discussion was rescued by the officer, and he no sooner recovered his wind than he accused the other two of having robbed him, whereupon the whole party was arrested. At the station, the man who claimed to have been robbed gave his name as Christ Moline, and said he had $112 in money when he ran against the two others, who gave their name as Emil Carlson and Peter Carlson. They were searched, but no money was found and Detective Donovan started out on the trail. He soon solved the mystery by finding Moline's roll with a boardinghouse keeper, to whom he had given it for safe keeping. The Carlsons were at once released, while Moline clubbed himself for his hasty action.

Herbert Connor, the artist, while at Tower recently, painted a fine sketch in water colors of the landscape looking east from the Vermillion hotel. It presents President D. H. Bacon's home very prominently and shows Jasper peak, the highest point of land in Minnesota, as well as the other large hills in that vicinity. The work is very cleverly done and so well pleased was President Bacon when he saw it that he purchased it.

A FINE FLUTE SOLOIST.

A. Hoelscher, of Marquette, Mich., one of the few fine flute soloists, will play a solo tomorrow night at Pilgrim Congregational church. It is seldom the flute is used in solo work, owing to the difficult work of getting a good tone, but wherever Mr. Hoelscher has been heard the audience have been delighted. The choir under direction of Arthur Drake will render anthems as usual.

In the morning Mr. Hoelscher will play an obligato to Millard's "Ave Maria," which will be sung by Miss Margaret McDonald at the cathedral.

SWINDLED

Verdict of Nearly $194,000 For Merritts in the Stratton Case.

Stratton Has Been Arrested For Grand Larceny in First Degree.

Col. Singiser May Be Arrested---Proctor Knott is Also Interested.

The case of Frank A. Stratton against A. R. and E. T. Merritt to recover $4100 on a promissory note, resulted disastrously to him, for this morning the jury returned a verdict for $193,963.91 in favor of the defendants, and this noon the plaintiff was arrested for grand larceny in the first degree. The complaint is sworn to by Andreas R. Merritt and charges specifically that Stratton caused the Merritts, by false representations in May, 1892, to purchase $450,000 of stock in the Monarch Coal and Coke company by claiming this company had sole mineral rights to 50,000 acres of coal lands in Kentucky. Stratton's hearing has been set for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. He will apply to the district court for bail.

The story of this gigantic fraud is an interesting one. In 1892 Frank A. Stratton and T. F. Singiser came to Duluth with Proctor Knott's party, and while here worked up a deal with E. T. and A. R. Merritt. They represented that they owned nine-tenths of the stock of the Monarch Coal and Coke company, which they stated owned and controlled 50,000 acres of valuable lands in Pike county, Kentucky. They talked the lands up glowingly, and finally the Merritts agreed to buy three-fourths of the stock of the Monarch Coal and Coke company for $450,000.

Then, it is claimed, Stratton hired two men, whose names are known, to face up coal pits on other land in Pike county. Thus prepared, Stratton took the Merritt's down and showed them the lands. They were apparently good coal lands and the Merritt's were satisfied. They paid $30,000 cash and gave notes for $420,000, of which $140,000 has been paid. With that and the Merritts organized the Empire Coal company.

With these notes, in the spring and summer of 1892, Stratton bought a lot of land in Pike county, picking up almost any old acre property he could find. This he transferred to the Merritts, who continued to pay the notes as they came due until September, 1894, when the fraud was discovered and they refused to honor any more notes. At that time A. E. McManus, in behalf of the Merritts, began suit in the United States court for the eastern district of Kentucky, making Stratton and Singiser and the Monarch company defendants.

Stratton and Singiser were directors in the Empire Coal company, and when they brought the deeds to the land to a directors' meeting they asked that they be made a committee to look up the deeds. They were so delegated, and later they came back and said they were all right and that they were the lands shown to the Merritts.

After the Kentucky suit was begun Stratton sent one of the notes for $4100 up to Duluth to be sued upon. A. E. McManus immediately dismissed the suit in Kentucky and alleged substantially as above in his answer to Stratton's suit, making a counterclaim of $375,000, the difference between what the Merritts paid out and what they got. The note sued upon was a renewal of an original note.

The evidence in the case on trial in the district court here showed that the deeds to the land conveyed to the Merritts, were made three months after the Merritts gave their notes, and they provided that Stratton was not to be held liable on these notes. It is claimed that neither Stratton nor Singiser owned any lands in Pike county when the deal was made, and that the whole thing was a large confidence game.

The case was begun last Monday. Just as soon as it was known that Stratton was in town a warrant was secured for his arrest, but it was kept back until the trial was over. Yesterday morning the case was given to the jury and at 8:30 this morning an argument on the amount of the verdict was reached, and when delivered to the court it was found to be as above.

A great deal of credit is due the attorneys in the case. For two or three years A. E. McManus has been working upon it alone until last May. Early in the case he traveled alone in a jo-boat on the Big Sandy river from Pikeville to Catlettsburg, 210 miles, on a case for witnesses, shooting rapids and enduring all sorts of adventures. Since May last A. A. and H. E. Harris have been associated with him, and to their efforts no little part of this result is due.

Singiser is out of the jurisdiction of the state, being in Kentucky, but an effort will be made to get him. Proctor Knott has not been mixed in this case, but it is understood that he was associated with the deal and that he also may come in for a part of the outcome.

Wants it Set Aside.

The American Exchange bank has sued A. D. Davidson, assignee of the State bank, to set aside a mortgage redemption of lots 34 and 36, East Second street, on the ground of misrepresentation. The American Exchange held several mortgages on the property given by O. W. Saunder, and Davidson held one. These were foreclosed, and it is claimed that Davidson led the plaintiff to believe that he was not going to redeem, engaging them in another deal until the time for the filing of notices of redemption was past. In the meantime he had given the register of deeds his notice of redemption outside of office hours and had redeemed the property. The bank claims that if this is allowed to stand it will bar it from recovering on its mortgages.

F. H. Sigrist & Co. yesterday filed an assignment to John Christie, accompanied by an affidavit that the value of the assets was not to exceed $2500. The bond of the assignee was fixed at $3000 during the taking of the inventory.

JACKSON AND WALLING.

Cincinnati, March 14.—This was the day set for the hearing by the circuit court of the appeal from Judge Bushwalter's decision regarding turning Scott Jackson and A. M. Walling over to Kentucky to answer for the murder of Pearl Bryant. The father of Pearl Bryant, her brothers, and ten men, friends of the family, including Attorney Hayes, who is the lawyer of the Bryan family, were here. After the arguments, the court adjourned until Monday.

FREIMUTH'S

WERE DISMISSED.

Indictments Against the Tinkhams Set Aside.

The grand larceny case against A. D. Cummings and H. R. and E. A. Tinkham came to an end, for the present at least, when Judge Moer, sustained a demurrer to the indictment on the ground that it was not explicit enough. In fact Judge Moer intimated that it did not charge anything.

The county attorney asked that the bonds be continued and the case be remanded to the next grand jury, but Judge Moer thought that neither was necessary. If the county attorney wished to bring it before the next grand jury he could do so.

The defendants state that this indictment is a malicious prosecution. They say that McAlpine knew of the existence of the mortgage on the property, because when the deal was going through he was told that the price was so small that after the mortgage was paid there would not be enough left to buy a drink, whereupon McAlpine said that he would buy the drink and did so.

An abstract was read from the county records and verified by McAlpine's attorney. It did not contain the mortgage, because it had not been filed. The mortgage was filed before the deed was because the mortgagee feared that the deal was going on. Cummings says he intended to pay the mortgage and will pay it, but he will take his own time, because at one time McAlpine said unless he did pay it inside of three hours he would have him arrested. But he claims that the deal was as honest as any that ever went through.

Archie McArthur, the Hibbing justice of the peace, pleaded not guilty this morning and was released under $250 bail. David Brown pleaded guilty to forgery. James W. Fowler demurred to his indictment, but the demurrer was overruled, and he pleaded not guilty.

David Forti, charged with keeping a house of ill fame, pleaded not guilty and bonds were fixed at $500.

A sealed verdict was returned in the case of W. S. Vent against the Dulluth Coffe and Spice company, and it will be opened Monday. In the case of the Northern Security company against the American Loan and Trust company a verdict for the defendant was returned.

The folowing cases have been set for Monday: 115, 108, 148, 93, 110, 111, 70, 158, 177.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA.

Peter Feeley Dies From Effect of a Dog Bite.

St. Paul, March 14.—Peter Feeley died at the city hospital at 10:30 this morning. He was a victim of hydrophobia beyond question, as the physicians ascertained a few hours previous to his death. Nothing could be done for him except to ease the pain, and even efforts in this direction were fruitless. He leaves a wife and family in destitute circumstances.

His wife and three children were all bitten by the same dog that gave Feeley his death wound, but thus far none of them have shown any symptoms of the poison. Physicians will examine into their conditiecl with the intent to prevent any development of the disease if it exists in their systems. None of them were severely bitten and it is thought that the bites amounted to little more than mere scratches.

HAD USE FOR HIM.

Mr. James Payn, the London writer, tells a sensational story. He says a young man was paying his attentions to a "beloved object," contrary to the wishes of her father, "a man of thews and sinews," and one day the latter kicked the lover violently into the street. In a day or two (after recovery) the rejected suitor, apparently not one whit discouraged, called at the house once more.

"What, again!" exclaimed paterfamilias, putting on his well-soled boots for action. "No, No," cried the young man, "I have given up all hope of winning your daughter; but in consequence of that astounding kick you gave me t'other day, I have been requested, on the strength of my earnest recommendation to the committee, to ask you to join our football club."

MRS. SARGENT DEAD.

A Long and Useful Life Has Been Closed.

Mrs. George B. Sargent, widow of Gen. George B. Sargent, and mother of W. C. Sargent and Mrs. F. W. Paine, died this morning of heart trouble at the advanced age of 75 years.

Mrs. Sargent has been a very familiar figure in Duluth social life for nearly thirty years, and in 1869, when the Sargent built his house on Minnesota Point, she was a pioneer in the young city. Shortly afterward, when Gen. Sargent built the Sargent house in Lakeside, then known as New London, the family settled there, the first pioneers and founders of that settlement.

Until within a few months Mrs. Sargent has been closely identified with nearly every good work in progress in Duluth for the amelioration of those less fortunate in life than she was, but it was in early years in Duluth when Mrs. Sargent's open hospitality and kind words of welcome, particularly to the young generations who were gaining a foothold here, that the foundation was laid for the deep respect and affection in which the deceased was held. The Sargent home was always cheerful, and to cross its threshold and converse with the genial host and hostess was a recreation in early days to which many old heads in Duluth will refer with tender memories.

The funeral services will be held at St. Paul's E. Episcopal church, of which the deceased was a devout member, at 12:40 o'clock tomorrow, Sunday, and the body will be taken to Davenport, Iowa, and laid beside Gen. Sargent, who has been at rest there for nearly a quarter of a century.

W. C. Sargent and Mrs. F. W. Paine will accompany the body to Davenport tomorrow afternoon.

THE TEMPLE QUARTET.

Concert at the First M. E. Church Tonight.

The Temple quartet, of Boston, said to be the finest male quartet in the country, will give a concert at the First Methodist church tonight, it being one of the entertainments in the Star lecture course. An exchange says:

"The concerted work of these singers is simply perfection in harmony, force, unison and pitch, and so well are they appreciated that every selection was encored. In the minor work, which they attack with confidence and precision, the merit of the singers is brought out time and again, the most critical ear failing to discover a shadow of deviation from absolute trueness."

Miss Katherine Ridgeway, elocutionist, accompanies the quartet, and is highly spoken of. An exchange says:

"Miss Katherine Ridgeway was the central figure of the entertainment. Her selections proved that she possesses marked ability. Her mimicking of the bobolink was perfect, and her description of how Rubinstein played the piano was excellent. She has a fine presence, her gestures are graceful, her voice rich and flexible, and she has the ambition requisite to place her among the greatest elocutionists of the day."

Mrs. Dickerman's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Gilbert G. Dickerman took place in St. Paul yesterday and was attended by a large number of friends. Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Taussig, A. W. Taussig, O. H. Clarke and J. H. Noyes, of Duluth, were present, and her brothers, John and William O'Keefe, of St. Louis, were there. The casket was interred in the chapel in Oakland cemetery in St. Paul, a beautiful place. The chapel is octagonal in shape and instead of being a somber and gloomy vault is almost dazzling in its beauty. The sunlight is admitted on all sides, luxurant tropical plants abound and birds are constantly singing sweetly. It was in this peaceful spot that all that was mortal of Mrs. Dickerman was laid to rest and it was singularly fitting that one so beloved among all her friends should find there her place of last reposc.

JACKSON WEAKENED.

When Fullerton Ordered His Arrest This Morning.

St. Paul, March 14.—Game Warden Farnham and Local Agent Jackson, of the Great Northern and American Express companies, had a fine tilt over a barrel of birds at the office of the company last evening, and Mr. Farnham at first got the worst of it. He seized the birds, which were being shipped through to Chicago, and took them from the train.

Mr. Jackson promptly took them away from him and announced that as they were in the car of the company they should continue their journey. Mr. Farnham entered the usual protest and reported the matter to Executive Agent Fullerton. Mr. Fullerton, accompanied by Superintendent Wires, of the government fish hatchery at Duluth, went with Mr. Farnham to the express office, where they interviewed Mr. Jackson. The latter stated to Mr. Fullerton that he had taken the birds away from the warden and that he intended to ship them on to Chicago.

Mr. Fullerton turned to Mr. Farnham and ordered him to have Jackson arrested and the party promptly left the office. Jackson then offered to hold the birds. Mr. Fullerton replied that he did not care what was done with the birds, that the authorities had had enough trouble with that office, and that as it was the only one that had been giving them trouble all along they would settle the matter today.

Then Jackson proposed a conference with Superintendent Naylor and this was agreed to. The conference was held this morning and matters amicably arranged so that the wardens will not be interfered with hereafter. The law is very strict on the interference with the wardens and provides that the penalty for any sort of interference, even to the extent of a threat, shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $200, or from ninety to 120 days in jail, or both, in the discretion of the court.

PERKINS

The California Senator to Be Pushed For the Vice-Presidency.

Interesting Sketch of the Eventful Career of a Self-Made Man.

A Plain Man of the People, Endorsed By California People.

Washington, March 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The announcement within the last few days of the candidacy of Senator George C. Perkins, of California, for vice president on the Republican national ticket next fall has aroused an interest in the man and in the peculiar characteristics which may qualify him for the office. It is understood that the selection of Senator Perkins by a number of the most influential party leaders as the best possible choice for second place from their point of view was a matter which came to the California senator in the nature of a complete surprise. Casing about the political firmament and seeking a man whose public history and views and personality should satisfy a certain peculiar demand, the attributes of Senator Perkins were recognized as eminently marking him for a candidate of the highest potentiality. The situation in the West arising from the persistent demands of the silver interests and from the feeling of antagonism to the great corporate and banking and gold-supporting interests of the East, calls loudly for a ticket on which shall be the name of the man who carries the confidence of Western voters. Senator Perkins, although a native of Maine, is the embodiment of the strong, sagacious, enterprising, modern, yet unpretentious spirit of the great West.

SENATOR GEORGE C. PERKINS.

Senator Perkins is a plain man of the people, who, starting with limited educational advantages as a poor boy on the coast of Maine, took his career in his own hands at the age of 12 and carved out a place for himself in the highest walks of life by dint of qualities which command the respect and admiration of all Americans. He was born in 1839 in the seaport town of Kennebunkport, Maine, where his forefathers had come among the earliest settlers. They were a determined, hard working people of most devout habits. His father, Clement Perkins, was a seafaring man gaining a modest competency in trade with the West Indies. His mother, Lucinda Fairchild, was related to both of the two earliest governors of Maine. Young George passed the first few years of his life under the strict regime of that time and place, receiving a better notion of hard work than of play or books. He grew up with a passion for the sea, on the shore of which he used to stand longingly for hours.

When he was 12 years old, by reason of the responsibility which rested upon him as a working member of the household, he felt himself more of a man than many boys nowadays at 20. It was in an open, confiden, way that he approached the captain of the Golden Eagle as she lay at anchor with her sails flapping in the wind and said that he desired to become a seafaring man and would be willing to commence as cabin boy. The captain refused. Young Perkins decided to go with the Golden Eagle nevertheless. When the Golden Eagle was half hull down on the horizon and the town of Kennebunkport was a faint white speck on a distant shore, young Perkins came forth from the hold of the ship and the captain accepted him as one of the crew.

In the following four years he made four voyages across the Atlantic between various American and European ports and became a thoroughly hardened young sailor of excellent habits and capacity, but still before the mast. In 1855 he determined to seek his fortunes among the mighty throng that was wending over land and sea to the Eldorado on the Pacific coast. And in that year the ship Galatea, casting anchor in San Francisco bay, brought with her as one of her crew before the mast the future successful merchant, miner, miller, whaler, shipowner, banker, philanthropist, legislator, governor and United States senator, George C. Perkins.

He found himself in the small town of San Francisco, a strong, self-reliant youth of 17, to whom work was but play. All but a very few dollars of the money he had earned on the voyage around the horn went to buy the costly regulation outfit of those days—a shot gun, revolver, pick, shovel, blanket and some crackers and bacon. He worked his passage on the steamer to Sacramento and thence walked many miles over the hills to the placer mines in Butte county. He toiled over the gold bearing streams incessantly for the rest of that year; but the rich strike he dreamed of in common with the rest came not to him, but to others. He decided to leave California and ship to Frazer river where the diggings were just becoming celebrated. But when he found himself about to turn his back on his native land to seek fortune in a foreign territory, he upbraided himself for having been defeated in his first endeavor; and he turned around and decided to make a new attack on the same ground, but in a different way. Again he worked his passage up the Sacramento river and came to Oroville, where he soon obtained employment as a porter in a general store. He took up his duties with characteristic energy, built himself a cabin out of redwood logs, did his own cooking and practiced the most rigid economy.

At this stage was shown on the part of Perkins a sagacity the possession of which might have landed many a forty-niner amid wealth who now exists in poverty. Every sort of service was extremely dear then and there as compared to the present times in the East; and while the necessaries of life were also high the surplus of every man's earnings over his needful expenses was also high. Perkins recognized that while this was true then, it would not always be so, and he shaped his course accordingly. He saved money and in three years was in a position to become part owner of the store where he had begun as porter. His sales for the first month of his partnership amounted to $30000; and with strict attention to business and his reputation for fairness and liberality it grew until it reached in a few years the sum of half a million dollars per year.

From that time, by virtue of his energy and cleverness, the fortunes of the future senator continually increased. He became owner of a flour mill, began to raise sheep and cattle and engaged in banking. His personal popularity, coupled with the absolute confidence with which he inspired all comers, was as rare as it was wise in those times. Nothing daunted him. When in 1862 Oroville was cut off from the world by a great flood of the Feather river, he went alone in a skiff for a perilous journey of twenty miles down the stream to Marysville, chartered a steamer, navigated her safely back to Oroville loaded with provisions for a town which was threatened with starvation. When in the same year a military company of which he was a member decided to celebrate the Fourth of July and to make a demonstration which should silence the Southern element then rampant in that portion of the state; and when on the morning of the Fourth it was found that some rebel sympathizer had cut the halyards of the flag staff in the plaza, Sailor Perkins promptly tied the halyards around his waist and climbed up the mighty redwood pole which served as a flag mast and rove the halyards through the block and flung Old Glory to the breeze.

His first entrance into politics was in 1869, when he was elected state senator from the county which had refused him fortune at the placer mines. His course in the legislature was one of marked independence and vigor, and the university of California owes to his unsupported efforts one of the most important measures which so early started it on its successful career. He was re-elected in 1873 and stood between the people and the great corporation which sought to squeeze an enormous subsidy out of the state. In the meantime he had become a member of a shipping firm which has since grown to send its steamers to every port on the Pacific coast from the southernmost part of Mexico to Sitka in Alaska. And as a member of the Pacific Steam Whaling company, he and his associates built the first steam whalers on the Pacific coast. He became a director and stockholder in a number of manufacturing enterprises and in several mines.

He had always been a consistent Republican and this was recognized when in 1879 he was elected governor of the state by over 20,000 plurality. In his administration, which covered a period of great financial excitement and of the adoption of a radically new state constitution, he won the greater respect of both adversaries and friends. Afterwards he retired to prosecute his various business interests and did not reappear in public life until 1892, when he was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Leland Stanford. This appointment of the governor was ratified by the legislature after an exciting campaign in 1894, wherein the worst machine elements in the state which had been strongly Republican for years were arrayed against a man of the people, who made an open appeal without fear or favor on the strength of a personal and political career which was known to all the men of his state.

Senator Perkins' candidacy is not being made the subject of much discourse. Not much will be heard of it until the name is placed in nomination before the convention. His friends will rely upon his views on the silver question and upon the singular position which he occupies as a wealthy man who, despite his marked prosperity, has continually held the confidence of the voters of his state, whether rich or poor, and the esteem of the people at large within a very wide circle. He has always given the amount of his salary, whether as governor of the state of California or as United States senator, to charitable ends. He never forgot the time when he landed an almost penniless boy on the shores of California, and he is the main support of a large charitable institution in San Francisco, which has found homes for over 2300 orphans within the few years since its foundation. Almost every important institution of a philanthropic nature and nearly every institution for the advancement of learning or the aid of science bears his name on its roll of directors; and he is well known as a constant and consistent devotee of Christianity as expressed by the doctrine of the Unitarian church. It is believed that at the opening of the convention there may be some opposition to his nomination by the silver men, but that if they find that they are unable to nominate a silver candidate for president they will unite for Perkins for vice president and give him their undivided support.

THE PARROT GOT EVEN.

"A man whose name I have forgotten told me this parrot story the other day on the train between Topeka and Salina, says the Kansas City Journal. His niece had coaxed him to buy her a parrot, and he had purchased her a bird that the dealer had warranted to be a good talker. He took it home, and standing beside its cage said: 'Say uncle, Polly.' The bird perched and sat and nothing more. Time and again he told it to say 'uncle,' but it never moved its head. Finally the man grew exasperated, and opening the cage door grabbed the bird by the neck and shook it until its head wobbled around, all the time yelling to it, 'Say uncle, goll darn yer! Say uncle!' The bird looked limp and lifeless, and disgusted with his purchase he took it out into the yard where he had a coop of thirty fine chickens. Turning the half dead bird in with the chickens he exclaimed: 'There, by gosh! You'll say uncle before you get out!' Next morning he went out to see how the parrot was getting on. Looking into the coop he counted twenty-nine dead chickens, and in the center of the coop stood the parrot on one foot, holding the thirtieth chicken by the neck, and shaking it till its head wobbled, and screaming: 'Say uncle, goll darn yer! Say uncle!'"

QUAINT

A Ramble Through the Attractive French Quarter of New Orleans.

Old City Hall of the Spaniards and the Ursuline Convent.

The Creole Beauties Who Go to St. Roch's Chapel to Worship.

New Orleans, March 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—This fascinating old city still holds me a victim, and I cannot go away until I carry you with me on an imaginary ramble through its quaint and most attractive "Old Quarter." So we will start from the Clay statue, about midway Canal street, and crossing to the French, or down-town side, enter Royal street, which, in the days of its glory, was its principal center. Here now are the remains of many old residences of one story, with heavy shutters and gratings, zaguard, with corner windows and slate roofs, (occasionally a few with old clay tiles that were formerly used exclusively.) And, too, many more pretentious buildings, from which I judge these early Creoles had a clever eye to business, as well as pleasure and comfort, for many of their old homes were built with the shops beneath, and a long arched corridor leading back to the inner court or gardens, where, with their warm, generous blood, they freely indulged in the dolce far niente of the Southern clime. Their reception and drawing rooms were on the floor above, and in this third or dormer roof were the bedrooms. In just such a house dwelt the eccentric "Lieut. George," made famous by Cable in his "Creole Tales."

A few blocks down Royal street I was much impressed by a wide archway, flanked by two cannon imbedded in the ground, which I found was the remains of the old Spanish headquarters or commanderia, and near by Hotel Royal, known by all visitors to New Orleans as the great hostelry of the French quarter. Passing on to St. Louis street, we come to a tall house with a cupola, that was built for Napoleon I by an admirer, who learned that the emperor desired to exile himself to Louisiana. We pass by several massive old banks, in simple Greek style, with their walls crumbling to decay, but enough of the portico and other ornamental columns to show how that great art was appreciated in this new country.

Turning down Chartres into Toulouse, we come face to face with "Old Jackson square," or Place d'Armes, a quaint, dusty old garden, surrounded by the most picturesque of architecture, and where all the important events of colonial history were commemorated. This was formerly the parade grounds for the troops of the garrison, and from the flagstaff in the center floated the banners of France and Spain, while later, that of our own Union. Now a bronze equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson has taken its place.

The square was formerly surrounded on the upper and lower sides by a row of Spanish buildings, but they were destroyed by their owner, the Baroness de Pontalba (granddaughter of the founder of the old cathedral) and in their stead were built the present row of dwellings, with shops beneath, all exactly alike, of brick, with iron verandahs across the front, with no pretentions to beauty, but decidedly showing a speculative tendency. But at the same time she laid out this square after the style of the beautiful French gardens, and to the present day there is an attempt after the same.

THE OLD CABILDO.

The only building remaining in its entirety is the Cabildo, or city hall, of the Spaniards, on each side of the cathedral, of a very heavy style of architecture, with arches and columns of brick and stucco, with no ornamentation whatever, and age has given it a very dismal appearance. Within its walls all transfers of the country, from one sovereign to another, were made. And lastly, Governor Claiborne, representing the United States, welcomed this colony as free citizens of a great republic. The changes of government were signed in the principal hall, and the proclamation read from the balcony overlooking the square.

The Cruzados.

During Gen. Lafayettes tour of the United States, he was royally entertained here by the citizens of New Orleans. These buildings are now used for the supreme court and jail.

Separating this upper and lower house is the cathedral of Saint Louis, which has undergone many changes. The present structure, only dating back to 1794, when Don Andreas Almonester, a wealthy Spanish nobleman and grandfather of the Baroness de Pontalba, determined to rebuild this church, at his own expense, on condition that every Saturday a mass should be said for the repose of his soul—and to the present time, I learn, it is never forgotten by these devout priests. The building is formed about the front by three low massive round towers, and pointed roof beyond, and recently steeples have been added to the massive Spanish towers, which give it greater symmetry of style. The interior in 1892 was beautifully frescoed by Humbrecht. And a large Mural painting over the altar, representing the patron saint of the cathedral, Saint Louis, king of France, proclaiming the Crusades.

The high altar is of colored marbles, and handsome cornice surmounted by the figures of Faith, Hope and Charity. Beneath the altar is a large vault, in which is deposited the remains of former archbishops. In the form of a grotto on the left is the altar of our Lady of Lourdes, representing that grotto in France, with the figures of the Virgin and the Peasant at the spring. Numerous votive offerings are hung about of tablets, pictures, crosses, vases, etc., praying for some wish granted through the intercession of our Lady of Lourdes. I could not dispossess my mind of the idea that I was again in Old France, among its devout Catholic throng, for all around me they knelt in silent prayer.

ARCHBISHOP'S RESIDENCE.

Just behind the cathedral on Chartres street is the old Ursuline convent. It is among the most venerable buildings of this city, having been constructed about 1727, in a plain and, as usual, most solid Spanish style so that neither time nor neglect have caused it to crumble into ruins. Entering through the porter's lodge and crossing a small garden, you can have a fine view of the 2-story building with its peaked roof and solemn looking windows. Entering by the old-fashioned porch into the vestibule, you can see the old-fashioned corridors leading to the court yard, the church and various parts of the building. The cumbersome old stairway of heavy beams, worn thin by time and use, with the old hand-made nails protruding, the cypress floors, unwieldly shutters, giant heavy doors with wrought-iron hinges, bolts and knocker, said to be 160 years old, just pause to think of it, and what a contrast you can imagine to the beautiful hardwood finish and handsome modern hardware of our dear Minnesota. On the second floor are the apartments of the archbishop, who on presentation of a card will see all who call.

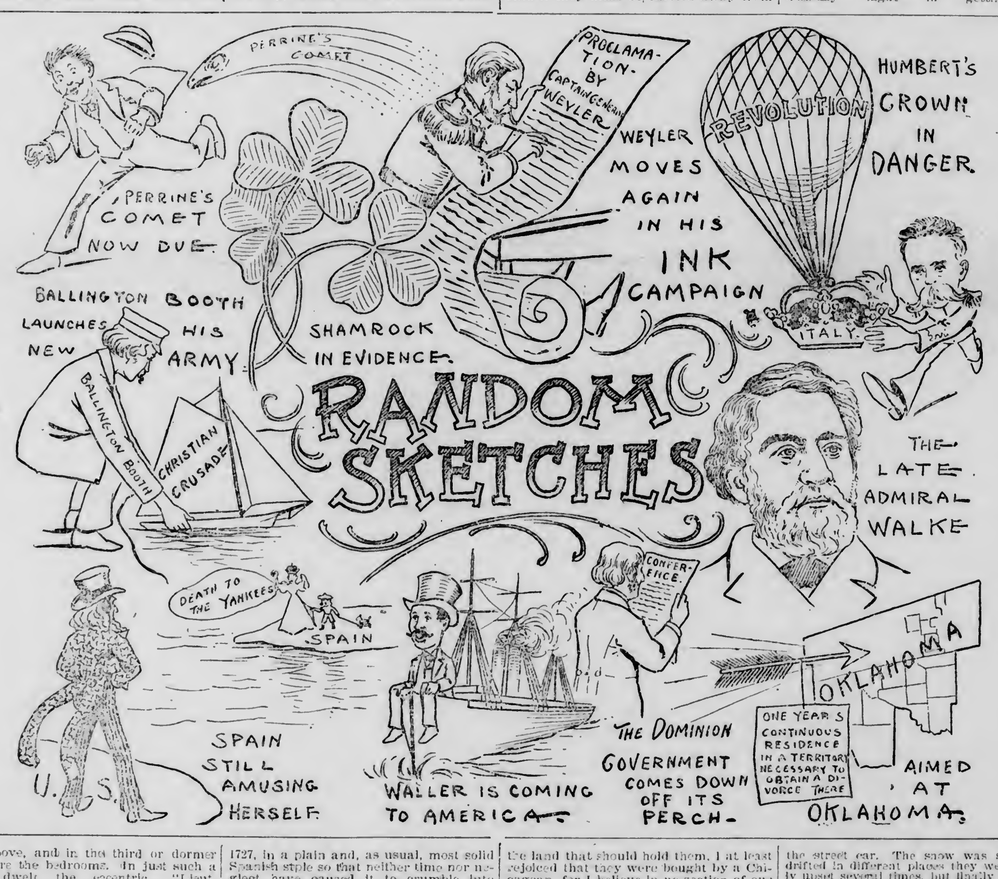
Just here we ran across Miss Peyton and Miss Statham, of our city, who said they had enjoyed every moment of their stay in New Orleans and found it impossible to get away.

A PILGRIMAGE TO ST. ROCH'S.

Perhaps you may tire of too much antiquity, and I will tell you of our pilgrimage to St. Roch's chapel. Far from the madding throng on the outskirts of the old town, a pretty little creole girl and I wended our way early one beautiful sunny morn to worship at this shrine. I must tell you that thousands come here to pray for this saint's intercession for divine favors, some for wealth, some for wives and some for husbands, for which the fascinating little creole insisted I should do. But I return a reply that I had crossed the Rubicon and there was no hope, but she urged, as the chances were diminishing, the interest should grow accordingly, and I submitted. So we bought a little candle and lighting it at the altar, placed among many tapers already there, and solemnly knelt before the figure of the saint and his faithful dog—I knew not how long, but until our pent up feelings were relieved, and I could almost feel the palpitating throbs of my vivacious little friend's heart, as she knelt in silent ecstacy there. And I venture the assertion that she will gather in many of Cupid's darts before a twelve-month rolls around. I had no idea of the vivacity and charm of these many-sided people, until I met a family of creoles in their own elegant old home, where I was regaled with creole romances, sipped chocolate and listened to the strains of mandolin, piano and guitar in the facile hands of these talented young sisters. The men, however, impressed me as being indolent and dull.

So impressed have I been with the antiquities here that as I gaze on the Vieux Carri or old French quarter, with its narrow little streets, with big French names of Royal, Toulouse, Dunphine, Chartres, etc., with their old stuccoed houses with wrought iron lattice arches and gratings, balconies hanging from above, roofs of slate capped with red tiles like in the mother country. The inner courts with remains of parterres of flowers, urns and fountains of water, with a broken statue here and there in the more aristocratic homes hidden by trailing vines and roses, bespeaks the gentle nature of the warm infusions of Southern blood. Oh! How I sigh again and again for more reverence among the masses, that is due these sacred works, that they would respect them, and wall around these old treasures and carry on the old traditions that were once so dear to those of the past. But in the onward mad rush for the "almighty dollar" and forever, something new, all thoughts of reverence seem forgotten.

All my patriotism comes over me in a great wave, and it is just here I would like to impress upon our Northern, our Western, and our Southern people, who gaily cross the Atlantic to see the sights, that if they would only pause and think of their own country's legends and love, and instead of the outpourings of their coffers into strange lands, it would be spent upon our own, and in a short while the restoration and preservation would begin and we would soon have among us, old cathedrals, galleries and works of art, perhaps the works of art with the history of antique ages attached, for from observation here in this quaint Southern town, I have come across some relics of centuries past, for these old creole planters in their princely domains, felt nothing too good for their surroundings, and thus many statues, pictures, and rare bric-a-brac were imported into this country. Far down on Canal street I found a little gem of a shop of Louisiana antiques, stored with treasures well nigh priceless, but I saw a Chicago buyer with nonchalant manner selecting the choicest paintings, fine old miniatures on ivory (the beauties of foreign courts) and Elizabethian candelabra and sconces. And if they must be carried away from us it is a pretty safe prophecy to say that rates will be stiffer than now at the opening of navigation.



SPIRIT LAKE AND VICINITY.

At the Ironton plant this week another crew of men commenced excavating for the foundation of the new blooming mill. The brick masons commenced the foundation of the engine beds and a new steam hammer arrived Monday, also several other car loads of machinery arrived this week. These improvements, together with those being added daily, will greatly increase the efficiency of the mills the coming year.

Dr. Davy was called out last Saturday to Ironton to see Mr. Payne, who has been quite ill with typhoid, but is getting better.

The Sunday school scholars at Smithville were happily surprised last Sunday morning to find an organ placed in the school house for their benefit.

Bernel Robinson spent last Saturday in Duluth.

Miss Mayme Nacey returned from St. Paul last Saturday after a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends.

William Milliser from Lake avenue, Duluth, was visiting at Spirit Lake last Saturday.

Two more of Albert Swenson's children have been having the measles this week.

Mrs. William Edwards is recovering from a very severe siege of la grippe.

Mrs. O'Brien, of Duluth, came to Spirit Lake Monday and returned Thursday. She was the guest of Mrs. R. A. Folkerts while here.

Miss Lillian Dash returned to her duties at the Glass Block store on Thursday.

J. Duxfield visited Two Harbors on Monday.

Myrtle Amundson accidentally burned one of her hands quite badly last Monday.

All of E. Swenson's children were quite ill with la grippe the first of the week, but are improving at present.

There will be a gospel song service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Stephenson at Spirit Lake next Sunday evening. Both old and young are cordially invited.

Charles Lobling, of West Duluth, was a caller in this vicinity last Sunday.

The Smithville Ladies' Aid society donated $6.32, remaining in its treasury, to the Peterson family, who are all down with diphtheria at West Duluth.

Lloyd Robinson has been very ill with tonsilitis this week.

Mrs. Emily Merritt, district president of the W. C. T. U., and Rev. Mr. Hackett, of New Duluth, visited the Spirit Lake union last Thursday afternoon. Their next meeting will be held next Tuesday afternoon at the Spirit Lake hotel. All the members are urged to be present at this meeting.

Wednesday evening of each week has been appointed for choir practice for Sunday school. All interested are welcome at these meetings.

The board of election from Spirit Lake experienced considerable difficulty last Tuesday night in getting to GRAIN CHARTERS.

Little Doing and the Rate is Stationary.

There is little doing in grain charters for shipment upon the opening of navigation at present, and the rate is about stationary at 3 cents. Vesselmen would not be likely to accept less than this, and there is no demand for tonnage, so the market is out of line. There is a certain amount of strength in the feeling that this market is oversold—that is, that more wheat has been bought than tonnage has been chartered for. Of course that would be an extremely difficult thing to prove, as it would involve personal confidence from every vessel agent and shipper on the board. Nevertheless, there is an little belief that that state of things exists.

One element of weakness in the situation is that the ore people have been playing a waiting game nearly all winter. Since the movement on the close of navigation not enough ore has been done to tell just where they stand, hence it adds an element of doubt and therefore of weakness to the situation. Another factor is the amount of unchartered tonnage at Chicago. At present corn, instead of going into Chicago, is going south and is making an outlet to Atlantic ports. When navigation is opened it is believed that corn will again pour into Chicago and fill up this unchartered tonnage.

On the whole the situation, while a bit hazy and not very certain, is strong, and it is the land that should hold them. I at least rejoiced that tacy were bought by a Chicagoan, for I believe in no section of our broad country are people more patriotic and independent for aspiring foreign styles and airs than in that great new city of our great Northwest. Their only fault is a desire to possess the earth, and they will, some day.

And now, emulating these historic spots with the gardens of our Rockies, the wonders of our Niagara and the picturesqueness of our great lakes, no greater attractions can be found in any land. Long live America! Beaumont.

ONE OF THE BEST FEATURES

Of the Pyramid Pile Cure

Is the fact that it cures every form of of Piles without one particle of pain. This desirable point is not obtained by the use of injurious opiates, which deaden and paralyze the nerves of the parts and make matters worse in the long run. But it is done solely by its remarkable healing and soothing effects.

And while it thus gives immediate relief, at the same time the disease is not merely checked, but a radical cure is rapidly accomplished.

And the point we want to make clear is that all this is done without a particle of pain.

This fact is one reason for the great popularity of the Pyramid Pile Cure and constitutes one very great difference between it and almost any other kind of treatment for piles.

Every kind of surgical operation for piles is excruciatingly painful, besides endangering the life of the patient, and in most cases is not to be compared with the Pyramid Cure, neither in making successful cures without pain nor in cheapness and safety.

The Pyramid Pile Cure has been before the public too long, and its merits recognized by too many people to allow it to be classed with the many salves, suppositories, pills, etc., and you run no risk in trying it, as is often the case with new and untried preparations.

If you are ever troubled with any form of piles or rectal disease, do not forget the Pyramid Pile Cure. Prepared by the Pyramid Drug company, of Albion, Mich., and sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

THE PLANS

How the New City Water System is to Be Constructed.

Upper and Lower Portions of the City to Be Provided For.

Location of the Different Reservoirs and Sketch of the Plans.

The dweller in the city has to have a great many things done for him. He is a specialist, in a way. He earns his dollars doing just one thing, and he gets into a routine. Take him out of this narrow path custom has made for him and he is helpless. His forefather arose at 4 o'clock in the morning and, after drawing the water and hewing the wood, he whiled away the time he was resting before breakfast in milking fifteen or twenty cows. Later in the day he scalped sheep and his wife wove the wool into clothes. He made everything right on the premises except the interest on the mortgage.

Nowadays his progeny who dwell in towns must have their light made for them, and their milk and water brought to their doors—the latter separately, of course. Instead of going out in the frosty morning, bracing his knees against the well coping and separating the bones in his spinal column in a frantic effort to yank the bucket up before the contents leak out, or having a catch-as-catch-can wrestle with a windlass handle as it reaches for the back of his head, the citizen of today demands that it shall only be necessary for him to stretch out his jeweled hand and summon the water from a convenient tap by a slight pressure of his taper fingers. No matter what the engineering difficulties in the way, they must be overcome that a bountiful supply of pure water be secured with which he may slake his thirst and perhaps bathe his temples of a morning.

The average citizen of Duluth knows in a general way that an enterprise is now under way to supply him with water—pure water—but exactly how it is to be done he does not know—and, mayhap, does not care, with one brewery in operation and another being built.

THE SYSTEM.

The plans for the new water system, as prepared for the city engineer, and approved by the council, provide for the division of the pipe service into three parts, called respectively the low, the middle and the high service. The water is to be taken from the lake well and forced through cast steel mains forty-two inches in circumference to the first reservior in the circuit designated reservoir "A," which will be located somewhere on the line of East Fourth street, prolonged between Thirty-second and Thirty-sixth avenues east. There will be two of these force and supply mains, one of which will run north on A avenue to Grand avenue, on Grand avenue to Cambridge street, thence to the reservoir.

The region north of this main, and between Occidental boulevard and Fortieth avenue east, will be supplied by a main branching off at the boulevard one block west of Lester river. A main will also run directly westward from the pumping station on London road to about Thirty-sixth avenue east, and thence to reservoir A. This reservoir is intended to be the distributing center for the low service division, and is so situated that a head by gravitation is secured from it throughout the division it serves, as is the case with reservoir B, the feeder of the middle division. The principal main of the low service division is carried from the reservoir by successive levels to Fourth street, which it will reach at Sixteenth avenue east; thence westward to Mesaba avenue where it will deflect until it reaches Second street at Park Place, after which it will again climb the hill to Sevenia street at Twenty-fourth avenue west, from which point it will be carried through Pacific avenue. This main will carry water by secondary mains and distributing pipes to all the regions below it, the main supply of each division running along the upper boundary of the locality supplied by it so that there may be no loss of head by friction.

THE MIDDLE DIVISION.

The middle division will be supplied from reservoir B at Woodland, from which will run an eighteen-inch main eastward on the general line of Twelfth street, deflecting to Tenth street at Fourth avenue east, and to Seventh street at Second avenue west, making a detour to the south to Fifth street following the deflection of the low-service supply main, and thence to Bay View to trace. The head for the high service will be secured by pumping into a tower to be situated near reservoir B, and the supply will be conveyed by an eighteen-inch main following the general course of the low and middle mains. From reservoir B, a twelve-inch main will be run a mile northerly to a storage tank on an elevation of 200 feet above the lake, for the supply of the territory north of the tower. Duluth Heights will be supplied by a twelve-inch main branching from the high service main at Highland avenue, with a storage tank in section 21.

As already explained the supply mains will run along the upper side of the divisions supplied by it, giving to each district a maximum of pressure with a minimum of friction loss. By this arrangement, it is expected that a most effective gravity fire service will be secured. All hydrants will be supplied from two directions, avoiding dead ends and securing a good circulation, an arrangement that has been made with a view to an effective fire service. The capacity of reservoir A will be 13,000,000 gallons, and that of reservoir B 5,000,000 gallons.

Duluth Heights will be supplied by a temporary pumphouse in the neighborhood of Eighth street beyond the incline until the high service supply main can be laid. The initial impulse to the water along this system will be supplied by a triple expansion engine with a capacity of 25,000,00 gallons daily. This type of engine secures an even flow of water, while a single or double expansion engine causes a pounding in the pipes and a kicking at the office. When completed, Duluth will have a water system of which she may be proud.

DRAMATIC

Paderewski, the Great Pianist, at the Lyceum Monday Evening.

"In Old Kentucky" and Kellar, the Magician, Next Week.

Marie Wainwright's Performance at the Lyceum Last Evening.

The engagement of Paderewski, the great pianist, who has all the world at his feet, at the Lyceum on Monday evening will be the most notable musical event Duluth people have ever been permitted to enjoy. He is undoubtedly the greatest of all pianists. Reginald de Koven wrote of him in the New York World:

"On the occasion of his second visit to this country, I characterized M. Paderewski as the Napoleon of the pianoforte. I see no reason now to alter my opinion in any respect or to limit in any sense the wide-reaching significance of the appellation as applied to him. He is now, as formerly, the master; absolute, in his way unique. Perhaps broader, more mature, even possibly more sincere in his art than two years ago, but ever the same great artist we have learned to admire and love, the same Paderewski. His playing, as of old, is marked by sincerity, breadth and repose. One admires as ever before his touch, firm as steel and smooth as velvet; his intensity, virile energy and elan, coupled with a delicacy, almost feminine in its caressing softness, the poetic fervor, dignity and breadth of his artistic conceptions, his rarely beautiful singing tone and the marvelous technical mastery over the instrument which seems to know neither bounds nor limits. Surely a rarely complete artistic equipment this."

MARIE WAINRIGHT.

Marie Wainright appeared at the Lyceum last evening in a comedy entitled "An Unequal Match," written by Tom Taylor. It presented Miss Wainright in a style of work quite different form that in which she has been seen here before, and the change is hardly for the better. That the people prefer to see her in the Shakespearean drama was shown by the fact that the audience was probably the smallest that Miss Wainright has ever played to in Duluth.

The play is a comedy of the old style. The plot is a common one. A man of position marries a country belle and takes her to his city home, and disappointment comes to him when she fails to fall into society ways at once. The usual adventuress, an old flame of the husbands, is introduced and the husband narrowly escapes an entanglement. The wife, after the husband has been absent a year, turns up at the place where the latter and the adventuress are visiting and has developed into a society woman of the highest type. Of course she administers the proper lesson to her spouse and all ends happily. The action is altogether too slow, the first act dragging so badly that it almost comes to a dead stop. The characters are all of the conventional sort with the possible exception of the one man "standing army" of the duke.

The part of the wife is, of course, taken by Miss Wainright, and so accomplished an actress as she could not but take it well. In the first act as the simple country girl she was quite charmingly ingenious and pleasing and in the second act as the wife there was a simplicity and unaffectedness in her acting which appealed to everyone. But it was in the third act that she was at her best—when the country girl has blossomed into the queen of fashion. Miss Walnright has a very pleasing voice and her elocution is perfect. Nothing was ever more prettily spoken than the dainty epilogue which was spoken by Miss Wainright.

The company was fair, but not more than ordinarily good.

This afternoon "Camille" was presented and tonight "Daughters of Eve" will be played.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

"In Old Kentucky" will be seen at the Lyceum on Tuesday evening. It is an unusually interesting play, well put together and full of stirring scenes and dramatic situations. Its success has been greater than that of any play produced in this country in years, and has given it a reputation all through the country.

The first act discloses Madge Brierly's cottage in the Kentucky mountains, a huge set which reflects the greatest credit on the stage carpenter. It is vigorous, novel and picturesque. It is here that the hero, Frank Layson, is nearly shot by a jealous rival, here where the rivals for Madge's love endeavor to throw each other over the precipice, and here where an attempt is made to blow Frank up with dynamite. Madge saves him by fearlessly swinging across the gulf by means of a rope when the drawbridge falls her, and throws the bomb into the chasm. There is a thrilling spectacle as the explosion shatters the walls of the gorge and tears up the ground.

Then there is a capital picture of Frank Layson's Blue Grass home and the home of "Queen Bess," a mare that is to run for the Ashland Oaks at the Lexington race track. In this scene the now famous pickaninnies appear in some of the most original and grotesque negro dances ever seen off a plantation. They constitute a real brass band and it is one of the features of the show to see these little darkies blowing away upon instruments nearly as big as themselves. This act ends with an attempt to "get at" the mare and a successful endeavor to fire the stable. As the flames shoot forth and the smoke drives back the rescuers, Madge dashes into the stable and brings out the mare just as the burning roof comes to the ground.

In the third act there are five scenes, the principal being the interior and exterior of the paddock on the Lexington race course. The hero will be ruined unless "Queen Bess" wins the Ashland Oaks, and as the jockey is drunk, Madge, a clever horsewoman, dons full jockey costume. She seems somewhat ashamed to appear in boy's clothing, but to save her lover she rides the mare to victory. This scene is full of excitement, especially when the thoroughbreds are observed in the race and Queen Bess carries the plucky heroine first past the post. The cheers of the crowd are emphasized by the applause of the audience and the scene is splendidly worked. The play abounds in excellent comedy and is wonderfully brisk in action.

MAGICIAN KELLAR.

The coming of the Kellars is always pleasant news for amusement seekers, and when they appear here next Friday and Saturday they may be sure of an appreciative and intelligent audience. But this season the great American magician seems to have surpassed himself in the provision he has made for the entertainment and instruction of his American friends. A summer spent in research on the continent of Europe enabled Mr. Kellar to add to his program at least three absolute novelties, novelties which will not simply fire the fancy, but appeal as strongly to the intellect. Chief among them is what Professor Heinrich Hensoldt called the "Mystic Light of Bala," when he confessed himself, not long ago, as absolutely at a loss for an explanation of what seemed to the initiated a miracle. Professor Hensold has traveled in India, like Kellar, enough to be considered almost an expert in esoteric marvels, but "The Mystic Light of Bala" which Kellar's audiences see this season for the first time in the United States, got the better of all his scientific acumen. Kellar secured the exclusive right to exhibit it in this country, and will show in addition to it, for the first time this side the water, "The Mystery of L'Hassa," "The Diablerie of the Decimals," "The Shrine of Koomra Sami," and "The Queen of the Roses."

All have heard of Inaudi, and his exploits with figures, which seem to add and subtract and multiply themselves at his bidding. The new feature of the Kellar performance, which has been called the "Diablerie of the Decimals," absolutely dwarfs Inaudi's exploits. Numbers marshal themselves at his unspoken bidding in any conceivable form, and he becomes by an intuition master of the result. In this feat, with Mrs. Kellar's aid, this prince of magicians proves himself indeed worthy of the respectful admiration and investigation of scientists everywhere. The schoolboy and the sage will alike find food for thought in the contemplation of this weird, yet fascinating conquest of figures, which are the severest factors after all in our everyday life.

A MATINEE GIRL'S FADS.

Adores Actresses and Imitates Their Characteristics.

There is a theater in New York city that stands nearly diagonally from a corner drug store. This drug store makes a specialty of the "between the acts" matinee girl. It is posted upon the time of the "ring down" of the curtain, and at the right minute it sets forth its little luncheon promptly, devoting tables to the spread of the "luncheon," and serving up all kinds of little things to eat, with big things to drink, without waiting to have them ordered. It is a woman's free lunch on a very nice plan.

During Lent the matinee girl does part of her resting at the theater. In one of the finest theaters in New York there is a very pretty reclining room fitted up with soft couches and bouquets. There are soothing pictures on the wall and costly works of statuary. The matinee girl forsakes her seat in the darkened theater and seeks out this resting spot. An attendant has taken her wraps early in the afternoon. With a feather boa for a pillow she lays her head down upon the arm of the couch and wakens only when the rising bell rings, the bell that sends up the curtain. The attendant keeps her notified of it.

A great deal can be done between the acts by the matinee girl. At one of Mrs. Leslie Carter's performances a party of matinee girls attended in a box. The prettiness of the star's gowns attracted them all at once. "I am going out between the acts to get a hat precisely like that if I can find it," said one of the young women, gazing longingly upon a ravishing vision of roses. "And I want a pair of slippers with those high heels," said a second. "And do you suppose I can get a cloak just like that?" remarked a third. At the close of the act the entire party rustled out of the box and took to cabs; at the rising of the curtain Mrs. Carter was surprised to behold seven young ladies in the box near her all arrayed in parts of her own wardrobe.

The matinee girl likes to "look" in style. "Looking in style" means that your face stylish. Let me explain:

For the last month the matinee girls have been looking like Bernhardt. There was no mistaking the imitation. Their plump little rosebud mouths were powdered below and powdered above, until only a narrow line remained for the lips. This line was vivid red. They did it by the harmless little complexion aids that are no worse morally than the hair brush that gives the polish you admire.

But lately the matinee girl has been looking older. She has been cultivating the Terry frown. You know that straight line between Ellen Terry's brows that tells you she is somebody? Well, the matinee girls have been "somebody" also, as indicated by that up-and-down line.

Since the Terry and Bernhardt fad has come another—the Rehan pout. At the matinee you see rows and rows of plump, pretty faced girls, all looking at you and looking at each other as though they were afraid they were going to cry about something. That sad, woful droop is a cultivated one. It does not need any cosmetic, but can be assumed by the matinee girl after three trials. To get it you elevate the eyebrows, close the eyes partly, turn the head to one side and allow the lips to curl outward a little. It is a pout. This looks pretty upon the countenance of the plump little matinee girl in her teens, but those who have been out a season or two should look out for it. It may have the sadness of years in it, something that the little matinee girl knows nothing about.

The proudest moment in the life of a matinee girl of New York is when she is invited behind the scenes into the dressing room of the star. Georgia Cayvan used to allow them to throng her dressing room between the second and third acts and to see her dress. Around the little room they sat, speechless and panting with delight.

If the rules of the theater are not too strict they get into the wings, and for a while tread the boards of seventh heaven. Langtry is particularly good to the matinee girl and so Fanny Davenport has always been. But Bernhardt hates all people when she is playing.

The matinee girls who despise the New Womanish ones are making a fad of domesticity. They carry with them little reticules with a bit of knitting in them, and between the acts they go into the reception room, choose easy chairs and sit and knit and gossip. Their knitting consists of a mysterious, long, black, stringy-looking thing that, on being smoothed out, proves to be—a golf stocking. Yes, and for a man. The domestic matinee girls knit golf stocking for "brother" and her brother's friends. The little reticule for the knitting work matches the costume, and holds also the opera glasses, some tiny, sweet-scented seeds, a handkerchief and a bottle of spices. "Just like grandmother when she went to see Siddons," explains the matinee girl. At one of the New York theaters there is tea served in the "art gallery" between the acts.

The gossip that goes on between the acts is a revelation of the impressionable mind of a woman. Not the things of the earth are discussed, but scenes suggested by the play—the delights of roaming the forests of Arden, like the heroine, and the unspeakable pleasure of being rescued from a bridge by a hero as handsome as the one who has just risked his life and limb for the heroine.

The matinee fosters a false state of mind in the matinee girl, for she cannot throw off her surroundings immediately. "Between the acts" the little matinee girl is for fifteen minutes the heroine herself, made lovely by every desirable womanly attribute.

NEW COMIC OPERA.

The Latest Work By Gilbert and Sullivan.

On March 7, the first production of Gilbert and Sullivan's new work was given in London. The London correspondent of the Cleveland World recently described the new opera, which is very theatrical. The interest centers in the doings of a company of strolling players, who, coming to the little town of Halbfennig, in Germany, find the citizens hatching a conspiracy against their ruling grand duke. The "star" of the troupe of actors is a certain English prima donna, Julia by name, a part taken by Mme. Ilka von Palmay (Countess Kinsky), the celebrated Hungarian soubrette. With his customary ingenuity, Mr. Gilbert has it plainly understood that all the characters speak perfect German, except Julia, who (being English, speaks "broken German." In reality, of course, it is quite the other way about. Mme. Palmay's charming broken English being thus accounted for. It is agreed that either the chief tenor or the impressario of the company will assume the part of the grand duke in accordance with the code of the "Statutary Duello" as explained by the notary after the following fashion:

Song—Notary: About a century since
The code of the duello
To sudden death
For want of breath
Sent many a strapping fellow.
The then presiding prince
(Who useless bloodshed hated).
He passed an act
Short and compact,
Which may be briefly stated:
Unlike the complicated laws
A parliamentary draughtsman draws,
It may be briefly stated.

All: We know the complicated laws
A parliamentary draughtsman draws
Can not be briefly stated.

By this ingenious law,
If any two shall quarrel
They may not fight
With falchions bright
(Which seems to him tmanoral)
But each a card shall draw,
And he who draws the lowest
Shall (so 'tis said)
Thenceforth be dead—
In fact a legal "ghoest"
(When exigence of rhyme compels,
Orthography foregoes her spells,
And "ghost" is written "ghoest").

All (aside): With what an emphasis he dwells
Upon "orthography" and "spells!"
That kind of fun's the lowest.

When off the loser's popped
(By pleasing legal fiction,)
And friend and foe
Have went their woe
In counterfeit affliction,
The winner must adopt
The loser's poor relations—
Discharge his debts,
Pay all his bets,
And take his obligations.
In short, he's given him the case,
The winner takes the loser's place,
With all its obligations!

All: How neatly lawyers state a case!
The winner takes the loser's place,
With all its obligations.

Then follows a quintette in praise of the bloodless duel sung by Ludwig, Elsa, Notray, Ernest, Julia:

Strange the views some people hold!
Two young fellows quarrel—
Then they fight, for both are bold—
Rage of both is uncontrolled—
Both are stretched out, stark and cold!
Prithee, where's the moral?
Ding-dong! Ding-dong!
There's an end to further action,
And this barbarous transaction
Is described as "satisfaction!"
Ha! ha! ha! ha! satisfaction!
Ding-dong!
Each is laid in churchyard mold—
Strange the views some people hold!

Better than the method old,
Which was coarse and cruel,
Is the plan that we've extolled,
Sing thy virtues manifold
(Better than refined gold),
Statutory duel!
Sing-song! Sing-song!

Sword or pistol neither uses—
Playing card he lightly chooses,
And the loser simply loses!
Ha! ha! ha! ha! simply loses.
Sing-song! Sing-song!
If society were polled,
Who'd support the method old?

ENSEMBLE.

The grand duke: Oh, joy! when two glowing young hearts,
From the rise of the curtain,
Thus throw themselves into their parts,
Success is most certain!
If the role you're prepared to endow
With such delicate touches,
By the heaven above us, I vow
You shall be my grand duchess!

Julia: My boy, when two glowing young hearts,
From the rise of the curtain,
Thus throw themselves into their parts,
Success is most certain.
The role I'm prepared to endow
With most delicate touches,
By the heavens above us, I vow
I will be your grand duchess!

Julia, according to Gilbertian reasoning, must wed the man who in this duel draws the ace and becomes grand duke, because, according to her agreement, she must be "leading lady" throughout the affairs of life as well as the stage. Her ideas as to the "star" part are clear and distinct, and although she does not love her intended husband, and despite the fact that he has been previously engaged to her sister, she gives him her idea of how the character of "the grand duke's bride" should be played. This is the song in which she explains all about it:

How would I play this part—
The grand duke's bride?
All rancour in my heart
I'd duly hide—
I'd drive it from my recollection
And whelm you with a mock affection,
Well calculated to defy detection—
That's how I'd play this part—
The grand duke's bride.

With many a winsome smile
I'd witch and woo;
With gay and girlish guile
I'd frenzy you—
I'd madden you with my caressing,
Like turtle her first love confessing—
That it was "mock" no mortal would be guessing,
With so much winsome wile
I'd watch and woo!

Did any other maid
With you succeed,
I'd pinch the forwad jade—
I would indeed!
With jealous frenzy agitated
(Which would, of course, be simulated,)
I'd make her wish she'd never been created—
Did any other maid
With you succeed!

And should there come to me,
Some summers hence,
In all the childish glee
Of innocence,
Fair babes, aglow with beauty vernal,
My heart would bound with joy diurnal!
This sweet display of sympathy maternal,
Well, that would also be
A mere pretense!

My histrionic art,
Though you deride,
That's how I'd play that part—
The grand duke's bride!

Various complications of the most bewildering Gilbertian nature occur throughout the two parts of the up-to-now nameless opera. A detailed description of the plot of the story is well-nigh impossible. Gilbert, as a whole, is delightful. Take one of his plots to pieces, however, and little remains except broth. Very clever, however, is the mock "mad scene," which has been specially written for Mme. von Palmay in the second act. In this she shows the grand duke how she would act the part of the jealous wife, while he on the contrary considers that she would better play the part of an "innocent ingenoo." The grand duke, whose name is Ludwig, sings:

Now, Julia, come,
Consider it from
This dainty point of view—
A timid, tender,
Feminine gender,
Prompt to coyly coo—
Yet silence seeking,
Seldom speaking
Till she's spoken too—
A comfy, cosy,
Rosy-posy,
Innocent ingenoo!
The part you're suited to—
(To give the duce her due)
A sweet (O, jiminil)
Miminy-piminy,
Innocent ingenoo!

ENSEMBLE

Lud: The part you're suited to—
(To give the duce her due)
A sweet (O, jiminil)
Miminy-piminy,
Innocent ingenoo!

Julia: I'm much obliged to you,
I don't think that would do—
To play (O, jiminil)
Miminy-piminy,
Innocent ingenoo!

Then Julia sings:

You forgot my special magic
(In a high dramatic sense)
Lies in situation tragic—
Undeniably intense.
As I've justified promotion
In the histrionic art,
I'll submit to you my notion
Of a first-rate part.

Lud: Well, let us see your notion
Of a first-rate part.

Julia (dramatically): I have a rival!
Frenzy thrilled
I find you both together!
My heart stands still—with horror chilled—
Hard as the millstone nether!
Then softly, slyly, snailly, snaky—
Crawly, creepy, quaily, quaky—
I track her on her homeward way,
As panther tracks her fated prey!

The lily-white, laughing leman!
On her agonized gaze I gloat
With the glee of a dancing demon!
My rival she—I have no doubt of her!
So I hold on—till the breath is out of her!
Till the breath is out of her!

And then—Remorse! Remorse!
O cold, unpleasant corpse,
Avaunt! Avaunt! Avaunt!
That lifeless form,
I gaze upon—
That face still warm
But weirdly wan—
Those eyes of glass
I contemplate—
And then, alas!
Too late—too late!
I find she is—your aunt!
(Shudderingly) Remorse! Remorse!
Then mad—mad—mad!
With fancies wild—calmerical—
Now sorrowful—silent—sad—
Now hullabaloo, hysterical!

Ha! ha! ha! ha!
But whether I'm mad or whether I'm glad,
Mad! mad! mad! mad!

This calls for the resources of a high-class art,
And satisfies my notion of a first-rate part.

The scenes are laid at the capital of a pretty German state, and the tendency of the opera is to poke fun at Germany and the Germans.

ROSE COGHLAN MAD.

Process Server Caught Her All the Same.

Rose Coghlan only laughs when she is asked about the scrap in which she figured in front of Palmer's theater, New York, recently.

William J. Armstrong, a stalwart clerk in the law office of Edward J. Newell, of 99 Nassau street, played leading business on this occasion. Lurking in the shadow of a stoop near by, he awaited the coming of the lady, armed with a summons issuing out of the city court in an action to recover $150 for wigs said to have been furnished the actress by Charles Winkelmann, who is known to the profession as "Beautiful, bountiful Charlie."

Miss Coghlan apparently had a presentiment of evil to come, for she sent a big blonde gentleman out to the sidewalk to reconnoiter before venturing into inhospitable Thirtieth street herself. The big blonde gentleman did not like the look of things, for he retired hastily. He reappeared a moment later to whisper something to a cabman whose conveyance was standing at the curb.

Lawyer Newell, who acted as his clerk's mentor, did not like the look of things either, and advancing to Armstrong, he said:

"Don't lose your chance now; go at her when she comes out."

His admonition was well-timed, for at the word Miss Coghlan emerged from the basement with the big blonde gentleman on her right hand, and a no less formidable-looking cavalier on her left. Miss Coghlan's hands were concealed in her muff, which she held pressed tight against her bosom, as if to say, "I won't accept any papers." She walked rapidly toward the cab, flanked by the two big men.

Armstrong intercepted her and said politely, as he raised his hat, "Miss Coghlan, I have a summons for you," and with that, quick as a flash, he stuck the paper between her muff and her indignant person.

The big blonde gentleman was almost as quick, however, for his arm flew up like a battering ram, catching the law clerk on the point of the chin, and knocking him into the gutter. As he fell, Armstrong retained the presence of mind to clasp Miss Coghlan's preserver in a strong embrace, and the latter followed him into the ditch.

The two men rolled over each other in frantic conflict, filling the air with oaths and cries. Broadway, populous just then with home-faring theater-goers, turned itself into Thirtieth street and surveyed the battle with the greatest delight.

Miss Coghlan stood on the sidewalk alone. She seemed dazed, but there was the paper sticking out of her muff like an ineffectual flag of truce.

Now, Law Clerk Armstrong is an athlete, and he was rapidly getting the better of Miss Coghlan's champion. He flung him about like a sack of meal, and at every fling, with that rare acumen which invariably differentiates the man of legal training from the paid and callous process server, he yelled "Police!"

That cry, ringing through the night, seemed to confer upon the blonde gentleman the strength of a Titan, and, with one furious effort, he dragged himself from Armstrong's arms and fled down the middle of the asphalt toward Fifth avenue, like a frightened pushcart man. No attempt was made to pursue him, but the newsboys who had assembled to enjoy the scrap shouted in husky chorus:

"Run, ye stiff! Go it, Fitzsimmons! Why don't you work your jaw?"

Armstrong picked himself up and received the congratulations of his principal. Miss Coghlan and her remaining cavalier had already entered the cab and departed in the direction opposite to that taken by the blonde gentleman. Nobody could define the blonde gentleman or hound him, so the crowd flowed back into Broadway, and Thirtieth street resumed its normal appearance.

But Miss Coghlan was served.

JOHANNA AMBROSIUS.

German Peasant Women Suddenly Come to Fame.

A very remarkable figure has appeared within the last year on the horizon of German literature. Johanna Ambrosius, a woman of the people, has published a small book of verses, which in twelve months has gone through nearly as many editions, and at which all who read must wonder, says the Boston Transcript. Mr. Karl Schratzenthal was the discoverer of her talent and the editor of the present volume. We read his introduction with great interest; for in it he gives a sketch of the poet's life, astonishing in its bare, almost brutal simplicity. Here is a woman's existence reduced to its simplest expression, deprived of all grace of surroundings, of all that we are apt to think indispensible to poetry and the poetical atmosphere; a life in which culture was an unattainable luxury and intellectual companionship a thing apparently unknown. All the great human experiences have come to this woman in rugged intensity, without accessories, but they have struck sacred fire from her ardent spirit. The conditions of her life are almost incredible and far surpass Carlyle's Utopia of independent simplicity. Poverty as she has known it is a rude taskmaster, and Johanna Ambrosius has endured the prick of its goad since her earliest childhood. In feeble health, she has worked year in and year out, not at her woman's work only, but on the threshing floor and in the stable, to support her family and keep the wolf from the door.

Yet when the weary day was over, she could shut herself up in her room and write verses, beautiful verses, deserving the world's attention. She has come nearer to real life and real suffering than the ordinary poet, and she has been through the ordeal with all the fiery intensity of feeling which optimists assure us are usually spared to people in her circumstances. She says somewhere: "He who like myself has sat at table with Want and has drunk from the same cup with Misery knows what living means." Yet sordid necessity has not crippled nor blinded her understanding; her look at life is broad and just; she faces it and realizes its inevitable issues. "Nothing is insatiable as the human heart," she writes. "If it has enough to eat and drink, it longs for costly vessels for the food to be served in, and once it possesses these, it would ask for the blue heavens as a tablecloth." It is rare that one who has often to go without the bare necessaries of life should take in so clearly that "progressive desire" is a universal characteristic of the human heart.

The outline of Johanna Ambrosius' life, as Mr. Schratzenthal gives it, is more than simple, perhaps as her friend felt unable to give us a fuller account of it. She was born on Aug. 3, 1854, at Lengwethen, a small village in East Prussia. She was the second child of a workingman. As a little girl she went to the village school, but only until her eleventh year, when her time was required for household work. Their mother was an invalid, and Johanna and her sister, while yet mere children, were called upon to do all the work of the family—cooking, sweeping, washing and scrubbing. Their father, fortunately, was fond of books, and did what he could to make up to the children for the advantages they were obliged to forego. As a great treat he allowed them to take the Gartenlaube, a weekly illustrated magazine, and they were glad enough to deprive themselves of any other pleasure for the sake of this literary luxury. For many years its pages seemed to have been their only intellectual pasturage, and Johanna describes the unfailing delight of poring over them after the hard day's work was done. As a young girl the unfortunate poet went into service, but seems to have been very unhappy, for she soon returned to her home.

At 20 Johanna married a young peasant by the name of Voigt. We are told nothing of her subsequent life beyond the fact that a son and daughter were born to the young couple, and that the struggle for existence was more strenuous than ever. The joys and sorrows of motherhood seem to wear a keener edge for her, sharpened as they are by the ever-present sense of poverty and want. Yet the note of joy predominates when she thinks and writes of her children, and such a poem as "Mein Bub" seems to have come from the heart of all happy mothers. It is this quality of universality which is so admirable in her verses. There is nothing of the village poet about her. One who did not read the introduction to these poems and the account of her life would be at a loss to know where and when to place the author; for even where we can find trace of autobiography in here and there a verse, it is always the universally human side of the experience that is presented to us. Her poems have been compared to all that is classic in German literature. Yet Herr Schratzenthal assures us that it is only within the last year or two that the works of the German Olympians have been accessible to her. She looks back regretfully on "those twelve dumb years." Had she been able to read one volume a year of Lessing, Schiller or Goethe, how rich she would have felt.

It is natural enough that she should feel this, but it is doubtful if her work would have gained by it. Her feebler and least interesting pieces are those where one can feel the influence of conventional romanticism. The unavoidable German mermaid with lily lips and clinging arms is dragged by her wet hair into these poems, which, but for her and an occasional allusion to the Muse and her lyre, are exceptionally spontaneous and sincere.

These poems are quite worthy to stand by themselves, to be read for their own sake, without shadow of apology for the author's lack of intellectual opportunities. Had these opportunities been bestowed, her works would probably have been more numerous; it is doubtful if they would have been of better quality. After all, she has been through the full gamut of human experiences, and these must always be the same, be it for prince or pauper; and out of the fulness of her heart she sings of that which she has felt. The poet is born, not made, and with all that has been denied her, the gift of song was fully granted.

NERVOUSNESS

Is the Wail of the Nerves for Food.

People with Weak, Flabby Nerves are the Ones who Suffer. They may be Relieved by Building up their Nerves with a Nourishing Nerve Food.

An Interesting Interview with a Prominent Physician and a Case in Point Cited.

From the Journal, Kirksville, Mo.

"What a weak-kneed individual."

The person referred to did, indeed, look broken down, dispirited, and lifeless.

"What is the matter with him?"

"I scarcely know. During the cool weather he seems to be all right and to have some life and a little ambition; but the moment the hot weather comes he simply wilts down and seems to have neither strength nor vitality."

That explained the case. The man was in a generally run-down condition with not enough reserve force to resist the enervating effects of the season. His nerves were weak, unstrung as we say. The food he ate only partially reinforced his strength. The result was, he had constantly drawn on his reserve force so long that his nerves finally rebelled and sounded the gong for him to stop. If the signal be heeded and he take steps to refresh and build up his nervous system, he will recover; if not and the strain goes on, nothing can save him.

"If such a case be taken in time will the use of good, wholesome food and plenty of rest restore the patient?"

"If the patient have a naturally strong constitution it possibly may, otherwise, no. What is needed is a food which is specially adapted for the nerves. Something which contains the elements that go to make nervous force. It must be a food, not a tonic; a strength-giver, not a stimulant."

"Is there anything specially adapted to this purpose?"

"There are a good many things recommended for this purpose. But the trouble with nearly all of them is, they are only tonics or stimulants. They apparently benefit, but it is only for a time; then the patient is worse than before. But there is one food for the nerves, I am happy to say, in which I have the greatest confidence, which is in reality a food. It contains just those vitalizing principles which impart new nerve force; it builds up the nerves, and by imparting to them new strength gradually COAXES them back to a normal, healthy condition. They are fortified against the hot weather, the man recovers his energy, his force, and he walks with an elastic step. He drives his work with a will, where before it drove him. His spirits rise, and everything looks bright to him. This food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which are now known and used the world over—in North and South America, England and the English provinces, Canada, India, So. Africa, France. They are so widely known and their excellent effects in nerve building so much talked about both here and abroad, that it is not necessary for me to enlarge further on the subject. But I can assure you the medical profession everywhere are very glad indeed to avail themselves of this nerve food, so scientifically compounded, and that they use it very largely in their practice."

This was a conversation recently had between our reporter and a noted local physician, whose opinion is very highly regarded in medical circles, and it furnishes a clue for thousands who are suffering during these summer months from weakened nervous force.

To show the results of this nerve food on a special case, to prove the points above made, our reporter made the following interview:—

Henry Gehrke is a thrifty and prosperous German farmer living four miles south of Bullion, in this (Adair) county, Mo. Mr. Gehrke has a valuable farm and he has been a resident of the county for years. He is very well-known hereabouts and well respected wherever he is known. Last week a reporter of the Journal stopped at Mr. Gehrke's and while there became much interested in Mrs. Gehrke's account of the benefit she had not long since experienced from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She said she wanted everybody to know what a great medicine these pills are, but as so many people are praising them now-a-days, she modestly doubted whether her testimony could add anything to what others had already said of them. Her only reason for talking for publication about Pink Pills was that the people of Adair and neighboring counties might be convinced, if any doubted, that oft-published testimonials concerning Pink Pills were genuine statements from the lips of persons who have been benefited by the use of them. Speaking of her own interesting experience, Mrs. Gehrke said:

"A little over a year ago I was completely broken down. I had been taking medicine from a doctor but grew worse and worse until I could scarcely go about at all. The least exertion or the mere bending of my body would cause me to have smothering spells, and the suffering was terrible. I thought it was caused by my heart. When everything else had failed to relieve me and I had given up all hopes of ever being anything but a helpless invalid, I changed to read some testimonials in the Farm, Field and Fireside, about the Chicago Inter-Ocean and the suffering of the people who made the statements were so nearly like my own that I had endured that when I read that they were so greatly benefited by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I did not hesitate to go at once and purchase two boxes. I took them according to directions and before the first box was used I felt a good bit better. Really the first it was convinced me that it was a great remedy. Before the two boxes were used up I sent my husband after three more boxes, so I would not be without them. When I had used these three boxes I felt like a different woman and thought I was almost cured.

"Since that time I have been taking them whenever I began to feel badly. When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I weighed only 113 pounds and after I had been using the medicine for about six months I weighed 122 pounds. I have had a good appetite ever since I commenced taking Pink Pills and instead of nibbling along, picking such food as I could eat even with an effort, I eat most anything that comes on the table. I am not the invalid I was. I do not have to be waited upon now as if I was a helpless child, but I work all the time, doing the housework and ironing and working in the garden without that dreadful feeling which comes over a person when they are afraid they are going to have one of those spells that I used to have.

"Work don't hurt me any more. I honestly believe that had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would now be in my grave. I still have what the doctor calls bilious colic but the Pink Pills have made me much better and the spells are not so frequent and are nothing like as painful as before I began to use them. I would not be without the Pink Pills for that disease alone under any circumstances to say nothing of the other diseases for which they are especially recommended. I take pleasure in telling my neighbors the benefits I have received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and know of several who have taken my advice and have been greatly benefited by them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

EASY WHEN YOU KNOW.

The two men stood in front of the penny-in-the-slot weighing machine, looking red in the face, as though from some immense muscular exertion, says the New York Tribune.

"Now, let me see if I read the directions right," said one, taking another look at the paragraph in a newspaper. "Yes, we tried it right. This is what it says:

"'All that is necessary if you wish to be weighed in a penny-in-the-slot machine, and haven't got the penny, is to apply your lips to the slot, and blow hard. The air cannot escape, and the pressure will set the machine in operation at once.'

"Well, I'll be blowed if I can do it," said he. "You try it once. Maybe your lungs are stronger than mine."

As the other man stepped on the platform to take a try at it several passers-by, attracted by the odd sight, stopped to see the operation. Soon a party was gathered around the machine.

In vain did the man puff and blow till he almost burst the buttons from his waistcoat.

"I give it up," said he, casting a sheepish look at the crowd that gave him the laugh.

Just then a bootblack, with grimy face but bright eyes, wriggled through the crowd.

"Aw, dat's dead easy," said he. "Just let me show der mug how ter do it," and then he climbed on the platform, put his lips to the slot, and blew. Not so very heard, either, but a click was heard, the pointer flew around and told the wondering crowd that the "kid" weighed ninety-four pounds.

"It's a cinch," was the contemptuous remark of the urchin. "Try it again."

Another man tried it, and again the proverb was verified about the battle not always being to the strong.

The crowd wondered.

"How do you do it, kid?" said one.

"Humph, dat's collin'," he replied. "I win more money at dat game dan I kin lose shootin' de cubes."

"Give you a quarter to tell."

"It's a go, boss. Now watch me," and the urchin climbed on the machine again.

"Gi' me a cent," said he.

"What for?" asked the man.

"What fur? Why, ter stick in me mug; den I puts me mout' on de slot an' pokes in de cent wid me tongue, see? Dat's what fur. It's dead easy when yer on. Savvy?"

The crowd savvied.

HE LOOKED GREEN.

He was tall and lean and lank. His coat fit him like an overcoat on a 10-year-old kid. Then it was old and faded and very much torn. His hat was one of the old style derbys about three inches high. His trousers displayed a couple of triangular patches on the seat and were so drawn up at the bottom that they just covered the top of his stogy boots, says the Sportsman's Review. He was young, but on his face was the suspicion of a little down, which some are pleased to term a mustache. He prefaced every remark with "By gol." He was green—very green—in looks. He walked into an up-town saloon that is known to be the resort of a few sure-thing men, and ambling up to the bar laid down 10 cents and said:

"By gol, give me a bottle of pop."

The three young men at the end of the bar about that time were seized with an unconscionable desire to play poker and invited the stranger to take a hand. He followed them into the rear room without saying a word and sat down at a table.

"I hean't much onto this here game of poker, but, by gol, I have beat every feller in Tammany Gulch playing euchre; be you gola' to count with them ere buttons?" and he looked at the chips that were being placed before him. He laid $10.15 on the table and the game commenced. He was unfortunate and soon the little pile melted away. He looked sad as the last quarter slipped from his grasp, and digging down in a pocket in his shirt he brought out an old handkerchief, and after untying a dozen or more knots laid three $10-gold pieces on the table.

"By gol, these hean't mine, but I've got to have that money back."

Again the game went on. The first $10 was gone and then the second. Somehow or other the luck of the stranger turned. When one of them held a pair of aces he held two pair. When they held two pair he held threes, and when they held threes he invariably had a full house. Finally there came a jack pot and every dollar in sight was in the middle of the table. It was a moment of great suspense. By a very dexterous move one of the men secured four kings and proudly skinned them down on the table.

"By gol," said the stranger, "ain't that funny, but I've got four of those one spots," and quietly pocketing the money he called for another bottle of "pop" and walked out on the street.

SPORTING

Sheriff McKinnon Is the Most Interesting Personage For Sports Now.

Cycle Show at the Y. M. C. A. Next Week Will Be Large.

Every Inch of Space in the Whole Building is Taken.

Did you attend the fight in Carlton county? No? Really, there couldn't have been anyone there but the principals, as it is next to impossible to get an answer to the question different from the above. The cause of the vigorous denial is one William McKinnon, sheriff of Carlton county, who has been in the city several times this week. It is safe to say that he is the best known man in Duluth today and the most feared. His comings have been watched with bated breath, and when he went a mighty sigh of relief has gone up. Those who were in attendance at the fight have undergone a nervous strain that is sufficient punishment for their evil doing in attending that little seance.

Take it all in all, according to those who were there, it was no fun at all. First they say that it was a very chilly affair to stand out in the open air and let the wind sweep over them. Then to have a deadly fear that every moment a sheriff with a warrant would open the door and give the snap away by proclaiming one under arrest; that was the climax. It is said that some of them have had a nervous attack every time the door opened.

At any rate, this climate does not appear at all adapted to the "manly art" of self defense, and it is extremely unlikely that another attempt to pull off a prize fight in this section will be made in the immediate future. It is also unlikely, if one is attempted, that anyone will attend it.

Perhaps it is just as well. There can be no objection to boxing. But the prize fight has come to be adorned with such criminal circumstances that a respectable citizen always feels a guilty trembling in his soul when he attends one. Yet the "muscle man," as Bishop Fowler called it, still has such an ascendency that when there is a fight there will always be those who will attend it, so perhaps it is just as well that the encouragement of law has become a very discouraging element. Temptation will thus be removed.

Meanwhile Carlton county inhabitants are wondering if they will have to bond the county to support the new boarders, and the friends of Governor Clough, who had friends there, are wondering when he is going to end this cruel war, or if he has forgotten them.

The largest thing in the line of sporting events in some time takes place at the Y. M. C. A. building next week. In other words the cycle show will take place, March 17 and 18, Tuesday and Wednesday. The burning questions of the hour are, if you are as yet unscathed from the wheeling fever, "are you going to wheel this year?" If you rode last year the question takes this form: "Are you going to get a new model?" In a very great percentage of cases the answer to both questions is "Yes." Nearly all the models for 1896 will be represented in the Y. M. C. A. cycle show, and if the intending purchaser cannot find in all the list a wheel to suit him, he is indeed hard to suit, and he must wait until models unthought of are born.

The wheeling "craze," so-called, will be as much greater this year than last as last year was greater than the year preceding. Manufacturers have seen this, and all winter the old firms and many new ones have had their factories working at full pressure to supply the demand which is coming as soon as the roads are clear.

There is, of course, a certain element of faddism in the craze. There be many who have been afflicted with this form of it who will tire and retire without loss of time. But the wheel is too convenient to be a fad, and there can be no doubt that it has become a permanent institution. It is only a question of time before prices will be less. At $100 it is a wonder the craze has progressed as far as it has. At that figure it must be limited to a certain extent. There is a well-defined impression that the best wheels can be made and sold for $40 at the outside, and that the manufacturers are taking advantage of the craze to keep up the price. It is believed that this year will see the demand amply supplied and that next year prices will tumble.

But the cycle show. It is to be a large thing. Every inch of space in the hall upstairs and the gymnasium down stairs is taken, and there are a dozen exhibitors in all. Since last week the Costello Hardware company, the Schiller Cigar company, and Worth W. Preston have secured space. Preston will exhibit the new gearing invented by J. S. Leary, of this city. It is said to be a device that will revolutionize the records, and its workings appear entirely practicable.

Kruschke will exhibit the Fowler sextet, the largest wheel made, which has been on exhibition at the Minneapolis cycle show.

The cycle show will be an advantage, not only to the wheelmen, but to the dealers, for next to advertising his wheels in The Herald, the best thing a dealer can do is to get them in a place where everyone who is interested in wheeling will see them and note their excellences.

• • •

Sunday afternoon a meeting will be held in Costello's hradware store by a number of men interested in the formation of a yachting club. There are about 100 yachts of all classes in the harbor, and the outlook for such an organization is good here. This fact was called to the attention of the public in this column a number of times last season. The club will start with at least fifty members.

Curling is looking up wonderfully as the winter wanes. It is progressing at a lively rate. The D. R. Black medal contest is down to the finals between Dewey and Wurdon, and the district medal contest will soon be moving along. The three winning rinks from each city will play for the trophy. Superior is almost played down. The draws for Duluth, were published yesterday, and they will be played as fast as possible.

The Central Gun club held its annual meeting during the week and elected the following officers: President, J. W. Nelson; vice president, J. H. Moork; secretary, R. Little; treasurer, Phil Pastoret; field captain, D. H. Day; lieutenant, C. Carlson. The club decided to buy three medals for the season of 1896 at a cost of about $50. It is expected that this will be a lively season for the club.

No one should miss the cycle show at the Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday and Wednesday. The Marshall-Wells Hardware company secured first choice of position by lot, taking the front of the gymnasium. Their exhibit will be a big one, set off by handsome ornamentation of bunting and numerous electric fixtures. R. C. Kruschke secured second place, taking the front part of the upper hall.

A feature of Kruschkes exhibit will be the Fowler sextet, which attracted so much attention at the shows in New York and Chicago, and which is the fastest wheel ever built. A. Thompson and Smith, Farwell & Steele occupy similar relative positions on the upper floor and in the gymnasium. On the lower floor will be floor. Someone characterizes the show as the heavy wheel, which promises almost any speed desired. It will be of great interest.

Swan, Bangs and Dodge & Pearson will be on the lower floor, and Rothermel, Schiller and Norton will be on the upper floor. Someone characterizes the show as the biggest thing on wheels. It will be open from 2 to 10 p. m.

THE COMING FAD.

Mrs. John Stetson, of Boston, thinks that driving will be the chief amusement of the coming woman, says the Cleveland World. She believes that the new woman, as well as the old-fashioned woman, can find a few things in this life more enjoyable than a spin behind a good horse or team, and that, if she holds the reins herself, she will quickly learn that it adds immeasurably to her pleasure.

The exhilarating effect of the swift motion, the bracing air filling the lungs and sending the blood dancing through the veins, the trout-like pull on the lines that communicates to the reinswoman something of the spirit of her horses, the absorbing interest felt in overcoming the difficulties of the road, in negotiating abrupt turns and in meeting and passing other vehicles—well, there's nothing like it according to this enthusiastic horsewomen, and if it is an "old woman" who started on the drive she will come home a "new woman" physically.

DEMERARA

Peculiarities of British Colonization Made Evident in Guiana.

Servants There From All Nations Including Coolies From India.

Food Almost For the Asking---Languid Sort of Existence.

Were it not that the sea is kept out by dikes of mud and clay, at high tide our vessel would be floating over extensive sugar plantations, with a soil richer by far than any in Venezuela, says the Boston Transcript.

We are in the mouth of the rapid Demerara, whirling and muddy, with such a tide indeed that the little boats in haste to reach the ship, their dark oarsmen straining every muscle, and vying with each other in eagerness to take the first passengers ashore, are making slow headway across its sweeping current. These passengers, however, who fear to trust their lives to the small creaky crafts, await the arrival of the ferry-boat, which soon steams puffing along from the dingy dock, misty and dark in the early morning. The volumes of black smoke issuing from innumerable tall chimneys, and the incessant shrill whistle of the steamboats tell us that the city of Georgetown, of sugar plantations, miles long and miles broad, not to speak of her late discovered incomparable gold mines, of which we are to give some account hereafter, compares not favorably in real wealth with the little garden of the sugarcane.

Our island is comparatively free from mud and malaria, snakes and scorpions, chiggoes and coolies from Calcutta. Here, indeed, we are in a medley of nations. Indian men, with their turbans and bare legs; Indian women, clad in scarlet and gold, rings on their fingers and rings on their toes, their black eyes and hair and their shapely arms wonderfully tattooed, Chinese with their queues and curious faces; Scotchmen and Englishmen, with their ruddy faces, fast changing to sallow brown. Burly negroes with their fine teeth, white with constant contact with the luscious sugarcane. Native "Bucks," with their weird apparel. Creoles bearing a resemblance to all.

The houses of Georgetown are not remarkable in any way, being common wooden buildings of a nondescript color, but yet of better architecture than those of American cities. There is no dungeon-look about them, no prisonlike appearance. They are a respectable distance apart, and the shingled roofs are pleasantly visible. Heavy dark-foliaged trees, intermingled with beautiful cocoa palms, afford sweet shade wherein the hucksters squat with their trays of luscious fruit and cocoanut candy of their own town has commenced business. As the ferryboat draws near, with its freight of timid passengers, the dock is thronged with the dark forms of scantily dressed East Indians and negroes, still and languid in the sleepy dawn. The more ambitious Indians insist on carrying our baggage, jabbering in their native Hindustani until we at length reach a hotel. By this time the sun is shining, bright and hot, as it knows too well how to do in this tropical clime.

Georgetown, the capital of British Guiana, is not "a big uninteresting city," as Matthew Arnold dubbed Chicago. It contains about 25,000 persons of all races, kinds and conditions, and cosmopolitanism reigns in all pleasantness and peace. Perhaps the first thing that strikes the visitor is the decided red color of the streets of the town. This is due to the clay, which is burned in kilns before being spread over the road. One contrasts the bright glare of the Barbadian highways, and is thankful for so much at least. For Guiana, with all her wealth make. The city is well laid out, and the streets, as a rule, very broad, one knows not why, however, for there are no wagons or vehicles to run on them. But it is good to have wide streets for walking, if for nothing else. Main street is a very pretty street, in the center of which runs a canal of water filled with water-lilies, and trees of brilliant foliage grow on either side. Georgetown justly boasts of its market place as the finest in the tropics. The architecture of the building itself, however, is abominable. A great shapeless structure covered with corrugated iron roof and sides.

But here is the dinner table of the West Indian gourmand. Behold food for the asking, compared with the prices one must give for such things in the United States. Of mutton, beef and pork why speak? Game of every kind. But of fruits! Bananas, pineapples, oranges, grape fruit, japadelloes, mangoes, cashews, water melons, mammy apples, water lemons, custard apples, sugar apples, guavas and cocoanuts of all shapes, sizes, colors and descriptions. Vegetables in variety. Jams, eddoes, pumpkins, sweet potatoes, ockras, cassava, rice, Indian corn, plantains, turnips, beets, celery, squashes and bread fruits. Fish of all kinds in abundance.

In the hotels are managers and overseers drinking "swizzles" and playing billiards. The cigarette is universal. Everything and everyone seems languid and half asleep. No signs of a struggle for existence. They live on nothing and for nothing in particular. Business is good, it is said, but there are no signs of it. Clothing is inexpensive, and they wear little. The heat is terrific, and they drink "swizzles" and smoke. Backwards and forwards plies the ferryboat from the east to the west coast of the slimy Demerara. Ships of every kind sleep beside the docks. In the distance loom the smoking chimneys of the sugar plantations. "Peace and plenty" is written on all. The blue shadows sleep on the streets, and the hucksters slep in them, lulled by the buzz of the droning beetle in the leaves above them. It is the hour of the midday siesta.

Towards evening the sea wall is alive with people—a strong dike of massive stone against which the sea beats in vain, sending up huge bursts of foam to startle yon two lovers from their reverie as hand in hand in Guianese style they languidly promenade in the rays of the setting sun. Insect life, too, revives as the day declines, and the atmosphere of advancing night echoes to the voice of the whip-poor-will or the hooting of the great owl, while bats flt and dart to feed on the vast swarms of mosquitoes which drive us hurriedly indoors for the night.

The country of the Demerara from a car window is the most uninteresting in the world. The land is flat, marshy and scrubby, and in some places as much as four feet below the level of the sea. On one hand we have what one can hardly recognize as the sea, which is on account of its dark and muddy color. It beats up against the dams of mud and clay, but for which it would rush in and flood the whole country for miles inland. Here and there a thatched-roof hovel of mud, and an occasional herd of poor cows, knee-deep in the marshy pastures. On the other hand, one golden expanse of waving sugarcane, stretching for miles as far as the eye can reach, dotted with cabbage palms and the tall chimneys of sugar estates.

The houses of the white people in this section of the country are built upon brick pillars, eight or ten feet high, partly on account of the dampness, but chiefly because the land is frequently inundated in the rainy season of the year. The under part of the building serves as a stable and other purposes. Mules are the only beasts of burden, and are used for hauling the sugarcane, in large flat-bottomed iron boats, or "punts," as they are called, to the factory, and also by the managers and overseers to ride about the plantation. The managers are generally Englishmen or Scotchmen, and they are provided with large, comfortable houses. They are generally fat, red-faced men, with large families. The life of a manager is a tolerable one. He has an average income of $2000 a year, and is supposed to inspect the working of the plantation generally. He hears the complaints and grievances of the Hindoo laborers, and has the power to decide cases.

About one hundred long wooden buildings, similar in appearance to the sheds one sees sometimes adjoining a barn on farms in this country, comprise what is known in Demerara as the Nigger Yard. Here live and dwell the Hindoo tillers of the soil. All the houses are made on the same plan. They are each about fifty or sixty feet in length, and are divided into compartments. There are no windows, or if any they are always fast shut, and the door is also closed at night. Sometimes there will be living in one of these rooms, ten feet square, a family of six persons. There is no floor, but the clay earth is worn smooth by the naked feet of the inmates. In one corner is a small rickety bedstead of wood and in place of laths is a network of twine, stretched across the top. The bedstead is never over four feet in length. There are no chairs. In another corner is a small fireplace for cooking, made of clay. Two or three pots or pans. They live on rice, and butter is made by boiling down the milk until only the fat remains. A hoe, a spade, a shovel, and an ax are the only instruments of labor. Above, on the rafters, are piled logs of wood, for burning. This is the general type of the home of the Hindoo immigrant in British Guiana.

The people themselves are, as a rule, fine looking, the women especially so, and indeed beautiful. They are fond of wearing jewelry, as all barbarous races are, and have all their spare money converted into brooches and rings by the Indian goldsmith. They are very fond of tobacco. The men smoke the "chillum." This is a funnel-shaped pipe-bowl, made of clay. The larger end of this is filled with tobacco, rubbed with molasses-sugar, in the palm of the hand. They hold the pipe to their mouths in such a way as not to touch the smaller end with the lips when inhaling the smoke. The women smoke cigarettes, which they manufacture out of black tobacco and common wrapping paper.

The marriage custom is a very curious one. Children of 6 and 7 years are betrothed to one another. As soon as the girl is 13 years old, she is publicly married to her lover. A few days before the wedding day, the boy and girl undergo the operation of dyeing. Their bodies are colored yellow, and painted in different places. A small cage is constructed of bamboo and covered with cloth. In this the bride is placed, hidden from view. Amidst the beating of drums and tom-toms, a great procession following, she is slowly borne to the house of her husband, and the night is spent in monotonous chants and howls.

The Indian immigrants are quiet, but when suffering from injustice, are very bold, passionate and cantankerous. Many an overseer has been killed by the people of his gang, whose wages he has withheld. But when treated well, they are good workers. They are slow at work, but their endurance is wonderful. The women work as hard as the men It is an ordinary thing for a woman to stand all day up to her waist in water at her work of cutting and chopping the grass which grows on the sides of the drains running through the fields. Children of 6 and 7 are wonderful little workers. The men earn on an average three bits a day (a bit is 8 cents), the women two and a half bits, and the children one and a half bits. In spite of their low wages, they save enough money in five years, after which time they are "free," to enable them to return to their native land.

TEACHERS AND STUDENTS SHOULD TAKE HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

It supplies just the material that is most wasted by brain work and nervous exertion—the phosphates.

BIG LOAVES OF BREAD.

The largest loaves of bread baked in the world are those of France and Italy, says the Cleveland World. The "pipe" bread of Italy is baked in loaves two or three feet long, while in France the loaves are made in the shape of very long rolls, four or five feet in length, and in many cases even six feet.

The bread of Paris is distributed almost exclusively by women, who go to the various bakehouses at 5:30 a. m. and spend about an hour polishing up the loaves.

After the loaves are thoroughly cleaned of dust and grit the "bread porter" proceeds on the round of her customers. Those who live in apartments or flats find their loaves leaning against the door. Restaurateurs, and those having street entrances to their premises, find the supply of the staff of life propped up against the front door.

The wages earned by these bread carriers varies from 50 cents to $1.25 a day, and their day's work is completed by 10 o'clock in the morning.

THE LAWYER'S RETAINER.

A criminal lawyer in Chicago, who is noted for his faculty in acquitting any prisoner in whose defense he may be employed, without regard to the character of the evidence, is in great demand, particularly among those who feel that their cases may be precarious, says the Chicago Record. He received a letter the other day from a prisoner in the county jail. It related that the writer had been arrested for horse stealing and was indicted at the last session of the grand jury. It declared that the writer had little hope of acquittal unless good talent could be enlisted in his behalf, and he begged the lawyer addressed to take the case. Then came the pathetic part of the letter.

"I have no money," the writer said, "to pay for legal services, and very little property. But the horse is a good family driving horse; it can do a mile in 2:36, and is gentle enough for any lady to use. I'll give you the horse if you'll take up the case."

The lawyer is still undecided.

All last winter George A. Mills, of Lebanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by all druggists.

"From constant worry over business matters," he said, "I suffered from the loss of sleep, and became so nervous that I was entirely unfitted for my business. In fact, I feared insanity. I used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. The effect was almost magical. I could again sleep, mental composure, appetite, and strength returned. Six bottles of this remedy cured me, and I have remained well to this date. I have recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to many of my friends and neighbors, and have yet to learn of a failure to obtain good results."

Do You Feel Weak, Tired, and Nervous?

The wonderful cure of Mrs. Oliver Wilson, of Northboro, Mass., will interest you.

"I was suffering from nervousness," she says, "caused by female weakness and nervous prostration. I was so nervous and weak I could not go up a common pair of stairs without stopping to rest, and was troubled to sleep at night. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and have obtained my old elastic step around the house, to the surprise of my friends. After creeping around for two years, hardly able to do anything, it has proved a boon to me truly. I know of many others whom it has cured and who speak most highly in praise of it."

Mrs. Elmer Craig, of No. Peoria, Ill., tells you how you can be well and strong:

"I was stricken with nervous disease," she says, "which affected my heart, head, and stomach. I doctored with physicians of our town, but got no relief from the terrible sick headaches, pains in the heart and stomach until I used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Before I used this wonderful medicine the nerves in my eyes were so affected that I feared that I would lose my sight. I would get so nervous and weak I could not walk across the room without terrible palpitation of the heart. I had not taken one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy before my head and eyes were cleared of their dull aching, and I am growing stronger every day. I cannot do half justice in the praise of this medicine."

Is Your Blood Pure, Are Your Nerves Strong?

"I was very nervous. I could not hold my hands still, especially my left hand; there was an involuntary contraction of the muscles and movement of the fingers.

"My food troubled me very soon after eating. My kidneys and bladder were affected so it was difficult to urinate freely.

"I used the celebrated medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and without being tedious reciting my experience, I can say that these difficulties have left me, and my nerves are quiet and my food does not distress me.

LABOR

Successful Session of the Master Horseshoers' Association This Week.

The Journeymen Plumbers Will Hold Their State Convention in April.

Question of Reducing the Number of Helpers or Abolishing Them.

This week in labor circles presents more to record, both happenings in the past and developments for the future, than last week did. The third semi-annual state convention of the Master Horseshoers' Protective association, held here on Tuesday, is one of the most important events to chronicle. The session was very successful and resulted in definite steps being taken to secure the elevation of the craft by the establishment of courses of instruction, both general and with a special bearing on matters connected with the trade. A committee to secure the passage of a lien law giving more adequate security for pay for services was appointed also.

Among the coming events may be noted the semi-annual state convention of the Journeymen Plumbers and Gasfitters' association, which is to meet here, probably on the first Sunday in April. The principal subjects to be considered by the convention are the extension of conference boards, and the question of helpers, the number of whom it is generally conceded should be restricted; it is by some insisted that they should be done away with altogether. The good results of conference boards are so pronounced that it is felt that an understanding thereof, to which the convention will conduce, is the only thing necessary to secure their institution throughout the state.

The small number, about forty, who attended the meeting to bring about a reorganization of the Carpenters' union, which was held in the Union club rooms Monday night, was not due to a lack of interest, but was owing to the fact that the burning of the Parsons' block, in which the meeting was noticed to be held, had upset the arrangements. The feeling displayed is an earnest of a speedy reorganization of this union on a strong basis.

THE TRADES ASSEMBLY.

The Boycott on the Lyceum to Be Extended.

It has been decided to take a further step in the war against the owner of the Lyceum building waged in behalf of the theatrical employes by extending the boycott to the whole building, unless the demands of the men were acceded to before two weeks from next Monday. This decision was reached at the regular meeting of the Federated Trades assembly held in the Union club rooms last evening. The committee that had been appointed to wait on the tenants of the Lyceum building in aid of the theatrical employes' strike, reported that some of the persons they had seen had used their good offices to bring the Lyceum people to yield, but that Mr. Miller is firm and the prospect of his giving in is slim. It was reported to the assembly by a member not on the committee that Mr. Marsh had said he would never sign the scale. It was then resolved to extend the boycott to the whole building, to go into effect on March 30, if the demands of the men are not complied with by that time, and volunteers were called for to assist in carrying on the present boycott, meantime, quite a number responding.

A lively discussion was precipitated over the issue between M. F. Crosby and the plumbers. Mr. Hoetz, the manager of the new brewery, was given the floor, and he stated that he had never intended to employ any but union members on the brewery building and referred the assembly to Mr. Crosby, who has the plumbing contract. Mr. Crosby was called on. He wanted the parties making charges that he had scabbed and had been blacklisted by any local union to come forward. They came—several of them. Mr. Griffin, of the Master Plumbers' union, was accorded the privilege of the floor to give the masters' side of the Crosby controversy. In an impassioned speech he denounced Mr. Crosby as a scab imported in 1892, at the time of the lockout, and said he had never shown his head in a union until a few months ago. In behalf of Mr. Crosby, attention was called to the fact that he had not come to Duluth until after the lockout was over. As it appeared necessary to go into an extended investigation, Messrs. Finley, Murray and J. M. Erickson were appointed a committee for that purpose.

The locals reported business dull, but prospects fair, except the Stonecutters' union, which reported that none of its members were at work.

Among the communications read was one from the Denver Trades assembly, warning workmen that Colorado is overcrowded with all classes of laborers, reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

By a nearly unanimous vote, the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 was endorsed, as was the position taken by the chamber of commerce on the amendment to the Duluth-Superior bridge bill.

The local unions were instructed to have the "unfair" lists published in their journals.

Robert Haire was elected treasurer in place of Joseph Harmon, whose resignation was presented and accepted last evening with some demur, and only after Mr. Harmon had explained that he had gone into business for himself. E. G. Peterson, of the Coopers' union, and John Shea, of the Firemen's union, were obligated as delegates from those organizations.

TO ABOLISH SWEATING SYSTEM.

The bill now pending before congress, introduced by Congressman Sulzer, of New York city, in the house of representatives, to tax the sweating system has been favorably received by those who have given the subject of abolishing the sweat shops study. The measure was first proposed by Jean Feaney, at the International convention of factory inspectors held in the city of Philadelphia in September, 1894. The convention then unanimously approved of the plan, and Inspector Feaney made a rough draft of a bill covering the idea, which was submitted to the annual convention of factory inspectors held in Providence, R. I., last September, and he was authorized to have it introduced in the Fifty-fourth congress. The twelve factory inspectors of Pennsylvania, who were mostly new in the business, opposed the bill because they thought that state regulation was sufficient to wipe out the sweat shops. They have since had more experience, and now find, as the older inspectors discovered long ago, that state regulation is not sufficiently effective to abolish or even to satisfactorily regulate the evils which flow from the sweat shops. Congressman Sulzer having, as a member of the New York assembly and speaker of the house, made a study of sweat shop legislation, introduced and had passed the sweat shop bills which are now the laws of that state, was selected as the most fitting member to father the bill in the present congress. He redrafted Mr. Feaney's bill, retaining all its essential features and adding others. It is now pending before the house committee on ways and means.

The principle of the bill is not particularly novel, it being in line with such legislation as the "Anti-Cigarette" law, the "Anti-Scalping" law, etc. It provides that where a wholesaler or jobber gives out the materials from which various articles of clothing, cigarettes, cigars or fur goods are made, to be manufactured by a contractor or by any other person than those directly in the employ of the wholesaler or jobber, then a tax of $300 a year must be paid in advance to the United States revenue collector by such wholesaler or jobber. If the contractor who thus receives the goods from the wholesaler or jobber should in turn sublet all or any part of his contract, then the contractor must also pay in advance $300 for each person to whom he sublets the whole or any part of his contract. Should this sub-contractor follow the present custom and subdivide the work among others, such as "houseworkers," etc., the sub-contractor must pay into the treasury of the United States, through the collector for the district in which the work is done, the sum of $300 in advance for each "houseworker" or other person to whom any part of the garments, cigars or cigarettes is given to be made. Thus the wholesaler must pay the tax for the contractor; the contractor must pay the tax for the sub-contractor; the sub-contractor must pay the tax for the houseworker. The bill has been indorsed by the Ohio State Workingmen's assembly, by the Cleveland Central Labor union, by the New York state branch of the International Cigarmakers' union, by the Chicago Trades and Labor assembly and by the New York state branch of the American Federation of Labor.

TAILORS PIONEERS IN UNIONISM.

In Webb's "History of Trade Unionism" it is stated that no evidence is on record of the existence prior to 1709 of any continuous association of wage earners for maintaining or improving the conditions of their employment. The journeymen tailors appear to have been the first workers who formed a trade union, and in 1720 the master tailors complained to parliament of this combination in their trade on the part of the workers. The weavers of Wilts and Somerset combined in 1726 and petitioned the king against the cruelty of their employers, the clothiers. Among the earliest complete types of a trade union was the institution established by the cloth workers of Halifax in 1796. These early trade unions, however, were carried on under difficulties, as laws against combination were passed to render them illegal, which laws were not repealed until 1825. It was not until 1829 that they obtained protection for their funds and property by a temporary act, and only permanently in 1871 by the trade union act of that year. Trade unions became very active between 1825 and 1829, and in the latter year the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, one of the most perfect types of a trade union in the world, was established. Accurate statistical data of the trade unions of the United Kingdom are not obtainable, though the board of trade has for several years endeavored to obtain complete information on the subject. George Howell says there are 8900 trade unions in Great Britain, with 1,200,000 financial members, and that they have an estimated value of £2,000,000.

SKILLED AND UNSKILLED LABOR.

That unions force masters to pay half workmen the same wages as good workmen is not true, and the very idea would be scouted by all sensible unionists. The notion that such is the case is, however, very general, declares William Trant. A uniform rate of pay exists in the army, navy, government offices and other institutions in which aristocrats have been able to appropriate the "maximum" of pay, leaving a meager residuum to their less fortunate brethren, but the trade unionists have not yet learned to practice such an injustice. True, the unions sometimes agree upon a minimum rate of wages, but this is quite another thing. If a man be not worth that minimum, no employer need employ him, while if he be a man of superior skill, or extraordinary working ability, there is no limit to the amount of wages an employer may feel inclined to give him. Of course, where wages are paid by the day, a uniform rate naturally springs into existence, it is, however, agreed upon between the employers and men. It is a mere conventional arrangement and may be abandoned by either side all the way from sixteen to twelve to eight hours, and is still making an effort toward further curtailing excessive hours of service, and will do so until that plane is reached when no man shall need to work more hours than is necessary—quite enough necessary—to keep himself and family in decency and comfort.

It increases wages. Compare the wages of well-organized on non-organized groups of men receive with the wages of those who are organized, and see what it has done in this particular. But oh! some will say that it is only temporary relief. True, but if it was not for the trade union we would not even have that; and it is preparing the way for something better in the same direction.

It says that the child shall go to school and prepare himself to take on the duties of citizenship, instead of going to the factory. It says that he shall enjoy childhood as a child, and not as a prematurely aged man.

BENEFITS OF TRADES UNIONISM.

What can trades unionism do for my business?"

Ask the bricklayers what it has done for them and they will quickly tell you that it has increased their wages, lightened their toil and made them more self-respecting; and they might add that in Chicago it is hoped that after May 1, 1906, the hours of labor for the trade shall not exceed six a day. This is an organized body, whose members well know what unionism has done for them, says the Industrial Banner.

"Is trades unionism a failure?"

Ask the cigarmakers and they will smile at your ignorance and tell you how they have secured a universal eight-hour day, increased their wages, and made provision for their sick and unemployed, and are constantly improving their standing in the community.

Ask the Typographical union, which has suddenly been called upon to face the typesetting machines, which have displaced the labor of a large number of men. Through unionism they have been able to control these machines, limit the hours of the operatives and maintain a fair rate of wages that otherwise would have proved impossible.

But why keep on with illustrations? The carpenters, iron workers, machinists, and in fact the workers at all organized trades have the same testimony to give of better wages and reduced hours; while the story of the unorganized craft is one long wail of anguish and despair, long hours, low wages, degrading conditions steadily growing worse.

No sane or sensible man who honestly desires to arrive at a just conclusion can but admit that every trade in a favorable position today owes that position to the power of the trade union. Man may quibble and split hairs, but the one great fact remains that the success of trades unionism is not open to question and can be demonstrated on every hand, and the trades that are suffering from low wages and degrading conditions, when contrasted with the strongly organized crafts, is an object lesson so significant and startling as not to be ignored. No! Trades unionism is not a failure. And if the fellows who stand aloof, so fearful of spending a few cents in their own defense, would only take off their coats, roll up their sleeves and do their share for the general good, there would be such a change in affairs presented to the exploiters of labor that they would realize that in future the producers of wealth would insist upon enjoying the full fruits of their toil. However, it is just that "if" which stands in the way, and we suppose we must put up with it, and instead of advancing the support that is so essential to success some people will find it easier to ask questions than to combine with their fellows in an effort to advance the interest of not only their own individual trade, but of humanity at large. No! Trades unionism is no failure, and they who contend otherwise are certainly dishonest or ignorant, because any man who desires may have the light, and it is his own fault if he remains in darkness.

FAILURES HAVE THEIR LESSONS

The leaders of the New York Electrical workers, who struck against a rival union and lost, their strike having arrived at the conclusion that strikes are poor weapons. "I have to make a report," said Delegate Headley to the Central Labor union at its last meeting, "which I make with regret, but it is one of the many lessons which labor leaders are learning. It is to record this humiliating position in which we have been placed by our late strike and the lockout which followed it. We have been defeated in the object for which we have struck. It is a bad time to arbitrate after a strike has been ordered, and before a strike has been ordered those who order it should make sure that it will be a success. The proper time to arbitrate is before a strike. We have learned some sharp lessons by our strikes. In 1892 we struck for thirteen weeks against non-union men and lost our strike. In 1894 we had a long strike for the eight-hour day, which also was a failure," Headley said that he wanted to have an amendment put in the constitution of the Central Labor union, providing that grievances should be presented to that body before a strike was ordered. He believes that it would prevent many strikes.

UNREST IN SWITZERLAND.

Switzerland is threatened with a strike of railroad men, which, if carried out according to the program now arranging, will be the most complete of its kind the world has ever seen. All classes of railroad employes, from station masters and engineers down to porters and casual laborers, are effectually organized into one body, and demands have been formulated covering the wants of every class. The movement commenced with the Northern company, and of whose men petitioned a couple of months ago for an increase in pay. The employes of the other companies followed, and all had sent in similar petitions. Then a conference was held at Lucerne, at which the Railroad Workers' association was constituted and it now has 25,000 members. The men demand an increase of 25 per cent on all salaries up to 2500 francs a year, 20 per cent on salaries between 2000 and 2500 francs and 15 per cent on all above 2500 francs. The companies say the demands are preposterous, and the men declare that a general strike will commence on April 1 if their demands are not granted. All Europe is directly interested, but so far the movement has passed unnoticed outside of Switzerland.

WRONG SORT OF WORKMEN.

"He that is not with us is against us," should be inscribed upon the banners of organized labor, and it should be displayed as a warning to our non-union friends who say, "I don't belong to the union, but I have nothing ag'in it," says the Railroad Telegrapher. For a man to remain neutral is, of course, a personal right, but for a man to remain neutral when he hopes in his heart that the union of his co-laborers will succeed in obtaining for himself and others an increase in wages, better working hours, or some other desirable benefit, is a pretty "poor stick of a man." There is no neutral ground for a wage worker to stand upon. He must be for or against the union representatives of his labor. The simple fact that the union exists; that the object of its existence is to secure benefit to the class of labor it represents; that its platform is broad and its principles praiseworthy, destroys all possibility of anyone maintaining a dignified, honorable neutrality while his co-laborers present themselves as union men and wear the badge of their trades union. Therefore every man must be for or against the union, and if any attempt to remain neutral, it is simply hypocrisy. In plain English language, it is riding two horses—the employer and the union.

Every self-respecting wage worker should be a member of his trades union. Neutrality is cowardice. It is standing in the world of labor with arm extended and palm outspread to receive benefits and at the same time keeping a sharp eye out for danger. If the benefits reach the hand they are eagerly received; if danger appears, the extended arm falls to the side and trembling footsteps are heard in a convenient alley. That is the way neutrality acts.

There is another sort of neutrality. It is that practiced by the "backslider." The neutrality which prompts a man to only pay dues to the union when "there's something substantial in sight." Backsliders are barnacles which delay the ship of organized labor from reaching a safe harbor. There are also "barnacles" inside the ship—men who pay dues and act as though they were ashamed of themselves, for they never speak of their union or endeavor to secure recruits. These say they are "for the union," but their daily life is against it. Is it any wonder that true blue union men speak contemptuously sometimes of their fellow worker? How can a man who has the moral courage of his convictions and express his opinions have a very high regard for a co-worker who never has an opinion of his own and declares himself a "neutral," except on pay days? Pay days the neutrals have increased wages secured by the trades union, but conveniently forget the influence that brought the benefit to them. "Neutrals," it is time you were doing some serious thinking.

LABOR'S NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES.

"Supreme at the ballot box, labor fritters away its supremacy; the maker and unmaker of laws at will, it leaves their making to shrewd anti-unionists; bound by common ties, it divides into hostile and jealous camps; the idol of popular sympathy, it usually at critical moments surges into the highway and tramples upon its worshippers," said John D. Kernan in an address before the Social Reform club of New York on "Labor's Neglected Opportunities." "Ireland needed not a Parnell to weld its divided forces into a compact organization contending for lawful changes in lawful ways, as much as had labor that need in the United States! The mistakes of labor are clearly seen by contrasting its methods with those of corporations. The latter attain their ends: from humble supplicants for legislation and public favor they have grown until they wield nigh rule us. Corporations are today the embodiment of concentrated energy, intellectual forces, discipline, long and thorough preparation for every undertaking and for the effective handling of resources in emergencies. Each of these qualifications for success is lacked by labor organizations, as appears in every contention with employers. Labor insists that these attributes are synonymous with capital and, as labor is without capital, it cannot have them. I think this a mistake and that labor not only can have them, but must have them in order to become a winner.

"Upon one side in conflict is the corporation, the creation of law with a standing in courts, protected by laws which are the product of thought and into which have been woven useful amendments. Hence it is that capital, right or wrong, generally wins. Upon the other side we have, at its best, labor in unions—a form of combination contemporary with the stage coach. Unions served a good purpose during the earlier conditions from which they sprang, but they need vast improvement to fit them for the present industrial race. I, of course, do not mean to deny the vast good that unions have and are doing. They have united labor for mutual aid, improvement and protection. Without them wages would be lower, hours would be longer and terms and conditions of employment harsher. That they have promoted conciliation, arbitration and greater conservatism on the part of labor in its contentions is true, especially abroad. While I confess all of this and that unions are far better than no organization, yet, nevertheless, it seems to me that labor has far greater lawful opportunities in this country to better its conditions, and to assert its rights, and that for it to stand exclusively upon unions as at present organized, maintained and conducted is a great neglect of those opportunities. One might as well insist that there is, in these days of steam elevators, no better way to raise brick to the top of a 15-story building than with a man, hod and ladder.

"Why do unions persist in butting their heads against court house walls instead of walking into the temple with dignity through open doors as legally incorporated bodies? Fears and objections of labor to this course are most frivolous—as frivolous and out of date as those which cause men to bank money in stove pipes rather than trust Union will hold a convention at Albany in June. Since then Boston has been thoroughly organized, and we find that the prices have been increased for cigar making from the above figures to $7.50 low to $15 high for mold work and from $10 low to $18 high for hand work. The above is for American style only; the bill for Spanish style ranges from $18 low to $42 high. As a further reminder of the peculiarity of trades unions the cigarmakers' union has by way of diversion shortened the hours of labor to eight per day, and expended the trifling sum of $5,000,000 in benefits in relieving the distress of the sick, out of work and otherwise unfortunate members.

AN OLD ART REVIVED.

Daguerreotypes are coming into vogue again. This were good news. A good daguerreotype portrait is much more than a photograph, and it is a wonder that photography ever swamped this more distinguished and exclusive art, says the Boston Transcript. Not long ago the Listener saw a wonderful collection of daguerreotypes in an old house up in the country; though they were all taken at least forty years ago, they were as sharp and some of them were as beautiful as they had been taken but the day before, and some of them wer as beautiful as good miniatures. When we consider that all of these fine old daguerreotypes were made by professional operators with little experience and no artistic training, and reflect upon the amount of skill and taste that is applied to amateur photography at this day, we may realize something of what the result of the application of an equal amount of skill and taste to a revived daguerreotype art might be.

GENUINE INCAS.

In the interior of Peru are to be found today many full-blooded specimens of the ancient native races. These people, always gentle, though solemn and taciturn, avoiding traffic with the whites, have never forgotten nor forgiven the subjugation of their ancestors, says the Chicago Chronicle. To this day the women wear a garment in memory of the martyred Atahualpa—a long black apron with a white border. In Peru the climate is so dry that the dead escape the ordinary process of putrefaction. The preservation of bodies is assisted by certain salts in the soil.

A story is told of a traveler who was scandalized by seeing in a cemetery the body of a deceased priest, lying out in the clear light of the sun. He sought the curate of the parish for the purpose of reporting this irreverent exposure. But the curate said: "My dear sir, you do not understand. That is the body of my friend which I have put out there to dry, so that I may send him to his family in Guayaquil. May he rest in peace." Thus it comes about that the ancient people of Peru are dug up nowadays in as perfect a condition of preservation as the corpses of old Egyptians artificially mummified.

AN INTERSTATE CELLAR.

A mineral expert from this city was called into North Georgia to report upon a supposed gold find, says the Philadelphia Times. He had got wet through and through, and when seated before a rousing fire in the old-fashioned fireplace he asked his host: "Is it possible to get anything warm to drink?" "I dunno of any bein' made in this pa't of Geo'gy, sah. Some over on Sand Mountain, I reckon, thirty miles from hyar." The expert thought rightly that the man was afraid he was an informer and succeeded in convincing him to the contrary. "Wall, mister," said the host, "I tol' yo' the truth. I don' know of none in this pa't of Geo'gy. I'll send my boy to Tennessee after some. Sam (to the boy), go to Tennessee an' get some licker." The boy soon returned. "Thar ain't none thar, pop." "Go to Alabamy, then." In about ten minutes the boy returned with a pitcher filled with brandy. Upon investigation it was learned that the house was in the corner of three states, with a separate cellar in each.

WAS GOULD INSANE?

Financial Worry and Physical Exertion Not the Greatest Destroyer of Human Life.

For Humanity's Sake. After Thirty-Six Years of Nerve-Creeping Slavery. He Tells How He Was Set Free.

Caldwell, N. J., March 13—(Special.)—One of our promiment citizens, S. J. Gould, who has suffered terribly from tobacco tremens, has, in behalf of humanity, made known his frightful experience. In his written statement, which is attracting widespread attention, he says: "I commenced using tobacco at 13; I am now 49; so, for thirty-six years I chewed, smoked, snuffed and rubbed snuff till my skin turned a tobacco-brown and cold, sticky perspiration oozed from my skin, and trickled down my back at the least exertion or excitement. My nerve, vigor and my life were being slowly sapped. I made up my mind that I had to quit tobacco or die. I tried to stop tobacco time and again, but could not. I saw double and my memory was beyond control, but I still knew how to chew and smoke, which I did all day until toward night, when my system got tobacco-soaked again. Finally I gave up in despair, as I thought that I could not cure myself.

"Now, for suffering humanity, I'll tell what saved my life. Providence evidently answered my good wife's prayers and brought to her attention a booklet called: 'Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away!' What a sermon and warning in these words! Just what I was doing. It told about a guaranteed cure of the tobacco habit, called No-To-Bac. I sent to Druggist Hasler for a box. Without a grain of faith I spit out my tobacco cud, and put into my mouth a little tablet upon which was stamped No-To-Bac. I know it sounds like a lie when I tell you that I took eight tablets the first day, seven the next, five the third, and all the nerve-creeping feeling, restlessness and mental depression was gone. It was too good to be true. It seemed like a dream. I used one box it cost me $1, and it is worth $1000. I gained ten pounds in weight, and lost all desire for tobacco from the first day. I sleep and eat well, and I have been benefited in more ways than I can tell.

"I firmly believe No-To-Bac will cure any case of tobacco-using if faithfully tried, and there are thousands of tobacco slaves who ought to know how easy it is to get free. There's happiness in No-To-Bac for the premature old men who think as I did that they are old and worn out, when tobacco is the thing that destroys their vitality and manhood.

"The public should be warned, however, against imitations on the market, as the success of No-To-Bac has brought forth a host of counterfeiters and imitators. The genuine No-To-Bac is made by the Sterling Remedy company, Chicago, Montreal and New York, and sold under a guarantee to cure by all druggists, and every tablet has the word No-To-Bac plainly stamped thereon. You run no physical or financial risk in purchasing the genuine article."

THE ORIENTAL HAKKAWATI.

The hakkawati is the Oriental storyteller, the man who beyond all others, relieves the monotony of Oriental life, says the Cleveland World. He sits in the center of a large crowd, weaving stories with subtle plots and startling surprises, using pathos and passion and pungent wit, and always interspersing his narratives with familiar incidents, and laying on local color, to give an appearance of reality to the wildest fancies.

The Arabian hakkawati generally tells his stories at night, when the weird and wonderful are the most effective. He has always a fire, arranged in order to light up his countenance with a ruddy glow, so that the movements and contortions of a mobile face may add support to the narrative. He sometimes proceeds slowly, stumbling and correcting himself as Lord Beaconsfield used to do, as if his one great desire was to stick to the literal truth.

Without any apparent effort to please, the hakkawati keeps his finger on the pulse of his audience. Should they show signs of weariness, he makes them smile by pleasantry, and as the Arab holds that "smiles and tears are in the same khury," or wallet, he brings something of great seriousness on the heels of the fun, and works himself into a white heat of passion over it, the veins rising like cords on his forehead, and his whole frame convulsed and throbbing, the rapt audience following, in full sympathy with every mood.

FLORIDA

A Paradise For Liars of Every Degree of Proficiency.

Hotel Keepers Said to Be the Only Truthful People There.

Some of the Yarns Which Put Munchausen In the Shade.

Lovers of history will be glad to know that all the descendants of the late lamented Baron Munchausen have settled in this land of flowers. Florida in addition to growing the finest oranges in the world, produces also the most artistic story tellers that this country has ever seen. The natives are natural raconteurs. They are not vicious at all in what they tell, but rather quaintly amusing and interesting. The hotel keepers are the only people in the country who tell the truth, and most of them come from the North, says a St. Augustine correspondent of the New York Mail and Express.

In this beautiful place the native liar is not seen at his best. Still, if one will wander down past the old Cathedral and the slave market out to Capt. Corbett's pier and listen to the native sailor men and hunters tell things that have happened to them, it will be found worth while. Farther south the warmer weather seems to have affected the yarn crop and the result is much finer, both in quantity and quality. It is very good all over the state, but in the Indian river country the story teller is seen at his very best.

Your correspondent in sending North these few specimens, does so in the hope that some Northerner who plans a Southern trip will prepare himself and in some measure atone for the lamentable failure made by the writer when he tried to vie with the natural born Munchausen.

An interesting feature of the case is that one can hear the game story with very slight variations all over the state, from Jacksonville to Tampa, and from St. Augustine to Matanzas bay. In each case is the tale told with much attention to detail, and it is always told as a personal experience. It makes it a little monotonous, for one cannot eat caviare three times a day.

CLASSIC BASS YARN.

The first time the bass story was told to your correspondent was at Capt. Corbett's in St. Augustine. Capt. Corbett and about eight others were talking fish.

"Them fish are not so big as th' used to be," said an old sailor as he shifted his quid of tobacco and settled himself more comfortably on the top of the barrel upon which he was sitting. "Member that bass we caught abeaut three year ago?"

"I reckon I done fergot all abeaut it," said one of the party who had heard the story at least a hundred times. It is touching to see the natives stand by each other and help each other out in these matters. You could not get a man in Florida to admit that he had ever heard a yarn before.

"Well," continued the speaker, "me and Bob here was fishin' three mile below heah, jest over that pile of rock. We was gettin' a few little sheephead—weighed abeaut eighteen or twenty pounds—jess what we call fryin' fish, ye know. Well, sah, all of a sudden a fish grabbed my line and run with it. I seen it wasn't one o' them little ones, but a real sure 'nough fish. I said to Bob, "I'll bet he'll weigh a couple a hundred.' We catted up th' anchor an' made th' fish line fast to the bow. Well, sar, that bass pulled weuns abeaut the river for foh hours. Then all of a sudden it stopped and turned at us. It come up to the surface for the first time, and I saw it was the biggest bass we all had ever seen. Then he dived and come up right through the bottom of the boat. He cut right through, and there he was in the boat an' the water rushing in. Well, sar, we sunk in about three minutes. We were in abeut four foot of water."

"What did you all do then?" asked Capt. Corbett.

"We just sat thar in the boat holdin' that bass till the tide runned out," said the liar cheerfully, "an' then we mended the boat an' rowed home."

"How did you mend the boat?" asked the Northerner, thinking a flaw had been found in the liar's yarn.

"Well, we were all kinder worried at first, an' then we found a way all right. Owin' to the tide bein' out, we were on dry land fer a while, so we turned the boat over an' then we skun that fish, leaving the scales on. Then we took the skin and nailed it over the bottom of the boat. It was just the length of the boat, abeaut twenty feet long. She didn't leak a drop an' I used her that way all summer. I kin show ye th' boat of ye want to see her," he concluded.

The visitor will hear this same story at New Smyrna, Titusville, Ormond, West Palm Beach and Lake Worth. In fact, it is told wherever there is water enough to warrant the yarn. It was tried once inland near a mill pond that was at least six inches deep, but no one believed it there.

THAT SCHOOL OF FISH.

Another choice little tale that one will hear as often as he will stop to listen is of a trip up the Indian river, or the Oklawaha, or whatever river may be in the vicinity of the liar. The bottom of the river, no matter in what part of the country it may be situated, is always of the whitest sand; that is, according to the liar. Then the story goes on and tells how the liar was proceeding up the river in a small steamer, and on looking over the side he found he could not see the bottom at all. It was black as ink. Suddenly it cleared, and then for the first time he discovered that the blackness was caused by the enormous number of fish in the water. As the boat proceeded, the fish, becoming frightened, swam away. This is also a great favorite. It is told unblushingly and enthusiastically.

It would be well, too, in planning for the Florida trip to prepare one's self for a few duck stories. There are several very popular ones here, the greatest favorite probably being the one of the man who shot 180 mallard ducks in one shot. It is usually told something in this fashion, though, of course, each individual liar has his own peculiar way of getting to the point of it.

"You all can talk abeaut duck shootin' in the Noath, but you all don't know nuthin' abeut it up there. Why, I was out one day last week, an' the mallards was flyin' so thick that I done shot 180 with one shot."

For the first time in a month's experience with the lying confraternity the writer's heart beat high with hope. Pride goeth before the fall, and he rushed blindly to his own undoing.

"How could you kill so many?" he asked triumphantly, "when there are not over eighty shot in a cartridge?"

"I was just comin' to that," continued the liar. "Ye see, them mallard ducks is awful tender hearted, an' they was comin' so thick that every shot killed a bird, and when the others seen their brothers and sisters fall dead that way they jest died o' broken hearts."

There are many other lies as good as these; some are, if anything, a little better. If one could only get Eli Perkins or Col. Tom Ochiltree down here it might be worth while, but it is doubtful if any other persons north of Mason and Dixon's line could cope with the native liar of Florida.

NEW ROBINSON CRUSE.

I.

It was on an isle far out in the Pacific ocean.

The branches of the palm embraced the branches of the wild orange, and the banana bent its stately head and whispered of its love to its little cousin, the lemon.

II.

A man, in a thatched roof and the skins of animals, came walking along the beach, followed by his faithful dog. Had you looked at the calm, sad eye you would have known that he was a man of the past.

III.

Suddenly he stopped. An ashen pallor spread over his face. He saw something on the sand.

It was the print of a bare foot.

IV.

He cried aloud:

"I fled from the world because of it! It haunted me there! God knows I was innocent."

He fell to the earth, and his eyes became glassy.

Long years passed.

Sailors, seeking water, found on the beach the skeletons of a man and a dog and a footprint, which grimly told that Friby had passed that way.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Orders to prepare for the annual inspection of the National Guard have been published. The inspection will not take place until the month of May, on the dates published below. Time passes very quickly, however, in preparation for this yearly ordeal, and to be in good condition, semi-weekly drills will probably soon be inaugurated. The dates are as follows: Company A, May 11; Company H, May 12; Company C, May 13; Company G, May 14.

* * *

Company A turned out about twenty-five men on Tuesday evening. The armory, however, was colder than usual and no drill was held. Orders have arrived for Lieut. Eva and Corporal Richardson to report to the examining board, at the state capitol, to take their examination. Eva takes an examination for the captaincy and Corporal Richardson for the second lieutenantcy. They leave Saturday evening, and will probably be home on Monday. Privates George Ash and Theodore Upton have returned from East Grand Forks and reported to Lieut. Quade for duty Tuesday evening. Sergt. Norton left the city Wednesday evening for Winnipeg, where he will remain some time.

* * *

The members of Company C turned out for drill Wednesday evening. Three recruits were reported. The company is rapidly putting itself in shape for inspection, and it is understood it will soon be drilling twice a week. The following members of the company have been honorably discharged: John Beattie, S. A. Cohean, J. J. Chapman, A. D. McNutt, D. McLennan, S. W. Siegriest.

* * *

Company G had a turnout of thirty men Thursday night at drill. Corporals Prescott, Wigdahl and Whalen drilled squads in the manual and setting up exercises, while Capt.-elect Cooke had the company in hand. There is a very marked improvement in the company in the last few weeks and the boys are feeling much encouraged. Second Lieut. Sickles has sent in his resignation to Capt.-elect Cooke, who has forwarded it to headquarters. The reason for his resignation is his removal from town. Sergt. Watson and Corporal Nash were detailed to visit Company I, of West Superior, to get some hints on the new manual adapted to the Krag—Jorgeson rifle. Capt. Holmberg of Company H visited the company during its drill Thursday evening.

Private Thomas Clark has returned to town, after some two months' absence, and reported to Capt.-elect Cooke for duty.

"Better late than never," was the thought of more than one member of the company, as the pungent fumes of the delicious importations from war-stricken Cuba gently soothed their nerves after last Thursday's drill. The cigars were on Cooke and were due on his recent election to the captaincy. Having been out of town, on the date of the election, this was his first opportunity to do his duty and it was taken advantage of at once. Sometimes the thought occurs of how nice it would be to elect a captain every week.

* * *

Company H of West Duluth drilled Wednesday evening. Thirty-two members were present, and although the armory was chilly they managed to keep the blood in circulation during the brisk drill under Capt. Holmberg.

* * *

Charles W. Viers, first sergeant, has resigned, after holding the office for four years. Corporal Charles W. Towner has been appointed to his position, his warrant dating from Feb. 27.

Numerous are stories of recruits on guard duty. One, on a member of a Duluth company, during the strike at Virginia two years ago, is pretty good, especially as it is absolutely true. One of his instructions was that when in answer to his order to halt the challenged party answered that he was the officer of the guard he was to order the person to advance and be recognized. Somewhere about 9 o'clock, before all the members of the camp had turned in, the officer of the guard made his rounds. Approaching the recruit through the inky blackness of the cold May night, he was halted by the sentinel's challenge. The answer "Officer of the guard," was promptly given, when to his surprise and the speechless mirth of the listening company, he was ordered in a loud and cheerful voice to "advance for recommendations."

And whereas default was made in the payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon said note and mortgage, due November 1st, A. D. 1895, amounting to the sum of one hundred and five dollars ($105.00), the payment of which was secured by said mortgage, and such default has continued for a period of more than ten days, after the same became payable, by reason whereof the undersigned mortgagee has elected to exercise said option, and has heretofore duly declared and does hereby declare the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage with all accrued interest thereon to be now due and payable.

FABRICS

Spring Goods Prominent in All the Big Duluth Stores.

How Shall the Spring Gowns Be Made Up is a Puzzle.

Several Striking Changes Which Will Soon Be Very Fashionable.

Fabrics, real especially those which will soon, for spring and summer use, are commencing to be seen in Duluth stores, and, like the first jonquils and hyacinths that push their sweet heads up suddenly to say "goodby" to winter, they are to be seen nodding gaily from all the big shop windows.

Compared to the heavy offerings, indeed, that parade by in the bitter day, these dainty textiles are genuine buds of primrose to the woman who knows her summer frocks to be the most becoming of all; so she is not surprised to find fair femininas rushing like sheep to crop the first blossoms of the cotton and linen harvest.

It is the early bird every time that catches the worm, and this holds good with muslins and organdies as well as other things. They are more expensive just now, of course, than they will be later, but among all the standard designs that are likely to run straight through the summer, there are bound, as always, to be a few rare and novel ones which late buyers will never see.

To judge from the indications, grass linens are to take the lead with summer luxuries, and as though those of last year were not charming enough, the ones now shown surpass anything ever seen before in loveliness and novelty of patterns.

Linen grenadine and linen batiste are the names given to the new weaves, and in tone they run more toward a gentle ecrusan than a the sage tint of last summer.

As to patterns, there are stripes and squares in narrow satin lines in a contrasting color, white, gold, green, blue and pink; the striped designs having in some instances in the two-inch space between the bars, small dots of silk in the same tone, says Nina Fitch in the Rochester Post-Express.

Then there are linen batistes woven all over with stripes, squares or stiff designs in open biscuit lace, and these are recommended to be made over some bright, becoming silk, which would show through the perforations and take away from the trying dullness of the linen.

Indeed, it seems to be generally understood that the grass linens are all to be made over silk.

A "FROU-FROU" NOVELTY.

The few rare models as yet seen were so combined, but a little experimenting proved that, with a plain grenadine or batiste, the same effect could be made with a sateen foundation, and this would certainly be much less expensive than a silk one.

A novelty in these linens is a very pale open-pointed weave called "frou-frou," which in a forty-two-inch width sells at $1.95 the yard.

A frou-frou linen gown made up on pink silk was paraded in a glass case like a hot house flower and marked $100. The foundation was in the most vivid watermelon pink ever seen, but it only had a rosy, becoming glow to the neutral linen.

Bands of a fine, white Russian lace run through with narrow black velvet, ornamented the bodice, the velvet tying at the shoulders and at the bottoms of the puff sleeves in a great chrysanthemum rosette.

Velvet ribbon, by the way, is to be the most modish decoration for cotton and linen gowns, and it will take the shape of stocks, belts, bows and rosettes on the bodice, and many even appear under very open lace insertions in bands on the skirt. For bodice use three inches is the width offered, and a trio of the newest colors are a wonderful pink-violet, a rich purple called "Eminence," and a bayadere blue that has sapphire shadings.

To combine with the velvet ribbon, and especially for the grass linens with satin stripes, there are charming French embroideries in lace designs on butter-yellow batiste.

A rich ecru lace called Point de Venise, though not quite as dainty as the yellow embroideries perhaps, is a newer and more splendid trimming for the grass linens.

CAMBRICS AND PERCALES.

For the cambrics, linen lawns and percales, which, though running mainly to stripes, are in the delicate pinks, blues, yellows and greens of old, there are the same white cambric embroideries that have proven their washable worth by long trial. Dimities and batistes are to be worn more than ever, if the enormous quantities of them shown in the shops count for anything, and some of the designs in these are a positive delight to the eye. Narrow stripes outnumber the figures in both, but with the stripes small colored flowers, in wreaths, garlands and tiny bouquets, will be combined with enchanting effect. One adorable dimity was barred with narrow apple green stripes, ropes of small colored flowers looping around every fifth one and hanging all over in garlands. Another Marie Antoinette dimity was pale green with white stripes around which pink ribbons were wound maypole fashion; between the stripes were small, stiff wreaths of pink roses.

In the chambrays there are two new and novel colors, a bright indigo blue and a rather smoky pink that borders on peach blossom. These and other colors as well come in dress patterns and an appliqué all over with big lace butterflies or some other design, the same lace which is made of a yellowish point braid, being let in at the skirt bottom to form a deep, rich border.

Decorations for the bodice of the same are also provided, in the shape of bands, collars or revers and with, often, long cuff pieces that cover the whole of the forearm.

The new organdies run mainly to a profuse flowering on a pearly white or delicately tinted background.

With the flowers a few will show here and there the vague velvety splotches of the chameleon silks, and one pearly white background was strewn with great boughs of apple-blossoms that seemed as natural as those just torn from the parent limb.

But the new Swisses, the new Swisses! Never since Mother Eve designed the first gown did sweet woman stand such a chance of being as adorable as these fairy fabrics are found to make her.

WHITE GOODS REJECTED.

The old dead white nebecoming ones have been numbered with things past, the new ones coming in soft becoming tones, or if white they are so barred with crinkled ribbon stripes in gay tints and dotted with silk between that the white ceases to be trying.

A novelty Swiss for figurines last has pale olive green ribbon stripes with black silk dots on the wide white Swiss stripes between. Made up over geranium pink silk with a stock, belt and sleeve twists of velvet in the same shade, this pattern would develope into an enchanting costume.

As a airy web to take the place of more commonplace lace for the bodice, and to edge possible flounces, could be a thin footing colored with eosenas and put on plain or kilted.

For trimming, simple muslins, lawns and dimities that are to be washed, point d'esprit footing will be much used, and because of the pattern of this it is most effective when only gathered.

In the new shirt waists is observed a strong leaning toward delicate, linen cottons instead of the thick percales and cambrics of last summer.

Grass linens, plain, figured, striped and dotted are also extensively used, and the same stiff white linen collars and cuffs of last year are still in high favor.

When, however, the waist is of batiste or figured in delicate tones, the collars and cuffs will often be of colored linen; pink, blue, violet or yellow. The newest fancy is to have the collar and cuffs match, though if the shirt waist is in a plain material the cuffs may be of the same and the collar white.

As to shape, there does not seem to be much change except in the sleeves, which now run entirely to bishop, aflatest. Sometimes, too, the gathers of the front will be pressed down each side of the buttons to form a double box plait, and a few of the more dressy waists are made on half fitted linings to button up the back.

These last were introduced late in the season last summer and did not find a very favorable footing, being clumsy to laundry and excessive to boot.

For dressy moments, however, they are desirable, and some of them are made very handsome with ribbon stocks, tabs of yellow lace and entre-deux of the same.

A FASHION PUZZLE.

How Shall the Spring Gowns Be Made Up?

Fashion is in a state of revolution again, and while attractive spring novelties in materials and trimmings are unfolding their beauties in rapid succession in the shops, the vital question of some radical change in sleeves and skirts is agitating the feminine mind; and just how to have the new gowns made so that they shall be in the fashion three months hence is a distracting puzzle in modes, according to the New York Sun. Skirts are still cut in the circular shape between five and seven yards around at the bottom, with the wide plait in front. Others have the side plait on the hips turning toward the back; but the skirt of the immediate future promises to be less full and cut in gored breadths, much as it was some years ago, before the bell skirt appeared. The huge sleeve, stiffened out in the form of a balloon, is already a thing of the past, and in the struggle to bring the close coat sleeve back to favor there is no end of novelties in sleeve designs for use in summer gowns.

The woman who is favored with that natural grace and style called chic, which will make anything she wears a complete success because her individuality is the leading charm, can safely adapt any of these new sleeve models to her use. She is sure to gain a stylish effect, whichever way the wheel turns; but she who is destitute of this enviable quality must consider her shortcomings first and make her selections with greater care. The new close sleeve is not so becoming as the large one, nor so useful in the art of concealing defects, but it is surprising how quickly we become accustomed to new outlines of fashion and transfer our preference to the latest mode, whether we like it or not. It is the French women who discriminate in matters of dress with the most infinite care and study the art of suiting the fashions to their individual needs; and if American women would follow their rules more carefully there would be more successful dressing.

CORDED WOOLS AND ALPACAS.

Among the new goods for spring gowns are corded wools and alpacas with shot effect, and pretty mixtures of silk and wool with chine patterns. Honeycomb designs in wool made of a rather coarse thread loosely woven are very desirable, and many of the novelties have an overshot patterned stripe in a lighter or darker shade than the ground. Wiry, glossy fabrics like mohair are to be very popular this season, and there is a new material, especially serviceable for traveling gowns, which resembles canvas in the weave and is glossy like alpaca. All materials with a silky sheen are decidedly the fashion, and poil de chevre is another revival in materials which comes in beautiful colorings with floral patterns blended on a finely checked ground.

Fine checks promise to be very popular, and shot mohairs are especially recommended. They are made up so as to look very dressy, in the style of years ago, with a folded surplice front opening over an embroidered silk muslin vest. Flowered taffeta silk is used for a collar at the back, with a ruffle of the muslin down either side of the front, and black satin ribbon for collar and belt is very effective if the gown is gray. The skirts of the new alpaca gowns are cut in the new way, and are not so full nor so flaring as those in present use, and there are only two plaits in the fulness at the back.

The new tweeds are rather bright in coloring, and white is mixed with the greens, browns, and blues with pretty effect. One of the popular colors for tailor-made gowns is brown, in both light and dark shades, mixed with black, green or pink. A stylish gown of this sort is made with a tight-fitting bodice with a short, full basque, and a collarette and cuffs of plain pink cloth braided with gold and brown. Light cloths in white, biscuit color, or any of the light shades are a feature of trimming in the new tailor gowns, and they appear in vests, turn-over collars, and cuffs, which are usually braided in the darker color of the gown mixed with gold. Two light tints of cloth, such as ecru and peach, are sometimes combined effectively in one vest.

WHITE SILK VESTS.

White silk vests braided in black and white are pretty for tan or gray cloth gowns, and a touch of color is given by a velvet collar band, cuffs, and belt. White cloth and silk are also used for vests in gray or brown mohair gowns, and they are sometimes made with a small box plait in the center and tiny tucks on either side, when the edge of the waist is cut out in three square tabs, which meet over the vest and fasten with gold buttons at the pointed ends. Plainer mohair gowns are made with Norfolk jacket waists, and the plaits are bands stitched on flat. Other coat waists have a wide double box plait down the middle of the back to the narrow belt.

A smart gown for early spring wear is made of mignonette green cloth with a Louis Seize coat bodice and pelerine-shaped revers, and cuffs of biscuit-colored cloth embroidered with brown and gold. The bolero fronts cross over a little on one side, fastening with two brilliant buttons over a vest of cream satin thickly braided with gold. Accordion-plaited cream mousseline de soie forms a jabot and trims the cuffs and collar. Another coat of a fine-faced cloth gown shows a white cloth vest braided in blue, with three straps of blue cloth below the last, and full drooping shoulder pieces over the sleeves, which make it very stylish. Coat waists are not the only style in tailor-made gowns, for the pointed bodice, fastened on one side, is one of the new spring models.

It opens in front on a full white silk vest, and turns back in large revers. White satin ribbon makes the stock collar and bow. The close coat sleeves appear in some of the English tailor gowns, but full epaulets of cloth falling over them partially disguise the fact that they are quite close to the arm. The prettiest sleeves in the French gowns have flaring puffs or ruffles at the elbow, with lace falling below, and are quite plain above. Another sleeve which is seen in the new gowns is close fitting, either wrinkled or plain, from the wrist up fully six inches above the elbow, and is finished at the top with one or two short puffs.

ELABORATE TRIMMINGS.

Fashion has run riot in the production of dress trimmings this season, and they were never so elaborate and artistic in design or so beautiful in coloring as they are now. Spangles, fine beads, and colored silks are worked together in all sorts of intricate patterns, and yokes, bands, belts, and collars come in every possible shape, all ready for use. Laces are more varied and elegant than ever, with no end of applique designs on net and chiffon. More fascinating than all are the batiste embroideries, with Persian colored silk and gold threads wrought in lovely patterns on the ecru linen. Added to these are new and exquisite patterns of cream and white embroidery on the same linen. One of the novelties of the season is ecru batiste embroidered with white and applied on black net to form insertions of varying widths. The effect is decidedly pleasing.

Among the new gauzy materials are black and white chiffons embroidered in large showy sprays of flowers in natural colors, and these are used for waists, and also for entire dresses if you can believe the man behind the counter who displays the gorgeous fabric. Something more dainty in design is white chiffon covered all over with a Persian pattern in the softest blending of colors imaginable, and this over a white silk lining with plain stock collar and belt of satin ribbon makes charming waists for summer wear. Organdies are being sold in such large quantities that they promise renewed popularity when the warm weather comes. Plain blue, pink, and many-flowered patterns are being made up for young ladies in the simplest style with hemmed skirts and full, round waists cut out in the neck, where they are finished with little frills of the same edged with narrow lace. Satin ribbon makes the belt, and the sleeves of these gowns are without lining and almost close fitting to the elbow, where they end in a frill.

Another model for a thin gown has three rows of lace insertion set in the skirt, a double puffed sleeve tied around with white satin ribbon, and a wide draped belt of white satin. Grenadines are to be worn again, and they come in a white chiffon covered all over with a Persian pattern in the softest blending of colors imaginable, and this over a white silk lining with plain stock collar and belt of satin ribbon makes last and cuffs trimmed around a little above the edge with gilt are insertion and velvet, and sheer India lawn made in sections and lengths of Valenciennes lace is made into pretty frills which set in on either side of a ribbon stock collar. Both white and colored chiffon is used in this way, and a full chiffon ruche standing up all around the neck holds the collar band in very good style.

Ribbon bands with 2-inch wide straps, made of lace insertion and edging folding over at intervals around the neck, and a large bow in the back, make a pretty collar. Very becoming ruches for evening wear in the summer, when a very little scrap is sufficient, are made of full rosettes of chiffon, mixed with ribbon loops, and set on a plain ribbon band. A frill of wide lace edging or chiffon forms a little cape below. Other ruches have ostrich tips standing up around the neck, and a novelty in feather boas is made in the form of a small cape, pointed in front and back, short on the shoulders, and very full around the neck.

RIGHT FROM PARIS.

Suede Gloves Will Supplant White Kid This Spring.

Light suede gloves are to take the place of white kid this spring, for which boon we may be truly thankful. There never was such an ugly and unpracticel fashion—ugly, because, small hands being in the minority, the white glove's made large hands looks even larger; unpractical because (need I say it?) they were never clean after an hour's wear. And as everybody will follow the caprices of Mme. la Mode, even the housemaid on her "day out" wore what were once white gloves.

One of the prettiest notions in the way of sleeves closely resembles a Canterbury bell. It is quite close-fitting and plain on the shoulders and to the elbow, where it ends in a multiplicity of soft frillings of lisse and lace. Then there is another shape coming in, quite tight also, but with an upper sleeve almost as wide as a child's frock, drooping a little over the elbow and just reaching to the band of the arm, and sewn in on the shoulders in broad box pleats.

Veils will be worn in black tulle, embroidered with a scroll in white floss silk, attached with a number of fancy pins, like so many confetti, in all colors. The ends are tied in a full bow upon the brim of the hat, at the back, and allowed to follow their swee; will; they are no longer tucked away out of sight. This innovation has the advantage of forming a trimming, which is of excellent effect.

SOME STRIKING TOILETTES.

Among the costumes worn at the opening soiree of the French Aquarellistes, or water color painters, were the following: A skirt of emerald green miroir velvet, and bodice of spangled guipure insertion, pink velvet sapote, shape of 1830, with wide strings tied with a large bow under the chin. Another consisted of a Louis XV jacket of black velvet, with chinchilla revers, showing in front a mass of white, with gauze; small capote, embroidered crown, surrounded with wreath of violets mixed with holly, and algrette of mistletoe. One lady wore a cream silk brocade with black; capote of mauve velvet popples; and the wife of a well-known painter appeared in a very handsome Renaissance costume of red velvet and blue brocade lined with red; round the throat a large ruff of spangled tulle, small begum bonnet broche with gold and silver.

Superb fabrics are profusely embroidered with gold, silver, pearls, jet, silk and spangles, with diamonds scattered about on velvet and lace. But nothing as yet is changed in the cut of the skirt, and the huge sleeves in day toilettes are not diminished, but seem abolished for evening dress, and replaced with a band of ribbon or a bunch of flowers; but gradually the chimesette and blouse seem likely to disappear, though extremely convenient, in favor of the bodice with small basques—Louis XV or Louis XVI—close fitting, opening to show a mass of lace or soft silk gauze. But at quiet dinners, etc., black satin skirts are often worn, and pretty bodices of light silk, trimmed with either lace or narrow bands of fur.

PARIS OPERA CLOAKS.

The cloaks worn to the opera in Paris, when Fredegonde was performed, were exceedingly rich and beautiful. There was one striped with gold and embroidered with flowers in a kind of Dalmatian or Byzantine shape, with large falling sleeves open all the way down, lined with pink satin, and embroidered with fur; large high up-standing collar. Another Venetian in shape was of white satin, sparkling with spangles; and one of Genoa velvet was lined with ermine, and had a high collar of quilled lace; and last, but not least, a large cloak of soft cream velvet, printed with flowers the same shade, and lined with mauve, and ornamented with lace and gold; high collar fastened with bunch of roses. Truly these cloaks are often richer than the dresses they cover.

The vigorous campaign against large hats being worn as theirers has brought about a reform, and now one only sees small dressy capotes, made of a wealth of roses or jet, round a wee crown of beads or gold embroidery, or of crumpled pink velvet; but all have a high aigrette, often of marabout tigre, two shades.)

VANITY FAIR.

Fashion Advice From the Hub of American.

Don't spend money on too many evening and reception gowns. There are many ways of modifying a formal dress-frock to less formal occasions, says the Boston Beacon.

Take advantage of the fichu idea to conform an off-shoulder evening gown to the required square cut. Allow the fichu to cross the shoulders, its ruffle standing out on the sleeves; the ends of the fichu are drawn straight down to the belt, which secures them and a square opening is thus left in front, the edge of the decolletege being at the dressst line, and the fichu making the edge of the opening.

For this same purpose nothing is prettier than one of the sailor collars of satin so much in vogue. Such a collar ends in long points which hangs from the shoulders, or which are drawn close to the heads face at either side. The collar is slipped a little low at the back, to show a pretty bit of neck, and the lines it takes in front make a very elaborate low-cut gown with a modified square suitable for dinner or reception. If such a collar is of transparent net the effect is a little more dressy, and also extremely becoming.

If you want the throat bound, then make your collar to fasten at the throat under a stock of pretty ribbon, the edges of the collar then lie loosely together and hang to the breast or waist line. At the back, the collar is wide enough to cover the cut out of the dress under, and it spreads over the shoulders. This kind of modification is much more artistic than the clumsy way of stuffing a yoke or "filling in with lace."

Another way to make a formal gown suitable for less formal use, is by covering of the shoulders, is to wear a ribbon collar. This is a stock that swathes the throat. From the stock, bands of ribbon radiate, each band weighted at the further end by a jewel button. These bands spread over shoulders and back and to the edge of the decolletege in front. They fasten lightly, that they may not slip, and between them the bare neck and shoulders show. The effect is always good, and yet the formality of a gown is thereby much diminished.

A still simpler device is the adding to an off-shoulder gown, epaulets, that are adjusted after the gown is on. These epaulets are only oblong pieces of net, or satin, or what you will, edged with a ruffle of lace or not on one long side and the two ends. The epaulet is adjusted by attaching one end to the back, the other to the front edge of the decolletege, the ruffle at the side of the epaulet hanging out over the low sleeve of the gown. This changes the off-shoulder cut to a square, and covers the shoulders.

FOOLISH EXPENSE.

It's all foolishness to spend money on evening bonnets and hats—just as it's pretty much foolishness to attempt at home to accomplish the exactness and authority of a big hat. The very simplest evening bonnet, one almost universally becoming and not likely to be out of style for many a long day, is the easiest to make and exactly as effective when made at home as when made at a milliner's. Listen, my children, and you shall hear.

The foundation for the bonnet is a band from two to four inches wide and more or less quarter of a yard long. The band may be anything. A handsome bit of jeweled "trimming," a section of a spangled, jeweled or flexible belt, a bit of ribbon garlanded with spangles, a folded piece of velvet, a piece of rich lace, or the band may be made by adjusting narrow lines of beads at distances to make the required width. Whatever the band is, let it be finished off securely at the ends, so there will be no ravelling or pulling out. This band should be long enough to lie over the top of the head and reach out the least bit above where the temples of the pretty ears are.

Now get at least four roses. Pretty ones, those soft chiffon ones that come in blended colors are suitable. Don't get all alike, but let them harmonize. A dullish pale green, a soft pink, a scarlet or a dull yellow-brown go well. Be sure the roses have pretty stems, and a bud or so attached. Fasten a pair of roses to each end of the band. Let them hang lightly over the end, having been fastened close to the end, to give it finish, the under rose hanging by its stem, will below the upper one. Now put your bonnet on. Usually it is most becoming if the edge of the band comes just the least back of the hair line at the beginning of the curl; the two ends coming to a point. The lower edge of the ears. Both roses are adjusted close or loose, forward a little, or back, as seems becoming.

The bonnet itself is secured by hairpin, put in carefully. A handsome rhinestone ornament, in crescent or star or curved band shape, you then fasten to the edge of the band, just above the brow. If the ornament won't stand up straight with so little to hold to, take a pair of really handsome hat pins and so adjust them that their heads come symmetrically back of the ornament, supporting it upright and adding to the entire effect. Maybe you will need to have pins for this use made short that ugly points may not show.

Such a headdress, just as I have described, is usually very effective and becoming. It is subject to all sorts of modification. A bow can be put on top, with soft fall of chiffon or lace to hang over the end roses. An upstanding aigrette may be added to the brow-ornament. Roses may be set all along the band, a frill of lace may peep from under the edge of the band and lie against the hair. Soft knots of lace and ribbon may take the place of the roses. But as a rule the less you put on a little headdress of this kind the better the effect.

For the belle who wears her hair high a tiny crescent shaped and stiffened band, so narrow that a row of beads cover it almost, and so short that curved thumb and first finger make as long a crescent, has been invented. Near one horn of the crescent is fastened securely a little up-standing tuft of tiny pinnes, or of perky roses, or fanned-out lace. When the headdress is in place only the glitter of the enrichment of the crescent and the aigrette addition shows.

Still another headdress is wreath shaped stiffened and narrow. It lies crown-like on the top of the head. Sometimes the circle isn't quite complete, the ends lying close to the hair at the back. This "crown" is covered with ribbon or velvet enriched with frills and choux, with roses and rhinestones. It isn't quite as "new" as the band-model, but if you can only induce yourself not to overload it with elaboration it is very becoming.

ABOUT VEILS.

It is always wise to wear an all-over veil with such a headdress, especially the flat band headdress. Let the veil be wide enough to cover the face, go over the entire head, the ends and edge all gathered together under the hair at the back. A pretty idea I have lately seen carried out shows these ends gathered into symmetrical choux. The veil was of course, permanently drawn into hood shape, the hood being slipped on over the face, the choux smartly adjusting themselves half under, half against the knot of hair, with very pretty effect. Such a veil should be of the lightest and finest net or gauze, of illusion type, and may be either white or black. It does not interfere with the eyes of view at all, and it adds to the general dressiness of the headgear, while it insures undisturbed symmetry of outline.

Indeed, I advise a veil for all occasions in these days of "picture hair"—picture hair is all very pretty in its intended "picture-confusion," but picture-confusion means few hairpins and droop and careless effect. If the effect droops the least bit more, or is the least bit more careless, it ceases to be picturesque and is merely untidy. A veil protects from wind, and maintains outline.

But your veil must be always irreproachably in order. Dotted black is the safe usual choice. Made veils and edged veils are growing common, and were never wise taste.

Black fine mesh, with white chenille dot, is by the wily milliner drawn over your face and about the hat you are trying, and it is becoming. Let your maid press out your veils with a warm iron once a week—it will save money. Chenille dots? They usually just mash flatter without spoiling.

KEEP VEILS TID.

Nothing is more unbecoming than a stringy veil, with perhaps a tear or a bald place where the dots have scraped off. Brown veiling is becoming to many, but any but white, brown or black are unwise choice. Big mesh and large frequent, and black dots make a veil behind which high color and dark eyes look well. A hint for the girl who "makes-up." Be tidy about the ends of your veil, don't let a scraggy, outstanding ragged pair of stringy pieces spoil all.

NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH.

(From Cincinnati Gazette.)

Will people never learn that a "cold" is an accident to be dreaded, and that when it occurs treatment should be properly applied? There is no knowing where the trouble will end; and while complete recovery is the rule, the exceptions are terribly frequent, and thousands upon thousands of fatal illnesses occur every year ushered in by a little injudicious exposure and seemingly trifling symptoms. Beyond this, there are today countless invalids who can trace their complaints to "colds," which at the time of occurrence gave no concern, and were therefore neglected. When troubled with a cold use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is prompt and effectual. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists.

Vitality IN MEN Restored.

Failing Sexual Strength in old or young men can be quickly and permanently cured by me to a healthy, vigorous state. Sufferers from....

NERVOUS DEBILITY,

VARICOCELE, NIGHT LOSSES,

AND ALL WASTING DISEASES should write to me for advice. I have been a close student for many years of the subject of weakness in men, the fact is, I was a sufferer myself. Too bashful to seek the aid of older men or reputable physicians I investigated the subject deeply and discovered a simple but most remarkably successful remedy that completely cured me and fully enlarged me from a shrunken, stunted condition to natural strength and size. I want every young or old man to know about it. I take a personal interest in such cases and no one need hesitate to write me as all communications are held strictly confidential. I send the recipe of this remedy absolutely free of cost. Do not put it off but write me fully at once, you will always bless the day you did so. Address,
